Shot The Wrong Man

It does seem there should be some official explaining done following the shooting of Reginald Young in Toronto. He is 28 years old, associated with the civil service, and had gone to look at a vacant house in Toronto. His car was parked outside when another bearing two men trying to escape from the police pulled in behind and bumped his car. Mr. Young heard the crash and saw two men jump from their car and start to run away. He gave chase and apparently had little trouble in catching up with the men for he grappled one of them.

Then a police cruiser came, making three cars. Police got out of their car and seeing men running ahead opened fire, and Reginald Young, who by then had captured one of the wanted men, slumped, wounded. The police gun had shot the wrong man.

This paper realizes police cannot take too great chances when it comes to closing in on unknown people who may be armed and ready to shoot it out, but the acceptance of a policy of shooting first and then proceeding to investigate is too dangerous for general practice. In this case Young had gone ahead of the police, and he was not armed, and he had been able to come to grips with one of the men who had bumped his car and he was holding him. A policeman should be able to do that much and more.

Nor is the theft of a car—for that is what the men in Toronto were being hunted for—sufficient reason to shoot the men who had stolen it. The public is willing and anxious enough that the police should have every advantage in dealing with criminals, but the same public will not approve of the custom of quick shooting unless it is thoroughly justified on the ground of saving an officer from being attacked. In such a case it is well that there should be a careful sifting of the known facts in order to provide a stated policy for the police department. Having the finger on the trigger is not yet accepted as proper for police in Britain or in Canada. Truth is British police carry no weapons.

Will Investigate

Official announcement comes from Toronto that arrangements have been made for an investigation of the treatment for cancer which has been used for some years by Miss Rene Caisse of Bracebridge. The examination of the treatment will be in charge of Sir Frederick Banting, discoverer of insulin. Miss Caisse has been using a treatment of her own making for a number of years and operates a clinic. There have been a number of petitions circulated asking that her method be studied and passed upon.

The chief difficulty in such a case would be to secure the services of a man or a body of men who would be entirely competent to pass judgment because the cause of cancer is not known, neither is the proper method of treatment. The treatment used by Miss Caisse is not another way of doing something which is already being done, but it has to do with dealing with something about which so little is known.

If Sir Frederick Banting is willing to undertake an investigation his conclusions will be received as the finding of a competent and a fair-minded professional man. It will also be possible to bring to his notice the history of a good many cases which have been treated. The experience of those who have received treatment is, after all, of more value than long discussion.

The Policy Of Britain

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden made a plain statement in the British House of Commons regarding the attitude which Britain has taken toward the war in Spain. Since the conflict started over a year ago there has been a tremendous amount of material landed in that country. Both the invading insurgents and the defending loyalists have had to depend almost entirely on outside sources for their munitions and implements of war. There have been fleets of planes, tanks, armored cars and heavy guns brought in, as well as machine guns and rifles. Who is paying for it all remains one of the details which has yet to be adequately answered.

The statement of Anthony Eden was simple but direct. And it was just this: That since the beginning of the civil war in Spain there had been no shipments of war material made from Britain directly or indirectly. And it was in that word "indirectly" that the greater significance rested. Most war shipments are made indirectly. That is, the material is shipped to some address in a country where there is at present no war, and from there it is again shipped to the scene of the trouble in Spain.

Britain started with a known policy of non-intervention in Spain, with the fixed purpose of trying to keep the war from spreading, and Britain has adhered to that policy. No doubt Britain, if she were guided by mercenary motives, could have done a great deal of business selling war supplies to the belligerents in Spain, but she has sold nothing and made nothing. Her concern has been chiefly the evacuation of women and children from the most dangerous sections.

Double His Salary

Freddie Bartholomew, England's gift to Hollywood, is having trouble with his salary. He was due for another picture, and the producing company, fearing his quest for more salary might delay production, announced he was being replaced by another boy, Douglas Scott.

Freddie Bartholomew has been making $1,200 a week, and his aunt and guardian, Myllicent Bartholomew, is said to be trying to double the salary of Freddie, who is now her adopted son.

That is, she is of opinion that the lad should receive $2,400 for a week's work, and a little simple arithmetic shows that would be $124,800 per year. Whether the lad himself ever thinks much about such matters is something on which we have no information.

Nor do we know anything at all about the manner in which moving picture salaries are regulated. It seems to be a case of getting all the traffic will bear. The manner in which an actor pulls in the box office probably has a good deal to do with it.

But we cannot get away from the feeling that if they want to spoil Freddie Bartholomew all that is needed is to make him the possessor of a salary of $124,000 a year. He does not need that much; it will do him no possible good. For his own good it may be the best thing which could happen to have another lad take his place in a picture. A little bump now and then is not a bad thing for a person on the road to success. And part of the bump should also be felt by his foster-mother who is so keen to have an already large income doubled at once.

Strikes Cost Money

June was a troubled month in United States for industrial relations. Complete records show there were 575 strikes started during the month and 300 were in progress when the month opened and 530 terminated during the month.

In that one month the number of days' pay lost was 4,500,000 and as many of the strikes were in trades where the rate of pay is relatively high it would mean a monetary loss to the workers involved of $20,000,000 or more.

If the workers lost that much then the loss to employers must have represented a much greater figure, for loss of output is always several times greater than the loss of wages. It would be a conservative estimate to say that the loss of output, plus the loss to transportation companies and other firms which supply goods to the struck factories would make a total of $100,000,000. And that, by the way, would pay all the taxes for a city the size of Peterborough for 100 years.

Could Stomachs Form A Union?

A resident of Downie township happened to be in Stratford, and there he is reported to have made a bet that he could eat three dozen bananas in fifteen minutes, and in order to do that he would have had to pop in more than two each minute. When he had taken fifteen he was through. There is possibly nothing very unusual about the incident, as papers here and there often contain accounts of people betting how much of this and that they can eat in a given time.

When the man from Downie ate fifteen bananas he was taking on a food load which can be safely rated as about 1,800 calories, and there are plenty of people who are not doing very hard work for whom that is quite sufficient for a 24-hour diet.

The point we are coming at is this: When people feel moved to tackle something new and novel in the way of an exploit to show their ability why should they always herd their ideas and their efforts around the poor old stomach which has to work pretty regularly for them every day in the week? We have seen reports of eating hot-dogs, corn-on-the-cob, pies, buscuits, eggs and what-have-you, and in every case it is the stomach which has to start operating after the contest and make the best it can of attending to the surplus trash which has been hurriedly dumped into it without proper mastication.

Stomachs in themselves are not outwardly vocal, nor can they take any mass action. They are not able to have a meeting some day and form an association or a union and draw up rules and regulations. One stomach is not able to call a sympathetic strike because other stomachs are working under what can be called unfair conditions, and there is no possibility of a stomach approaching the provincial government or the Labor Department to ask for a Board of Arbitration or Conciliation.

The Downie stomach into which was popped fifteen bananas in a row cannot complain to any other stomach or to all other stomachs that it is working harder than it should have to work. It just has to do its churning and its own squirming and make the best of a hard job. In the interests of stomachs in general we would like to know what can be done about it. At present the lack of rules and regulations seems to leave the poor old stomach wide open to all manner of useless and unfair exploitation.

It's Different Now

The automible has changed the picture completely around in a good many quarters and nowhere more than at Ontario's lake resorts where folk gather to spend the summer months. It used to be not so long ago that when a cold gale lashed the lakes into foam as was the case in this district on Monday the summer visitors spent the day huddled around the stove in the kitchen or in front of the fire place in the living room of the more pretentious cottages. There was not much else they could do, because the weather was too bad to go fishing or do the other things that fit into the usual summer holiday program.

It is not like that today. When a bad day comes along a large proportion of the lake population piles into cars and heads for the nearest town to spend the day in shopping, visiting the movie theatre and other recreation. Here at the beginning of the week the majority of the customers in some of Peterborough's stores were out-of-town folk, summer visitors who had been driven in by the inclemency of the weather and took advantage of the occasion to get in some shopping.

The Examiner has heard of one Peterborough family whose custom used to be to climb into their automobile whenever a rainy night was threatened, come into town to enjoy the theatre, spend the night at their city home and return to the lake in the morning.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The new police inspector in Kingston is Andrew Ready and if there is anything at all in a name he should make a good official.

Another level crossing accident has taken five lives, four from one family. Adherence to the old advice, "Stop, look and listen" would have saved all five.

Two Harvard dentists have announced that they have discovered the cause of pyorrhea. That should be interesting news for every four out of five.

If seeing the country makes one a good Canadian, Lord Tweedsmuir should rank at the very top by the time his term of office has expired.

A driver who said that he fell asleep at the wheel woke up when his car smashed into a tree. That is a dangerous and expensive kind of an alarm clock to depend upon.

A Ridgetown girl who was dreaming that she was riding a bicycle fell out of bed and broke her leg. It is lucky she did not dream she was a passenger in an airplane.

Cobourg is celebrating its centennial and Port Hopers add to the joy of the occasion by asking their Cobourg friends how it feels to live for 100 years close to the "prettiest town in Canada."

Now that Casa Loma, Sir Henry Pellatt's old palace, has been struck by lightning the tale is complete. It had been hit by almost everything else prior to the arrival of the bolt.

It is complained that when a women's organization prepared a bathing suit for use by its members no one would wear it because it was not up to date. And yet the greater part of the modern bathing garb dates to the Garden of Eden.

People who were growling about the heat a few days ago did not expect that they would be complaining of cold weather so soon. The surest thing about the weather of course is that it never succeeds in pleasing everybody at once.

Stories of tobacco workers in Western Ontario being beaten up because they accepted jobs at a certain wage calls for the attention of the authorities. Agitators should be taught that the law of the country gives a man a right to work unmolested.

DIPLOMATIC

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My niece Ambersia wants to write, she'll sit up far within the night, and squeeze her pretty head; she'll try to think of things to say, long after closing of the day, when she should be in bed.

¶ She'll fair caress a goodly word, grow joyous on a feeling verb, so pleased that she will cry; she writes such stuff about the birds, and fairly dotes upon the words, to tell about the sky.

¶ I think she'd like to fill a book, about the babbling of a brook, for want of words she'll groan; and she will glow in ecstacy, about the waving of a tree, the color of a stone.

¶ Ambersia brings her stuff to me, when small she sat upon my knee, I listen while she reads; and I'm supposed to catch her mood, and thrive on this poetic food, acclaim her clever deeds.

¶ I can't be candid with my niece, if so I'd have no hope of peace, I have to smile and nod; I ought to tell her straight enough, to go and bury all the stuff, two feet beneath the sod.

¶ And so I have to tell my niece, progressive art must never cease, that it must grow and grow; I chant to her no hymn of hate, but say some day she may be great—though I know that's not so.

MUSICIANS in United States are holding a meeting to see what their union can do in the fight against what they call "canned music," and the use of electrical recording to fill in time on broadcasting programs. There are thousands of musicians in the States today who cannot make a living. They'd starve if they tried and had to depend on music. Many of them from foreign lands, and they can read almost any score placed before them at sight. Not many years ago they used to make a fairly good living and work were steady. Now they say the radio and recorded music has spoiled it all.

So on three beers and with space between the first two and the third of many miles Clark was considered in the drunk-driver class. Jail for 14 days. Owl Is Rather Dumb

AFTER settling down to married life Mrs. Owl does not seem to know when to lay her eggs. Instead of waiting for a warm season she has often been known to lay them so early that the little owlets will have icicles to play with. She is uncertain about the number of eggs, for the larger species lay anything from six to ten. Naturalists say often enough there are so many eggs that the nest is not large enough and when hatched out the little owls have to hang on as best they can or find some handy place nearby on which to perch.

The most common is the little Screech Owl, who does not screech but has a thrilling quavering call. He is versatile however and sometimes tries a startled screech. Mr. and Mrs. Screech Owl take up housekeeping in a hollow tree and their young generally resemble baby chicks.

Owls have been considered death messengers by the Romans; have served as the main ingredients in witches' stew, and have moved along a varied career through the ages that brought them to stories of the sly fox and the big bad wolf.

Acted as His Own Lawyer

ARTHUR Perry, a Huron County farmer, got into an accident on the highway and succeeded in having his case adjourned until he finished taking in the hay. After which he went to court at Seaforth and was certain some one must have tampered with his car as it kept pulling over to the left all the time and that's how he happened to strike another car. He acted as his own lawyer and very carefully examined all the witnesses called for the plaintiff. But Arthur lost his case and the magistrate told him it was the duty of every motorist who found there was something wrong with a car to get it off the road as quickly as possible. Ten and costs but no legal fees.

And here's another magistrate, F. W. Walker of Walkerton who is going to do business on the cash and carry basis in future. He is all washed up on letting people have a chance to pay fines on the instalment plan. Reason? Well, there was a young fellow fined $10 and costs for being intoxicated and he asked time to pay. Cecil told him to be back one week later and lay the cash on the line or go to jail for a week. If he gave him longer time to pay the youth, said the court, would probably be walking around town and paying visits to the beverage rooms. The day of charging fines has passed.

Tough on Car Salesman

HOW can a man sell cars when he is not allowed to drive one? That is something which W. Scott of London will have to figure out. Scott sells cars but traffic officer says he drives them too fast. On a recent day he chased Scott at 80 miles an hour when traffic was rather heavy. In court at St. Thomas it was said liquor was also involved and a fine of $25 and costs involved things a little more. There was more involving done when it was decided to suspend the Scott license to drive. And the suspension was of the sort described as indefinite cancellation.

The Sad End of Punch and Judy

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

THERE died in London the other day a man, 77 years of age, who is believed to be the last "Punch and Judy" showman in the country. The paraphernalia is left, but neither of his two sons intend to carry on the show, believing that the movies have killed it. Sophisticated modern children, who have become almost blase at the spectacular splendors of movie "musicals" and thrillers, would be perhaps bored with the "Punch and Judy" drama of the itinerant performer. "Punch and Judy" has gone the way of "Pepper's Ghost" show and the "Magic Lantern."

"Punch and Judy" is entirely an English innovation which has existed for about 200 years. It is an offshoot of the puppet shows which had their origin in Italy more than 300 years ago and were—and still are—known as marionettes, in which the characters and properties are manipulated by wires by persons hidden above and behind the minature stage. These marionette shows, which are occasionally still seen in this country, either in halls or at Chautauquas, are extraordinarily lifelike and dexterous, the manipulators making the figures act comedies, do acrobatics, play instruments and get up to all sorts of tricks. In Italy, and in France, too, there are regular marionette theatres and they still attract large and enthusiastic audiences. Stories are written for them by special authors, and indeed, in old days, eminent composers wrote special music for them, Mozart having written a "Marionette March" which is often played at symphony concerts.

But "Punch and Judy" is typically English. The showman stood in a tall box-like structure with a small stage over his head. Instead of pulling strings he put is hands inside the figures and manipulated them with his pliant fingers. The principal characters were "Punch," who was the characteristic figure with a hunched back and a hooked nose, "Judy," his wife, a policeman, "Jack Ketch," the hangman, and several other characters, notably a little dog, "Toby," which had a ruffle around his neck, and was a real dog, usually a small terrier. The showman spoke the words for the characters, but for "Punch" he always spoke with a "squeaker" in his mouth. The manipulators usually had their own stories and "business," but the traditional form was for "Punch" to annoy, abuse and beat the other figures with a stick tucked under his arm. Finally, the insolent fellow would beat the policeman to death and "Jack Ketch" would set up his gallows to hang him. Instructed by the hangman to put his head in the noose, "Punch" would feign ignorance of how to do so, then as "Ketch" put his own head in the noose to show him, "Punch" suddenly pulled the rope and hanged the hangman. The curtain fell as "Punch" sung lustily, and the showman's side would go around making a collection of pennies for another performance.

Generations of children have been entertained by "Punch and Judy" in the streets and at fairs, and there must be hundreds of thousands of people in all parts of the British Empire who have stood pop-eyed at the old drama, and who will learn with regret that "Punch and Judy" have been swept into the discard with the march of time. Even kings and queens have been entertained by them, for showmen were frequently "commanded" to give performance for royal children's parties at Buckingham Palace, Sandringham and Balmoral Castle.

The Man Who Is Over Fifty

(Letter in the Globe and Mail.)

TO the Editor of The Globe and Mail: According to the daily press, the Ontario Government, in collaboration with the Dominion Government, proposes to set up a form of "youth training" for industry. The Dominion Government have a scheme of probational training for war veterans to re-establish themselves. Both of these, however, are largely for "trade training." The Employment Service of Canada has a department for "professional, sales and office men," and the Technical Service Council is doing excellent work on a "no fee" basis in placing young men in salaried positions largely of a technical nature. I say young men, as I believe their demand is largely for men under 35, and solely for men under 45.

Now what about the executive type of over 50.

Take my experience for example, and it is typical of many others. I took an engineering course at U. of T. before the war, but left engineering to go into business as secretary-treasurer of a small, but prosperous company in Toronto, which I gave up to enter the army in 1915. After nearly three years service in Canada, England and France, where I was seriously wounded, I was invalided to Canada in 1918. After some months recuperating, I became General Superintendent of a "process" manufacturing company in the United States, with 250 men and women under me. While there I was elected for two terms Chairman of the local chapter of the American Management Association. After 8 years, my salary had increased to $5,000, but then the financial control of the company was sold, and all senior men were bid a fond but firm farewell.

After a short holiday I became Vice-President and Secretary of a construction company doing an excellent business in the United States and Canada. Well, you know what happened to the construction industry in 1932—so this $6,000 job was over. You will note I was separated from both these jobs entirely from circumstances beyond my control.

For the last 4 years I had an agency but lack of capital was too much of a handicap, and I closed it before it closed me. For 4 months I had a temporary organizing job in which I was told I had done well—but it was only temporary.

Now where do I go from here?

I have tried the want ads, called at all the agencies and other places where I thought there might be an opening, but they say: "You are too old, the demand is for young men—under 35, and certainly not over 40."

As I said, there are many others like me—with wide experience, sound judgment and the highest references, to whom the future does not look very bright. We do not expect the salaries of 1929, but we would like the opportunity of proving, at perhaps half that salary, that we are not "all washed up," and that our wider experience and more mature judgment is of more value to an employer than the pep and uncertain future of the "youth of 35."

Has industry no place for the unemployed executive type of over 50?

"Fifty One."

Teaching A Boy To Iron Shirts

New Yorker Wants Youngster To Learn Housework Arts.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

A leading member of New York's Board of Education has been strongly advocating classes for boys in which they will be taught to keep house, launder and cook.

Such accomplishments undoubtedly would enhance a young man's chances in the marriage market. Perhaps give him a more orderly mind. Whether they come within the scope of a public school education, however, may be questioned by those of more conservative outlook.

A cynic might suggest that behind the idea is an attempt to compensate for the alleged domestic deficiencies of the modern young woman.

Teaching a boy to bake bread and iron shirts, it may be contended, helps him to retain the use of his hands and keep comparatively sane amid the din and clamor of machinery in the modern industrial world. It is beside the point that these things can be done much more efficiently by the steam bakery and the steam laundry; the important thing is the development of the individual. So, we imagine, would run the argument.

But something has been overlooked. A modern democracy requires more from its male citizens than the ability to turn out a well shaped doughnut or a neatly darned sock. The old three R's were probably never more required than today.

Parents of children at a Long Island school some time ago raised an indignant protest because some of the boys spent five hours learning how to bake nut-bread. They were told that in calculating the ingredients the boys learned arithmetic. But the parents seemed to think there were speedier ways of learning arithmetic.

Nowadays when statistics assail one on every hand—statistics of exports and imports, production and consumption, profits and wages, and a thousand other subjects—arithmetic would seem to require a more substantial foundation than is furnished by the baking of nut-bread.

And the ability to weigh the pros and cons of black-shirts, brown-shirts, red-shirts and the rest cannot be adequately acquired, we suggest, from the specimens of shirtings that come to the ironing-board.

Nor can a really comprehensive knowledge of economics be obtained by keeping an eye on the price of spinach with a view to efficient running of the household.

So far as we are aware, the arts of household management, laundry-work and cooking are not taught to boys in Canadian schools. Our educational system does not suffer seriously from their omission, we imagine

To the Editor

DOES ABILITY COUNT?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Will you allow me a little space in your valuable paper re the above topic.

I am begining to think influence has taken the place of ability, at least it appears that way to me at May's School. The principal has been forced to resign. Surely not on account of his ability. Parents did you read the results of the entrance examinations at May's School? There were thirteen recommends and fifteen wrote the examination and they all passed, and the principal has been displaced. Why? Granted, he has a few gray hairs, but surely that does not make one inefficient. In the previous year's entrance I understand he accomplished practically the same results. Twelve were recommended and seventeen wrote and they were all given certificates. Surely the ratepayers of this section will wonder if our children are going to suffer in the future through the almighty dollar. There are lots of others who would like to get the correct solution to this puzzle. In my opinion, and many others, Mr. Stacey is and has been an excellent principal, teacher and a great disciplinarian and his ability would have been a great asset to our children's educations for many years.

However all eyes will be on May's School for future results.

Very Truly,
EX-CAPTAIN.

CHOOSING A CAREER

(Chatham Daily News)

REALIZING that there are a large number of young people these days wondering with regard to the special activities they should adopt as their life-work, Dr. Harold E. Clark, professor of educational economics at Teachers College Columbia University, has figured out and published the present worth of those entering various occupations.

He finds that measured by this standard the doctor comes first, the lawyer second, the dentist third, and then in line, the Engineer, the Architect, College Teacher, Social Worker, Journalist, Minister, Librarian, Public School Teacher, Skilled Workman, Nurse, Unskilled Laborer, Farmer and Farm Laborer. A doctor with a 42-year working life span should earn an average of $108,000; while the farm laborer, last on the list in a 51-year working life span should earn $10,400.

ABUSE OF PAROLE.

(Chatham Daily News)

MEMBERS of the Police Association of Ontario have gone on record as favoring more strict supervision over parolee granted in this province. The claim is made that most of the serious crime in the country is committed by men who have been released from prison on ticket-of-leave. Our penal system endeavors to reform evil-doers, and to give them a chance to make good by releasing them before their terms expire, when they give evidence of a desire to go straight. But in too many cases they go back to lives of crime and create a problem for the police, with which it is difficult to cope.

DENY DEAL WITH FORD

TORONTO, July 29 (CP)—Civic officials today denied a report that negotiations were under way for the purchase by Henry Ford of Casa Loma, the castle built by Sir Henry Pellatt, now the property of the city through unpaid taxes. No such negotiations have been undertaken, Mayor W. D. Robbins stated.

GORDON REPLIES TO HENRY BARRETT

Survey of Corporate Securities, it is shown that following the default of bond interest in 1934, the Company reorganized and about half of the water was wrung out of its debentures issued and its stock.

"With the high prices of woollen products and the low wages that have been paid and the freedom in Canadian competition, created by the sky-high tariffs, the company is in a position to pay a decent and respectable wage, and every manufacturer and business man in Peterborough knows it.

Calls Them Tough Outfit.

"The trouble is that the directors of the Dominion Woollens are a tough outfit," said Mr. Gordon, "and their over-reaching under Mr. A. O. Dawson's direction has left the concern without any friends either among the investors who lost their money or the manufacturers and the business men who found that the product of the Dominion Woollens management has kept labor in a turmoil for the last ten years and has created an uneasy labor situation, where there should have been harmony and co-operation."

"Companies like the Westclox and the Nashua Paper, where the managements understand what is a fair and reasonable wage, never feel any signs of labor trouble and never will.

"The people of Peterborough owe a duty to the employees of the Bonner-Worth and Auburn to force the management of this company to pay them at least a decent wage so that the families, the minute their wage-earner loses his position will not be forced to go on the city relief.

"Conditions are so bad with some of its employees that if sickness takes place or a death happens, it takes years to pay the doctor's bill or the funeral expenses. The friendliness and generosity of the people of Peterborough should not fail the employees at the present time, because this company has milked the profits which have been sent to Montreal and what was left were the low wages, totally inadequate to maintain married men and their families,' 'concluded Mr. Gordon.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Short-covering in July wheat which has only two more trading days of life, lifted wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today from one-cent low points. Final quotations were ¾ higher to ½c lower. July at $1.38⅝, October $1.31¾ to ⅞, and December $1.28⅝.

Irregular fluctuations found wheat generally moving within a two-cent range. Feature of the entire trade was July Rye, which climbed three cents.

Wheat traded at lower levels during the first half of the session in sympathy with Liverpool declines. Moderate commission house selling and sales of Winnipeg wheat against purchases at Chicago accounted for

(10) The company calls the attention of its employees to the fact that with the increases made in the lower paid categories in the Auburn Mill during the current year and the above changes the result is that with the exception of the spinning department of the Auburn Mill the wages paid by the company in both mills will have been restored essentially to the rate prevailing before any reductions were made during the depression. In the case of the spinning department of the Auburn Mill mentioned above the rates now being paid are, in the belief of the Company, the highest rates being paid in Canada on this class of work.

(11) The company regrets being unable to respond to the invitation that any increase further than as above mentioned be made and would be glad to have information as to any higher rates of wages being paid on similar classes of work.

(12) Should business conditions continue to improve there is no doubt the employees will participate in it.

Managing Director.

"There is the offer of the company declared Cohen when he had concluded an explanatory reading of the typewriting document over the company signature. "What is your answer to it?"

Take Standing Vote

A concerted shout of "No!" arose. Loud "booh's" resounded in the hall. Leaders on the platform suggested the taking of a secret ballot but the gathering declined the ballots, demonstrating unanimously by a standing vote.

Flanked by Arthur Laverty, organizer in charge of the big Cornwall strike, a delegation from Cornwall, Harvey Murphy, president of the Ontario Federation on Unemployment; by local organizer Alex Welch and all members of the strike executive, Cohen told his story of the negotiations with the company which began Monday and came to a halt yesterday.

"I wondered if I had been invited to a reading class," he said, reporting the first session Monday was taken up principally by Henry Barrett, Dominion Woollens managing director, reading from numerous prepared documents. He declared the readings deal with world economic conditions, conditions in the world textile industry, tariff conditions and many other matters which had no direct bearing on the question of wages. Stating the company officer painted a dark picture of conditions in the textile industry, he said, "I thought the next thing Mr. Barrett would say to me would be 'Brother, can you lend me a dime.'"

He suggested that Mr. Barrett should be able to obtain a radio contract for reading bedtime stories by reason of his soothing voice and "the really talks about the most nonsensical things in an amusing way."

"We informed Mr. Barrett very clearly that the day has gone when he can regard his employees as helpless dependants," Cohen continued. "He does not bicker with those who sell him his machinery and raw materials for he knows they are independent and must have what they ask. He must learn that his workers are also independent and can have what they ask."

He continued his report of the negotiations saying Tuesday was spent in "shadow boxing" and no session was held. Commencing to read the text of the company proposal to the strikers, he said: "On Wednesday the mountain in labor produced this mouse. I think this is going to get place No. 1 in my collection of curios."

Cohen declared the only actual wage concession was that offering weavers a minimum of 32 cents an hour and that that concession affected only about 75 of the 750 employees of the two plants. He charged that the offer of a bonus over the 22-cent-an-hour rate offered girls in the spinning room of the Bonner-Worth was in reality merely a ruse to speed up production and that the scheme would work out in such a way that girls would earn no more than in the past.

He said he told Barrett on behalf of the negotiation committee that the strikers were willing to submit the entire dispute to final arbitration by the Industry and Labor Board or any body named by that Board and asked if the company was willing to do the same. "The company refused to have its payrolls and wage rates examined even by such an impartial body as the Labor Board is," he declared.

Wire to Young.

A wire sent to E. J. Young, chairman of the Industry and Labor Board by Cohen at noon to-day follows:

"Mass meeting employees of Auburn and Bonner-Worth Mills of Dominion Woollens unanimously resolved this morning agreeing to arbitration by your Board or a committee thereof of the wage demands of the employees and upon their instruction I would request you to act. Company has virtually refused to grant any wage increases. Would appreciate your advising me when I can confer with you or the Board with respect to the matter.'

Announcement of the offer of G. N. Gordon to lead a citizens' committee was made by Cohen who said he had conferred with the alderman last night. He related Mr. Gordon asked him how much would be required each week to carry the strike and that when he told him $1,000,

BUSINESSMEN FEEL EASIER ONCE MORE

Walechin went to Special Prosecutor Dewey's office and told his story. He also brought in Nate Brown, slender, bespectacled young brother of the head of the trucking firm. Still bandaged, Brown described a beating he had suffered at the hands of seven "plug-uglies" in connection with the shake-down racket.

"I was in the back of the garage changing my clothes. Each one of these seven guys grabbed up something when they came in. One got an axe, another a chair. They took tools off the racks. Then they rushed me all together.

Same In Many Lines

It was not a new story. It was the same in many fields of legitimate enterprise — restaurants, poultry, bakery, electrical contracting, garment and other industries.

"One of my assistants will take an affidavit from you, Dewey said. "Don't let anyone know you've been to see me. We work quietly. That's all.

"Rackets in New York"

	A Year.
Policy game	$100,000,000
Loan sharks	20,000,000
Prostitution	12,000,000
Contracting	10,000,000
Fur Industry	1,000,000
Baker racket	No estimate
Garment industry	2,000,000
Second-hand bricks	2,000,000
Restaurant racket	2,000,000
Poultry racket	No estimate
Trucking shake-downs	1,000,000
Total	$160,000,000

It wasn't complete. But it showed at least partly what a staggering "slush fund" organized crime in New York had to draw on.

Dewey Strikes Fast

In swift, hammer-blow succession, starting early in January, 1937, Dewey smashed at extortion mobs fattening like leeches on restaurant, trucking, used brick, poultry, bakery, electrical and chauffeurs industries. He piled up 64 convictions —all "big shots"—before the frightened racketeers knew what was happening to their supposedly fool-proof scemes.

On the side, in a whirlwind drive, he smashed a $5,000,000 policy or "numbers game" racket—a Harlem syndicate dominated by two West India negroes.

It was reputedly the biggest of the many policy banks which take an estimated net profit of $100,000,000 a year in pennies, nickels and dimes.

Meanwhile, the racket Nemesis was exploding the $2,000,000-a-year restaurant shakedown conspiracy, sending the seven leaders to prison for terms ranging from 7½ to 20 years each.

Victim after victim testified, under Dewey's skilled questioning, of paying huge sums for "protection" from the shake-down mob which was headed by Dutch Schultz until his death, carried on by the notorious Jules Martin until he too fell under gangland bullets, and then by Sam Krantz, now a fugitive from justice.

Nearly 300 restaurant owners told of paying forced tribute, including the famous Lindy's, Jack Dempsey's, the Hollywood, and even the city-owned Tavern on the Green in Central Park.

Dempsey himself testified to paying $285.

Refill Your Jam Pots Now, Says Noted Cooking Expert

Prepare For Next Winter By Taking Advantage of Bumper Fruit Crop.

APPLES AND CHERRIES.

(By MARY MOORE

Is the fruit crop better this year—or are my friends more generous? I can't get any summer holidaying done at all for the deluge of different fruits that come to my door.

This morning I did the best looking raspberries I have ever seen—in tin cans no less. There are two quarts of gooseberries waiting for me to make up my mind whether to make jam or relish of them. More mulberries have been given to me and to save them for when there was more time to do them I boiled them up in very little water and strained them and put them in the refrigerator. I fancy I'll add red currant juice to them to make it into a rich jelly.

Since the apples are beginning to fall from the trees in the stronger winds, we are putting the little underripe ones to good use by combining them with cherries for jam. If you are a Cookery Page addict you will remember the Cherry Jam we published three years ago—using apple juice to jelly it.

Emem's Cherry Jam

Cut underripe apples into quarters, and add just enough water to barely cover (to two quarts very small underripe apples you will add about 3 cups water). Bring to boil, cover and let simmer until tender, then put in jelly bag and let drip—this amount will give you about 1 quart clear juice.

Stone and stem 2 quarts sour cherries. To the apple juice add 4 cups sugar and bring to boiling point, then drop in the cherries and boil for 10 minutes. Pour into sterile jam jars and seal with paraffin—adding a second coat when cold. This has been pronounced the best yet by old time jam experts.

Until recent years I have not been an experienced jam maker, but through constant contact with the lady who is "tops" in our friends and who I refer to as "Sarah B." I have learned what fruits to mix for jams—and what properties of one bring out the flavor in or jell another. She brought us a jar of what she was working on yesterday; she called it:

July Four-In-One

To the washed (but not stemmed) red currants add ½ cup water and put over low heat and stir until they have formed their own juice, then boil for 10 minutes, and strain through fine sieve. To this juice add the ramaining berries (the stems and tails having been removed from the gooseberries) measuring them by cupfuls, and for each cup berries well packed, add 1 cup sugar. Boil these together stirring almost constantly for 20 minutes, and pour into sterile jam jars and cover with paraffin, adding a second coat when cool. The flavor and color of this is especially good.

Out on our summer retreat their are thousands of black raspebrries growing wild and last Saturday some folks who were visiting us were kind enough to pick half a dozen boxes—only two of which were eaten—so in true pioneer fashion I proceeded to make jam with them—on a wood stove. I used drinking glasses for jam jars, and the family had to drink their cold beverages out of paper cups.

Black Raspberry Jam

(Use the same method for red raspberries—black raspberries have richer tarter flavor in jam).

Since the berries were freshly picked we did not wash them, merely measured them, put them into the granite dish pan with same amount of sugar. Since the wood stove was so hot I had to stir constantly—after it began to boil I boiled them 15 minutes and then poured into the sterilized glasses. They should have been paraffined immediately but I had none on hand so tied wax paper over them—then when I bought some in town I melted it and covered them with it. So simple to make and so grand to eat.

Gooseberry Jam (Grandma McC's Method)

Two quarts gooseberries (about 2½ lbs.), 2½ lbs. sugar, 1 cup water. While you are tipping the berries, bring the sugar and water to the boiling point, then drop in the berries, and let simmer gently, stirring very carefully once, for from 30 to 40 minutes—pour into sterile jars and cover with paraffin immediately—adding second coat when cold. Test for jelling on cold plate at end of 30 minutes period. This jam is good on brown bread toasted, but I think it is best with roast pork or duck.

Our family is divided into those who like fruits with their meats and those who do not. About four members of our outer family think black currant jelly beats the mint flavor when combined with lamb.

Black Currant Jelly

Any time you visit our house and want to taste our black currant jelly you will be quite safe in asking for it if it's before Christmas—after that it is apt to be spread far and wide.

Wash the black currants well, then just cover with cold water and bring to boiling point, mashing them well with potato masher to start the juice. When very juicy and tender (about 10 minutes of gentle boiling) strain through jelly bag. To each cup of juice measure 1 cup of sugar (and the juice of a lemon if you like but it does not require it either for flavoring or jelling but some folks like it). Bring the juice to boiling point, add the sugar and boil for 1 minute—pour into sterile jars and seal with coat of paraffin immediately adding second coat when cold.

This does not need long boiling—black currants contain an excessive amount of pectin—long boiling only toughens the finished product.

Readers who want other jam recipes please write naming them—and if you are in a hurry enclose stamped addressed envelope.

Sliced Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Hot New Apple Sauce and Thick Cream

NOTE: I insert that "New Zealand" to the spinach to provoke your interest. If you have a garden and like spinach you will want some of it for it is perennial and everbearing. Sounds too perfect to be true of spinach doesn't it? Worry your seed dealer until he gets it in for you—I send for ours to Missouri but it is well known in all the northern middle west States. It is thicker in leaf and milder in flavor than our spinach and better liked by every one who tastes it.

TUESDAY (Hasty Meal)
Calves Liver and Bacon (see note)
Diced Beets and Greens Buttered
Leaf Lettuce with French Dressing
Berries and Cream Coffee

NOTE: Gently rebuked last week by our Doctor-Husband for not serving calves liver oftener in view of its health-giving properties I hied me to the butcher's and bought some for all of us—the youngsters have to be persuaded to take it but always finally do. If they should have it so should you and yours. The best method is to dip it in flour, sprinkle with a little salt and spread with soft butter and broil under hot broiler—do not overcook or too much juice is lost. Serve immediately.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Would you please send me a recipe for rhubarb and crushed pineapple jam, also rhubarb and strawberry jam. As we are only two in the family please do not send recipes using large quantities. I would not care to make any more than five quart sealers of each kind. Thanking you for your service.—Mrs. B.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

Strawberry and Rhubarb Conserve

Four cups strawberries, 4 cups rhubarb, 6 lbs. sugar (12 cups), 1 cup liquid commercial pectin. Slice the strawberries and measure after slicing, packing the top down until the juice flows to the top. Using tender pink rhubarb, slice without peeling it to keep its bright color. Pack it tightly in the cup as you did the strawberries—filling the cup up with water if the juice does not run freely enough to give a full measure of material. Add the sugar, stir until the juice is moistened with the fruit juices, and bring to a full rolling boil over a hot fire. Boil hard for 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir for 5 minutes, to prevent fruit from floating, this stirring extracts the air from the fruit. Pour into sterilized glasses and seal immediately with paraffin—adding a second coat when cold.

Rhubarb and Pineapple Jam

This is made exactly the same as the above recipe for Rhubarb and Strawberry Conserve—substituting crushed pineapple for the berries—if the pineapples are canned less sugar would be needed.

Although you do not ask for it th following recipe is so good you might like to make a little of it up.

Rhubarb Conserve

Four lbs rhubarb, 5 lbs. sugar, 1 pound seeded raisins, 2 oranges, 1 lemon. Wash but do not peel stalks of rhubarb and cut in one-inch pieces. Put in granite preserving kettle with the sugar and add raisins and grated rind and juice of the oranges and lemon.

Mix, cover and let stand for ½-hour. Place over low heat, bring to boiling point and let simmer 45 minutes, stirring almost constantly. Fill sterilized glasses with mixture, cover with paraffin at once, adding a second coat when cool.

We hope you like these and shall be glad to help you at any time.

QUESTION: Could you send me a reliable simple method of canning meat, also how to do pickled beets and canning rhubarb without sugar? —M. M. H.

ANSWER:

Canned Meats
(Beef, Lamb, Pork, Veal)

Jars for these must be sterilized for 20 minutes, boiled in boiling water—jars, tops, rubbers and rings.

Use meat that has cooled for at least 24 hours. Cut into pieces of desired size and pack in jars, add 2 teaspoons salt to each quart jar, use no other liquid, stand jars on pan with one and one-half inches between jars in all directions and put in oven. Turn on heat and bring to 450 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes, reducing heat to 300 for 3 more hours. Open oven door to gradually cool jar but let there be no draft in kitchen. While jars are still hot tighten seal. This is the simplest method I know.

All meats should be boiled for 10 minutes after the jar is opened for use.

Pickled Beets

Use small beets of uniform size, 2-inch or 1¼ inches in diameter. Wash beets, remove tops and boil, starting in cold water, until just tender, then run under cold water and slip off skins. As you skin them drop into sterile jars. Have ready a vinegar syrup in proportions of 1 cup sugar to each 3 cups of cider vinegar and 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon cloves, 1 bay leaf. Pour this boiling hot over each jar of beets as it is filled, keep it hot not by boiling but by standing in larger vessel containing boiling water. If all utensils and jar parts are sterile these will keep by just sealing.

Canned Rhubarb
(Without Sugar)

Rhubarb contains so much air that if it is packed raw into sterile jars and canned in oven there is so much shrinkage much jar space is wasted.

Consequently it is best to pre steam it, to wilt it some and then pack in sterile jars, screw down tops to within ¼ turn of tight and process it by standing jars in large pan leaving 1½ inches on all sides between jars. Turn oven on and bring up to 425 reg. Fahr. and keep at this temperature for 20 minutes, reduce heat to 350 and leave for 20 minutes. Turn off heat, open over door slightly, and as soon as jars can possibly be handled tighten tops, and cool in room where there are no draughts.

We hope these methods suit your purpose and that we can help you again.

M husband declares that the bottle of punch syrup that I keep in the ice box waiting to quench his thirsty moments—is one of my major virtues. Gals, take the hint if you are hunting for a husband or trying to hold one.

Punch Syrup

One and one-half cups sugar, 1½ cups water, 6 lemons, rind of two of the lemons, 2 oranges, rind of both, juice strained from rhubarb if you have it, if not strawberry juice or raspberry juice will do (if you have none of these red juices the syrup is excellent without them).

Make a syrup of the sugar and water and grated rinds from 2 oranges and two lemons. Boil for 2 minutes. Squeeze the juice from the fruit and strain it into the warm syrup. Add the red fruit juices. Store in ice box in covered jar. When ready to use add about ¼ cup of this to each glass and 2 ice cubes and fill with water, or ginger ale or carbonated water.

Here's an important little seersucker playtime ensemble that needs no ironing. The one-piece dress buttons right down the front, has cunning cool flared sleeves and Peter Pan collar.

It's fun for a youngster to slip it on and fasten the buttons when they're in easy reach. It makes them very self-dependent.

For strenuous play or for sunning, the dress is quickly discarded, for underneath is a pantee sun suit. It has a cool square neck with suspender straps that cross and button at the back.

Of course, either pattern can be used separately.

Chambray, bright colored percale prints, pique, crisp checked gingham, etc., are other lovely sturdy cottons.

Style No. 2900 is designed for sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 35-inch contrasting for dress; and ⅞ yard of 35-inch material for play-suit.

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. Hold Successful Affair

The lawns of Mr. and Mrs. H. Choate's residence at 38 Hunter street east, were a gay scene on Wednesday evening, when a successful Summer Fair was held under the auspices of the Anglican Young People's Association of St. Luke's Church.

Red, white and blue streamers decorated the verandah and fences, with strings of vari-colored lights giving illumination to the grounds. A radio, kindly lent by Ken McCannan, supplied music for the evening.

A variety of interesting games and contests were a great attraction as were also the fortune tellers. Little tables decorated with pretty cloths and bouquets of sweet peas and baby's-breath invited the many guests to take refreshments, which included the fascinating experience of having one's fortune read in the tea cup. A refreshment booth also held soft drinks and ice-cream. On the gaily decorated blue and yellow candy stall were pretty little packets of home-made candy and a large attractive blue and white basket of candy on which tickets were sold.

D. Pammett was general convenor for the occasion. The various games were in charge of Messrs. W. Sedgwick, R. Kraft, A. Northcott, W. Hill, and Ralph Mason. The fortune tellers were Mrs. J. Forbes (in gay gypsy attire), and Mrs. N. Slanger. Tickets were sold for the fortune telling by Miss Jessie Pattison. The Misses Clemina Long and Eileen Biddle served refreshments at the tables, and Mrs. F. Curtis was in charge of the refreshment booth. The candy was sold by the Misses Jean McCauley and Eva Patterson. Little Iris Forbes made the draw for the basket of candy, which was won by W. Hepburn, Jr.

'Eiffel Tower' Is Latest Mode

PARIS, July 29 (C.P.). — "Eiffel Tower" turbans are a new millinery tribute to the Paris Exposition.

They have close-fitting cap-like bases from which they tower up to a slim top wrapped with ribbon tied in a coquettish bow. Agnes is showing these in felt. A few she trims with fur. Black Persian lamb coils around one, which is tied at the top with red velvet ribbon.

Felt cloches hats, made with slide fasteners aptralled around them from brim-edge to crown-top, can be opened along the fastening. Then they come apart looking like the one-piece apple peelings of childhood days, and can be conveniently folded for vacation packing.

Other sportswear felts have their wide front brims turned straight up in halo form, and their pointed or cone-shaped crowns trimmed with contrasting ribbon. Purple ribbon bands green felt, red ribbon bands blue.

A brimmed afternoon hat is fronted with three stand-up ostrich feathers, in black, pink, and light blue. A black felt has a pale blue ostrich rosette perched atop of its cone-shaped crown.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"There is nothing more to be esteemed than a manly firmness and decision of character. I like a person who knows his own mind and sticks to it; who sees at once what is to be done in given circumstances and does it. William Hazlitt.

Dear Friends:

This another angle on making decisions. Sometimes we see a thing that must be done, but we keep putting it off, we hate making a decision and sticking to it. We wonder if we should make our minds up firmly, or should we wait. Maybe the thing will straighten itself out and the responsibility will not be ours whichever way it turns.

We bring up this side of it, we ask this one and that. One will say," If I were you I would let it go, and don't worry yourself about it." And another will tell you to do what you think best, and maybe still another will say, "What's the matter with you? Either do the thing or forget all about it."

Aren't we cowards every one of us. Don't we put off making up our minds what we should do, leaving things hanging in mid-air, when we should have it all settled? And why? Because we fear what may come to us. But when you make your own decisions, you take a hand in things, and they are more apt to come as you would want them. Then too, once you have made your mind up in a certain way, you are at ease, instead of being tossed hither and yon all the time.

And, as a rule, these things do not just crop up accidently, there is a reason for them. Maybe you are all through with that phase of your life, and it is time to go on to the next part, so while you shilly-shally around, you not only keep yourself back, but others too.

We all have a certain respect for the ones who can make a decision and stick to it. Then why not let ourselves be respected for the same trait? If you MUST make a change, make it and stop looking back, stop torturing yourself as to whether you did right or wrong. Surely there is something inside you which lets you know one way or the other.

I've even seen people who could not make their mind up as to what they were going to have for dinner until the last minute, then wonder why there was so much grumbling about the meals. Others could not decide where to go for a bit of fun, and got none at all. When you make your mind up and stick to it, life is simpler in every way. We do not need to let ourselves get rock-bound so that we cannot alter our mind if necessary. That's swinging too far in the other direction entirely.

But the years should have taught us something, and making decisions is one of them. When a person says a thing and stays with it we know where we are with them. When they are continually changing their mind we cannot rely on them.

And reliability is to me one of the nicest virtues. Mother used to say, "If you promise a child a penny, give it to him, and if you promise them a licking give them that too.

So that when you make a decision, you are promising yourself and the world that you intend to follow a certain course, and it is up to you to stick to it. How can you become a man or woman of your word if you are forever blowing hot one minute and cold the next?

Shakespeare tells us in Macbeth: "And be these juggling friends no more believed,

That palter with us in a double sense,

That keep the word of promise to our ear,

And break it to our hope."

Your Friend, ROBERTA.

BRIGHT, BEAUTIFUL

Gertrude Dreher

By LILLIAN CAMPBELL

ECHOES of the past school year come in the form of news that Miss Gertrude Dreher of Terre Haute, Ind., proved that a co-ed need not be dumb if she is beautiful.

Miss Dreher was among the top-notch scholars of the graduating class of Indiana State Teachers college. She was chosen "Queen of Queens."

A survey of the grades of 24 candidates for all the beauty honors on the campus during the school year revealed that together they averaged nearly a B above the general average. Miss Dreher's record helped boost the beauties' average.

FIND NO TRACE OF FRED THAIN

his wife. Neighbors were notified, and after the buggy was found less than a mile west of the house on the road to Campbellford, most of the company of thirty men walked all the way into Campbellford along both the Seventh and Eighth Concessions, looking along the roadside in the first opinion that he might have been thrown off his seat.

With lanterns the party of men, their number increased to nearly one hundred, searched throughout the night in Connor's Woods and in other sections of the bush. Inquiries indicated that Mr. Thain was last seen about six o'clock in the evening by Garnet Lloyd, who had briefly spoken to him some distance west of where the buggy was found. And the horse reached its barn shortly after seven, standard time.

Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell of town assisted in the search. On Wednesday afternoon the men of the neighborhood who had left the harvesting could hardly decide which way to turn next. In some of their conjectures it was suggested that a swamp west of the Thain farm should be combed, an uninviting task for the reason that this swamp was said to be almost unpassable with an unusual depth of water for mid-summer.

Toward six o'clock yesterday there was no more information regarding Mr. Thain's whereabouts than on Tuesday evening when the search for him was begun. His wife was said to be prostrated, and their two boys, about eight or nine years old, gazed wide-eyed at the group of men in the barn yard, and then rejoined their sister on the lawn.

The Thain crop includes an excellent stand of barley, promising oats and other grains, and it was said that his cattle are all certified Holsteins.

Inkling on Results to be Announced Friday or Saturday Says King.

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP)—After three strenuous days of cabinet meetings the government has taken a recess until next Thursday when cabinet council will be summoned to deal particularly with matters relative to beautification of the capital.

Although there have been no outstanding announcements this week Prime Minister Mackenzie King said last night he and his ministers had been working hard and that evidence of their accomplishments would be forthcoming Friday or Saturday when orders-in-council have received the approval of Justice L. A. Cannon, administrator in the absence of the governor general.

Announcement was also made yesterday of the apointment of a committee including four ministers and the speakers of the senate and House of Commons to advise the minister of works on beautification of the capital, placement of public buildings and monuments, and architectural styles to be followed.

Next week Jacques Greber, French landscape artist, will confer with the government and give the result of his studies on the future development of the capital and in particular the site for the national war memorial. BRITAIN TO BOOST HER FARM OUTPUT

Proposes to Subsidize Farmers in Drive on Improving Soil Fertility.

LONDON, July 29—(CP)—Great Britain is taking steps to increase her supply of home-grown food. A Government bill, given third reading by the House of Lords last night, has a double objective: Production of the maximum quantity of food in war-time; efficient development of agriculture in peace-time.

The bill does not seek to put agriculture on a war-time footing.

"In the opinion of the Government," W. S. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, informed the House of Commons, "to put agriculture on a war-time footing with all the regulations, the regimentation of the farming community and the heavy costs that it would undoubtedly involve, would not be practicable at the present time.

Increase General Prosperity.

"Nor in their opinion is the situation such as to require the adoption of this course in time of peace. The Government is equally satisfied that considerations of national defense would not justify a policy in peace time of stimulating agricultural production to such a pitch that the country would be faced with a highly artificial situation which would, sooner or later, have to be liquidated if the emergency did not arise:

It is rather through efforts to improve the general prosperity and efficiency of home agriculture, that the bill proposes to operate.

It aims to increase the fertility and productivity of the soil. It proposes to assist land drainage. It initiates a large-scale campaign for the eradication of animal diseases.

To Improve Pasturage.

Grassland is to be improved by making lime and basic slag—both home products—cheaper to the farmer. For a limited period of years, the National Exchequer will pay one-half the cost of lime, one-quarter the cost of basic slag, providing that not less than two tons are used. The object of these proposals is not only to make good past exhaustion of soil fertility, but to build up reserves of fertility, valuable in peace time, immediately available to meet the heavy demands upon it which might be made in time of war.

The Wheat Act of 1932 placed a limit of 27,000,000 hundredweight on the home-grown crop ranking for subsidy. The limit, under the present bill, will be raised to 36,000,000 hundredweight. This, it is expected, will stimulate increase in acreage under wheat. Under the influence of subsidies, home production of wheat has increased since 1931 from 1,197,000 acres to 1,703,000 acres.

STRONG WIND FAILS TO STOP STAR PADDLERS

Canoeists Show Strength and Skill at Annual Hiawatha Regatta.

HERB TAYLOR WINS.

Peterborough Entry Captures Coveted Men's Amateur Single Canoe Event.

Strong headwinds tested the strength and skill of the canoe paddlers at the annual Hiawatha Regatta held on Rice Lake Wednesday afternoon, but notwithstanding there was keen competition and enthusiasm.

Run under auspices of Hiawatha Hockey Club, of which William Muskratte is president, the regatta wound up with a well-attended dance in the evening, the music being supplied by Jack Minifie and his swing band.

Officials at the regatta were: Judges—Tom Bannon, Youngstown, Ohio; George Robertson, Peterborough, and Hanlon Howard, Hiawatha. Starter—Robert Manross, Bristol, Connecticut. Announcer—Henry Perrin, Sr., Toronto (a summer resident at Bewdley). George Loucks, secretary-treasurer of the club, took an active part and made a good showing in various classes.

Clubs represented at the regatta included: Hiawatha, Wallace Point, Alderville and Gore's Landing, while there was also a representation from Curve Lake Reserve.

Herbert Cardwell of Wallace Point displayed usual good form, despite the fact that he is experiencing trouble with his right leg following an injury he received last summer. He played a prominent part on the program along with his wife, and announced it was his ambition to win for the third successive year the honors at Ceasarea regatta to retain the silver cup in his permanent possession.

Another star performer was Bill Taylor of Peterborough, who piled up several points for Wallace Point Canoe Club with his flashing paddle. Miss Patty Perrin of Toronto did well by the Bewdley Club, which she was representing, while her brother, Henry Perrin, yet a lad, showed good promise. He was first across the finishing line in the boys' skiff race.

The Indians, to whom paddling comes as second nature, put up a splendid performance, the star performer probably being Mrs. Flossie Sellaby of Hiawatha. She was first in the ladies' single canoe; first together with Miss Lottie Johnston of Curve Lake in the ladies' double canoe; and first in the ladies' crab race.

Mrs. Sellaby was also member of the Indian crew of four paddlers who took the honors in the mixed fours event against an all-white crew.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 30

A particularly lively and progressive day is read from the dominant lunar activities. All pertaining to writings, publicity, promotions or trade should flourish, and there is a definite prospect of increased values or possessions. A certain wariness in dealing with rings, mergers, political, diplomatic or secret organizations is enjoined, and, in employment, there is need for maintaining harmonious relations. Be amiable, too, in personal affairs.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively, enterprising and gainful year, with much to be expected from writings, contracts, new deals, advertising or promotional schemes. But it would be well to be watchful with secret societies, rings and political or diplomatic entanglements. Employment as well as private affiliations call for harmonious adjustments.

A child born on this day may be versatile, lively and clever, with talents in writing, publicity or promotional plans. It may succeed more happily on its own than in employment of others.

WELCH AVERS COMPANY AIMS TO GET BREAK

A LENGTHY STRIKE.

Speakers at the Market Square meeting, under the auspices of the textile strikers which got under way at 8 p.m. Wednesday, concentrated on preparing their strikers for a predicted attempt of the company to re-open its plants within the next few days. Warnings of the treachery of "scabs" colored the meeting. The rally gathering was composed of approximately 100 ribbon wearing strikers and 200 other citizens.

"The company is trying to starve us out," Organizer Alex Welch charged in a fiery speech. "They are stalling along with the hope we are going to break."

His entire address was a forecast of a prolonged strike. Numerous other speakers, most of them members of the bargaining committee, pleaded for solidarity. None referred directly to the terms offered by the company to be made known today.

A Real Strike

"If the company continues its hard-boiled attitude of not yielding an inch, then let us show them we have not really started yet," the textile organizer continued. "Let us show them what a real strike can be."

He claimed that plant officials are trying to break the strike by inducing employees to go back to work and laid the blame for any future rioting directly at the feet of the management.

"We have every intention of conducting a peaceful strike but we do not guarantee what will happen if some decide to go back." He claimed that by urging strikers to become "scabs" the company was deliberately "inciting to riot." He saw in any riot that may ensue a consequent bad name for Peterborough. "But these people do not have to live here and do not have to care about it," he said.

Solidarity

Welch pleaded for solidarity in the face of "attempts of scab herding foremen to bring you back" and warned that strike breakers will never live down the stigma of having broken their principles in deserting their comrades. In a small community such as Peterborough the stigma of the scab might easily be carried down two and three generations, he declared.

He demanded the support of all labor in Peterborough for the duration of the strike. The outcome of the strike will have a direct bearing on their own lives, he argued. "Workers in other plants are being challenged by Dominion Woollens to continue their support. They are defying the strikers to win even with their support. This challenge must be answered by every worker in the city and low wages here must go." He asserted that other plants which have recently given increased wages and holidays with pay will immediately withdraw their concessions if the strike fails.

Harvey Murphy

Unorganized labor in Peterborough will have to band itself together if it is to hold what it has gained since the strike began, he continued. "You will only get what you are strong enough to take and strong enough to hold."

Harvey Murphy, president of the Ontario Federation on Unemployment who has been a constant adviser in the local strike, said governments and newspapers have been beating about the bush in attempts to discover the reason for the outbreak of strikes in this country and in the United States. Strikes, he asserted, are the natural outburst of indignation because of the attitude of huge monopolies that refuse to look upon men and women as anything but pieces of machinery to be bought as cheaply as possible. He charged that manufacturers are making use of relief lists in this province to determine how little they need to pay a man to enable him to live.

"It is pretty safe to say that every textile worker in the country is just one week away from the poorhouse," Murphy claimed. "The issue is not between a few people in Peterborough out on strike but is whether the laboring class, the best people in the country, are to continue being ground down."

By authority of the Postmaster General regular air mail service will be inaugurated between Montreal, Quebec and Burlington, Vermont, on or about the 10th of August 1937; between Tne Pas, Manitoba, Sturgeon Landing, Saskatwa, and Cumberland House, Sasgatchewan, on or about the 6th of September 1937.

LAKEFIELD LEGION DANCE

A squib in this column the other day about the Lakefield street dance being called off was all wrong T. A. Simpson told The Examiner today. "It will be Civic Holiday night, and it is being put on by the Lakefield Branch of the Legion. We are making special arrangements to have the street in first class condition, and with a good orchestra and a program of round and square dances we are looking for a big crowd, including tourists."

THRIVING "SUMMER GARDENS"

Crop prospects in the community gardens supervised by A. B. Cunningham are far more promising than last year. Rains have been fairly regular, and potatoes promise a big yield. The other vegetables have also provided ample returns so far, and tomatoes and corn are also in good condition. About two hundred men are working the gardens this summer, and Mr. Cunningham says the work is being done so well that it requires less attention by him than in other seasons. "The crop should be away ahead of last year," A. B. C. said today.

MIGHT TEMPT GORDON

Ernie Smith says he is willing to pay a dollar to see G. N. Gordon ride down George street on Bill Jackson's new scooter and he thinks a lot of other dollars would be forthcoming if the Alderman would tackle it. "If you can make it worth while I'll take that offer," Mr. Gordon replied, "and we'll turn the money over to the strikers." The only flaw in the Smith idea is that there isn't enough room on George street for the crowd that would turn out.

NEW PRINCIPAL

With the opening of the Fall term in September, William Wedlock, member of the teaching staff for the past six years is to succeed to the principalship of May's School in North Monaghan Township, it is learned. The vacancy created by the promotion will be filled by John Londerville, a resident of this city. Mr. Wedlock succeeds William J. Stacey who has been retired at the conclusion of fourteen years as principal of the suburban school.

TO ADDRESS KIWANIS

The Rev. F. E. Smith who is occuping the pulpit at All Saints' Church during the absence abroad of the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, is to address the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting at Empress Hotel Friday. The guest speaker who spent four years in the Peace River district is to speak of his work and impressions of that section of the Dominion. He will be introduced by Vern Morphet.

EARLY LACROSSE WORKOUT

Residents around the corner of George and Perry streets who dropped off to sleep Tuesday night to the sound of cheering at the new lacrosse arena woke up around five o'clock, in the morning under a drowsy impression that the game was still going on. When their hearing cleared they found that three boys of one house had got lacrosse sticks somewhere and were whooping it up in a daybreak workout that had plenty of noise to it. Neighbors wondered what sort of discipline would permit the youngsters to wake up everybody at that hour, even if future lacrosse stars were in the making.

SAYS STRIKE LOSS $30,000

Several farmers were threshing wheat in the fields on the road to Norwood Wednesday afternoon... The civic scythe or sickle has levelled the blue sailors along Perry street ... The Law Construction Company has already laid a long stretch of pavement on the north half of No. 7 highway, and are striding along with the job... Motoring to Campbellford at present will probably save time along good roads through Keene and Hastings... Some one estimates that the loss in textile wages in the city during the strike month is around $30,000...

GOOD NEIGHBORS

WELWYN, Sask.—(CP)—Ill in bed, farmer Joe Moffatt wondered how he would ever get caught up with his work, when his neighbors moved in with 19 plows, two harrows and a tank team to provide water for 105 horses used. They plowed and harrowed 65 acres in seven hours.

Good Crops General Here

HUMANE METHOD OF KILLING DOGS WORKS PERFECTLY

Electrocution Device Made By Morley Powell Has First Test.

IS COMPLETE SUCCESS.

Efficiency of the electrocution chamber recently presented to the local branch of the Royal Humane Society by Morley Powell, the designer and maker, was given its first practical demonstration on Wednesday afternoon.

Four unwanted dogs were destroyed by electrocution. They died instantaneously the moment the switch was closed. There was not a hitch. After he had electrocuted the four dogs in almost as many minutes, Inspector Thomas Johnston, V.S. and City Dog Catchers Charles W. Holland and C. W. Bloidgett, who were present, expressed complete satisfaction with the method. They were each of the firm opinion it was more humane and expeditious than either shooting or gassing, the methods formerly employed by the city.

Wearing brass or ganvanized collars (there are two, depending on the size of the animal), the dogs were led into the electrocution chamber unaware of the fate that awaited them there. The chain attached to the collar was hooked to a metal bar near the contact switch, while to ensure that the animals received the full voltage the galvanized floor of the chamber was dampened with water.

Through plate-glass panels in the side of the box, the dogs were observed before the power was applied. Each of the animals was quite at ease, as much so as if in some kindly kennel.

With the application of the switch they merely gave one galvanic jerk, and the unpleasant task was completed.

SOME REAL ENTRIES FOR MONDAY RACES

A power cycle, which it is claimed will do 135 miles to the gallon and can attain to a maximum speed of 35 miles-an-hour created a flurry of interest as it "put-putted" up and down George street this morning.

With motorcycle racing scheduled at Exhibition Ground race track as the Civic Holiday attraction, lots of spectators on the mai nthoroughfare thought one of the advance entries had come to town. But that was not the case.

The power cycle is being offered for sale by Playmor Sports who have secured the agency for the dinkly little runabouts.

Speaking of motorcycle races, there are some real entries announced. There are professional riders coming from out of town to perform for the expected Civic Holiday crowd, any they have promised to supply lots of thrills and spills.

The race card which is being staged under joint auspices of the Lions Club and the Kawartha Motorcycle Club, will culminate several days of preparation during which every effort has been made to ensure a good holiday program. Included among entries already received from out of town riders are the following: "Dynamite" Jim Ferguson, a Class C dirt track expert. He has ridden on various United States tracks and one while riding at breakneck speed around the track at Ulster Stadium, Toronto, he crashed his machine into the grandstand, taking with him a quantity of two-inch planking; "Mad" Sale of Toronto, winner of recent events at Lockport, N.Y.; Howard McCauley, Ottawa, novice rider; Cliff and Bruce Venier, Toronto, both quarter-mile dirt track riders, and brothers at that; Bill Smith, Toronto, a champion hill climber, who will make his debut here as a dirt track rider; and Ritchie Slone, Toronto, a skilful competition rider.

FEAR DEMOCRACY MAY SLIP AWAY SAYS PROF. GORDON

C.C.F. Convention Pledges Opposition to Curtailing of Fundamental Liberties.

RAPS HEPBURN, DUPLESSIS.

WINNIPEG, July 29—(CP). — Scenting threats to civil liberties and democracy in Canada the National Convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation last night debated governmental action in Ontario and Quebec and passed a resolution pledging the Federation to "oppose every attempt to curtail our fundamental liberties."

"Unless we now take measures to defend our democracy there is a danger of that democracy slipping away from us," said Prof. J. King Gordon of Montreal in sponsoring the resolution on democratic freedom and civil rights.

Th resolution took cognizance of "a growing threat to democratic liberties all over the world." There were threats in Canada, it said, of forcible assertion of autocratic authority, suppression of free speech, and withholding from labor of the right to organize.

Move Against Workers.

While veiled as protection against "foreign agitators," the resolution declared the anti-democratic activities were directed against the working class in its efforts to organize for defence of its interests. It declared strengthening of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and increased defence expenditures to be "significant."

"In the two chief industrial provinces the Governments have shown themselves to be even more anti-labor than the Dominion Government," it said.

"In Quebec, th Duplessis administration is engaged in building up a Fascist 'corporatism,' of which the real meaning to the workers is shown in the infamous 'padlock law' and persistent opposition to legitimate Trade Union activities.

"In Ontario, the hysterical behavior of Premier Hepburn in the Oshawa General Motors strikes, his refusal to recognize a trade union of the workers' choice as a party to negotiations, his recruiting of a special strike-breaking force, his endorsation of Premier Duplessis' anti-labor policies show the extent to which he and his advisers are prepared to go."

Too Much for Granted

"I sometimes think we in Canada take our democracy too much for granted," said Prof. Gordon in introducing the resolution. When democracy was near the point where it could strike down special privilege, then it had reached the danger point in its existence, he said, because the special privilege powers would seek to destroy it.

He described Quebec as a "seething ferment." Because the Quebec voters were beginning to realize their power, steps were being taken to curtail democracy."

The Committee for Industrial Organization had won victory in the United States and it was quite probable a similar working agreement with General Motors Corporation in Canada would have been signed had it not been for intervention of Premier Hepburn of Ontario on behalf of the company, he said. Yet Premier Hepburn was put into office to defend the democratic rights of the people, he declared.

That was an instance where democracy, when it threatened the strongholds of industry, was itself threatened, he said.

Hadn't Heard of It Along the Trap Lines, But Prices Were Unsteady—Going to England For Visit, Then Back North.

(By Central Press Canadian)

EDMONTON Alta., July 29. — A ruddy-faced Robinson Crusoe from the north, J. I. Sharples of Hay River, N.W.T., who hasn't left the bleak solitudes of his distant trapping post once in the past 15 years, came to Edmonton the other day, and decided he didnt like the city.

He was emphatic about it, too. As far as he was concerned Edmonton was as uninteresting as strawberry shortcake without strawberries, and the sooner he got out of here the better he would like it.

"Ah, I dont like crowds. They make me dizzy and Im sick and tired of the noise in Edmonton. The norths the place for me. No. I havent even bothered looking over the city though I havent seen it since 1919. Do you think I came all the way from the north, 55 miles past Fort Resolution, to start crossing streets and dodging cars? he protested plaintively.

Starts Each Fall

Every year, he said, he leaves Hay River in the latter part of August or the first days of September for his trapping post on the north shore of Great Slave Lake, between Jones Point and Hardisty Island.

He comes back to Hay River for a few days in February and then leaves again for the lake, not to return until the end of June. All in all, he spends nearly 11 months of every year trapping, during which time the only other human being in his territory is 20 miles away on the other side of the lake.

Sharples has been living like that for 15 years—and he loves it.

"The north has no crowds, no etiquette, no fancywork. Thats the place for me. If you take sick while trapping, thats your tough luck. Youve got to take your chances. What about it? Youve got to die some time, and I havent been sick once in the past 15 years."

J. I. SHARPLES

While away trapping, his winter supply of grub consists of the following: 200-300 pounds of flour, 25 pounds of prunes, 20 pounds raisins, 10-12 pounds tea, 15 pounds coffee, 20-30 pounds baking powder and a swarm of yeast cakes, he said. He takes about 50 pounds of bacon along as well and shoots moose and caribou to complete his meat diet. He has prospered on this regimen, too, for he looks no more than 40 although he has now marched 17 years beyond that mark.

Going Across Ocean

"I came out to Edmonton for three reasons. I wanted to have my teeth fixed. I want to see my sisters and brothers in England, and I love to ride on a boat across the ocean." Sharples did not state if he was ranking the cause of his overseas trip in a scale of ascending importance. But he left Edmonton the other day to sail for Blackburn, England.

Although Sharples said he always takes a bunch of newspapers and magazines with him in his long seclusion as a trapper, he admitted that the only time he really catches up with the news is when he gets into Hay River of Resolution, two or three times a year.

Conversation revealed that he did not know there has been a depression or the intimate details of King Edward VII's abdication.

"Depression? I didn't know of any. I kept trapping and selling my furs and making money. That's what I like about the north. It's a good place to make money. All I knew was that my furs kept going up or down in price, and I read about a depression in the papers, but it didn't mean very much to me."

"All I know is that when I get back next spring from England I am going right back to my trapping and then I will be really happy again," Sharples declared as he accepted best wishes for a happy trip overseas to relatives and kin he has not seen for nearly 20 years.

Original Gas House Gang Disappearing From Skyline

Medwick Alone Holds Villian Role But Cards Lose to Giants 8-4.

TIGERS BEAT YANKS.

NEW YORK, July 29.—(CP)—What ever happened to the gas in St. Louis Cardinals, the original gas house gang?

Except for Ducky Wucky Medwick, who hasn't changed from the villain role, the rough, tough and hasty boys from the other side of the railroad tracks appear to have become a bunch of empty bags.

They can still knock off those perennial pushovers, the Dodgers and Phillies, perpetual second-division lads, but when they come up against the big boys, the Gas House Gang has become just a mild breeze. Without Dizzy (Gore Toe) Dean, there isn't enough pitching and pep to get a rise out of themselves.

The Giants' Cliff Melton let the Cards pile up three runs in the opening frame yesterday and then stopped them cold with six hits through the last eight innings. Meantime, Mel Ott and Wally Berger bolted out homers as the Giants clubbed Lon Warneke to the showers and went on to an 8-4 win.

Cubs Keep Pace.

The victory didn't help the Giants much, however, since the Cubs clouted the Dodgers 7-5 to hold their three-game lead on the National League pack.

The Yankees found their bats schackled by the right hand offerings of Elden Auker and went down to their most humiliating defeat of the year. Auker allowed them just two measly singles and the Tigers came through with an 8-1 victory.

Since the White Sox were given a thorough going over by the Senators, and lost 11-8, the victory for Detroit put the Tigers in second place, although still leaving the Yanks with a six-game lead.

Club Indians 11-7

The Athletics put on some astonishing batting fireworks to club Cleveland Indians 11-7 for the second straight day.

Peaches Davis turned in a nine-hitter and the Reds whipped the Bees 6-1. Pep Young's bat led the Pirates to a 6-4 win over the Phillies.

BREAD POISONS DOG.

Farmers Fear Discarded Loaves May Kill Cows.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 29.—(CP).—Police to-day endeavored to trace the source of a quantity of mouldy bread found yesterday along the river road in Southwold township, a few miles south-west of here.

Complaints were received from farmers who feared their stock might also find and eat stray loaves.

Likelihood was a breadman for the London bakery, finding some mouldy bread in his load, carelessly threw it away without thought of possible consequence.

HOW—

China Called Bluff Of Japanese Following Rapprochement Between General Chiang And The "Red Army".

By MAX LEKUS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 28.—In North China, Chinese and Japanese troops are locked in a conflict which may easily develop into gigantic warfare between these two foes of old standing.

In many quarters this outbreak is considered a flash of lightning striking out of a clear sky. Yet, observers of the far eastern situation knew that the day of reckoning was close at hand—ever since the abduction episode of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek last winter.

What actually has occurred is that only recently secret negotiations between the central government at Nanking and the Chinese "Soviets" in the northwest of that country have come to a satisfactory result. And when the battle axe was buried between the two hostile Chinese states, the result was that China called Japan's bluff.

Bloody Purge.

In 1927 the right Conservative wing of the Kuomintang under Chiang, purged the left or Communist wing from its ranks, with considerable cruelty. Then, for some years the Communists were under cover. But in 1931 they established themselves openly in southeastern China.

Soon hostilities broke out between them and the central government of Nanking under Chiang. In 1934 the generalissimo surrounded them with a "steel ring" of 1,000,00 soldiers. But the "Red army" broke through and during the next two years made its so-called "heroic trek" which took it more than 6,000 miles and through 18 provinces of China to the northwest. Since then these Chinese Communists have held areas inhabited by some 20,000,00 Chinese and have existed practically as an autonomous state with their own government and army.

The Chinese Red army, ably led by Commander-in-Chief Peng Teh-huai, on whose head Chiang put a price of $100,00, numbers 120,000 crack troops. Besides, it can muster 400,000 "irregulars," peasants mostly armed with swords and scythes.

A latent state of war continued to exist between Nanking and the Communists until the recent kidnaping incident of Chiang.

The generalissimo had entrusted the warfare against the Communists with General Chang Tsueliang, "The Young Marshal." When Chang showed no results, Chiang went to his headquarters to investigate. To his chagrin, he soon learned that instead of fighting the Soviets, a large part of the Young Marshal's officers and troops fraternized with the Soviets and planned a national campaign against Japan. Finally Chiang was abducted by the pro-Soviet element of Chang's officers and held nearly two weeks.

Significant Results.

The practical result of this incident, however, was the beginning of secret negotiations between Chiang, on the right Kuomintang wing, and the "Soviets" on the former left wing.

The negotiations between the Soviets and the central government revolved around three major points: The Soviets offered abandonment of their autonomy, incorporation of their crack troops into Nanking's army, and a common front against Japan. The only point that remained an unsettled issue until recently was Nanking's demand that "Communist" propaganda be stopped." The Communists refused to comply.

For this demand Chiang had good reason. During the last 10 years one of the chief reasons given by Japan for interfering with Chinese politics and gaining foothold on the continent was "to help China stop Communist subversive propaganda." Under this pretext, Japan began by annexing Manchoukuo, then followed by creating a buffer state in northeast China, and now obviously had prepared to extend her away over other larger portions of China, with the evident intention of joining a big part of North China with her puppet state, Manchoukuo.

Stronger Now.

During 1936 the central government vastly increased its strength, both economically and from a military point of view. But, politically, much of China was swinging over to the northern Communists, as representing more truly a newly aroused nationalistic spirit, in opposition to Japanese invasion.

Some four weeks ago, rumors of a successful truce between Nanking and the Communists came out of the far east. Just now the detailed issue of 'Communist propaganda" was settled, no one seems to know. But apparently both sides compromised on a program of moderate social legislation, with relief measures for the plagued Chinese peasant the central point. It has become increasingly evident to the Nanking government that a broad social program to raise the standard of living is necessary to prevent millions from espousing Communism.

CUT DOWN NOISE

LONDON—(CP)—Muted bells for conductors are being placed on buses in London, the bells instead of being exposed being situated in a panel behind the driver, only a small volume of sound issuing.

HOW TO OVERCOME PILES AND RECTAL SORENESS

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store, or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

LAKEFIELD W. I. TO HOLD PICNIC

Members to Visit Canadian Industrial Plant on Day of Outing.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, July 29—The August meeting of the Lakefield branch of the Women's Institute will take the form of a picnic, the members decided when they held their regular montly meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Howard Bullock, in Douro, on Wednesday, July 14.

The meeting commenced at 2.30 p.m. with the usual opening exercises including the opening ode, after which the ladies adjourned to the kitchen where Mrs. Stanley Higgins gave a demonstration of a successful method of canning peas. The peas, which had previously been prepared and cleaned were boiled for one minute before being placed in sealers which had been tested for flaws and sterilized. The sealers were then placed in a canner and allowed to boil for three hours.

After the demonstration the meeting returned to the living-room where the business was resumed. Sixteen members and four visitors responded to the roll call to which members replied, by telling what vegetable or fruit they like best canner, and why. The preference seemed to be for tomatoes, various reasons being given.

It was decided that the next meeting would be a picnic, and that members would visit a Canadian Industry during the afternoon and hold a picnic supper afterwards. Mrs. Stan Higgins was appointed to find out what industry could be visited and what grounds are available. Members are to meet at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, August 4, at the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, where cars will pick them up.

Mrs. A. Darling and Mrs. C. Lake each gave a short reading, after which Mrs. Howard Bullock gave a demonstration on canning meats.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served. An interesting feature of the refreshments was a salad in which he peas canned in the demonstration were sampled by Institute members. They were combined with lettuce and salmon loaf, and followed by cake and tea.

WIGHTMAN TEAM STILL UNBEATEN TORONTO TENNIS

British Players Advance to Quarter Finals in Canadian Singles.

MEN'S PLAY LAID OVER.

TORONTO, July 29 (C.P.). — The matches that were bound to come—pitting British woman against British woman—were scheduled today in the Canadian lawn tennis championships at Toronto Cricket Club. There never was any doubt the members of England's starry Wightman Cup team would do most of the final battling in women's play.

With singles down to quarter-finals, all six of the overseas contingent were still unbeaten as the fourth day's eliminations began. As a result Evelyn Dearman was drawn against Margot Lumb and Freda James against Joan Ingram, while Kay Stammers and Mary Hardwick faced Canadians.

The British players' duels assumed major interest when semi-finals in men's singles were laid over until to-morrow after yesterday's fiercely fought quarter-finals. The tournament committee decided on a lull in singles plays because of the long best-of-five doubles matches in quarter-finals.

Respite Welcome.

To Bobby Murray of Montreal and Ross Wilson of Toronto the respite was welcome. They clamored into singles semi-finals yesterday and were members of winning combinations in men's doubles play. Murray teamed with Kay Stammers to take a doubles match, bringing him to another quarter-final round.

The other singles semi-finalists, Walter Senior of San Francisco and Len Hartman of New York, were eliminated from men's doubles play, though they teamed with English women to progress in the mixed doubles.

Murray had to go to five sets and come from behind to beat last year's ranking Canadian, Doug. Cameron of Vancouver, 7-5, 2-6, 5-7, 6-1, 6-0, in a smashing finish.

Hartman defeated Jones 8-6, 5-7, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2.

Senior, who meets Wilson to-morrow, had an even easier time ousting Laird Watt of Montreal, 6-6, 6-0, 6-2.

ARGUMENT BREAKS SOFTBALL TUSSLE

Tanners Awarded 13-11 Victory Over Clerks in Hastings League.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 29. — The Tanners defeated the Clerks 13 to 11 last night (Wednesday) in a local softball game that ended in an argument between the umpires and the players of both teams.

The Tanners scored three in the first innings and two singles, G. Scriver's double and an error. They scored eight in the second, when the Clerks blew up on two singles, Brinklow's home run, and six errors. Two more in the third on two hits and an error finished the Tanners' scoring. The Clerks scored their first run in the second on two hits. They scored six in the third on three singles, L. Gibson's double, G. Gibson's triple, and two errors. They scored their last in the seventh when four crossed the plate on two hits and three errors.

An argument occurred after the last Clerk was retired in the first of the seventh when Umpire Hogan called the game. The Clerks refused to retire and Hogan promptly abandoned the game. McKee who replaced him, ran into the same thing after the Tanners had been retired, but while they argued long and furious it really became too dark to play, so the game was awarded to the Tanners.

Hahn, on the mound for the Tanners, was hit safely nine times while he struck out three and walked two. Whitred was the starting pitcher for the Clerks, but after giving up nine hits, striking out one and passing none, he was relieved by G. Gibson in the fourth. The latter gave up three hits, struck out two, and walked one.

The teams:

Clerks. — L. Gibson, lf; G. Gibson, cf, p; Crate, rf; Stevenson, 2b; Jones, 2b; J. Gibson, c; Wilson, 1b, Tape, ss; Whitred, p, cf; Herrington, 1b.

Tanners — Lemoire, 2b; Thompson, ss; Hahn, p; G. Scriver, c; M. Scriver, 1b; Kelley, cf; Turner, lf; C. Scriver, rf; Brinklow, 2b.

Score by innings:

Clerks ..... 016 000 4—11 9 9
Tanners ..... 308 200 0—13 12 6

Umpires — Hogan and McKee at plate, Dit Clapper and N. Scriver on bases.

Golf Notes

PETERBOROUGH CLUB.

C.L.G.U. Day at the Peterborough Golf Club links again saw a nice field of ladies compete yesterday for the spoons. Rain didn't bother them any, especially not Mrs. C. G. Graham, who played her best game of the year in the tomahstone competition. Her gross score of 91 left her with three strokes on hand, and she finally planted the tomahstone at the edge of the 19th hole. The other spoon went to Mrs. F. J. A. Hall for having the best total score on the even-numbered holes in the first nine, her total being 19 strokes.

Last week's ties were decided and Miss L. Lyle won the best net spoon with a better score on the last nine holes. Mrs. L. Scott took the approaching and putting spoon after the four-way tie, her total being three strokes.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AND ze main eeeevent of Civic Holiday here is the motorcycle races at the Grounds ala Exhibish. Some dare-devilish genis from near and far will fork their gasoline steeds and fly through the air with the greatest of ease—they hope. For the glory and pelf of the game. It is the half-mile dirt track championships of Canada in the novice, expert and pro classes. Probably several heats to each event, making about a three-hour show, and attracting cyclist stars from Michigan, Montreal, Northern Ontario and intermediate points—including 20 or so local riders. Two bits admission for fans and fannatics with all the thrills and spills—but we hope no kills—that makes this the most dangerous of all so-called sports. It is being sponsored by the local Lions Club and the Kawartha Motorcycle Club.

* * * * * *

A DISTRICT Civic Holiday attraction is the Bridgenorth softball tournament, an annual affair. Not too many entries have been received to date, though various managers are thinking of taking a whack at the big list of prizes. Plenty of room for men's senior, intermediate and junior squads; and gals' senior and intermediate teams. Fee is a buck, which lets the club in free to the grounds. Apply to Mac McWilliams at the village or George Dormer at the Sugar Bowl—and do it this week.

A LACROSSE fixture between Oshawa and the Auburns is billed for here tomorrow in the gloaming. The 222 team is second in the standing now and has strengthened up plenty in recent weeks. We look for the best C.O.L.A. contest of the season in this clash, with plenty of hard feelings between these gutted-stick rivals. They roughed it up plenty in their last meeting here, and the last fray of those teams in the Motor City wound up in a free-for-all, even the referee getting a poke on the nose! With several seniors added to the lineup, th U.A.W.A. Unionists feel they can hand the Auburns their first loop defeat of the year. It ought to be a pip of a scrap.

LINDSAY WARDER writer says 'tis rumored the locals will be in senior lacrosse next year, adding a few stars such as Piper Bain of Orillia. Maybe the officers here have been holding out on us, but we have heard no rumors to this effect. The locals would be screwy to be thinking already of hopping to senior company. They have a good intermediate team in a fine Central Ontario grouping—and are drawing plenty of fans each game. Why go to extra expense—such as importing players and having to travel much longer distances—for the doubtful honor of being a senior team? And maybe getting the pants trimmed off 'em fairly frequently by those packed senior squads.

* * * * * *

CLYDE ENGEL, Toronto pro ball coach, was at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon and put a bunch of young ballsters through their paces. Mostly junior Rotarians, while Bill Regan brought up one car load from Deloro. This Engel bird knows his stuff and can teach it. He gave 'em a lot of valuable pointers in a short time. For instance, he would spend maybe 15 minutes teaching the catchers how to stand, how to step and make a throw to second and how to put rhythm into the motion. In no time at all the young receivers would be doing it okay and showing vast improvement over their old form. Same way with pitchers, fielders and hitters. If at all possible he should be brought here again for two or three days—as we know he would teach local players, young and old, plenty.

* * * * * *

WE WOULD just as soon dismiss last night's so-called senior ball game at Riverside with a shrug, but suppose it calls for a few words. But we may have trouble keeping those words brushed off clean enough to pass the censor! Yeah, it was a putrid performance all around, with hits, runs and errors galore. As someone said, it looked like a softball game at the Firemen's Picnic—and we hope the firemen don't resent this too much! The locals had the lead twice but couldn't hold it and now they are but a game and a half up on the last-place Gibbards. Better look out or they'll be reading about the C.O.B.L. playoffs in the out-of-town papers.

* * * * * *

BOTH Gunner Whitehill and Russ Kitchen were hit hard by the Gerowmen while the Pets es banged Blazetich's offerings all over the landscape. They outhit Napanee and had fewer miscues but the Naps bunched bingles twice for six runs, while the Pets could only scrape up two markers at a time. Chuck Kearns did his part with five hits in five times to bat and Burton got four in five. About the only other bright spot in the game was the shiny seat of Skipper Collins' pants—worn that way as he slithered up and down the bench! The Pets are definitely not going so well this season and they'd better snap out of it if they ever hope to get a crack at those semi-final playoff gates. They play Oshawa in Cobourg at 3.30 Saturday afternoon, and play in Kingston at three Civic Holiday.

* * * * * *

LOCAL Rotarians wound up their Junior Lakeshore Baseball Loop schedule with a 3-1 win in Cobourg last evening. This gave 'em a clean sweep of the schedule without a loss, though they were tied once. Armour and Todd twirled for the Ralph boys and both went pretty good, while Kelly was covering an acre or so in classy style in right field. Bateman and Smith did the heaving for the losers, and it was a neat encounter all the way. Herb isn't sure when the two-in-three playoffs between Rotarians and Cobourg will be held, first game probably being about the middle of next week. The winner may be drawn against Belleville in the first round of the O.B.A.A. junior playdowns.

We believe that for the first time since the Ovaltine trophy has been set up for competition, the Port Hope club was successful in taking the cup to the Lakeshore town. And this was only possible when W. Peacock was forced to play four extra ends in order to break a tie with Ernie Wall of Peterborough.

At the end of the regulation 3-14 end games, the two rinks stood all square 3 wins plus 52 points. In the extra ends the Port Hope quartet was a little too strong, winning every end. It was the smallest open mixed tournament that we have had for some time, only 30 entries, 14 from our club, two each from Cobourg, Port Hope and Lindsay.

Over at Port Perry two local rinks helped to make up the fourteen entries for men's rinks. The boys report a splendid outing. In the Warkworth annual competition, a local rink skipped by W. Moorehead and including D. Spurway, T. Moore and W. Fletcher won the hard luck prize for which they received pen and pencil sets.

Ovaltine trophy winners:

First, Port Hope—Mrs. H. Millwood, Mrs. W. Peacock, T. Flood, W. Peacock, skip. (Ladies received sets of table linen, men leather bowl cases).

Second, Peterborough — Mrs. H. Beatty, Mrs. H. Staunton, H. Girven, E. Wall, skip. (Ladies, sets of table linen, men—leather kit bags).

Third, Peterborough — Mrs. T. Doughty, Mrs. N. Killingbeck, J. Fitzpatrick, H. Freeman, skip. (Ladies, sets of table linen; men, zipper sweaters).

Fourth, Cobourg—Mrs. J. Harrison, Mrs. J. Watson, J. Harrison, J. Watson, skip. (Ladies, set of bed linen; men, set of military brushes).

Fifth, Peterborough—Mrs. A. Nelson, Mrs. R. Hendry, J. T. Braund, R. Hendry, skip. (Ladies, set of bed linen; men, set of military brushes).

TOP + TOSSERS In the Majors

JAMES RILEY TURNER.

By WALTER JOHNS
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

Nearing his thirty-first birthday, James Riley Turner is celebrating his first year in the majors as a "promising" rookie right-hander for the Boston Bees.

Jim's case is unusual, for most ball players are about ready to quit baseball as a livelihood at that age, and Jim is just begining.

For 12 years he has been rambling around the minors seeking a major league job. He has pitched some good ball and some bad. He did manage to get a brief tryout with the Boston Red Sox in 1924, his only appearance prior to this year.

He started with Winston-Salem in 1925 and subsequently hurled for Greensboro, Portsmouth, Norfolk, and Holywood before joining Indianapolis in 1933. With the Indians he worked himself up into one of the classiest pitchers in the loop and last year climaxed his work with a record of 18 wins and 13 losses.

Turner was born in Antioch, Tenn. and makes his home in Nolensville, where he runs a milk business during the winter. He is six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds.

Cricket Notes

A full program has been arranged for the Civic Holiday week-end. On Saturday the newly-formed Lindsay club will play Peterboro' C.C. at the Oval.

On Monday (Civic Holiday) Whittaker's will play St. Edmund's C.C. of Toronto at the Oval. On the same day Peterboro' C.C. will go to Toronto to play a return game with Dentonia Park. The team will leave the Paragon at 8 a.m.

There will be a special practice on Friday evening, when all players are particularly asked to turn up to arrange details of the two week-end matches.

Defending Champion Keeps Up Pace In Canadian Golf

HAAS PLAYS HIGH.

OTTAWA, July 29—(CP).—The chips were down today for the boys struggling for the Canadian Amateur Golf championship. Sixteen survivors weeded out in three rounds entered the fourth phase this morning knowing that only eight could continue in the afternoon 18 holes.

On the basis of yesterday's two rounds Freddie Haas, Jr., the defending champion from New Orleans, and Bobby Reith of Winnipeg, who failed against Haas in last year's final, were the big guns in the two halves of the draw.

But the lineup of tournament veterans, including Ross Somerville of London, can't be counted out so easily. When the going is tough in match play they seldom croak.

Sensational Game

Haas, without ever having seen the course, put on a sensational morning round yesterday to defeat Russ Case of Vancouver, 4 and 3. He collected birdies at six holes and had an approximate medal score of 66, five under par.

In the afternoon Haas scarcely slackened his pace, covering the out nine in 31, two under par, and ending the match with Guy Rolland of Montreal at the 14th, winning 5 and 4.

Haas started his early round today against J. Watson Yuile of Montreal, who came through to the fourth round with wins over Wall Short and Bert Barnabe, both of Ottawa.

Reith almost duplicated Haas' stunt, sizzling out in the morning in 35 against Bob Westfall of Buffalo, who was even par after the fifth but down four holes to the Manitoba champion. Reith disposed of Gil Walker, Toronto, in the afternoon 4 and 2.

Somerville went through both of yesterday's rounds with 2 and 1 victories J. P. Cowie, Montreal, and Tommy Riddell, Toronto.

Auburns After 14th Box Lacrosse Win

Oshawa's U.A.W.A. Local 222 team plays Auburns a Central Ontario Lacrosse Association match tomorrow (Friday) evening at nine o'clock under the lights in the George Street arena. It will be the second appearance here this season of the Motor City aggregation, and they are now in second place in the group standing and improving every game. With the addition of such former senior stars as Bovin, DeGray and Barron this outfit is plenty strong and will be a serious threat to the classy locals in the league playoffs. An indication of how the big series will go may be seen when these teams tangle tomorrow evening.

Auburns have lost but one game in 14 starts this season—including exhibition games—and that one was to the Orillia Terriers. They hope to resume their winning ways Friday at the expense of Oshawa. They will be at full strength, except for Coach Chute who will be out at least two weeks with a dislocated shoulder. Another big crowd of gutted-stick enthusiasts is expected to see the Oshawa-Auburns' contest, and it may be treated to some fights as these teams mixed it up plenty in their last brawl in the Motor City—the game ending in a free-for-all.

HASTINGS TOURNAMENT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 29.—The Hastings lawn bowling club have made arrangements to stage a mixed jitney bowling tournament locally on the village greens on Monday, August 2 with a small charge of admission. On Friday, August 6th they are holding an open mixed tournament at 1 o'clock sharp with three generous prizes. The entry fee has been set at $4 per rink.

Jockey McDougall Not Seriously Hurt

LONDON, July 29—(CP)—Injured in the first spill since racing was introduced here, Jockey E. McDougall was recovering in hospital today. He lost five teeth and suffered head injuries, but his condition was not regarded as serious as first feared.

McDougall went down as Chisel, his mount in the seventh race, tangled at the first with Jockey Pat Remillard's Deedie and Finalist with Jockey Convey aboard. All three jockeys were unseated, but Convey and Remillard escaped with a shaking up.

While favorites came home in front in the first five races on the Queen's Park card, Primsweep came through with a surprise victory to return $32.20 and give the lie to turf experts who bought him a year ago. Nobody else wanted Primsweep then. Evans, an undertaker, took the horse to his farm and for training and in a five-furlong sprint Primsweep showed his heels to the favorites.

GOODYEAR GIVES YOU ALL THREE

● What do you want in the tires you buy? Some offer you this . . . some offer you that . . . But . . . in Goodyear Tires you can get ALL THREE of the IMPORTANT QUALITIES that every tire buyer wants.

1. NON-SKID FOUR-WAY TRACTION: Goodyear's exclusive diamond tread design . . . that front . . . back . . . left . . . right . . . grip that resists skidding in any direction. The FOUR-WAY facing diamonds help you stop safely . . . steadily . . . easily!

2. SUPERTWIST CORD BLOW-OUT PROTECTION: Every Goodyear tire is made with Goodyear's exclusive Supertwist cords, the cord that has greater elasticity than any other. Many road shocks, which would break less springy cords, and cause blowouts, are easily absorbed by Supertwist cords. Supertwist lengthens the life of tires and it is found only in Goodyears.

3. LONG, ECONOMICAL MILEAGE: The broad, keen-edged Goodyear tread is scientifically designed so that a wide area contacts the road, sharing the load, reducing wear. Goodyear mileages are record mileages!

No matter what you want in a tire . . . mileage . . . road grip . . . blowout protection . . . you can have all three in Goodyears. And Goodyears cost you not one cent more than any other standard tire. Why be satisfied with less?

And this is important . . . your Goodyear dealer will show you proof of all three qualities! See before you buy . . . then you can draw your own conclusions!

20 Different Goodyears

LEADERS HOLD TOP POSITIONS IN SENIOR BALL

AMATEUR ROUNDUP.

TORONTO, July 29 (C.P.). — St. Catharines and Merritton Alliance are fighting it out for first place in the Niagara District Senior Baseball League with 11 wins and seven losses each to-day. Merritton invaded Welland last night and outlasted the locals to score their eighth consecutive victory. Athletics kept pace by beating Thorold 11-4.

The situation likewise remained unchanged in the four-team senior groups. Kingston forged farther in front in the Central Ontario League by trimming last year's provincial champion Oshawa team 6-4 and Stratford kept in front of the inter-county pack with an unimpressive victory over Brantford Alerts.

Ziggy Kolachynski pitched the last five innings for Welland after performing a complete chore the previous night. But Merritton proved too strong for the home town gang and overcame an early 5-1 lead to win 9-7. Boots Davey of Welland clouted four singles to lead the batmen. Wadsworth, who relieved J. Nestor was given credit for the victory.

End, Up in Cellar.

Thorold completed its schedule of games in the cellar of the N.D.L. with the 11-4 loss to the Saints. Young Pepper Martin stilled the bats of the Mountaineers in the last five innings after allowing six hits for four runs. Deszon had three hits, including a home, for the winners, and Alosin hit a triple, double and single.

In the third Niagara game Falls Cataracts battled with Port Colborne Sailors to remain in a contending position. The Cataracts, behind masterful pitching by L. Harris, a junior, racked up a 6-3 victory. Harris scattered the Sailors' eight hits.

Stratford Nationals, with four games still to play in the intercounty, jumped to two full games ahead of London by beating the tailend Brants 6-3. The Nats' four big errors were partially offset by a pair of double plays, but the Brants drew the biggest hand from the Stratford crowd by scoring on a double steal in the ninth inning.

Brazil will erect several public buildings in Rio de Janeiro.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

The veteran George Patrick Hughes and young C. R. D. Tuckey, paired for the first time, upset all calculations in winning Britain's third successive victory in Davis Cup doubles two years ago today. They defeated the U. S. team of Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn in five sets.

Westclox kept in the race for a playoff berth last night by copping a 17-3 win over Omemee before a good crowd of fans at the Bowl. It was a wide-open contest with both sides batting the ball hard from start to finish and showing fair fielding most of the way. Omemee is definitely out of the running, but the Westclox still has a chance at the second-half playoffs.

Marg Snowden and Jean Hickson were the rival slab artists, and both were hit freely by opposing batters. Fielding features were supplied by E. Bigelow and A. Sturgeon. M. Hawthorne led the hitters with five in six times, while I. Pavey and M. Allison got three each. R. McQuade topped the O's with four for five, as J. Hickson and I. Sisson hit threes each. The teams:

Napanee Beats Petes In Weird Ball Game To Cut Locals' Lead

Gibbards Get Six-run Rally in Eighth Frame to Cop 13-10 Decision.

FREE-HITTING TILT.

C.O.B.L. standing to date:

Team	P	W	L	TP
Kingston	17	12	5	7
Oshawa	18	11	7	6
Petes	18	7	11	6
Napanee	17	5	12	7

Napanee took a 13-10 decision over the Petes here last night in a weird and free-hitting ball game before a small crowd of fans. It was Napanee's home game, transferred here, and narrowed the locals' lead over them to a game and a half.

Twice the Petes were in front but each time a six-run scoring splurge by the Naps erased their lead. Both sides bingied the ball hard all the way and turned in some indifferent defensive work. The Petes had more hits and fewer errors but Napanee bunched bingles to better effect. Two local twirlers were used and both were hit hard, while the long Naps' flinger was rapped hard all the way.

USE TWO HURLERS

Gunner Whitehill started for Peterborough but was knocked out in the third frame as Napanee got six runs, after the Petes had a 4-0 lead. Russ Kitchen pitched fair ball from then till the eighth when the Gibbards got another half dozen markers to jump ahead, after the homesters again had a lead, this time 10-7. Ody Blazetich pitched for the winners and was in frequent trouble as the locals touched him for 15 safeties. None of the flingers had good support in the field.

Church Kearns had a perfect evening at bat with five singles in five times up, and Burton got a double and three singles in five. Clark hit a triple and single. For Napanee, Scarlett, Handford, Gerow, Bennett, Ford and Blazetich and Handford having doubles. Kearns drove in four runs while Handford and Weir accounted for three each. The winners pulled off two double plays and the losers one. Catches by Gerow and Weir were fielding features. Long and Ford nearly tangled in a fight after a collision at second base in the seventh.

Petes Start Early

Hits by Kearns, Burton and Whatley, with a stolen base, gave the Petes two runs in the first. They added two next frame on hits by Kearns and Burton, along with two errors and an out. Napanee tallied six in the third on singles by Bennett, Ford, Card, Scarlett and Gerow, with an error and two stolen bases thrown in. The Petes tied it in their fourth with two markers, Kearns singling, Starr walking, Burton doubling and Calladine's long fly sending Starr home. Napanee got a run back in their half when Blazetich singled, moved up on Scarlett's hit, took third on an error and home when Jeffers walked to force him in.

The Petes counted two again in the fifth. Long walked and Brown singled, both scoring on Kearns' hit. Two more counted in the seventh. Clarke tripled and scored on an error at the plate, on Long's fielder's choice. The latter was forced by Brown, who moved up on Kitchen's hit and tore home on a bingle by Kearns. Napanee won the game in the eighth with six runs, manufactured by Blazetich's two-base blow, a hit batsman, Handford's double, a walk, Gerow's single, a triple by Weir and Bennett's single. PONIES CLINCH PLAY-OFF SPOT

Kingston Increase League Lead By 6 to 4 Victory Over Oshawa.

TIGHTENS TOP HOLD.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 29 (CP)—Kingston Ponies made sure of a place in the Central Ontario Baseball League playoffs last night, at the Fair Grounds, with a 6-4 win over Oshawa. The victory increased Kingston's hold on first place.

Kingston	400 020 00x—6

WILD 4TH FRAME DEFEATS TORONTO

Six Hits and as Many Passes Give Baltimore 11-3 Victory.

TORONTO, July 29 (CP)—Those "super-team" yells about Newark Bears are dying down to whispers.

The Bears first half pace in the International League justly deserved all the accolades the experts were heaping on them, but the Bears are proving they can be beaten.

The Yankee farmhands dropped a twin bill to Rochester Red Wings 5-3 and 3-1 last night. That brought their record since the half-way mark to 11 victories and 13 defeats. Light hitting caused the Bears double defeat. Montreal Royals resorted to an almost lost art in the slugging International loop, when they bunted their way to a 6-5 triumph over the Jersey City Giants. The Montrealers employed the sacrifice bunt three times.

The third place position behind the Royals has a new tenant again. This time the Syracuse Chiefs moved back in and sent Toronto and Buffalo back to a fourth-place deadlock.

The Chiefs broke Buffalo's four-game winning streak when they defeated them 7-5 in ten innings.

A wild fourth inning caused Toronto's 11-3 downfall at the hands of Baltimore's Orioles. Six hits, plus as many passes and an error, gave the Birds nine runs and the ball game.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)— A James J. Braddock-Max Baer match is in the making here . . . Mike Jacobs and Joe Gould spent more than two hours with Ancil Hoffman, Baer's pilot . . . Terms were agreed to and the date set for sometime in September . . . Everything was settled except the site . . . It will be Los Angeles, Chicago or San Francisco . . . If the Cubs have a weakness, why don't they begin to show it? . . . Don Budge says he will not turn pro . . . Everyone else says he will . . . We'll string along with the "pippul" . . .

Out in St. Louis they say they are having the coolest summer in 50 years because the Cards aren't hot any more . . . Hirsch Jacobs needs only one more winner (and he'll likely get it at Saratoga today) to pass the century mark for the season . . . A lot of smart baseball men will bet you Rogers Hornsby will be managing the Indians next year . . . It cost the White Sox $2,000 to insure last Sunday's double bill with the Yankees against rain.

All the publicity he's getting over here seems to have gone to Tommy Farr's head . . . He thinks he's so hot he wants to ditch his manager after March 1 and collect 100 per cent of his purses for himself . . .

Promoters of the Farr-Louis heavyweight bout would be glad if Max Schmeling changes his mind about coming over to see it . . . They fear he would steal the show . . . Why not? . . . He's the guy who knocked out Louis and whom Farr ran out on, ain't he? . . .

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 45

Marcia read the newspapers and sighed. Unconsciously she blamed Walt for the collapse of the Acme company, for Abe had followed his lead in looking for "easy money." Never too scrupulous, he had needed just the encouragement Walt so slyly gave. She hated to see the company she had conscientiously helped to build crumble into obscurity because of man's greed.

Suddenly, she thought of Sandy's rough-and-tumble fight in that office, a fight which should have served as a warning for both Abe and Walt. A half smile crossed her face as she remembered Sandy's pride in administering that beating, then abruptly it faded away as she thought of Sandy himself. She had not heard from him in a month, except for the two little cards found in her mail box when she had returned from Santa Cruz. She thrust the paper from her viciously as she thought of Paula.

Sandy, who had hesitated to intrude upon Marcia during the hectic days a month ago when her success first became apparent, had called twice at her apartment while she was in the mountains and had been informed she had gone away for a rest, "at Garrett Warren's cousin's home." Determined not to let his jealously get the better of him again, he had merely left a card and hoped Marcia would call when she returned.

She had been home two weeks and sent him no word, so Sandy reasoned she either was too engrossed in her own success, or her love for him had dimmed. He was so concerned with this worry that he paid scant attention to the newspaper screamers about Acme.

"Old Abe probably is feeling around already for some other scheme or deal to make quick money," he told Mike Borst who happened to be lounging in his office reading another newspaper account. Then he laughed aloud as another thought struck him. "I'll bet the old boy is out right now trying to sell what accounts he has left. Too bad I don't stand better in his good graces, I might have a chance to buy in some new business cheap."

"Failing that, how would you like to buy an almost new suit, also cheap?" Mike questioned him. "I seem to be at dead ends just at this moment; nobody wants a publicity man, and the radio stations no longer crave to hear my mellow voice."

"Maybe they don't like that whiskey tenor, young fella," Sandy said thoughtfully. For a long time he had wondered if he could find an opportunity to help Mike, for he had heard rumors along the row that the man was letting drink interfere with his work.

"Aw, I don't drink so much," Mike was embarrassed, then his humor got the better of him. "I can't afford to!"

"But the trouble with you, Mike, you have too many bad friends who are willing to set you up to a drink on any excuse. Why don't you cut it out?" he asked seriously, then seeing the growing resentment in Mike's eyes he went on quickly, "Oh, I know. You need it to relax your nerves after working at top speed in this profession. That old alibi is no good any more, Mike. You aren't working so hard and there's no point in trying to drown your sorrows or pickle yourself in brine."

"What do you want me to do, make a bid to Abe and set myself up in the advertising business? If I had any money, I wouldn't give it to that lemon squeezer." Mike was glad to bring the subject back to an impersonal point. But Sandy was not so easily deterred.

"Forget Abe. He's left the field open to decent advertising men by folding up. I only hope a few of the other unethical birds follow suit. But can't you see any encouragement for yourself in his actions?"

"Nope. Or, say—do you want me to be an ambulance chaser?"

"Why not? Acme has lost about a dozen accounts, some of them pretty good ones. Why don't you comb the straw out of your hair and get after them? There are a couple I think you're particularly qualified to land. That is if you buck up and stay bucked."

"Boy, I'd be Sitting Buck himself if I could put my hands on some honest cash. Do you really think I've got a chance?" Unconsciously Mike straightened up, squared his shoulders and began to face the future with something like interest. He had hit a stretch of bad luck and, as Sandy accused, too many bad friends had helped him while away the time. Sandy drew a sigh of relief when he saw Mike was not going to resent his interference. He wanted to help the likeable chap.

"It's a setup," He said to give him further confidence. "You should go first to McDonald over at the Bancroft hotel. His problem is mostly publicity, and he goes for radio in a big way."

"Right down my alley!" boasted Mike, then turned in perplexity to Sandy. "But you, why don't you have a try for it? Doesn't look to me as if another job or two would be amiss around here."

Sandy shook his head. "Two reasons: First, I'm working on a competitive account; second, I'm not so well equipped on the radio end of it. And that's in spite of the little initiation I got when I tried to pinch hit for you!" Mike, too, smiled wryly when he remembered the disastrous results of that brief experience over the air.

"Well, I'm glad that it's ethics and not pity that made you turn the job over to me," he said, cherishing his self-respect. I might stand for one, but the other—!"

"Forget it," Sandy said gruffly. "Let's call McDonald and find out if he'll see you. He's a pretty good friend of mine." And Sandy reached a long arm after the telephone. A brief conversation and he turned to Mike. "He's going to be at the Trocadero tonight with a party of friends. Asked me to bring you in, he's got something in mind. Looks like it's hot, or he wouldn't want to see you right away."

Mike grasped his hand firmly and with an embarrassed grin picked up his hat and started to leave. "Well, I'll go home and coax the moths out of my other suit. D'you think they'd like to gnaw holes in doughnuts for a change?" He had closed the door behind him, when he popped his head back in again. "I'll meet you at the Troc about 10!"

Sandy breathed a sigh of relief. If he could only straighten out his own problems in the same easy fashion! But women and love were ticklish subjects. "There's only one thing I'm sure of, and that is that I love Marcia," he thought miserably. "Once I was jealous of her ambitions and of any man who dared look at her; now I'm letting her success stand between us. Maybe I've had the wrong hunch, to let her have her fill of it. Maybe I should have another try to win her over?"

Fearing to make even one more mistake in this peculiar comedy of love errors, he paced the floor nervously. Looking out over the city that was still sweltering in the late afternoon sun, he decided once more to discuss the future with Marcia. Calling the Warren publishers, he was informed, "Miss Madden is working at home; we are not permitted to give her telephone number." Sandy banged up the receiver. Did they think they could keep him from Marcia that easily. Quickly he called the familiar number to her apartment, and a pleased smile quirked his lips as he heard her voice.

"Ah, Marcia!" he exclaimed boyishly. "It's been so long since I've heard your voice. How are you darling?"

"Slightly wilted. And you?" she said almost formally. "I hear you've been dreadfully busy."

Sandy thought she referred to the press of office duties, not knowing she believed him practically engaged to Paula. "Yes, just couldn't tear myself away," he said, and didn't want to admit over the telephone that he had purposely stayed away to give her a fair chance to enjoy her success.

"How touching," she said sarcastically. "How did you happen to call today?"

Sandy did not catch the sarcasm in Marcia's voice, being too engrossed in his own hastily formulated plans. "Marcia, I've got to see you. Tonight. It must be tonight. Can I pick you up?"

Marcia was puzzled at the excitement in his voice, and wondered what he had to discuss of so much importance. For a second she hoped wildly he meant to tell her the stories about Paula were false, then decided she was a sentimental fool.

She forced her voices to be matter-of-fact when she said, "Not tonight, Sandy. I'm going to the Trocadero with Garrett Warren. A sort of special celebration." As she heard the disappointment in his voice, she said brokenly, "Another time?" and hung up the phone.

What would Sandy say if she admitted this party had been specially planned by Gary—who hoped she was finally going to say "yes" to his proposal.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SASSAFRAS

Uncle Wiggily hopped out of his big camping tent near Blue Lake, and, standing beside the little tent where the children rabbits lived, called:

"Baby Bunty! Ho. Baby Bunty! I'm waiting for you."

"Don't wait, if you please, Mr. Longears," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, motioning him away with a flip of her tail which had a white ribbon tied on the end.

"Why shouldn't I wait?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "I promised to take Bunty with me adventuring today. Tell her to hop out and we'll have some fun."

"Why not?" asked Mr. Longears.

"Because she is ill. She has a fever. I don't know what to do. Dr. Possum is back in Woodland near the hollow stump bungalow. We should have brought him to camp with us."

Has An Idea

"I can get Dr. Possum to come here to the camp in an airplane if we need him," said Mr. Longears. "But perhaps I can cure Baby Bunty."

"How," asked the muskrat lady housekeeper and nurse.

"With sassafras tea," said Uncle Wiggily. "My mother use to give it to me when I was a boy rabbit and had a fever. I'll hop off to the woods and get some sassafras roots that you can boil and make into tea. When Bunty drinks that she will get well."

"I hope so," squeaked Nurse Jane. "Now I must go back and nurse Bunty. Don't be too long getting the sassafras, Uncle Wiggily."

"I'll hurry," promised the rabbit gentleman.

Feeling sorry for Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit, whom he loved as much as he did his own girls and boys, Uncle Wiggily hopped to the woods until he reached a place where grew some sassafras bushes and trees.

"I can't pull up a tree, it is too big," said Mr. Longears. "But I think I can pull up a bush and the roots of that will do very well to make sassafras tea to cure Bunty."

Now if you have ever tried to pull up a sassafras root you know how hard it is to do. The root grows deep down in the ground and even small bushes are so tight it takes much strength to uproot them. Uncle Wiggily soon found this out.

Bad Chap

He was pulling and tugging away at a sassafras bush when, all of a sudden, he heard a noise behind him. Turning he saw the Fox. The Bad Chap was grinning and looked hungry.

"Do you want any help?" sneered the Fox.

"Yes," said Uncle Wiggily. "I do. I want to pull up this sassafras bush to get the root to make tea for Bunty."

"Well, why don't you pull it up then?" asked the Fox.

"Because it is too hard," said Uncle Wiggily. "I can't pull the root out. I don't believe any one can."

"Pooh! I'll show you how easy it is," said the Fox, who was very proud of himself. "I'll pull this root for you and then I'll nibble you to pay for it. Stand aside."

The Fox took hold of the bush in both paws. He pulled one, he pulled twice and then he pulled three times very hard.

"Zippo!" out came the root and so suddenly the Fox turned a back somersault into a pond of water behind him. Into it he splashed!

"Thanks a lot!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he picked up the root the Fox had dropped in his somersault. "No nibbles today, Foxie!"

Away hopped the rabbit with the sassafras before the Fox could scramble out of the pond. And the sassafras tea cured Bunty. So, if the pin will stand on its head and wiggle its feet in the air, I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's swing."

DIDN'T NEED TO FISH

SOUTHPORT, N.C. July 29—(A. P.)—Ed Wells fished for hours with never a nibble but returned home to find his front yard full of fishes of various kinds and sizes.

Wells, who lives at the water's edge, said the yard is flooded often at high tide and the fish probably fled there to escape sharks. They apparently were stranded when the tide receded.

TOBACCO WORKER TAKING $3 WAGE GETS BEATEN UP

Hungarian and Ukrainian Agitators From Toronto Said Campaigning in Delhi Area.

NO HELP SHORTAGE.

SIMCOE, July 29.—Agitators are resorting to violence to prevent men from joining up for the tobacco harvest, it was reported yesterday. A group of Hungarian and Ukrainian agitators from Toronto are campaigning here and in Delhi and is meeting with some success.

Yesterday a man who accepted an offer of $3 a day and his board from a grower, was set upon by half a dozen men and kicked and pummelled unmercifully. The victim limped away and later reported the attack to the employment bureau.

According to the story of eye-witnesses, as soon as the tobacco worker signified his willingness to accept the offer of a grower four or five men "ganged up" on him, kicked him in the stomach, and left him writhing on the pavement.

Hundreds Watch Attack

Several hundred men, the majority of them foreign-born, dotted the four-corners of the intersection at the time. No one attempted to go to the aid of the man until after his attackers had withdrawn.

The worker regained consciousness within five minutes, and managed to make his way to the employment office at Simcoe, some fifteen miles from here, where he reported the matter to Superintendent Frank Kelly. Mr. Kelly left for the scene immediately to investigate.

$3.50 Wage Wanted

The attack is believed to have been the outcome of a campaign to establish a $3.50-a-day-and-board minimum wage in Norfolk County's tobacco fields. A week ago an unsigned dodger was distributed in both Delhi and Simcoe urging the workers to hold out for the higher wage.

Growers have announced their willingness to pay $3.50 a day to experienced men, such as "stringers" and "tie'ers" but claim economical reasons prevent them from paying more than $3 a day to inexperienced help.

There is no shortage of harvest help in the tobacco area, according to reports from several districts, but the growers are emphatic in their refusal to pay $4 a day and board, as demanded by the agitators and those they have persuaded to join them. Many men want to accept work at the prevailing rate, but have been intimidated by the ringleaders.

A truck containing twelve men from Alberta arrived yesterday and jobs were obtained immediately. It is believed other Western workers will arrive before next week when the harvest gets properly underway.

All day long between 200 and 350 men congregated at the main street corner in Delhi and a Hungarian, who was run out of Simcoe not to accept $3 a day, but to hold out for $4. Whenever a grower approached with an offer of work, this man urged that it not be accepted.

Printed circulars were distributed among the hundreds of men gathered from all parts of the province in Delhi, centre of the flue-cured tobacco district of Norfolk County, this evening, exhorting the men to demand four dollars a day and board to work at the harvest.

DOMINION STEEL INVADES ONTARIO BUYS 4 COMPANIES

WILL ADD NEW PLANTS.

MONTREAL, July 29—(CP)—The wide industrial network of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation—steel, coal, shipping, lumber, shipbuilding and electricity—is extending into Ontario in a $2,000,000 deal.

From the United States Steel Corporation, a Dosco announcement said yesterday, $40,000,000 Canadian firm is buying four Ontario subsidiaries. Agreement has been concluded for the acquisition of these companies.

Canadian Steel Corporation, Limited, and Canadian Steel Lands, Limited, at Ojibway; Canadian Bridge Company, Limited, at Walkerville, and Essex Terminal Railway Company, which covers the Walkerville-Windsor district in Western Ontario.

Their purchase, according to the announcement, will launch Dosco into the finished steel products business and give the corporation "ready entrance to the steel-consuming markets of Central Canada." Up to now, Dosco's steel production in its 3,600-man plant at Sydney, N.S., and smaller mills has been restricted chiefly to primary products.

Appeal To Shareholders.

To finance the transaction, the statement said, the corporation will ask its shareholders at a special meeting August 12 to approve an increase of $2,000,000 in its authorized capital. The increase "makes provision for the exchange of shares of the corporation against bonds and debentures secured on the newly-acquired property."

(Yesterday, Dosco's shareholders voted to cancel $15,000,000 in first refunding mortgage sinking fund bonds and issue $12,000,000 worth of new bonds and debentures. Three millions of the new issue was earmarked for plant expansion.)

The impending purchase will add secondary steel mills and a transport system to facilities that include, besides the Sydney Steel plant, 30 bituminous coal mines in Nova Scotia, iron ore mines in Newfoundland, shipyards in Halifax, 17 chartered or owned ships, two railways systems, a lumber mill in New Brunswick, an electrical power plant at Glace Bay and small steel-products plant at Saint John, N.B., and Montreal.

President of the corporation is Arthur Cross, who succeeded the late Sir Newton Moore a few months ago.

LA SALLE'S GRIFFIN MAY SAIL AGAIN

Chicago Explorer Hopes to Discover and Raise Hulk of "Flying Dutchman" Off Manitoulin.

CHICAGO July 29. — (AP). — Robert Caveller Sieur De La Salle's Griffin—the "Flying Dutchman" of the Great Lakes—may sail again, if the expedition planned to-day by a Chicago yachtsman and explorer meets with success.

Eugene F. McDonald's diesel yacht was being loaded with diving and salvage equipment for a cruise to the western end of Manitoulin Island in Lake Huron, where the pioneer explorer's ship—reputed to be the list to ply the lakes—was believed to have sunk in 1679.

La Salle and Henri De Tonti built the Griffin at the head of Lake Erie in May 1679. They sailed to what is now Green Bay, Wis., where the ship was laden with 12,000 furs. La Salle sent them to friends who helped finance his explorations.

But the Griffin never reached port. Lake authorities—and McDonald, who said he had studied all available evidence — believe she foundered off Manitoulin.

Old sailors say the Griffin sails each year when the Lotus blooms. They say she is recognized by the eagle-headed, lion-bodied Griffin figurehead protruding from her prow.

McDonald said he planned to sail Friday and anchor off the island Monday. There he plans to meet Grant Turner of Little Current, Ont., since the Canadian Government granted him permission for the search provided a Canadian citizen accompanied him.

If the Griffin is found, McDonald said, efforts will be made to reconstruct the old ship so that she can sail along the Chicago waterfront during the city's Jubilee Carnival of the Lakes.

STORMS HALT FIRE PATROL

Efficiency Of Firefighters' Radios Disturbed By Storms

TIMBER TRACTS LOST

REGINA, July 29 (CP).—Frequent thunderstorms, many of them bringing no rain have proved a nuisance rather than an aid to harassed Saskatchewan fire patrols.

With 180,000 acres of timberland destroyed by fire this year, timber crews report that atmospheric conditions caused by frequent thunderstorms has reduced the efficiency of operation of the small radio stations used for fire prevention.

Though the number of fires this year at present only total 260, as compared to 365 in 1936, suppression costs have been high. Actual loss in merchantable timber has not been heavy.

J. Nico de Beer of Johannesburg, South Africa, has invented an air filter which he claims will consume the dust which causes the scourge of miners' phthisis.

POLICE, PICKETS CLASH AT BONNER-WORTH PLANT

KIDNAPPED BY FOUR MEN THAIN TELLS POLICE

TOOK HIS MONEY.

Officials Have Found No Evidence to Support Man's Story.

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., July 30. (CP).—Fred Thain, Rawdon township farmer, told provincial police last night he was kidnapped Tuesday and held prisoner until Wednesday night by four men in an "old sedan." Search of the district nine miles northeast of here had been made by the farmers after Thain disappeared Tuesday and returned home yesterday.

While stating certain angles of the case were still under investigation, Inspector Frank Gardner, Chief of district provincial police, said at Belleville, police had been "unable to find any evidence" to support Thain's story. Inspector Gardner received a report from Segt. Harry Thompson.

Thain, father of three children, told Sergt. Thompson he had gone to a local bank to renew a note around noon Tuesday and was driving back home in a horse-drawn buggy when four men in an automobile accosted him on the eighth Line of Rawdon, a mile from his farm.

Put Sack Over Head

One of the men asked him for a jackknife, Thain said, and when he offered it to them, they grabbed and bound him, putting a sack over his head and bundling him into their car. They took $3 from his pockets, but left his watch and 32 cents, he said.

Thain said he believed his kidnappers turned east on the Tenth Line and after driving for quite a long time" stopped at a farmhouse. He was kept in a cellar and tied up, but was given nothing to eat or drink, he said. He remained there Tuesday night and all day Wednesday, until late Wednesday night.

His captors then took him again in the car and took him to the Sixth Concession of Rawdon and the Stirling and Marmora road, three miles from his home, Thain declared. He made his way to the nearby Hadley farm and told them his story.

DID MISSING MAN VISIT BEWDLEY?

John Thompson Thinks He Saw Close's Car at Rice Lake.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 30.—(AP)—State police today launched an investigation of all Canadian border customs records in their search for Morris B. Close, 23, Rochester scoutmaster who disappeared while driving from Albany to Rochester, July 19.

Fred T. Thompson of Rochester told authorities he had received a letter from his brother John, at Bewdley, Ont., in which he said he saw a small car with license plates he believed checked with Close's near Rice Lake, Ont., July 21.

Police said the Canadian report might connect with that of a Brockport salesman who said he saw a car resembling the one Close was driving at Tupper Lake July 20. The two points are a normal day's drive apart.

Meanwhile members of the missing man's family identified a piece of blanket sent here from Kingdom City, Mo., as one Close was carrying in the car. The blanket was found on the body of murdered man at Kingdom City several days after Close disappeared.

A ticket found in the pocket of the murdered man's coat also was identified as one for a dance at Manitou Beach, near here which Close attended July 10.

Youth Kept In Hand By Public Whipping

Powhatan, O., July 30 (AP). PUBLIC whipping was credited today with reducing juvenile delinquency nearly 60 per cent, in this coaling mining village. For five years, Powhatan residents have heard almost daily the swish of the whip and some youthful culprit's posterior bent over a barrel on the public square.

Since the first public whipping was administered by hefty Marshal Edward Carpenter, he estimated 200 youths, ranging in age, had felt the sting of his lash.

"It's the only way we can keep the upper hand on these young offenders," Carpenter asserted.

50,000 OF CHINA'S ACE TROOPS FLUNG AGAINST JAPANESE

AIM TO RETAKE PEIPING.

PEIPING, July 30 (A.P.). — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, Premier and Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese Armies, was reported to-day to have ordered 50,000 crack troops of his Central Army into action to drive the Japanese army out of North China.

Japanese sources declared they had learned an attack in force had been ordered against their positions around this ancient walled city by the main body of the Chinese Army, supported by the Nanking Government's modernized air force.

Fighting was general along a 90-mile front from Tientsin, gateway to the North China Provinces. Japan claims she has the right to develop economically, to the crossings of the Yungting River, 12 miles west of Peiping.

Throughout the night Japanese artillery shelled Chinese positions in Tientsin. The Japanese, faced with loss of their headquarters at Tientsin, were forced to deplete their strength there to rush reinforcements to the new zone of attack to the North.

Attack at Dawn

At dawn yesterday the Chinese struck at the Japanese positions, feinting in the Peiping area with the 26th and 40th armies.

Although Japanese were making noticeable headway in their effort to recapture the strategic Tientsin bases snatched from them by the Chinese, the units of the 26th and 40th armies still held their ground.

At Tungchow, 12 miles east of here, hundreds of Japanese were trapped amidst flaming oil tanks, set ablaze by the fire of 5,000 militarized Chinese police. Reinforcements were pulled out of the Tientsin clash to aid the Tungchow garrison.

A brisk engagement was being fought at the Huangan gate at the southwest corner of Peiping's walls. A detachment of 300 Japanese troops, reinforced by 45 tanks, was sent to Fengtai to meet a sudden emergency at the former Japanese field headquarters five miles further to the southwest.

Across the Yungting River from Fengtai the 37th and 132nd Divisions of the 29th army held strong positions.

It was to reinforce these 15,000 troops that the 50,000 troops from Gen. Chiang's army were marching from Paotingfu, Chinese concentration point 80 miles to the southwest. The total Japanese strength in North China is more than 20,000, with 14,000 busily engaged at Tientsin.

Gen. Chen Cheng, Field Commander of the northern route armies and one of Chiang's trusted aides, was said to be speeding from Nanking to Hopeh province to assume command of all north China forces.

BRITISH HOUSE RESTS DESPITE THREATS OF WAR

Opposition Demand, Parliament Be Called if Belligerency Rights Granted, is Rejected.

LABOR FEARS RESULTS.

Eden Promises to Issue Call Only if Real Case of Emergency Arises.

LONDON, July 30 (C.P. Cable).—Parliament adjourned for the summer to-day, ending a memorable session that witnessed the abdication of King Edward VIII, the start of rearmament in earnest, and the constant threat of war growing out of the Spanish conflict.

Foreign affairs occupied the last hours of the old session. Foreign Secretary Eden rejected an Opposition demand that the House be called into session should the Government decide to recognize the Spanish insurgents as belligerents, but promised that if the Government considered the international situation "so serious that Parliament must be summoned," it would request the Speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, to do so. Normally the House will meet again on October 1.

Eden declared Great Britain's compromise non - intervention scheme would stand or fall as a whole, that no major modification that would upset its balance could be agreed to, and that, therefore, "if the scheme is accepted the anxieties of the right honorable gentleman (Labor Leader Clement Attlee) can be allayed because it will mean belligerent rights cannot be granted except under the conditions laid down in the scheme."

(The scheme stipulates that belligerent rights shall not be granted until the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain is well under way. Belligerent rights would give both parties the right to visit and search foreign shipping on the high seas.)

Lloyd George Steps In

David Lloyd George joined the Labor party in urging that parliament be summoned should the government decided to grant belligerency status to General Franco. To the cheers of the opposition, the wartime prime minister declared:

"The recognition of belligerent rights is a matter of such importance to us, our trade and our shipping, and the possibility of what might happen to our sailors, that it should not be conceded without summoning parliament and obtaining its sanction."

Lloyd George said he did not believe war was an immediate probability. He declared he would be still less a believer in it if the government was prepared to make a stand at any point against "these military dictators."

He countered the argument that the Spanish government was a minority government by saying Abraham Lincoln was president of the United States, although he was the president of a minority.

"We recognized him and we should have done the same in Spain," the Welshman declared.

Vanderbilt Saves Boat For Saturday

NEWPORT, R.I., July 30 (AP).—Shortly before starting time Harold S. Vanderbilt decided not to enter the Ranger, the sloop he will take against T. O. M. Sopwith's second British challenger Endeavour II tomorrow, in today's concluding race of the Eastern Yacht Club cruise.

Vanderbilt's change in plans, however, did not mean shore leave or rest for his racing crew, for instead he put Ranger under canvas to try out some new sails.

Sopwith also went out in Endeavour II to drill his crew against tomorrow's opening race of the four of seven international match.

Howe Hops Off On Test Flight Proposed Trans-Canada Route

TURN BACK FOR STORM.

MONTREAL, July 30 — (CP). — Transport Minister Howe threw his golf clubs into a plane today and set off for dinner in Vancouver and 18 holes over the Pacific course before bedtime.

After one false start, a big silver-bodied plane of the Department of Transport carried the minister and two aviation officials away into the misty dawn from St. Hubert's airport on the first daylight-to-dusk survey flight for the projected trans-Canada flying service.

The great twin-motored plane got away on its coast-to-coast flight only after a violent thunderstorm had driven it back to ground from a first takeoff. It soared off first at 4.01 EDT, one minute past schedule, but the sudden and violent electrical storm drove it back at 4.35.

"We just wanted some comfort up there," the minister said. He had decided with H. J. Symington, a director of Trans-Canada Air Lines, and Commander C. P. Edwards.

Established Community Centre

This is one of the few remaining country stores in the district, operated by P. G. Towns of Douro. A place which stocks every conceivable kind of farm necessity, and is the established centre of the community. It was around this store that Thursday nights celebrations were staged in connection with the coming of Hydro to Douro Township. While the crowd stood around in the dark waiting for the electric lights to be switched on, the sole illumination was provided by an oil lamp on the counter in Town's store and by the headlights of the autos which brought the people in from the farms. Oil lamp and store both symbolize a link with a passing era.

Cabinet Ministers See Vivid Example of Result in $150,000 Irrigation Project.

ITUDY EXTENSION.

By Sam G. Ross
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MALTA, Montana, July 30 (C.P.).—After viewing dried-out wheat fields and grain standing 40 inches high across the highway from each other, Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Labor Minister Rogers to-day turned to a study there of an irrigation project. Malta is 55 miles south of the international boundary.

Picture of failure and success the two Cabinet ministers saw was at Valmarie, scene of a $150,000 irrigation project in South-western Saskatchewan. It is sponsored by Federal and Saskatchewan Governments under the Prairie Farms Rehabilitation Act.

Leaving Regina by car on Wednesday the Ministers and their party travelled west to Moose Jaw and then southward through Assiniboia, Cadillac, Valmarie and then direct south on the 350-mile trip to Malta.

Scenes of desolation due to drought were viewed along the route particularly around Aneroid and Pontiex. At both points huge sand drifts lay over the land which a few years ago had produced Canada's highest grade wheat No. 1 hard and No. 1 Northern.

Drifting Sand Fills Ditches.

Ditches had been filled in by the drifting sand— sand that equalled the finest found on the bathing beaches of the country, but a curse to Prairie grain growers. A species of cactus pushed its head above the sand strips in many places.

Immediately in the vicinity of Pontiex stretched a thick layer of sand almost a mile long. It practically buried a fence. A few miles further on lay an abandoned farmhouse where a threshing machine was half buried in sand. The dilapidated farmhouse was partially covered.

Driving further southward the Valmarie irrigation project presented the picture of contrast. Still not working at top capacity the irrigation project this year was used on 1,000 acres. On one side of the highway which had not been irrigated the land lay dry and hard. Wheat had been sown futilely in the spring. Where there was irrigation wealth was produced. A field of 450 acres sown to wheat was estimated by E. E. Eisenhauer, irrigation supervisor, to be growing high quality grain that will produce around 30 bushels to the acre.

WHEN Stanley Leblanc of Wageport, N.S., saw a large tuna trapped in a weir here off Bliss Island he was too much of a fisherman to miss the opportunity.

He got a harpoon, relic of old-time fishing and unused for fifty years, and made the catch. The tuna weighed 700 pounds. . . . . .

ONTARIO TO NAME BOARD OF CONTROL ON HORSE RACING

ACT NEXT ASSEMBLY.

TORONTO, July 30 — (C.P.). — Appointment of a Government commission to control horse racing in Ontario was promised to-day by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

Creation of the racing commission, advocated by certain breeders and race-horse owners following the Manny Feder trial in Toronto, will necessitate legislation at the next session of the Assembly, and the Premier declared definitely the administration would sponsor such a measure.

"There is nothing we can do until the legislation is passed, but it is our intention to appoint men of high calibre who will restore public confidence in racing," the Premier said.

Repeatedly Mr. Hepburn has expressed the wish that those interested in horse racing should run their own affairs and "clean house" themselves when it appeared necessary, but in view of the recent situations which have developed he has concluded it is time the government should take a hand.

Beyond reaching a decision on the general policy of appointing a commission to regulate racing, the government has not decided on any details. It was inferred however, that one thing is almost certain, and that is all jockeys riding on Ontario tracks would have to be registered with the commission and would be responsible to the commission. Owners and trainers similarly would be registered and controlled.

The Premier intimated the commission would be entirely independent though the government would have to take full responsibility for its appointment.

Emilie Sorrows, Sisters Comfort Her As Quints' Nest Of Robins Flits Off

Callander, Ont., July 30 (CP).

EMILIE DIONNE is broken-hearted. The nest of robins she has been watching carefully for past weeks was empty today. The fledglings have flown and now Emilie's sisters, Yvonne, Cecile, Marie and Annette are busy comforting her.

The nest was a big incident in the lives of the Dionne quintuplets. The parent robins built it in the branches of a newly-planted tree within the grounds of the Dafoe Hospital.

The tree didn't flourish and when its leaves withered and dropped it left the nest unhidden. When the eggs hatched the Quints watched eagerly as the robins brought food for the gaping mouths of their fuzz-covered babies.

Emilie took the greatest interest in the young robins but her sisters shrieked with joy when the robins made their first attempts at flight under the watchful eye of the mother bird.

But the clumsy tumbles that amused the children soon changed to swoops and glides. Flights became longer and longer as the wings of the fledglings strengthened and the other night the robins failed to return to the nest.

HINT SABOTAGE AS LINER BURNS OFF BALTIMORE

Two Men Die, 2 Missing as Fire Follows Blast on Passenger Boat.

PILOT BEACHES IT.

BALTIMORE, July 30 — (AP). — Capt. Charles O. Brooks of the charred, smoking bay steamer City of Baltimore suggested today that sabotage may have accounted for the "amazing" spread of the fire and series of explosions which left two dead and two missing of a complement of 93 aboard the ship.

"I wouldn't even think of sabotage as a theory under ordinary circumstances, but the idea has been running through my head," Captain Brooks said. "I say this because of the amazing way in which the fire spread so fast all over the boat."

BALTIMORE, July 30 (AP)—The Chesapeake Bay liner City of Baltimore, destroyed by an explosion and fire, smoldered on sandy shoals 44 miles southeast of here today.

Nearly 100 survivors reached the resort-lined beaches of the bay when the steamer burned last night while boats which swarmed about the stricken ship picked up others.

The dead:

J. R. Polikoff, an Aiken, S.C. lawyer and an unidentified man.

Officials of the Chesapeake Steamship Company, operators of the line, said the missing were: H. Paige, a passenger, address unknown; Cy Haynie, an oiler and a fireman whose name was not known.

The three-decked liner, plying between Baltimore and Norfolk, burst into flame after an explosion—of origin not yet determined — about dusk.

Many on shore watched horror-stricken as the fire flared skyward. Rushing to the water's edge they heard the screams of the passengers who pleaded for small boats nearby to rescue them.

Grounds Ship 500 Yards Out

The pilot turned the nose of the vessel toward shore, running it aground in 13 feet of water about 500 yards off Bodkin Point. Passengers, girded with life preservers, began jumping off.

The roaring flames and a bright moon illuminated the scene for miles. Fishing craft and pleasure boats put out to the liner from many points along the shore.

"I was locking my door when the first alarm rang. I ran on deck and saw fire in the staterooms. In about five minues the whole boat was on fire."

In Washington, President Roosevelt ordered naval planes to fly over the area with the coming of dawn to search for survivors.

The City of Baltimore was built in 1911 and had a length of 297.5 feet. It was of 2,379 gross tons and with the City of Norfolk, a sister ship, plied between Baltimore and Norfolk carrying passengers and cargo.

FORCE WAY THROUGH.

Considerable Shoving Around But No Blows Struck in Melee.

Serious strike violence again threatened today as Dominion Woollens strikers, in an ugly and determined mood as a result of yesterday's breakdown in negotiations, massed at the Bonner-Worth mill. Eleven police, armed with tear gas and threatening with batons, forced a way into the plant for the twenty male workers and several women who have remained at work during the strike, at noon.

No injuries were reported but a pitched battle between the police and the crowds seemed unavoidable at times during the half hour interval. The noon occurrence was a repetition on a larger scale of a similar demonstration staged by pickets when the plant opened at 7 o'clock in the morning. Pickets massed in obedience to an order by strike leaders for constant mass picketing of the mill starting today.

Three police were in attendance as the hour for the morning opening approached. They had been tipped off that pickets were gathering in unusual numbers and that the object of the mass picket would be to bar the score of non-strikers from entering.

Form Solid Line

As the workers on foot approached, strikers clustered around them and shouted "scabs!" A solid line, mostly girls, formed on the sidewalk at the main gate and at the eastern entrance to bar the men from the plant. Fist fights threatened between the strikers and non-strikers as pickets supplemented their derisive yells with some rough jostling. Police did not interfere during the morning incident. The greater portion of the non-strikers who presented themselves in the morning got through the line but cars were turned back by human barricades which formed in front of their bumpers. One car, driven by a plant foreman, was allowed through when the foreman promised the strikers he would not operate any machine.

A large number of pickets remained throughout the morning on McDonnel street outside the plant. As the noon hour arrived, the picket lines swelled rapidly. Sensing a spectacle, more than 200 spectators assembled in the background to watch proceedings.

Shouting and singing their strike songs, a hundred Bonner-Worth girls joined hands and marched in an endless chain up and down the sidewalk outside the administration building. A strong group of male pickets had been detailed to the east entrance of the mill. Non-strikers gathered down the street and made their approach in a body. Police struggled for several minutes and threatened many with clubbing before the picket barricade was broken.

Blockade Cars

Blockade of the workers' cars at the noon hour incident was carried out almost solely by girls. Despite police orders to stand back, the girls massed densely against the bumpers of the cars as their drivers attempted to advance them over the sidewalk. Drivers were forced to stop the vehicles, fearing strikers would be crushed. As each of several cars withdrew after their unsuccessful attempts at entrance, wild shouts arose from the mob.

Joseph Ronco, a Bonner-Worth striker, complained to police that his

FEAR 23 KILLED AS 2 SUBS SHELL SPANISH VESSEL

Captain and 10 Crew Reach Shore Leaving Freighter Aflame Off France.

RAIDERS UNIDENTIFIED.

NIMEE, France, July 30 (A.P.)— Fear was expressed to-day that 23 officers and men had perished as a result of the shelling of the Spanish freighter Andutz-Mendi by an unidentified submarine.

The captain, Obdulio Castel, and 10 of his crew reached shore in a small boat early to-day, but there was no trace of any others of the 34 who constituted the ship's personnel. The Andutz-Mendie was still aflame from the gunfire.

The skipper said the ship carried no refugees. Previously it had been reported she was transporting a load of refugees from Valencia to Marseille, France.

The master of the freighter reported two submarines took part in the attack yesterday in French waters off Le Grau du Roi, France.

"When they suddenly appeared at the surface I thought they were French," Captain Castel related.

"Therefore, I was not alarmed. We soon found ourselves with a submarine on each side. One only 30 yards distant machine gunned us as well as firing a heavy gun.

"The first shots disabled our radio. Machine gun bullets swept the deck. We took refuge in the engine room. The firing kept up about 20 minutes. Then the submarines disappeared."

The captain said the Andutz-Mendi was en route across the Mediterranean to Marseille to take on a load of coal. Her home port is Bilbao.

4th Dry July 29th In 63 Years Costs Record Keeper His Shirt

Doesn't Feel So Badly Because He Has Already Won Dozen Hats on Wet Days.

FIRST LOSS SINCE 1930.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 30 (AP) —Byron Daily lost his shirt today because it failed to rain yesterday in this southwestern Pennsylvania town for the fourth time in 63 years.

Daily, who has collected more than a dozen hats wagering on the traditional July 29th downpour, paid off to credulous Lew Rapport, a merchant, whose wardrobe needed a shirt more than a hat.

Loyal members of the "July 29th Club" put their faith in the weatherman's cheerful prediction of "showers late today" and refused to concede defeat until midnight.

They were outguessed decisively. There wasn't a drop of rain. In fact there wasn't a good-sized cloud and the sun shone brightly.

Records of the July 29th rainfall were started by a man whose name has been forgotten. At his death, "Ab" Allison took over the club's log book and kept it until he died a decade ago.

Since then, the task has been Daily's. It was the first time since 1930 that he had lost the standing bet and he commented today that he "could stand it."

Hens Adopt Kittens Latter Are Satisfied

GERMANY BLAMES RUSSIA FOR WAR

Ribbentrop Declines to Discuss British Plans Further After Moscow Action.

LONDON, July 30.(AP).—Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German Ambassador, accused Soviet Russia to-day of wrecking Great Britain's newest plans for European non-intervention in the Spanish civil war.

He declared Germany could not enter further discussions on the plan because Russia had flatly rejected granting of belligerent rights to the Spanish insurgent cause.

"We Germans have known for a long time that but for Russia there would be no Spanish civil war to-day," the Reich envoy said.

FOUR NARROWLY ESCAPE DROWNING

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, July 30.—Four Hamilton men narrowly escaped drowning at Eagle Lake this week when the boat from which they were fishing overturned due to the high wind which made the surface of the water very rough. The quartet, who are employees of the Clear Milk Company, were A. Jones, William Greenwell, William and James Parnall. Their cries for help were heard by nearby fishermen and a rescue quickly followed. George and William Webb of the same city, and Alex Urbach of Coe Hill, being quickly on the scene.

Fishing tackle to the amount of about $60 was lost, but the experience has not discouraged them, as they hope to return next year, for Eagle Lake is an ideal fishing ground.

Senator Is Uneasy Over Scrap Export

WASHINGTON, July 30 (A.P.)—Senator Bridge (R.-N.H.) said yesterday that the "continuous tremendous exports" of scrap iron and steel from the United States were "an encouragement to war."

Testifying before a United States Senate Military Sub-Committee on proposals to restrict shipments abroad, he said the nations with the greatest armament programs were the largest buyers.

Bridges, Senator Schwellenback (D-Wash.), and representatives of metal producers contended also that the exports threatened a shortage in the United States with resultant mounting prices.

Schwellenbach has introduced a Bill to set up an export licensing system like that applied to tin in 1935. Bridges has asked for a Congressional investigation of the exports.

BELFAST OUTRAGE ANGERS THE PRESS

Wonder Why It Was Necessary For the King to Visit Ireland.

LONDON, July 30 (CP)—Indignation was expressed in the press yesterday at political terrorism in Ireland that coincided with the visit of the King and Queen to Belfast yesterday.

The Daily Mirror asked "why it was thought necessary for the King and Queen to go to Belfast?"

Belfast police carried on an exhaustive inquiry into the explosion of a land mine which exploded near the route of the royal procession but had made no arrests.

It was thought the terrorists had tried to damage the city's main power and light plant, which was nearby.

Cauldron of Hatreds.

The Daily Mirror referred to Belfast's "cauldron of religious or fanatical hatreds," and asked:

"What next? A trip to the borders of Abyssinia? A call on Mr. Ghandi? A visit to Peiping?"

The Morning Post remarked "the civilized world by now is too familiar with the noxious character of Irish gangster politics to feel anything but disgust for their latest manifestation," adding:

"We have not yet noticed any message of regret from Mr. De Valera (Eamon de Valera, President of the Irish Free Statt) that these Republican outrages should have coincided with the King's visit to Belfast."

"On the face of it," said The Daily Herald, "nothing could be more senseless than the series of outreges by which Extremist Republicans have chosen to celebrate the King's visit to Northern Ireland."

Miss McGee thanked all her friends in a very pleasing manner, after which a delicious lunch was served.

Western Wheat Harvest Starts

Though some areas in the Canadian and American grain belts will have no crop this year after attack by drought, soil drifting and grasshoppers, in many sections abundant rains have left excellent stands of wheat and other grains and harvesting has already started. Here is a typical western scene as the wheat harvest gets under way. Southern Saskatchewan has seen little of this for many years.

TRINDAD RIOTS BLAMED ON REDS

Duke of Montrose Denies Wages and Living Costs Main Factors.

LONDON, July 30.—(CP Cable)—The Duke of Montrose, speaking in the House of Lords, held subversive propaganda by Communists responsible for labor troubles in the oil fields of Trinidad.

The trouble has been attributed to wages and living costs. "It has nothing to do with these factors" the Duke said. "It is purely the result of propaganda by recognized Communists. Communists have been touring the islands, stirring up racial conflict and urging the natives to grab all the wealth."

The Duke declared it was ridiculous to leave Trinidad, the largest supplier of oil in the British Empire, in charge of a small civilian force. He suggested the West Indian regiment should be resuscitated and that the new harbor at Port-of-Spain should have a naval vessel permanently stationed there in addition to a fleet air army for use in guarding the islands.

Shooting Victim

A Toronto civil servant, Reginald Young (Above) was shot and seriously wounded by a police officer whom he was helping to capture two alleged Toronto automobile thieves. Young inspecting a vacant house, was attracted to the chase when two men crashed their car into his parked machine. Nocking the men making their escape in different directions Young was grappling with one man when the officer fired four shots, one striking him in the side. It is thought the officer mistook the civil servant for one of the alleged thieves.

Moncrief Engaged For Street Dance

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 30—At a meeting of the committee in charge of the music and entertainment for the street dance to be held on Front street in the village on August 11, it was decided to hire Red Moncrief and his Old Time Haymakers for round and square dancing. They also decided to have an old fiddlers contest, and tap and step dancing contests with prizes given to the best in each class. A generous gate prize is to be given to the holder of the lucky ticket.

On the afternoon of August 11, there is to be a field day in the park with several men's softball teams competing. The committee have invited a couple of girls' teams but as yet have received no entrants as the letters were just sent out in the last couple of days.

JAPAN EXPECTING BEST WHEAT CROP

50,000,000 Bushel Goal Set By Ministry in 5-year Plan Almost in Sight.

TOKIO, July 30.—(CP)—Japan will have the greatest wheat crop in her history this year if the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry's forecast of 49,182,000 bushels proves correct. This approximated the "ideal quantity" of 50,000,000 bushels set as objective of the Ministry's five-year plan.

Also, it marks termination of the plan which aimed at increasing Japanese production of wheat to a quantity equivalent to that consumed within the country. Allowance was made for importations from Canada, Australia and elsewhere to provide high-grade wheat for mixing purposes in milling better grades of flour for city consumption and export.

The big crop in prospect is due to ideal weather conditions, with just the right proportions of rain and hot sunshine during the spring and summer so far. The biggest crop previously was 30,950,000 bushels in 1936.

Chile is seeking means to encourage the investment of foreign capital in the country.

SAY FAST RIDES SPEED WEDDINGS

Thrill Machines Help Out Bashful Swains Declares Promoters

PALISADE, N.J., July 31 (CP).—Sex and fear are the thrill ingredients that go into amusement park rides. "We attribute a lot of marriages to the roller coaster," declared Irving Rosenthal, who with his brother Jack, has designed and operated breath-taking speed contraptions for 20 years.

Quoths Irving, with the air of a public benefactor: "When a girl screamed her bashful boy friend put his arm around her. You see? We helped break the ice."

Back of it all, of course, is a basic principle that makes money. The principle is: let the public in on it—people are happy when they find out what makes the wheels go around. So they explain the apparatus.

The Rosenthals were responsible for the roller coaster at Coney Island 17 years ago, the one with the precipitous drop that made strong men pale and women scream. They are proud of the "Cyclone," even at this late date, with newer, speedier projects and a new amusement park venture across the Hudson River from Manhattan.

"Why," says Irving, "Colonel Lindbergh used to come every day and ride on it before he flew to Paris. We even had customers who stayed on for hours. It cost a dollar, too, for a minute and a half. What's next? We're working on a stratosphere flight. We'll shoot the car out of a cannon with compressed air. Oh, boy! You'll see it at the World Fair."

EAGLE NOT HERO HE WAS THOUGHT

Observers Find Uncle Sam's National Bird a Bit Lazy At Times

NEW YORK, July 31 (CP)—The bald eagle, the chosen emblem of the United States, is not the courageous bird of prey that defends its home with its very life that some people believe. A new Smithsonian Institution book, written by Arthur Cleveland Bent of Taunton, Mass., after long study of the eagle, deflates the bald eagle. In real life the bald eagle is a bird of prey, although not too fond of hard work involved in preying. It lives mostly on dead fish and small animals it can easily overcome in combat. It does not build its home on a clifftop nearly as often as it does on top of a tall tree. Some of them have been known to build their nests a ground level, says Mr. Bent, and when a human intrudes, the bald eagle just "plain vacates."

WINS SUIT OVER GLASS IN MILK

London Court Awards Woman $350 in Unusual Action.

LONDON, July 30. — (CP). — A woman whose mouth was cut by glass splinteres in milk has been awarded $350 with costs in the King's Bench Division here. Mrs. Phyllis Peggy Collins, 36, testified she poured milk from a bottle over some cereal. While eating she felt a sharp stab in the roof of her mouth and another in her throat. She found two pieces of glass in her mouth, which began to bleed.

The dairy, defendant in the case, had treated her well and suggested she should take a week-end holiday at its expense. She had not been in good health for some time before the occurrence and her nervous condition became worse.

In rendering judgment, the court said it was not disputed there had been a breach of implied warranty. No attempt had been made by the defendants to explain the presence of the broken glass. The plaintiff was therefore entitled to recover for breach of warranty and negligence. If she had been a normal and healthy woman not much harm would have been caused but she was already in a nervous state and was awaiting operative treatment. Happening to a woman in her condition the accident had a very disturbing affect on her and there could be no doubt it aggrevated her nervous state.

Taking a leaf from the tactical book of Soviet Russia, France is trying out the method of aerial-ground warfare which has been brought to a fine art in the U.S.S.R. This consists of flying squads of machine gunners and riflemen over enemy lines and dropping them to take the foe in the rear. In (Lower) photograph you see a few of the gunners all ready to go aloft. In the (Upper) you see them after bailing out from their aeroplanes drifting slowly to earth, at Villacoublay, France. Berries With Raw Porcupine Save Woodcutter Lost 5 Days

PLANES IN SEARCH.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., July 30.—(CP).—Emile St. Pierre, 40, told fellow timber workers yesterday of his experiences resulting from five days wandering in bushlands, 40 miles east of Port Arthur.

A final drive Monday by searchers in which airplanes were used resulted in St. Pierre's return to civilization. He became lost when he wandered into unfamiliar woods near the camp where he was working and lost his bearings. St. Pierre explained what it was like to be lost in swampy bushland. He stumbled out to a road near Dorion, Ont., 40 miles west of Port Arthur and made his way to a farm home where he rested.

His ears and neck were swollen from fly bites and lacerate forearms and scratches were evidence of punishing progress he had made in unfamiliar woods.

"I guess I walked a hundred miles," he said, his voice only a whisper as a result of exposure. "I walked every day almost 20 miles."

"Abandoned cabins were my only shelter and berries were the principal part of my food. Once I was able to kill a porcupine with a stick, skinned it with a nail, and secured the only substantial food in five days and five nights," he said.

HAY, FALL GRAIN YIELDS ARE HEAVY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, July 30.—Heavy yields of hay and fall grain will mark the 1937 harvest in Frontenac, Lennox and Addington Counties, according to statistics just released by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Wheat is in the process of harvest, but rain is needed in some parts of the southern portion of Ontario. Tomatoes are a bumper crop, but need rain in some parts. Early grains are showing a good yield, with pastures holding up well.

Art Ables, Dover, Ohio, who is camping at one of Albert Maynes' cottages, was successful in landing a 22-pound 'lunge at the east end of Stoco Lake on Thursday morning. The big fellow took hold as Mr. Ables was trolling around the bay near the Kanata Beach camps, and it required half an hour to land him. This is the second large 'lunge taken from the lake this year, Russell White of Akron, Ohio, having captured one of 24 pounds two weeks ago. It required half an hour for Mr. Ables to successfully land his catch.

At the Police Court held on Thursday in the Township Hall, before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, Edward Comerford of the Township of Hungerford, who was arrested by Constable Clair Hayes on Sunday morning last and faced a charge of reckless driving, appeared. Comerford, who resides east of Bogart, was only recently released from jail after having served a term for chicken thefts. Two intoxicants also faced the cadi.

William Masterson of the Township of Hungerford, was accused of criminal negligence as the aftermath of an accident on Sunday evening last.

Young Russell McCoin received rather serious facial injuries when he was accidentally struck by the bumper of a truck operated by Joe Dion, of the Township of Elzevir. The youngster, it is understood, was hurled some distance. He ran directly in the path of the vehicle, according to the bystanders, on the east side of the bridge, and the driver had no chance whatever to avoid the accident. He was picked up and taken into his home, where a physician dressed the wounds.

William Montgomery narrowly escaped being severely crushed at the Routley Construction Quarry at Harold. Mr. Montgomery was loading stone on the trucks when in some manner the truck backed up pinning him against the stone pile. Both hips and his right arm are badly bruised and several of the hip ligaments are strained.

Hastings County is holding a leading place among the other counties of the Province for the number of marriages during the year, it is revealed in the annual report of the Registrar-General of Ontario. While the provincial rate is recorded at 7.5 marriages for every 1,000 persons, Hastings County figures show the average to be 8.5. The town of Trenton average is given at 7.1, with Belleville leading with 11.7 per cent

INVALID WALKS AGAIN

TORONTO, July 30 (CP)—Today was a red-letter day for 17-year-old Maxine Kohlmetz, Hamilton, who nine months ago was to remain a helpless invalid. Ten days ago she was brought to Toronto and after treatment by a manipulative surgeon considerable improvement was noticed. Today, she walked.

There Are 400,000,000 Chinese

It is a favorite saying that Japan will never be able to conquer China and keep it in subjection. The Chinese themselves are not a war-loving people; they desire no addition to their already vast territory. Their belief is that there are so many more of their own folk than there are of existing Japs that eventually the Chinese nation will just fold over the invaders and take them in. It has been like that for many years.

One writer says the present drive of Japan against China is like a shark attacking an old whale. In the last 42 years Japan has made five drives and on each occasion has taken a large piece off China, then consolidated its position before preparing for the next attack.

The writer in question likens the size of the territory taken on each occasion to sections of United States. This way:

In 1910 there came the annexation of Korea, which is more extensive than Minnesota.

In 1931 invaded and occupied Manchuria, which is vaster than Texas and New Mexico combined.

The next land-grabbing expedition was in 1932 when Japan nipped off Jehol, adjacent to Manchuria to form the puppet empire of Manchukuo.

In 1935 Japan forced Nanking (Central Chinese government) to give up sovereignty over an erea including Hopei and Chahar provinces—creating a buffer state larger than Montana. Hopei contains Peiping (Peking) age-old imperial capital.

Chinese reckon history in terms of centuries, and they cling to the belief that there are 400,000,000 living in their country, and for that reason if none other it will not be possible for any foreign power to conquer or rule China. Japan is right now pounding away with the plain purpose of taking possession of another slice of the Chinese empire. And Japan will get what her soldiers are after because the Chinese are not well enough equipped or organized to drive them back and because the rest of the world is so busy with its own troubles that no nation is in a mood or position to interfere.

They're Welcome Visitors

There was a news item in the paper the other day that was doubly significant. In the first place it said that there were fewer cruisers coming through Peterborough this summer and then it added that the majority of those which had arrived were repeaters making the trip for the second and in some cases for the fourth and fifth time. The two taken together are important. The first indicates that there is need of advertising the charm of the Trent waterway as a cruising ground for pleasure craft and the second proves that the delights of a trip through the canal from the Bay of Quinte to Georgian Bay are considered by those who have tried them as well worth advertising. Some years ago it was found advisable to advertise the Trent waterway intensively at the New York motor boat show where a class of tourist not otherwise easily reached could be dealt with and good results followed the publicity obtained in this way. It might be worth while falling back upon the same plan again for the cruiser class of tourist is a visitor certain of a warm welcome, both for his own sake because he is almost invariably a good fellow and because as a method of putting money into circulation he is decidedly effective. He requires plenty of supplies for his guests and for his boat and everywhere his craft ties up the cash registers of the folk who sells things give tangible evidence that a cruiser is in port. We cannot afford to have our list of water-cruising visitors cut down.

Boards with A Career

Strange cases find their way to police court. Small ones too. Instance of that in St. Thomas. Restaurant in that city had a sign board erected out in the country, seven by ten and during the heavy floods of some weeks ago it got washed away.

The police were asked to locate the missing thing, and finally it was found doing service to make a roof for a chicken coop. So the man who is said to have taken the washed-up sign to make a roof for his chickens faces a charge of theft.

And so that bit of boarding, seven by ten feet, will be the matter regarding which a fully constituted court will sit, and over which folk will swear to high heaven to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

And of course the board (or boards) will have nothing to say in the matter, although we have a suspicion any boards would feel they were performing more service and better service by spending their time on top of a chicken house than standing in a field proclaiming the existence and merits of some place of business.

These boards are having quite a historical time during their career. First they stand in a sign; then they are washed away in a flood, then they come to rest on top of a chicken coop, and finally they make their way to court. Romantic is it not, considering that many boards become attached to the side of a barn away from the road, where they can see nothing at all, and have to stay there for perhaps the best part of a century.

The Quest For Funerals

Ontaria Funeral Service Association, meeting in Toronto, had charges placed before it which do not make pleasant reading. Simply this: There are certain mental hospitals where certain funeral directors seem to get all the business, and relatives of individuals who die there are denied opportunity of calling upon the services of the undertaker of their own preference.

W. J. Stewart, ex-mayor of Toronto, charged that when relatives sought to telephone from a hospital to secure the services of the undertaker of their own choice they would be informed there was no answer from the call, and then there would follow a recommendation of some other undertaker.

If this practice is as common as reported it must be that certain undertakers have made arrangements with people in these institutions to turn business in their direction, and the only reason they would do that would be because they were going to receive a commission or some consideration for their interest in the matter. If that is correct then it looks as though the Funeral Service Association should set about applying some degree of discipline to those in their own vocation.

There are undertakers who shudder at the thought of using advertising for a plain presentation of their services to the public, but apparently in Toronto there are those who do not all hesitate to try and have people in these hospitals working for them to secure business which otherwise would go to other undertakers.

The remedy proposed in Toronto is to make use of a printed form signed by the nearest of kin authorizing removal of a body for burial. As a rule these forms, although in existence in most establishments, are not widely used. The securing of the services of an undertaker is generally a plain matter of business conducted with confidence and from personal preference on the part of relatives. If there is something wrong in Toronto or elsewhere with the manner in which such a plan works then there is also something wrong with some of the undertakers who have set up the system which places them on a favored basis.

What Will They Do?

A boy of 15 in Hamilton has succeeded in attaining a degree of newspaper notoriety quite infrequent for folk of his years. It all started when he refused to take physical exercise with the rest of the lads attending school, and the charge was that he was incorrigible. That is, we believe, another way of saying they could do nothing with him. In primary court the boy was placed on indefinite probation and also under the supervision of the Big Brothers' Association.

During one of the court sittings this boy created a bit of a scene, and was considered unruly, so he was placed under observation at the Ontario Mental Hospital in Hamilton. After staying there for a week doctors reported he was quite normal. In all he has had five or six trips to court.

The parents of the boy have secured the services of a lawyer, and it is announced an appeal will be made to a Supreme Court judge for leave to appeal against all former rulings and have the boy declared acquitted of all former charges and arrangements regarding his future.

It will be interesting enough to find what court can do about a boy of that calibre. The only thing against him apparently is that he did not want to take physical training at school and he kicked up a fuss in court. But the boy was not breaking any law when he refused to go through physical exercises at school. There have always been boys in existence who did not want to do what the rest of the class were doing. If they were a trifle stubborn about such matters during their days at school it was generally found that most of that trait was taken out of them after they left school and faced this rather hard old world and tried to make it yield a living to them. Few of them have ever been taken to court about it.

Method Was Primitive

The late Sir Charles Saunders, the scientist who developed Marquis wheat, serves to recall the interesting fact that men who have achieved great and lasting results in their work have often been forced to rely on primitive methods. It is just 30 years since Marquis wheat was known, and in the period prior to that Dr. Saunders was doing his greatest work.

At that time Red Fife was the best hard spring wheat, but the need of the West was for a grain which would ripen earlier to escape the first frosts. Dr. Saunders commenced in 1903 to test the value of the crosses of wheat that had been handed over to him by his father, Dr. William Saunders, head of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa. There was not much known equipment in a labatory then for making the required tests, and Dr. Saunders desired to ascertain the elasticity of the gummy substance in the wheat. The method was to chew the wheat into gum and then see how far it would stretch. He declared at one time that in the winter of 1903-4 he chewed more wheat into gum than all the boys in a dozen rural school sections. He kept careful records, and as a result of this extended hewing process he selected a wheat which he called "Marquis" as having qualities which the others lacked in similar degree.

He created miniature milling and baking sets to make certain he was right. He found he was. In baking, the Marquis wheat would show a production fully fifty per cent. greater than some of the poorer varieties. In 1907 only 23 pounds of it were sent to the government farm at Indian Head—hardly more than one-third of a bushel. And since then production of Marquis wheat can be numbered only in figures which speak of millions and many more millions of bushels. And back of it all was that scientific man who for the lack of a known and better method, merely chewed wheat to find out what he wanted to know.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Government direction of the newsprint industry may come in Ontario and Quebec and that sounds like more civil service jobs.

Farm help is coming to Ontario from the prairie provinces and that is not so much like carrying coals to Newcastle as it might seem at first.

There seems little doubt of the fact that certain features in connection with the Royal visit to Belfast went off with a bang.

The Royal visit to Belfast demonstrated the fact, in spite of terrorist explosions, that the heart of Northern Ireland beats in tune with the rest of the Empire.

The University of California has started a garden that is to contain every known plant. If any poison ivy is wanted this district should be able to furnish the needful.

The United States is coming back into the world wheat market and strangely enough one of Uncle Sam's customers has been Canada which establishes some sort of a record.

Premier Hepburn says that he and Premier Duplessis of Quebec have been working together which throws considerable doubt on the impression some folk have that the Ontario premier finds it difficult to work with any one.

The shooting of a citizen by Toronto police as he was in the act of aiding in the arrest of a fugitive calls for the most searching investigation. There seems to be a growing tendency on the part of officers to use their revolvers when the circumstances do not justify shooting.

The way of the transgressor most certainly is hard and among the latest to testify to that fact will be the convict who, on his release from serving seven years in Portsmouth Penitentiary, was immediately re-arrested for the Detroit police.

COMPETITION

(By A. B. K.)

¶ I had a vacant piece of land, and thought I'd build a hot-dog stand, it was a pleasant place; and folk from cities near and far, who travelled there in truck or car, would halt and feed their face.

¶ I bought some lumber and some nails, enough to well nigh fill two pails, a saw and hammer too; I knew I'd make a tidy sum, and when the building part was done, I'd paint it red and blue.

¶ The buns I used were good and light, the dogs themselves were browned just right, I started off with ease; and as my trade began to grow, with those who travelled to and fro, I added bread and cheese.

¶ Across the road was Cousin Jake, as thin as any human rake, he too had vacant land; I saw him work with planks and plane, he labored in the sun and rain, and built a hot-dog stand.

¶ And Cousin Archie farther down, a good mile closer to the town, created something new; he built a shed beneath a tree, attractive as a spot could be, and he sold hot-dogs too.

¶ My business soon began to lag, and Cousin Archie couldn't brag, and Jake complained to me; there was a little trade for one, where feeding faces could be done—but awful poor for three.

OLD TRICKS

"There are the Smithsons from next door doing their usual 'look-over-the-fence turn!"—Humorist.

About National Anthems.

(From the Brantford Expositor.)

A new stanza for either "God Save the King" or "My Country 'Tis of Thee" was sung on the Canada-U. S. international boundary line the other day by delegates attending the Pan-Pacific Women's Conference in Vancouver. It went like this:

"Two Empires by the sea,
Two nations great and free,
One anthem raise,
One race of ancient fame
One tongue, one faith we claim,
One God, one glorious name
We love and praise."

The addition admirably expresses the closely allied ideals and aspirations of Canada and the United States and embodies a worthy and, indeed, noble sentiment.

But it is not likely to remain a permanent appendage to either anthem. Such international hymns have been composed before, but how many are even remembered? Who recalls, for instance, the poem written by Walter Malone many years ago, which, proclaiming Anglo-American unity of purpose, concluded with the assertion that:

Lords of the land and emperors of the sea,

The failure of these efforts at unified hymnology probably has its explanation in the fact that people do not remember even the "official" anthems. R. M. Harrison, whose sprightly comments enliven the columns of The Windsor Star, remarks that few adult Canadians can repeat, off hand, more than the first verse of "God Save the King," and that, similarly, few of our American cousins are altogether sure of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," after the first few bars.

And he might have lengthened his questionnaire by asking: "Who among us knows all of "O Canada!" in any of its several versions?

One of the most humiliating and distressing features of this Dominion's public life is the unfailing confusion which results whenever a Chairman announces that his audience is to sing "O Canada!" Immediately the assembly swings lustily into the first line and then— babel. One-eighth of the crowd goes on with "Our home and native land" and as much as it remembers of that abominable transcription. Another eighth continues with the meritorious "Our fathers' land of old," and the remaining three-quarters goes "M-m-m-m!" with vociferous "O Canadas" thrown in wherever they seem to fit.

Before we start adding to the collection it might be a good idea to learn the national music we already possess.

Send Speed Fiends to Jail.

Persuasion and Education Have Failed to Cure Them.

(From the Montreal Star.)

IT is a sorry commentary upon our vaunted civilization that the death toll on our highways goes up steadily, despite every effort to convince those who indulge in unreasonably fast driving that they constitute a ghastly menace to the general public. So serious has the situation become, not only here but all over the continent, that the grim term of "mass murder" has become an accepted one in discussing it.

It is clear that neither persuasion nor education will ever have the necessary results. The speed fiends, in other words, are not amenable to the ordinary sort of argument, backed up by fine penalty. They go on paying fines—and they go on driving fast and killing people. There is only one way to deal with such persons. When you have an evil that is a sore upon the body politic, you take measures to cut it out. The speed fiend is a cancer on the public highway, and the only way to deal with such a cancer is to cut it out. The cutting process can be achieved by means of jail sentences for speeding, when a reasonable time has elapsed after public notification of such intended procedure.

If a dozen, or two or three or four dozen, of these speed fiends were to be sent to jail for a week they would think, not twice, but a hundred times, after they had come out of jail before they indulged in any reckless speed driving again. And if the law were to provide that on a second offence they should be deprived for the rest of their lives of the right to secure a driving licence, we should soon be a long way on the road to safety for all who have occasion to use our public highways.

It will require courage to take the necessary steps to put such penalties into force. But surely such courage ought to be forthcoming when the lives of hundreds, if not thousands, of citizens are at stake? The speed fiend has absolutely no regard for human life. He is drunk with a sense of power and often drunk with over-absorption of alcohol. He has under his hand, obedient to his immediate slight movement, a powerful engine that may in a moment be the means of scattering death over the highway and ruining an entire family. He is entitled to no more consideration than a common malefactor, and he should receive none.

A jail cell for the speed fiend and a long prison term for the kill-and-run speed driver may sound severe, but the evil is such as calls for the most drastic remedy. The authorities have it in their own hands. If they fail to apply it, then the public will have the right to demand some explanation why their lives are to be continued in jeopardy because of supineness on the part of those who possess the power to ensure safety.

War On the Insect Foes.

Farmers In Last Ditch Battle With Hoppers.

(From the New York Sun.)

VIOLENT and unending is the war of insects upon man, desperate his efforts to combat them. Nebraska farmers are now engaged in a "last ditch" fight against a visitation of grasshoppers described by O. S. Bare, entomologist of Nebraska Agricultural College, as the worst Statewide infestation in the nation. The next ten days to two weeks, he added, will be the most critical period of the battle. If the insects win, the farmers' hope of producing a bumper corn crop will be dashed and heavy deposits of new insect eggs next fall will constitute a future menace. The University of Iowa announced in April that its research workers had discovered a parasite which will break up grasshopper scourges. It is a germ which infests the Malpighian tubes of the hopper and kills it within two weeks. But whether the parasite will combat grasshoppers as successfully in the open as in the laboratory has yet to be determined. In the meantime, poison is being tried on the pests. Most of Nebraska's allotted 462 carloads of poison hopper, bait has been distributed. Many farmers are buying poison from private dealers at cost. Others are using home-made devices attached to the fronts of cars, trucks and tractors which are driven over the fields in an effort to smother the hoppers in pans of kerosene or crude oil.

Sometimes the human race unwittingly gives aid and comfort to the enemy by upsetting the balance of nature. Dr. L. O. Howard, author of "The Insect Menace," believes that better results might be attained in this country by enlisting a larger army of entomologists; yet the United States is ahead of other countries in this. Occasionally embattled man wins a decisive victory. In 1932, for example, the New Jersey State Department of Agriculture announced that as the result of a ten-year campaign the gypsy moth had been eliminated from its jurisdiction. However, the European corn borer and the Japanese beetle continue their ravages, and in their place when they are overcome equally dangerous pests may be expected.

ASKS SUPPORT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Could you spare me a bit of your valuable space. To ask a few questions regarding this textile strike which has been going on for five weeks now. Out of our Mayor and Council men which were elected in the interests of the people, only G. N. Gorden has rallied in support of the strikers. This strike concerns everyone living in this city. It depends on their first step towards organizing the workers how the rest of the city is going to be organized. After all the workers are just asking for a decent standard of living. The wages paid at the two textile mills —a person is just as well off on relief. Are the influential citizens of Peterborough going to stand by and see all these strikers who have had courage enough to stand up for their rights go back to this slavery. And work for the rest of their lives so that a few of the task masters can live a life of ease? If all the citizens rally behind the strikers the strike will be won. A word in closing —more power to those girls who are holding together so well. I have more admiration for them than for those who continue to work.

THE VALUE OF TREES

(Belleville Intelligencer)

THE most important factor in improving forest conditions in any community is the private individual. He must have a realization that the presence of trees in any form is beneficial to his property. This can be demonstrated in town and country alike by the planting of individual trees around buildings, on the lawn, a country lane and on the roadside. For the protection of farm property windbreaks of evergreen species such as spruce, pine or cedar, may be planted. Such windbreaks will have a beneficial effect on crops, particularly fall wheat, and will give a splendid protection in the winter to farm buildings, and in this way lessen the amount of fuel used. If the farm property has no woodlot it would be of advantage, in addition to planting windbreaks, to set out a few acres of trees particularly on areas of the farm which are not well suited to agriculture such as steep hillsides, rockey areas or sections of the property cut off by streams, railroads or highways.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Export trade in Canadian wheat estimated between 500,000 and 1,000,000 bushels gave wheat futures a strong appearance on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Final prices were 1⅝ to ¾ cent higher, July at $1.40⅛, October $1.32⅛ to $1.33 and December $1.29⅝.

Moderate seaboard demand accounted for most of the support in the dull session. Observers stated only 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were purchased in the pit to-day while New York interests reported 1,000,000 bushels worked overnight, mostly to the United Kingdom.

Wheat futures started erratically with prices easing in opening trades due to selling by outside firms, but rallied in the first hour to show gains of two cents for July and about a cent for October and December wheat futures.

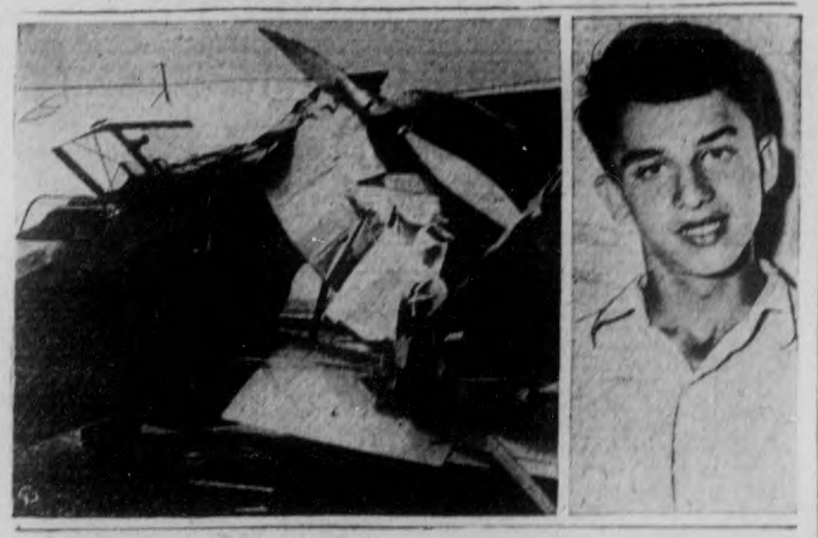
Youth Wrecks Two Planes Worth $70,000



Julius Balmut, 16-year-old Cleveland youth, was working on an invention to improve flying and wanted to discuss it with Washington officials; so, he took an army biplane from an Ohio National Guard hangar at the Cleveland Municipal airport and cracked up trying to take-off. He escaped injury but wrecked the ship he was in and another machine which he ran into. Both aeroplanes were worth $35,000 each. Balmut, held by juvenile detention authorities, is pictured at the Right, while at the Left, are the two aeroplanes he wrecked in his "take-off."

AIR FLEET CONTROL GIVEN ADMIRALTY

Naval Force Had Previously Been Under Dual Authority, Causing Friction.

LONDON, July 30—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today the fleet air arm—Great Britain's naval air force—henceforth will be under the "administrative control of the admiralty."

Heretofore planes attached to the fleet have been under dual control. When at sea they have been subject to the orders of the naval authorities. On land and in training establishments the air ministry has exercised jurisdiction.

Anomalous position of the fleet air arm for long has been the subject of controversy, and partisans of the Navy have waged a strenuous campaign to obtain full control for the Admiralty.

The Prime Minister declared the decision did not reflect on the present condition of the fleet air arm but had been reached because the government believed the lines laid down in the announcement would be the most satisfactory arrangement for the future.

Replying to a question by Captain Harold Balfour, Conservative, as to whether the transfer entailed introduction of a dual system of training and supplies, Chamberlain said that matter would be worked out between the Admiralty and the air ministry.

Clement Attlee, Labor leader, protested the announcement on the day of the adjournment of the House. Parliament's rising, he declared, would prevent a full discussion of the change. He also asked the Prime Minister to use his influence to prevent the controversy being continued between the two departments.

BEER COMPULSORY

MELBOURNE—(CP).—Chief Justice Sir John Latham remarked in High Court: "It is remarkable there is no provision to compel authorities to supply water, but there is a provision in the Licensing Act compelling the supply of beer."

NEAR RIOT AFTER ATTEMPTS TO STOP WORKERS ENTERING

foot was run over by a car which Bill Morley, a night foreman, attempted to drive through the lines into the plant. Ronco said he was not hurt.

Police were in charge of Inspector James Reid. The squad represented almost the entire day shift of the city police force and included Provincial Traffic Officer Pete Grant.

General Picture Unchanged

With no further word of negotiations, the general strike picture was unchanged from yesterday. Louis Fine, Department of Labor's chief conciliator, who presided at the bargaining sessions, returned to Toronto. He was followed yesterday afternoon by J. L. Cohen, legal adviser to the strike bargaining committee. Cohen had stated he would communicate immediately the decision of strikers to turn down the company proposal, voiced at a general meeting Thursday morning, to Conciliator Fine.

Strike leaders were to-day unable to predict what the next move is likely to be. The move may come from Mr. Fine or from the company but strikers have no intention of yielding, Organizer Alex Welch declared. Leaders agreed that negotiations have now lapsed.

Reply From Young

Alderman G. N. Gordon revealed this morning he had received a reply to his wire in which he asked E. J. Young chairman of the Industry and Labor Board, to speed the organization of machinery for enforcement of the minimum wage regulations of the new act in Peterborough. The communication to Mr. Gordon from Chairman Young follows:

"Replying to your wire of July 27 the Industry and Labor Board has not yet issued any orders in regard to minimum wages, but hopes to be able to do so in the near future."

Mr. Gordon wired the following reply:

"Letter received. When do you expect minimum wage for male textile workers to be fixed? Please wire answer."

Strike leaders said at noon to-day they had not yet received a reply to their suggestion to the Industry and Labor Board regarding arbitration of the strike dispute.

G. N. Gordon announced the citizens' committee which he promised strike leaders yesterday is already being organized.

Five independent citizens are to act with five employees of the Auburn and Bonner-Worth on the committee, he said. The committee will pass on vouchers for food now coming in from city stores and three trustees for handling of funds will be named, he stated. He emphasized that money handled by the committee will be devoted solely to the purchase of relief provisions, which in turn will be given only to the Auburn and Bonner-Worth families in actual need.

"I would like it plainly understood this citizens' committee is not tied up with the C.I.O. in any way," Alderman Gordon stated. "I told the men that if there was to be any C.I.O. interference I would have nothing to do with it. The object of the committee is simply to help employees of the Bonner-Worth and Auburn plants, whether they are strikers, non-strikers, union or non-union."

BRITAIN SEEKING MORE, BETTER MILK

Price Insurance Plan Will Safeguard Against Cut In Butter, Cheese Returns.

LONDON, July 30—(CP)— The government is moving for more and better milk. A permanent Milk Commission is to be established the primary duties of which will be concerned with improvement in milk distribution and with conciliation and arbitration between the Milk Marketing Boards and milk buyers.

A price insurance plan, to which state assistance will be given, will safeguard the industry against any serious fall in the price of butter and cheese. Government contributions will be given to foster the production of quality milk.

The Milk Marketing Boards will be relieved from all $150,000 (746,715) of a contingent liability to repay certain exchequer advances made to supplement the price of milk used in manufacture. This liability by Sept. 30, 1940, has been estimated at £3,400,000.

The government is to make proposals to enable the municipal authorities to secure cheaper milk so to permit municipalities to extend schemes for granting free or cheap milk to expectant or nursing mothers and children under school age.

B.C. CATTLE BUYERS RAISE A PROTEST

Claim Ottawa Not Paying Half Fare to Drought Areas as For Easterners.

VICTORIA, July 30 (CP).—Hon. K. C. MacDonald, British Columbia Minister of Agriculture, yesterday sent a protest to Ottawa against alleged unfair treatment of B.C. farmers under the Federal Government's arrangement for paying one-way passenger fare for farmers east of the Manitoba border or their agents, who visit prescribed drought areas in Western Canada to select cattle for feeding in the East.

Mr. MacDonald said the complaint was based on the fact Dominion authorities had not undertaken to provide for cattle buyers who bought for British Columbia as they had for buyers who purchased animals for shipment to Eastern Canada.

Last year, the Minister said, the Federal Government helped pay transportation cost of shipping cattle both East and West.

Mr. MacDonald said "bona fide purchasers in this province say they are prepared to import 1,000 head of cattle from the drought areas" if the Dominion Government grants them equal privileges with Eastern buyers.

The Federal Government last year rebated 50 per cent. of the cost of freight on cattle and are doing the same this year, he said, but only Eastern buyers enjoy the rebate on their own transportation, meals and berths.

TOURIST INCOME TO BEAT FARM'S

Revenue From Visiting Trade Will Exceed Agricultural Income

REGINA, July 29 (CP)—Although drought has ruined crop prospects in some sections of Saskatchewan, tourist revenue will not be decreased by protracted dry spells, according to L. J. Longpre, of the provincial Motor Club.

Instead, tourist camps are looking forward to a larger influx of American visitors than in 1936, and the income is expected to exceed that gained from farming by five times.

With trailers coming into Regina camps at the rate of about five a day early in the season, owners are busy all over the province adding new equipment and fixtures to ensure not missing their share of the "travelling gold," a survey showed.

Dance At Chemong 20th Century Liberal Club

The new Coronation Pavilion at Chemong opened with a bang on Wednesday evening, when approximately six hundred and fifty young people attended the enjoyable dance held under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association. Two orchestras, Atkinson's and Black's were in attendance to supply music for modern and old-time dancing.

Previous to the dance, a picnic supper was enjoyed by about twenty-five at the summer home of J. J. Duffus, M.P., with tea, coffee, and ice-cream supplied by the host and hostess.

This was the first of a series of dances which the association plans to hold throughout the district, with the annual "At Home" taking place at Duffus Academy on September 28. Georgian Tea Customs Returned travellers from Japan who have been entertained in homes all come bac kimmensely impressed by the tea ceremony. Training in the exacting etiquette prescribed by the Shoguns is an important part of the sacred rite performed by the Zen monks before the image of Daruma. To-day it is purely social and known as Cha-no-ya.

Perhaps not so graceful as the Japanese ceremony, English tea-drinking in the early eighteenth century nevertheless had its own rigid customs.

For instance, when a member of the gathering of ladies drinking tea had had enough she could indicate the fact in one of three ways. The most delicate perhaps was by laying her spoon gently across the top of the cup. If she felt coquettish she would tap her cup with the teaspoon — this was an indication that she would like one of the gentlemen to remove her cup. Equally de rigeur, and most emphatic of all was the signal made by turning the teacup upside down in the saucer.

LOVELY GARMENTS FOR MIDSUMMER IN LACE AND NET

Trend Toward Richness and Glamor Seen for Autumn and Winter Also Expressed in Warm Weather Wear

By Lisbeth

Richness and glamor is "in the bag" for the coming season, according to designers. Rich embroideries, appliques, glittering bead trimmings and complicated effects are in the cards for the autumn and winter, they declare.

Unusual combinations of materials are already being used, such as Paquin's use of black velvet and white organdie. That is an idea that may be very useful to some of us who must make two old dresses possibly do the work of one new one. Maybe we can combine the materials and produce something very smart and new looking. At least it is worth looking into.

And for the remainder of the summer season there are a number of lovely things that give the impression of luxury, and are charming in color combination of fabrics and line. Take, for instance, the tea gown shown here at the left. It is designed by Helene Yrande, and is made of beautifully patterned white lace. Trimming it is a trailing sash of chiffon in pale orange and yellow. The very feminine tea gown type of negligee promises to be as important in the wardrobe for the coming fall as the tailored house coat has been all summer.

Lovely for Bride

This would be a lovely thing to put into the trousseau of the autumn bride. Tea gowns were once considered an essential part of every "lady's" wardrobe. In these graceful, trailing gowns she poured tea in her home in the afternoon, and every little girl longed to grow up and own one of the lovely things.

If you have not provided yourself with a sheer evening wrap this summer, it is not too late, and there will be many occasions on which you can wear one. For going to and from the country club or to a cool roof for dancing, a summer wrap must be effective and glamorous rather than a practical covering for warmth. The floor cape of sheer black net, shown right, is extremely effective over an evening dress of contrasting color, as in this case, worn over a print of black and pink on a white ground.

The cape ties high at the neck and has three deep flounces of the net from the hips to the floor. And don't forget a fresh flower for your hair with this costume.

Shoulders, it seems, are not quite so prominently in the style picture this autumn as they have been in the past winter, spring and summer. Some designers still emphasize them decidedly, but, on the whole there is less shoulder width than formerly although sleeves are squared at top.

Young—Dow

TRENT RIVER, July 29.—A pretty wedding took place Saturday, July 24th, at St. Paul's Anglican church, Bloor street, Toronto, when Grace Dow, daughter of Mr. Alexander Dow and the late Mrs. Dow of Glasgow, Scotland, became the bride of Richard Young of Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Young of London, England. Rev. Professor Isherwood, of Wycliffe College, performing the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. W. Clark, of Toronto, wore white satin with a veil and coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of tea roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Isa Dow, sister of the bride, was dressed in light blue chiffon with navy blue accessories, also Miss May Young, Reg. N., of Cleveland, Ohio, wore peach chiffon and blue accessories. Both bridesmaids carried bouquets of roses. Little Miss Pauline Poulter, niece of the groom, as flower girl, was daintily dressed in white figured silk and carried a posy of summer flowers.

The groom was supported by George Poulter of Toronto. After the ceremony a wedding lunch was given by the bride's sister, Miss Isa Dow, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clark of 271 Bleeker street, Toronto, to sixty guests.

The happy couple left by motor for a honeymoon trip to the groom's summer home, 'Jubilee Cottage,' Trent River, afterwards to New York City, the bride travelling in a dress of brown and white with white accessories and coat of green ran material. OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The whisperer is more to be dreaded than an open slanderer, for he endeavours to accomplish his malicious purposes secretly, and his victim has no chance of frustrating them." Dr. Davies.

Dear Friends:

I have noticed a tendency among some people to whisper when they are talking. Now there are certain things which should be spoken only amongst women, or amongst men, but I have a distrust of those who whisper about trivial things, because it seems to denote they are in the habit of doing it too much.

And what is there in the world more detestable than a whisperer? I have even heard of those who go around making a profession of it, getting paid to say something bad about another's product or personal life, in places where they can be overheard.

But there are many who get no other pay than the poor satisfaction of blackening someone else's character, and they are like a snake in the grass, for generally they are friendly to the face of the one they are slandering, and that one has little or no redress.

They generally use the words, "They say" such as "they say" so-and-so beats his wife, or cheats his customers, etc etc. Now human nature seems to like to hear a choice morsel about their neighbors, but it is a wise plan to wonder what that one will be saying about you to the next fellow, before you believe them.

Because, rest assured, those who get so much pleasure whispering to you about others, are bound to get as much pleasure whispering to others about you. And it is a wise plan to pin these people down to facts, and to ask proof, and even then disbelieve what they tell you.

Even amongst relatives this whispering goes on. Why haven't people the courage to come right out and air a greivance if they have one, instead of talking behind another's back, and binding the listener to secrecy?

And what is generally the basis, when a person acts like that? It is jealousy pure and simple. They resent the fact another is getting on better, or liked more, or has a better home, and the sense of inferiority makes them want to pull the other down in people's estimation.

Now, personally I have never known of myself being whispered about but it may have been done unknown to me. However, if someone told me another had been doing it and tried to bind me to secrecy, I would not agree, and if the thing talked about was worthy of my attention I would have it out with the one involved. Otherwise I would not bother.

You see, when you do bother too much, you give these people the very thing they are craving for, a sense of importance, and when you take no notice you leave them hanging out on a limb, so that they seldom know where they are, and are more apt to keep their mouth shut, for they see it does them no good.

Where there is real slander, the fear of the law should be put in them, so that their tongues are bridled. There is no doubt that some people have their tongues hung in the middle so that it wages at the least provocation, so that intelligent people should consider where a thing comes from, before getting all worked up about it.

And the only way it can be stopped is by those who listen. If you refuse to listen, and refuse to repeat if you do listen, how can it spread? Because after all, no one person can tell hundreds of others, unless the hundreds of others help the thing along, and we all know that as it goes it gathers.

So, if you are a whisperer, watch your step, for one day they will all come back on you, and what a load you will have to carry, and for the rest of us, refuse to listen. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

FIRST FROCKS FOR FALL

Two-Piece is Favorite, Sometimes Plain or Combining a Gay and Sober Material

(By Central Press)

YOUR FIRST Fall dress is quite apt to be a two-piece. As to the materials, the dress may be "all of a piece," as they say, or top and skirt of contrasting material and color. Both are equally good this year.

Two autumn costumes are pictured. They are appropriate for office, college or general wear.

At the left is a black wool skirt combined with a gay plaid blouse which has conspicuous pockets, a leather belt and large odd buttons. Shoulders are still somewhat squared in the new Fall things, you see.

The frock at the right is of black bengaline with tiny gold buttons outlining the front closing and the pockets. It has short sleeves, and both dresses have high necks. This model reminds us that gold trimmings are very smart on black this year, largely replacing the favorite of black and white.

A definite 1900 influence seems to be dominating many of the Fall models. Draped skirts, both for daytime and evening are being shown, and closely fitted bodies and jackets remind one very much of the Gay Nineties, as well as hats trimmed with ostrich feathers.

As a general things, skirts for Fall are slimmer but there still is interest in width, often pleated width and front drapings, as I mentioned before are shown, some bodice draping, too.

Lightweight woollens will be much worn both by mature women and the youngest set. And these woollen dresses are being shown in a multitude of colors, combinations of colors and fabrics. Such colors as light plum, red rust, brown rust, green and gray, are conspicuous in the collections, and such combinations as black and white, green and yellow and strawberry and black, as well as gray and beige tweeds dashed with color.

Many necklines are high, like these two models, or cut down to and made to stand out from the neck, making use of ascots. Dresses of wool with satin tops are another important styling.

Fashion Service

They are a "must have" in every summer wardrobe to wear with skirts or over dresses.

Nothing is any smarter or more expensive looking than this snowy white cotton blouse. Wear it to the office, for luncheon or for dinner "dates."

Splashy print cottons are also captivating. Use your own taste about the belt and the square vee collared neck. The model includes both versions.

The diagram chart gives you an idea of how quickly you can cut it out and stitch it. The very low price will be a revelation.

Style No. 3135 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 1⅛ yards of 39-inch material.

STETSON COMPANY OFFERS TO MEET ITS EMPLOYEES

by the employees' representatives, who participate in the negotiations.

"(5)—The company is not trying to prevent the existence of any union which in our employees may become members, that is a personal matter of each individual employee.

The company later added to the proposal another clause which said "No employee who is on strike and is still in good standing on the company's record will, on settlement being reached fail to get his or her employment back because of activity in union organization or as leaders during the strike, but will be taken on as increasing rate of production permits."

The strike was called by United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union, Local 74, after the company rejected its demands for higher wages, a closed shop, better working conditions and union recognition.

HOWE HOPS OFF ON TEST FLIGHT

director of air services in the Transport Department, to wait on land for the storm to blow over.

Storm Mixes Up Reports

The storm broke a few minutes after the ten-passenger Lockheed monoplane had roared away from the airport. Scarcely had she drawn out of sight, with Major J. J. Tudhope at the controls scanning last-second wireless reports telling of clear weather all the way to the next stop at Kapuskasing, Ont., when the lightning flashed down.

"It was wicked," Engineer Lou Parmenter said after they had come back. Radiomen at the airport said they couldn't get the plane's signals. Co-Pilot John Hunter said the lightning had been so steady the plane's powerful wireless couldn't pick up Ottawa's directional beam that was to guide the ship to Kapuskasing.

Once the brisk wind had carried the storm clouds past the airport, though, there was no hitch in the takeoff—the second hop. The huge monoplane, its two motors throbbing in a low roar, lifted effortlessly off the field and swung away into the west just before dawn.

Just before the first take-off, the transport minister outlined his department's plans for the transcontinental service for which today's flight was a test. The Montreal-Vancouver leg, he said, will get down to a commercial basis early next year.

Start This Fall In West

"We'll probably do some business between Winnipeg and the Pacific this fall," he declared. Then the service would be extended as far east as Montreal; then on east to the Maritimes. Meantime, training of personnel and arrangements for airport facilities and weather forecasts will go on.

"We're getting on," Howe said. Then he stepped into the plane, waving his hat to oblige the photographers. The ship moved off the tarmac.

The echo of the plane's double power plant had scarcely left the field eight miles from Montreal than she was back. She was pulled into the hangar while the storm blew over. Then she was trundled out for the second take-off.

"No fooling this time," grinned Symington as he climbed aboard. The transport minister, biting into his ubiquitous pipe, smiled assent. Pilot Tudhope yelled, "All aboard." And the coast-to-coast ship swept off again.

OBITUARY

CYRUS JOHNSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COTTESLOE, July 29. — There passed away at the home of his daughter Mrs. E. McCook, Campbellford, one who had lived out the full span of life in the person of Cyrus Johnson at the ripe old age of eighty-one years.

Born in the township of Haldimand on January the third, eighteen hundred and fifty-six, where he spent his early years and attended the Centreton school. He moved with his parents to the township of Rawdon in 1862.

After a few years he was married to Margaret Ormiston of Asphodel township by the late Dr. Thompson of Hastings.

To this marriage was born one daughter, Marjorie (Mrs. Ernest McCook), who lives to mourn the loss of a very kind and devoted father.

After his marriage, Mr. Johnson spent several years one mile west of Campbellford, later purchasing the Brethen farm east of Norwood, until unable to further carry on his farm operations, he lived at Norwood where he was very closely connected with the Presbyterian Church of which he was a staunch member, also of the Orange and R.B.P. lodges.

After the death of his first wife, Mr. Johnson was married to Mrs. John Thompson, who predeceased him six months ago.

The funeral was held from the home of his daughter, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Campbellford, under the auspices of the Norwood Orange Lodge and R.B.P.

Rev. Mr. Neal, pastor of Campbellford United Church had charge of the services and took for his subject the text, Job 5:26, "Thou shalt come to thy grave in a full age like as a shock of corn cometh in, in his season."

Relatives and friends that attended the funeral were from Belleville, Frankford, Stirling, Castleton, Warkworth, Havelock, Norwood, Cotteslee and Warsaw.

GREAT SUCCESS OF GARDEN PARTY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 30.—The lawn of Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming, just two miles from the village of Hastings, on the Norwood road, presented a gala scene on Wednesday evening, it being the occasion of the annual garden party sponsored by the Elgin Sunday School. The beautiful white-clad tables with their dainty edibles were set on the spacious lawn where a corps of very energetic ladies were at work.

Before the supper hour a friendly game of baseball was played by Elgin and the Donegal teams. Although the high score of 29-4 was piled up in favor of the Elgin team, both players and spectators enjoyed the game.

On account of the wonderful reputation the Elgin settlement have for holding the best garden parties in the district, the gate receipts were kept up to their usual high level and amounted to $68.70.

Following the bounteous supper, Mr. Henry Thistlewaite, superintendent of the Sunday School, capably acted as chairman for the very enjoyable program which opened by an address of welcome, by little Phyllis Oitment, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming. After the chairman's address, the program was as follows:

Solo by Miss Shirley Starke; selection by Fife's orchestra; solo by Harold Stinson; mouth organ selection by Paul and Charles Waters and Albert Thistlewaite, with accompaniment on the piano by Miss Rhetta Lobb; reading, "Dish Washing," by Miss Mary Murphy of Campbellford; mixed quartette, Misses Angeline Scott and Ruby Preston and Messrs. Max and Roy Scott; remarks by Dr. Andrew McGee of Toronto, a former Elgin boy, who was home on a vacation; musical selection on the accordion by Garnet Rose; reading, Robert Stinson; instrumental on the piano by Albert Thistlewaite; reading, "The Crooked-Mouthed Family in the West," by Miss Kate German; musical selection, Garnet Rose; orchestra selection, by Fife's; God Save the King.

The member of the Sunday School were very pleased to have Rev. F. W. Newell of Hastings and Rev. A. S. Clelland of Norwood present at the supper hour and are very grateful to all who were present, and to all who assisted in making the evening one of the best yet held.

HAD RHEUMATIC PAINS FOR 25 YEARS

His Arms Were Becoming Useless

It was about 25 years ago that rheumatism first marked down this sufferer; and finally the day came when he could hardly lift his arms. But he found relief—here in this letter he tells the whole story:—

"About 25 years ago I first experienced slight muscular rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. A few years later lumbago also attacked me. They gradually got worse until the pain got acute in both arms and joins. I could not lift a jugful of water with my arm extended straight out. About 12 months ago I bought a bottle of Kruschen Salts and by the time it was finished I was agreeably surprised at a slight improvement. I bought another one, and when that was finished all the pain had disappeared, and has never appeared since."—T. R.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently caused by deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular activity, and help them to eliminate this excess uric acid.—(Advt.).

DOURO PEOPLE GREET HYDRO IN GALA STYLE

EVERYBODY OUT.

Speeches and Dancing Are Features of Most Enjoyable Night.

A new set of cedar poles flanking the roadway into Douro blazes a conspicuous five-mile pathway across country from Nassau and marks another step forward in the township's march of progress.

The poles carry Hydro-Electric Power Commission lines to service the township for the first time in its history with electricity. A ceremony held at Douro Centre on Thursday night to mark the formal opening of the line was attended by a record crowd.

It seemed as if the whole township had gathered on the spacious grounds of St. Joseph's Rectory or occupied seats of vantage in cars parked on either side of the roadway, as Superintendent G. Harry Beatty of Peterborough Utilities Commission pulled the main switch to flood the scene with electric light, as the opening item on a program of speeches and entertainment.

The balcony of Town's general store provided the platform for the speakers, while the cement sidewalk below was the stage setting for vocalists, step-dancers, and instrumentalists. It was a gala occasion for the community as they put away their coal-oil lamps and said good-bye to wick-trimming and chimney-polishing.

Reeve is Chairman

Reeve Frank D. Leahy acted as chairman of the evening and speakers included: J. J. Duffus, M.P.; Gordon S. Matthews, chairman, and Ross L. Dobbin general manager, both of Peterborough Utilities Commission; Dr. D. Munro of Warsaw; and also P. G. Towns and the Rev. Edward Welsh, to whose joint efforts the community acknowledged the coming of Hydro.

Father Welsh expressed a hope that the Hydro lines would branch out down the sidelines throughout the township, so that in the future every farmer might share in the benefit of cheap electric power. He spoke of the wiring that is being completed in St. Joseph's Church, and while he regretted the lights could not be turned on for the occasion because they were not ready, he announced they would be used for the first time at the Holy Hour on Sunday evening.

The installation in the church consists of a matched set of 21 banning fixtures fashioned in solid bronze. They were described by the reverend speaker as being among the most beautiful set of church lights to be found anywhere and he thought his parishioners would agree the church was to be the best-lighted country church in the whole Dominion.

Offer Congratulations

In turn, various other speakers congratulated the people of the township on the progressive step they had taken in securing Hydro power, while tribute was paid to the memory of the late Father Maguire for 28 years priest of the parish, and to other community leaders of the past.

Those who contributed to the program of entertainment were as follows: The Leahy Orchestra (Robert, piano; Clare, violin; Olian, violin; and Leo, banjo, all sons of Reeve Leahy); vocal solos—John Sheehan, Danny Delaney, Mrs. McIlvena, John Holland. Step-dances—Mick McManus, Edward Drum, Victor Kennedy, and James Delaney. Readings—Wallace Anderson and Fred Crowe. Guitar selection—Hector Thompson. Piano duet—Mary Quinlan and Margaret Sullivan.

PETERBORO COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pavy Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pavy, 279 McGill street today observed the golden jubilee anniversary of their wedding.

The celebration was held at the home of their son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Roy Northey on the 16th Line of Smith Township in the community where Mr. Pavy spent a greater part of his working life as a dairyman.

Mr. Pavy and his wife, the former Mary Ann Galpin met each other at Swindon, England and were married at Winchester on July 30, 1887. They both came to Canada thirty years ago, and with exception of two years at Lansing, Ont., have lived in this district during the whole of that time.

During a residence of several years in Smith Township, Mr. Pavy worked as a dairyman with Stephen Harrison on the 16th Line. Now at the age of seventy-two years he still does a good days work, being an employee of Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company. His wife, two years his junior enjoys equal good health.

Have Large Family

The couple raised a family of six sons and six daughters, and it is worthy of note that all are living, the family circle having been unbroken by a single bereavement. All were with their parents for the joyous occasion today, with exception of a daughter Mrs. Ernest Walker of Odette avenue, who was indisposed. Other members of the family are: Mrs. Edward Armstrong, Mrs. Roy Northey and William Pavy all of Smith Township; Mrs. William Meredith, Sherbrooke street; Charles Pavy, Smith Township; Mrs. Oliver Kelly, Highway 7, City; Albert Edward Pavy, Townsend street; John Wesley Pavy, 189 McGill street; and Harold Pavy, Fred Pavy, and Miss Freda Pavy all at home.

Between Montreal and Peterborough he rode his cycle a distance of 200 miles covering the remaining distance on the train. When he returns home, he plans to cover the whole journey awheel. He owns an English cycle complete with an enclosed chain and 3-speed gear.

ALD. JAS. JUBY IS NAMED HEAD WORKS BOARD

THAT SEWAGE ISSUE.

Alderman Juby presided for the first time as chairman of the Board of Works Thursday night in succession to ex-Alderman M. R. Sloan who was recently appointed assistant assessor.

On the suggestion of Alderman Gordon, City Engineer Parsons was instructed to obtain information regarding the most effective methods of sewage disposal that have come into use in recent years.

Mayor Macdonald objected that this enquiry, which as it was first proposed was intended to consult only Dr. Berry of the Ontario Department of Health, would stir up trouble for the city.

"If we were ready to start building, I'd say all right, go ahead," His Worship stated. "If we are not ready, why should we clog up the city engineer with more detail work when he has already plenty to do?"

Mayor Macdonald said Peterborough had followed the directions of the provincial Board of Health, but the system they proposed had not been entirely completed because it was found to be unsatisfactory. Peterborough had taken the position since then of waiting until the Department could recommend a system which had been proved to be efficient. Why should the city start something which was likely to lead to a large expenditure, the Mayor said, and added that it would be simt enough when the initiative came from the Department.

Alderman Gordon contended that "the people down in Monaghan will be after us one of these days," and the information might as well be obtained at once, for the reason that Dr. Berry had affirmed a short time ago that three systems of sewage disposal were now available. Besides, he added, the enquiry did not necessarily involve expenditure by the city.

Alderman Dutton's motion to broaden the enquiry instead of confining the source of information to Dr. Berry received the support of a majority of the members of the committee.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saiurday, July 31

A particularly lively and progressive day is forecast from very important aspects among major planets. There is a great spur to the ambitions and to bold ventures of sufficient scope to attract the interest and substantial support of capital or of those in power and authority. Friendship seems to figure in this, although luck and chance play an important part as well.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves facing a year in which the element of surprise, intrigue, mystery and chance may play parts, with profitable conclusions if a bit of sagacity and variness is exercised. There may be get-rich-quick schemes to manipulate shrewdly.

A child born on this day should be amply endowed with certain remarkable equipment for a spectacular career. Its versatility, originality, subtlety and craftiness may take it far into public attention and regard.

To celebrate its opening, the Footing Water Works, operated by the Municipality of Greater Shanghai China, and with a daily output of 2,000,000 gallons, supplied water gratis during the first month.

Company's Statement As To Wages Paid

In a statement received this afternoon the question of wages which had been paid at the local textile mills was set forth in detail. Any records asked for by Mr. Fine, the government officer of conciliation, have been produced by the companies, The information is as follows:

Statement of H. S. Laybourne, Controller of Auburn Mill:

For the information of the public of Peterborough and in order to correct possible erroneous payroll figures which have been circulated, the following records are published with regard to the payroll at the Auburn Mill, as taken from the last full payroll paid at this Mill.

On this payroll there were 289 male employees and 80 female employees, a total of 372 including 31 foremen and office workers, and providing an annual payroll of approximately $275,000.00.

Annalysis of this payroll reveals the following:

There were 167 hourly men workers, 16 who earned in excess of 45 cents per hour, 127 who earned between 30 to 39 cents per hour and 44 from 18 to 29 cents per hour. The latter are chiefly learners, bobbin boys, recipients of compassionate jobs and others doing boy's work.

There were 50 men piece workers who earned from 15 to 50c per hour, depending upon their efficiency and their application to their work.

Twenty-three boys under 18 years of age and learners, both hourly and piece workers, earned rates from 16 to 34c per hour, excluding four apprentices.

Of 58 female piece workers employed 29 earned rates from 17 to 23c per hour and 29 earned rates from 24 to 38c excluding 3 apprentices.

As a further matter of record, the average earnings for one entire department of the Auburn Mill employing 36 females was 29.2 cents per hour over the period from January 1st to June 26th inclusive.

In a statement in The Examiner of July 29th, attributed to Mr. Cohen he stated, "The Company refused to have its payrolls and rates examined even by such an impartial body as the Labor Board." This is incorrect as the Company even went to the extent of loaning to Mr. Cohen, at the commencement of negotiations, through Mr. Fine the Conciliatory Officer, exact copies of our payroll for each mill, which copies are still in Mr. Cohen's possession.

Statement by D. G. H. Melton, manager of Bonner-Worth Mills.

On the payroll of the Bonner-Worth Mill in June, 1937, there are listed 212 employed females. These are classified as:

Learners and Inexperienced operators.—31, age 17 and under, 14 to 21c per hour, 20, age 18 and over, 18 to 21c per hour.

Experienced Operators (includes piece workers).—132, age 16 and over, 22 to 26c per hour. 26, age 17 and over, 25 to 32c per hour.

The normal activity of the Bonner Worth Mills has given steady and continuous employment throughout the year of at least 55 hours weekly with few interruptions and on this basis it will be seen that learners and inexperienced workers have earned from $7.70 to $11.55 for 55 hours and experienced operators from $12.10 to $17.60 for 55 hours.

We had for the same period 121 males including boys and youths. 69 were paid at rates per hour ranging from 30 to 55c, and 52 at varying rates, according to age and duties, under 30c per hour.

This outline does not include overseers and office workers.

The total annual earnings of Bonner-Worth employees for the past three years will show that they enjoyed a steadiness of employment which compares very favorably with any other industry in this city.

PARKING PROBLEM AGAIN DISCUSSED

Judgment Will Be Used in Enforcing New Traffic By-law.

The providing of parking space for automobiles is a universal problem, Alderman R. Cotton observed Thursday night in a reference to the recent amendments of the traffic by-law passed at a recent special meeting of the council.

Quite frankly Alderman Cotton expressed his opinion that the new legislation had perhaps been too hastily drafted, but he declared that the intention of the city council was only to facilitate accommodation for the public and not to impose any inconvenience that could be avoided.

"We are simply trying to straighten things out, and possibly we have been trying to get along too fast," the chairman of the Legal Committee said.

The other members endorsed his remarks, but the traffic bylaw will continue in effect in its altered form until the parking problem has been given more consideration, and in the meantime the enforcement of several objectionable clauses will be left to police discretion and common sense.

As to parking on Brock, Murray and McDonnel Streets, between Aylmer and Water Streets, at present unregulated, Alderman Cotton suggested that cars be restricted to the south side. Obviously fire trucks swinging off Aylmer Street into any one of these three streets, and especially McDonnel Street, would make a wide turn. If cars were parked on the north side the traffic hazard would be much increased.

Conversation mentioned the practice of professional men, merchants and others who park their cars for hours in front of their places of business, and general comment was that they were prevening visitors from obtaining easy access to the city's principal stores.

Crowd Out Visitors

"I noticed three Ohio cars in a row the other day," Ald. Cotton said. "They couldn't get parking space and they wanted to go to the F. and G. store, so they parked outside the line of cars along the sidewalk after getting permission from a policeman."

The attitude of the council as indicated last night was to obtain definite facts about parking space that might be obtained at the rear of down town buildings, and further facts about the actual parking of cars on the main streets, with the duration of time and also the names of the owners.

"I am not in favor of any bylaw that can be winked at," Alderman Glover said, but Alderman Dutton advised that the bylaw be left as it was recently rewritten. Another meeting of the special committee on parking will be held next week.

LOCAL SPEEDSTERS PREP FOR RACES

There was a crowd estimated to number 500 people at Exhibition Grounds dirt track on Friday night to watch Sam Carew and his boys of The Kawartha Motorcycle Club go through rehearsals in anticipation of the big Civic Holiday program of motorcycle races.

Local riders who are to be augmented by a list of out-of-town entries promise to put on a thrilling program Monday afternoon in competing for a purse of $250 in prize monies.

The motorcyclists who are staging the show in co-operation with the local Lions Club of which Fred Cripps is president, solicit a good measure of public support. Six-hundred dollars is to be contributed from the proceeds at the gate towards formation of the Lions Club Boy's Band.

A detachment of the local branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade is to be on duty at the races, as the probabilities are some riders will get hurt. If practice driving is any indication, the boys intend to put on a real program. They are prepared to take chances and no fooling.

FIFTEEN KILLED IN FRENCH WRECK

VILLENEUVE ST. GEORGES, France, July 30. (Friday) (AP)—Fifteen persons were known today to have been killed and at least fifty injured when a crack Paris-St. Etienne express crashed into the rear of another train near here.

The Villeneuve St. Georges Hospital reported thirty injured persons were being treated there and more were believed en route from the scene of the wreck.

The express, operated by the Paris-Lyon-Marseille Railway, left Paris at 10.35 p.m. last night and the accident occurred a short time later.

Cause of the collision was not given immediately, but officials said the express was derailed and coaches were piled up.

Dr. Henri Queuille, Minister of Public Works, hurried from Paris nine miles away, to take charge of relief operations. He was accompanied by the general manager of the railroad.

Fire companies were dispatched from Paris, Villeneuve St. Georges and surrounding towns and a call for assistance from the local hospital brought ambulances and doctors from Paris.

He said the Business Men's Association has as its objective from 200 to 300 members including professional men. DOZEN TRANSIENTS CAUGHT ON TRAIN

Prisoners Give Addresses Ranging From Nova Scotia to Alberta.

LONDON, Ont., July 30 (CP)—Twelve grimy faces lined the prisoner's box in court yesterday. They were transients found in a boxcar that arrived in the Canadian National Railway yards last night. All were charged with trespassing.

As they pleaded guilty the prisoners told the magistrate where they came from. Their homes were spread from Nova Scotia to Alberta. Most of them were in their 'teens although one was 31 years of age. All said they were looking for work.

Constable Ozard of the C.N.R. police said the clean-up of the train resulted from a telegram he received from Paris saying four youths had broken a switch light and had then jumped aboard the freight as it pulled out of the Paris yards.

None of the 12 would say they knew anything about the broken switch. Finally Major Laing on the Salvation Army offered to take the 12 to the local hostel, give them hot baths and feed them. He said he believed he could find work for some and suggested the others leave London.

"Probably if these men had a bath you could see which one you wanted to keep," said Magistrate Menzies. "I will release them on suspended sentence in charge of the Salvation

PLAN DINNER FOR MINISTER IN FAIR WEEK

Reception to be Tendered Hon. Duncan Marshall, Who Opens Exhibition.

LIGHTING TOO COSTLY.

The annual cost of $665 dimmed the suggestion of providing the business section of Hunter street with lights similar to those in use on George street, in a brief discussion at last night's meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee.

When Alderman Wilson, chairman, read the informative letter from the Utilities Commission, Alderman Hamilton remarked "We can't afford it," and on Alderman Glover's motion, seconded by Alderman Juby, the letter was received and left on file for future reference.

Dinner For Minister

The Legal and Reception committe authorized Alderman Cotton, chairman, to arrange for a civic luncheon to Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario's Minister of Agriculture, on Thursday, August 19, when he will formally open the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Hon. Mr. Marshall is coming to the city on Wednesday of Exhibition week to attend the dinner which is being given to the junior farmers whose work is the feature of that day.

Alderman Glover congratulated Alderman Cotton on the fine success of the civic reception to the touring South African bowlers who were greatly impressed with the friendly warmth of Peterborough's hospitality.

Deputy Treasurer

Miss Edna Thompson of the city hall staff was appointed deputy city treasurer. Invested with certain authority during the vacation absence of the treasurer, Morley E. Shaver. The Finance Committee's action is of permanent effect for any other occasions during the year when Mr. Shaver may be prevented from being present.

When one of the aldermen asked what was done in other years, Mayor Macdonald replied that Frank Adams never took a holiday and therefore did not require the appointment of a deputy.

VETERAN TEACHER WORKS FOR PEACE

Dr. Mary Woolley, Holyoke College Head, Plans Active Retirement.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., July 30.—(CP)—Dr. Mary E. Woolley is ready to move from maple-shaded Mount Holyoke College, of which she was president for 37 years, to a life of active retirement in which she will read intensively, write and work for world peace.

"I'd like to accomplish a great deal more than I have," the 74-year-old educationist and champion of international understanding says. "It will be a busy time—but I hope a rational time.

"I want to stop living under pressure for awhile. Now I shall have time to 'read around' a thing, to prepare a talk the way I want it given.

"Why shouldn't one start life at 74 as well as at 40?" she queries.

Dr. Woolley will continue her work as chairman of the People's Mandate to Governments to End War, chairman of the committee on international relations of the American Association of University Women, and chairman of the Co-operating Commission of Women in the Federal Council of Churches.

"I am determined," she avers, "to use every effort as long as I live to helpkeep not only this nation but other nations out of war."

She looks 20 years younger than she is. There is scarcely a trace of gray in her brown hair.

"I feel it is a great mistake to believe all the interests and enthusiasms of life belong to the young," Dr. Woolley says. "As you grow older, you accumulate a great many things that young people cannot have—not only experience, but so many delightful memories and associations."

She thinks women still haven't the same chance as men, for a woman must do a thing a little better than a man to get equal recognition. "In this day we can't afford to have opportunity withheld from women. It is not so much a question of the rights of women as of the necessity of their working with men to help humanity."

Somerville-Farley Nearing the Final

OTTAWA HUNT CLUB, Ottawa, July 30 (CP)—C. R. Sandy Somerville of London and Phil Farley of Montreal each held two-hole advantages in the first 18 holes of their semi-final Canadian amateur golf championship round today.

Somerville led Jimmy Todd of Victoria and Farley had that margin over Gordon B. Taylor of Montreal who yesterday eliminated Freddie Haas, Jr., 1936 champion from New Orleans.

Both pairs finished the last few holes in a thunderstorm with much lightning and thunder but no heavy rain before they came to the clubhouse.

REGENT THEATRE RE-OPENS MONDAY

Furnished With New Seats and Entirely New Equipment Throughout.

The new Regent Theatre re-opens on Civic Holiday, Monday, August 2nd. It has been furnished with entirely new seats, the finest air-conditioning system, pleasing lighting effects, and the latest in sound equipment. For its initial screen attraction, it presents "The Hit Parade," with all the favorite radio stars of today.

Carl Hoff, maestro of the Hit Parade Orchestra, belongs to the directorial school aired by Paul Whiteman, who organized his orchestra with full representation of stringed instruments as well as the usual brass, saxophones, wood-winds and rhythm intruments, being, in effect, a symphonic orchestra with a flair for "swing." A popular modification of this type is used by some orchestra who discard brass, introducing a piano-accordion, and concentrating on wood-winds, clarinets, oboes and bazoons.

Duchin Music

Eddy Duchin, also prominently featured in the production, goes in for the sweet and low rhythms first popularized by Rudy Vallee, and later varied by Guy Lombardo. Where Lombardo drops violins and concentrates on muted brass and saxophones and clarinets, Vallee keeps the violins but discards brass altogether. Duchin maintains a happy medium, with brass having slightly the upper hand.

Ellington Music

The Harlem contribution to the picture, supplied by dusky Duke Ellington, defies classification. Ellington believe in breaking rules, and making new ones to suit his own erratic whims. His band, of course, is principally brass: three trumpets, three trombones, four men who double on saxophone and clarinet, and four rhythm men. "The principal feature of our arrangement," says Ellington, "is our use of dissonant chords, suspensions and dynamics. Dissonant chords are the opposite of resolved chords, which sound complete and satisfying to the listener. Dissonant chords require another note, or combination of notes, to resolve them, and sometimes we do not resolve them until the end of the chorus. Suspensions are the tricks of solo virtuosi on any instrument. Kreisler employs them on the violin. They consist in playing around a melody, playing notes of involved harmonic relation to the notes of the melody, but winding up on the melody at the end of the phrase. In my band, I am particularly fortunate in having a brass section and a saxophone section capable of playing them in harmonic unison against the melody as carried by another section."

The orchestra featured in "The Hit Parade," provide an interesting plot for the production, which revolves about the efforts of a young press agent, portrayed by Phil Regan, to put across a new and unknown singer, played with unforgettable charm by Frances Langford. Supporting players, coming from the ranks of radio aristocracy, include George Givot, Pic and Pat, Ed Thorgersen, Molasses and January, the Tic Toc Girls, Al Pearce and His Gang, the Gentlemaniacs, Oscar and Elmer, and the Voice of Experience.

Since the London Schools Swimming association of England was organized in 1893 more than 1,000,000 school children have been taught to swim.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IF THE weather is oke tonight, another big turnout of fans is anticipated at the lacrosse match here. It is between Oshawa's U.A.W.A. 222 team and our Auburns, who must also have a union number—but we dunno it. These teams love each other just like the Hebrews like Hitler, and the feeling is plenty high between 'em, maybe around 100 in the shade. Oshawa is second in the standing and threatens to hand Auburns their first group defeat of the season. Anyhow, it'll be close and exciting all the way; we figure it the best battle of the summer. The 222-ers have bolstered with several former senior stars, whilst the locals have lost Coach Chute, a sterling defenceman, for the time being.

* * * * * *

GEORGE CAMPBELL—yeah, one of the many "Soup" Campbells—will be along with the Oshawa outfit. The sports scribe of the Oshawa Times is rapidly rounding into condition and plays a buxom bit of a game back on defence. He was once accused of being a pro lacrosser but this is libel—we mean libel to lacrosse! However, our scribbling pal isn't too terrible at all and in a recent game 'gainst Norwood he checked Joe Gould to a fare-thee-well, and the temperamental Joseph scored but one goal all eve. We hand the mitt to a sports writer with enough energy to play this rough game.

* * * * * *

CIVIC HOLIDAY Sports' attractions around here include the big motorbike races at the Exhibition Grounds and the softball tournament at Bridgenorth. Both ought to be good. The motorcycle dare-devils should put on a real show as they race in various classes for the Canadian half-mile dirt championship—plus some do-re-mi prizes. It will be a new sport to local fans and will no doubt attract a bunch of 'em. Haven't heard how the entries to the softball tourney are coming along, but the Bridgenorth annual affair always draws a flock. It is open to any gals' or men's teams, but entry should be sent in this week.

* * * * * *

AUGUST is playoff month in sports of this section. The gals' and men's softball loops wind up their schedules this week and start the playoffs early next week. Southend Loop soon, too. Later in the month the lacrossers will be in there playing for keeps, the winner to ankle into intermediate O.A.L.A. playdowns. And the C.O.B.L. will have to declare a winner by the end of the month. Three teams playoff, so they'll be getting started around the middle of August. Let us hope that the Naps don't knock off the Petes in the final week of the race as they did last year. We'd sort of like to see the locals really open up in the playoffs—if at all.

* * * * * *

THE PETES have an afternoon ball game tomorrow in Cobourg against Oshawa. It is the locals' home tussle, transferred there in connection with the Centennial, and ought to pack in the customers. The Collins' crew then journeys—we hope not by the thumb route this time—to Kingston on Monday. Oshawa will transfer their fray of next Wednesday to here, and Napanee will play here a week from tomorrow. The Naps have a postponed game with Kingston and will run it in one of these days. And the Gerowmen have transferred their Civic Holiday contest to Oshawa. There are more transfers lately in the C.O.B.L. than those asked of the O.B.A.A. players with the Gypsy urge each Spring tra, la. Schedule winds up on August 14th and the semi-final teams tangle, the winner to meet the holder of the top slot for loop honors.

* * * * * *

TONY PACZKOWSKI of the Ponies beat Biddle in the GM-men's last meeting in Kingston. He allowed eight hits and two walks while fanning seven and Lefty was nicked for nine money blows and three free tickets as he struck out five. Jake led his team with two hits, and McQuaide got three doubles for the winners, with Red Scrutton and Goodfellow getting two apiece. Foley played centre and got a single. Wallace and Jubenville had costly miscues for the champs. Scrutton had half a dozen circus grabs in left for the Daley dudes—and he would have been a big help here had he come when invited in March. Biddle and Wallace will both middle-aisle it next week and be away on a honeymoon for a week or so after that.

WESTCLOX men softballers copped a 9-0 win from Omemee last p.m. at Central before a goodly crowd and now the group is tangled up like a ball of yarn in a kitten's grip. Since Barons defaulted their game tonight to the Clockmakers, the latter are now tied for first place with Young Petes, each having 10 wins and six losses—a grand showing for the kids. Omemee and Motorists are tied behind 'em with nine and six, but this should be settled tonight when Motorists play in Omemee. Which will leave three teams for the playoffs next week. Should have some dope on playoff plans any day now, but nothing at this writing. It has been a nifty race lately.

GOT a letter today from Jack Creighton, now in Brussels down in Western Ontario. He is manager of the Brussels gals' softball team, second in a good group—teams often travelling 60 miles or so for games. Jack is a keen follower of local lacrosse, three of his boys being on our team. He wants to know about a ball argument that came up in a recent game there. It seems the game was called in the sixth and the pilots and umps had a battle over the final score. Here is Sec. 2 of Rule 22—and if one of the Creighton boys will send it to their dad it'll save us the job—"It is a regulation game if it be called on account of darkness, etc., provided seven or more equal innings have been played; or if the team second at bat shall have made more runs at the end of its sixth inning, or before the completion of its seventh inning, than the team first at bat has made in seven completed innings." Hope that helps you, Jack.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

'To know, to esteem, to love and then to part
Makes up life's tale to many a feeling heart.'

A very pleasant event took place on Thursday night on the local greens when a few of the boys gathered together to bid 'God speed and farewell' to one of our most devoted bowlers, Frank Wise who has been granted a three months leave of absence by his employers and who intends to spend a great part of that time in a visit to scenes of younger days in England, departs from this city on Saturday morning. He was presented with a travelling kit and deputised R. F. Downey to make the reply and R.F. did the 'Bergen-McCarthy' act in his usual capable style.

On Monday we will hold a wide open mixed tournament at 2 p.m. The draw will be from the board and the fee 25 cents. On next Wednesday evening, August 4th, we will have our first twilight mixed tournament, it is called for 7 p.m. sharp. Each skip may choose his own rink with certain modifications, there is to be no 'packed' rinks accepted by the committee. Each rink must be of schedule calibre. For instance, a man skip may take a lead, and lady skip a lead or a man vice may take a second and a lady vice a second. The entrance fee will be $2.00 and the prizes will be good. Tonight (Friday) we hold our first Irish trebles tournament with the draw from the board at 7.30 p.m.—fee 25 cents.

A number of Lakefield bowlers were entertained last night by our club to a friendly game of bowls. It was their first venture at the game and they did exceedingly well. Another game later on is suggested.

GOLF-FACTS NOT THEORIES

By Alex Morrison

Number 49

Many scores are ruined by the number of shots taken in bunkers. This number is so large with some players that they are ashamed to count these shots.

One player in a foursome recently turned in a card with four tens on it. He made these tens simply by taking three or four shots every time his ball came to rest in a bunker. Aside from the double figures his score was quite good. In playing out of sand he made the mistake that many players make—he swung his club much as though playing an approach shot from the fairway.

Such a swing finds the clubhead moving in a comparatively flat arc. This arc tends to send the ball in a rather low flight. In order to send the ball upward, that is add loft to its flight, one must swing so that the clubhead travels in an up and down arc. This arc is produced when you raise the club fairly high in the backswing, use plenty of wrist bend and then swing it down into the sand just behind the ball.

The clubhead should strike the sand an inch or so back of the ball with enough force to swing through the sand. It should not be allowed to stop in the sand. In making this swing you should use as much force as you would for a long shot to make sure that the clubhead cuts through the sand. Do this and you'll not take more than one shot to get out of any bunker.

REITH DEFEAT IS GOLF UPSET

IN CANADIAN AMATEUR.

OTTAWA, HUNT CLUB, Ottawa, July 30—(CP)—Pete Kelly, red-headed golfer from Charlottetown, pulled the big upset of the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship yesterday, when he eliminated Bobby Reith of Winnipeg, 4 and 3.

Kelly's victory was against a player favored to go through to the final for the title defended by Freddie Haas of New Orleans.

Reith, finalist last year against Haas, went out in the fourth round when Kelly put on a workmanlike job in the first nine holes to earn a two-up margin at the turn. At that point he was two under par with 35, while Reith had 36 for a medal score.

Denis Morse of Chatham, Ont., knocked out Dave Arnott of Winnipeg 3 and 2. Arnott held a two-up advantage leaving the eighth, but Morse put on a great show to win six holes in a row. They halved the short 15th, and the match ended when both took pars at the 16th.

CUBS - GIANTS BADLY BEATEN BY OPPONENTS

Cardinals Only First Division Club to Win in National League.

YANKS BEAT TIGERS.

NEW YORK, July 30 (CP). — Either the Cubs or the Giants are all built up for another awful letdown this week-end.

Beginning to-day in Chicago they open the second act of their private battle for the National League lead. And from this second straight week-end series should come a fairly definite line on which of the two outfits will finish with the flag.

The Cubs, at the moment, have a three-game lead on the Giants, and the rest of the loop, strung out seven games and more behind, seems to be little interested in any attempt to overtake the two leaders.

Last week, the Cubs took two out of three from the Giants in New York. Since then, neither outfit has looked like champions as they set their stage for the current series.

Both Receive Setbacks.

Yesterday each made ready for the other by dropping their starts. The Cubs were given a thorough going-over by Fred Frankhouse and Brooklyn Dodgers and wound up on the short end of a 10-2 count. The Giants were handcuffed by Lefty Bob Weiland and lost 5-2 decision to the Cardinals, all of which left the Cubs still with a three-game lead.

Harry Gumbert, who blanked the Cubs in last Sunday's game, much to the surprise of the Giants in general and Harry Gumbert in particular, was Bill Terry's nomination to start the pitching for to-day. He runs up against Bill Lee, the Cubs' No. 1 pitcher.

Yanks Beat Tigers.

The Yankees wound up their series with the Detroit Tigers yesterday by taking a 7-6 close one on Bill Dickey's homer with two out and two strikes on him in the ninth inning.

The defeat dropped the Tigers back into third place in the American League, and made room for the White Sox to climb back into second by nipping Washington Senators 2-0.

Cincinnati Reds were muffled with four hits by Jim Turner and nosed out by Boston Bees 2-1 to fall back into a tie for sixth place with Brooklyn. Dolph Camilli's homer with the bases loaded gave the Phillies an 11-7 win over the Pirates.

Jimmy Foxx hammered homer No. 26 and the Red Sox socked the Browns 5-3. The Athletics' fielding fell apart in the ninth inning, and handed the Indians a 5-4 victory.

ULSTER UNITED WINS OPENER 3-1

Toronto Defeats Vancouver Johnston Nationals at Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, July 30 (C.P.)—Toronto's crippled Ulster United battled through to a 3 to 1 win over Vancouver Johnston Nationals at Carruthers' Park here last night in the first game of the best-of-three series for the Canadian soccer championship.

Dazzling footwork and brilliant combination play by the Redhanders' forward line outclassed Vancouver's vaunted defence. Despite many injuries, Ulster staged strong offensive rallies that netted one goal in the first half and two in the second.

More than 1,000,000 crates of pineapples were shipped from Cuba to America last season.

WESTCLOX CLIMB TO TOP RUNG TIE

Westclox took a 9-0 win from Omemee in a snappy men's softball struggle last night before a big crowd at Central. This win—along with Barons' default Friday to them—puts Westclox in a first-place tie with Young Petes and assures them of a playoff berth. They earned the decision last night with fine fielding, some timely hitting and good twirling. It was an abbreviated game, going but seven frames. The winners got three runs in the second, one next up, three in the fourth and two more in the fifth.

Parsons pitched nice ball for Westclox to limit the O's to four hits in seven frames. He fanned five and walked two. Stephenson twirled for the losers and was nicked for a dozen safe hits and two walks as he struck out two. Ellis, Kearns, Starr and P. Calladine all got two hits apiece for the victors; while none of the losers got more than one safety. The locals all looked neat in the field most of the way and Omemee also played a neat defensive game. The teams:

Westclox: P. Calladine, c; Dorner, 3b; Starr, ss; Kearns, rf; Playford, cf; O'Leary, lf; Ellis, 1b; Stanger, 2b; Parsons, p; Sturgeon, lf.

Score by innings:

In addition, No. 1 caddies will receive an increase of 10 cents, to 60 cents, for eighteen holes. No. 2 caddies will be paid at the old rates of 30 cents for nine holes and 50 cents for eighteen.

Tweed Beats Madoc In Close Game 10-6

TWEED, July 30—Tweed girls defeated Madoc lassies in Tweed on Wednesday night in an interesting softball game, by a score of 10 to 6. The visitors gained the lead in the third inning but some prolific hitting by Harold Wilson's squad saw the Tweedsters hammer home seven runs in the seventh inning to clinch the verdict. Previous to the final frame, the Madocers led in the scoring, L. Rashotte was on the mound for Tweed.

Anna Thompson was the chief hitter for Tweed, while Jean Nickle and Carmel Golan led the Madoc sisters in clouting.

Coach Harold Wilson announces that the Tweed girls have entered the Class "C" section of the Ontario Ladies' Softball Association, drawing a bye, as there were no affiliated girls' teams in this immediate section. He has been advised that the locals will line up against the Ottawa champions with the first game in the capital on August 26th, with the return game in Tweed on Saturday, August 28th. The series will be the best two of three games.

Madoc— M. Smith, A. Smith, G. Keene, N. Fox, G. Bailey, C. Golan, J. Nickle, M. O'Connell, B. Keene.

WALSH-PORTER GET 3.

TORONTO, July 30. — Avenging themselves for the indignities heaped upon them in Wednesday night's contest, the Maple Leafs clubbed a trio of Baltimore moundsmen for fourteen safeties and a 13 to 3 drubbing to gain an even break for the four-game series which concluded yesterday afternoon.

While Johnny Wilson was scattering a dozen Bird blows in effective fashion in his first start of the season, his teammates came through with base hits when they were needed. Jim Walsh and Bobby Porter paced the attack with a trio of bingles each, Walsh driving home four of the Leaf runs.

Wilson, who joined the Leafs well over a month ago, had only recently undergone a tonsillectomy, and pitched his first full game for Toronto. Four of the hits he yielded were for extra bases, but for the most part he was master of all tight situations.

Big Hank Winston started for the Birds, but failed to last the first inning. He had walked Gantenbein and Smith, when, with two out, Porter laced a single to left scoring Gantenbein with the first run of the game. Ross Smacked a single off the hurler's glove, scoring Smith. That blow not only sent Winston to the showers, but probably elevated him into the major leagues again.

Oshawa Plays Locals Friday Night Tussle

Lacrosse standing to date:

Team	P	W	L	TP
Auburns	10	10	0	6
Oshawa	11	8	3	5
Bellevile	11	7	5	4
Norwood	13	4	9	3

Oshawa plays the local Auburns here tonight (Friday) at nine o'clock under the lights at the George St. arena. This should be the scrappiest game of the season between these bitter rivals, and the locals are quite liable to lose their first loop fixture of the season.

In two previous meetings between these teams feeling ran high and several outbreaks among the players occurred. The bolstered Unionists claim they can take Auburns this time and will make it a great battle. The homesters will be without Coach Chute, classy defenceman, but otherwise should be at full strength. The visitors will bring along several ex-seniors. Another big lacrosse crowd is expected.

Frank McGowan Hero Of Buffalo Victory

BUFFALO, July 30 (CP).—Frank McGowan, an ageing veteran of a score of big league and minor league cities, can always dig his spikes into the dirt at Buffalo.

Frank came home to the Bisons last night after an unsuccessful try as a post in the Boston Bees' outfield, and convinced Buffalo fans that there's life in the old boy yet and that he may boost the defending International League champions into an avenging position.

Starting his first game of the year for the Bisons, he smacked a triple and a single in three trips to the plate to help them beat Syracuse, 8-6. In doing so he spoiled one of baseball's most persistent jinxes for just before the game he was presented with an award for being the most valuable player in the league last season.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Great Britain administered the first whitewashing to the United States in 34 years of Davis Cup play, two years ago today at Wimbledon. In the final day's play Fred Perry defeated Wilmer Allison and Bunny Austin upset Donald Budge. That made it 5-0 for the defending nations.

CRICKET TWIN PUZZLE

WOKING, England—(CP).—Woking's cricketing twins, A. V. and E. A. Bedser, have just celebrated their 19th birthday. Both are six-footers and so much alike that umpires and scorers are frequently puzzled.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 46

Marcia dressed slowly that night for her date with Gary and with none of the pleasure she usually felt in slipping into flattering evening clothes. Almost mechanically she took her bath, set a wave in her gleaming coppery locks. With her robe of gold-toned bath toweling, she looked like a tiny child as she studied her face seriously in the mirror. The deep blue eyes were troubled, her creamy skin paler than usual.

Marcia was feeling the importance of that date, for she realized the month's grace Gary had given her expired that night. How like him to plan a special celebration, to mark his acceptance or his final defeat! Marcia, full of the realization that she must finally thrust him out of her life, faced the ordeal with real dread. She thought it would have been far more appropriate if Gary had planned to take her driving in the warm evening, when in the darkness she could try to soften the blow of her refusal. But in the face of his ardent plea for a dinner at the impressive Trocadero, she had given in.

"Marcia, I particularly want you to come with me to the Trocadero tonight," he had said when she was working on the final illustration for the book. "I've reserved a table, and I want to celebrate the completion of our job." He would not tell her in words that he also hoped to celebrate another and more important event.

She wriggled into the turquoise blue dinner gown that swirled around her silver-shod feet, and pinned Gary's extravagant corsage at her bosom. As she dressed, she wondered why Sandy had called her again, today of all times. She hadn't seen Ellen or any of her friends who might tell her how the Paula affair was progressing. Almost fearfully she picked up the paper these days hoping she wouldn't find the girl's picture printed as a "charming bride of the season."

Gary arrived just as she finished, and stared in frank admiration at the charming girl before him. Marcia caught the spirit of almost reverence, and laughed with embarrassment.

"You can touch me, Gary. I won't break!" she insisted gaily, and took his arm to make a grand exit from the dim apartment. She was hastily trying to get him away from a possible tete-a-tete, when his evening would be ruined before it began. "If only I can postpone his proposal until after we leave the Trocadero," she thought desperately. Once they reached the cafe, on beautiful Sunset boulevard and overlooking all the lights of Hollywood, she felt more secure.

Gary was lavish with his ordering, including "champagne cocktail for two." Marcia tried to do justice to the dinner, but she was nervously ill-at-ease. On the other hand, Gary seemed in his most jovial mood as he toasted her for the fine work she had completed on his new book.

"To the future!" he proposed, lifting his glass to salute hers.

"To the future," she said obediently, and wondered what it held for both of them.

Unable to restrain himself, Gary abruptly leaned over the tiny table. "I can't wait any longer, dear," he said almost breathlessly. "Can you tell me now that you've changed your mind in the last month? Can you tell me you'll change this business association to a lifetime partnership? Ah, my dear—can you?"

Marcia put a hand on his coat sleeve. "Let's wait until we go home. I have so much to say," she told him.

"So much to say,'" he said swiftly, "then you do love me! Oh, my dearest!"

The girl shook her head violently when he mistook her meaning, then her eyes clouded with tears as she saw his sudden reaction. "Oh, Gary, I didn't want to tell you here, before all these people. It's just no use, my dear. I can't, I just can't. You mean more to me than any friend I have, but I don't seem to have any more emotion left. Believe me, I'm desperately sorry."

"And I was so certain you'd changed," he told her in a daze. "I thought these last weeks meant as much to you as they did to me. You were so understanding."

Marcia could have told him that pity made her gentle with him, not love. Love was not such a soft emotion; it swept people off their feet to the wildest happiness or to bitter sadness. She had experienced both, and the sorrow she experienced on losing Sandy had drained her of all other feeling.

She looked at Gary fondly, and wondered if things would have been different if she had met him before she'd known Sandy. He was so sincere, so in love with her. Almost reluctantly she had refused to avail herself of his protecting love.

She turned to him eagerly, "Gary, don't let this spoil your party. We're still the best of friends—unless you won't have me for a pal any more. If you feel it must be that way, why let's drink to the end of a perfectly glorious partnership!"

Gary looked unseeingly at her. "Friendships like ours just can't end, Marcia. If I've expected too much, it's my own fault. Let's drink to—well, let's drink, anyway!" And with a wavering smile Marcia lifted her glass to meet his.

As the evening wore on Marcia breathed a tiny sigh of relief. She might have known Gary would take her verdict like the gentleman he was. The lights dimmed during a spectacular performance, and when she could see clearly once more she looked appraisingly at her companion. She started, realizing he must have had a good many drinks during the course of the evening. Even as she looked, he raised another glass in salute: "Let's drown our sorrows," he said thickly. "Here's to the calm, cool emotion of frien'ship!"

Quickly, she took his arm. "No more, now, Gary, let's go home." She began to gather her wraps, but her escort shook his head violently. "The evening is jus' a pup. We're goin' to stay till the las' dog is hung. Might as well enjoy it; 's our last party!"

Marcia was amazed that he would let go of himself so completely, until she realized how terribly he had counted on this evening. He had been so sure of her, so sure of his own ability to win her, that he had brought her to his favorite spot to hear her say she loved him. The disappointment had been a crushing one, and he found the first brave toast had called for another and another to bolster his sinking spirits.

Suddenly, Marcia saw him slump to the table, propping himself up on his elbow. Knowing his fastidious hatred of any kind of a scene, she looked wildly about for help. Almost in answer to her prayers, she saw Sandy come into the dining room. Wildly, she beckoned to him.

Sandy had just finished "one last drink" with Mike, who had landed some work for McDonald and insisted on treating his friend. When he saw Marcia, all the blood rushed to his head and he pushed his way quickly through the crowded tables. Coming closer he saw to his amazement that the man was Gary, and that he was irrevocably drunk. His temper rose to the boiling point.

"Is this your special celebration?" he said disgustedly to Marcia.

"It's Gary. He's had some bad news; can you help me get him out of here?"

"Oh, sure. I can get him out of here all right. Get up!" He took the limp form of Gary in a powerful grasp.

"Sandy, stop!" Marcia cried in alarm. "Let's take him out quietly between us. Won't y—"

"Get up, I say!" Sandy shook Garrett impotently, but the man in his grasp was beyond helping himself. With a look of utter disgust, Sandy pushed the man from him.

"Look out—!" Marcia screamed shrilly, as she saw Gary tottering weakly toward the steps. The force of Sandy's shove sent him crashing against a pillar. Still on his feet, he swayed dizzily, then fell down the six stairs to a lower floor. Marcia dashed quickly to his aid and saw him lying still on the marble floor. Blood flowed from a gash on his forehead, and he was scarcely breathing.

A woman called, "Police!" Suddenly the cafe was in a turmoil, with waiters carrying the inert form of Garrett to a couch, others clutching Sandy roughly, Mike trying vainly to explain the accident, and Marcia watching it all helplessly.

"I hope this little fracas won't hurt your fine career," Sandy said bitterly between tightly drawn lips. "And I hope I haven't hurt your fragile friend too much." He shook himself free of his unofficial captors.

"Not so fast, there!" called a policeman who was bending over Garrett. "We'd better hold you until we see whether this fellow is going to live—or die."

MILTON, Ont., July 30—(CP).—Insisting it was unable to come to any other decision despite protests by Crown Attorney W. I. Dick, a coroner's jury investigating the death July 23 of 17-year-old Ella Hilson found she died from shotgun wounds "inflicted by a person or persons unknown." Milton is 23 miles west of Toronto.

"That's a very strange verdict in view of the evidence," Mr. Dick told the jury. "There is not one tittle of evidence that anyone else shot her and we don't want any doubt cast that her family had anything to do with it."

The jury deliberated another 15 minutes but refused to change its verdict. Belief the girl could not have shot herself was expressed by Dr. T. M. Stewart, Guelph, who performed the post mortem. There was nothing mentally or physically to cause her to take her own life he said.

The shot was lodged in the spinal column at an angle that indicated it had been fired downward, he said. Pointing out the shotgun had been found against a table, Dr. Smith said he doubted the girl's ability, after being shot to pick up the gun and place it in that position before collapsing.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SWING

"Bump!"

That was Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, falling down.

"Ooops, my dear!"

That was Uncle Wiggily picking up Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit, after she had fallen in the woods.

"Thank you, Unkie Wig," said Bunty politely.

"Are you hurt?" asked the rabbit gentleman, making sure Bunty used no more than the two words of baby talk she was allowed.

"Hardly any, thank you, Unkie Wig," said Bunty. "I tripped in some some tagled wild honeysuckle vines on the ground."

"So you did," agreed Uncle Wiggily, looking at the place where Bunty had fallen. "There is quite a tangle of honeysuckle vines. Some of them are thickly twined together like ropes."

Remember?

"Oh, Unkie Wig!" exclaimed Bunty, her eyes sparkling. "Do you remember you said if you could find a rope you would make me a swing?"

"Yes, I said that," admitted Mr. Longears.

"Well," said Bunty, "can you make a swing out of honeysuckle vine ropes?"

"I can, my dear, and I will," said Mr. Longears. "You deserve a swing after tripping. Besides, you have been ill an da swing in the fresh air and sunshine will make you much better."

"The sassafras tea made me better," laughed Bunty, as she remembered how Uncle Wiggily had told her about the Fox pulling up the sassafras root and toppling over in a back somersault.

"The swing will completely cure you," said the rabbit uncle. "Help me untangle some of the honeysuckle vine ropes and I'll put the

"Oh, goodie!" laughed Bunty, clapping her paws.

Straightening out a long length of the vine rope, with Bunty's help, Uncle Wiggily, with his strong teeth, gnawed off a piece big enough to make a swing.

Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, the squirrels, climbed the tree carrying the ends of the vine rope and fastened them to a standing out branch. Soon the loop of honeysuckle rope was in place.

"Now we need a board," said Mr. Longears. He found one that had been part of a box and soon Bunty was swinging away, while Uncle Wiggily pushed her so high he could run under her.

Thrill.

"Cooffie! What a thrill!" cried the orphan rabbit as she swung to and fro high in the air.

The other girl rabbit children came hopping along and Bunty let them take turns on her swing. Then up came Buster, Custer and Duster.

"We want some swings!" cried Buster, and he wasn't very polite.

"Unkie Wig said this swing wasn't for boy rabbits—only for girl rabbits," objected Bunty. "It isn't strong enough for boys."

"Don't be silly!" teased Buster. "Now you girls get out and we boys can have some swings."

The boys, most impolitely, made the girls leave the swing. Then Buster, Custer and Duster piled in all at once.

Oooooh! It will break with you!" warned Bunty.

"Pooh! We're not afraid!" laughed Custer.

"Watch how high we go!" called Duster.

Higher and higher they went and then, all of a sudden, the vine rope broke and down to the ground came tumbling the boy rabbits. But they fell into bushes and weren't much hurt.

Then Uncle Wiggily fixed the swing again for Bunty and made the boys go away. So it was all for the best.

And if the bicycle will lend one of its wheels to the gold fish to go to the movies, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's bee.

EIGHT TRANSIENTS DIE IN C.N.R. FREIGHT WRECK

FEAR GROOM OF FEW DAYS HAS BEEN DROWNED

Patrick Flynn is Missing—Clothes Found on River Bank.

MARRIED ON MONDAY.

Had Been Living in Tent Near City Disposal Plant.

His clothes were found on the banks of the Otonabee River at the foot of Park street at 7.30 a.m. directly opposite the point where he and his 18-year-old bride, the former Helen May Douglas, have been camping since they were married on Monday last.

The couple had been living in a tent on a camping site adjacent to the sewage disposal plant. Two other tents nearby are occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Lawford and family and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eagleton and family.

Mrs. Flynn told a reporter she last saw her husband at 9 o'clock Friday night when she rowed him across river to the foot of Park street when he wanted to go up town. She said her husband had expressed the intention of going to see a man who owed him twenty-five dollars.

"I haven't seen him since", she exclaimed anxiously scanning the river where firemen had started dragging operations with assistance of Provincial Traffic Officer Phil Grant and visiting Rover Scouts from Fort Erie here for the week-end Rover Moot at Bald Lake.

Tried To Swim?

The young bride entertained the theory that her husband had returned to the foot of Park street early this morning and failing to find a boat had undressed for the purpose to swimming across to camp. Flynn was said to have been a good swimmer, though it was believed he may have misjudged the current in the darkness.

This theory appeared to be borne out by the story related by Mrs. Eagleton. She told a reporter. "Around one o'clock this morning I heard a noise as if someone was vomiting or struggling on the other bank of the river".

"Yes", Wesley Lawford agreed, "and I took a boat out and paddled up and down the river. We shouted 'Paddy' but there was no reply". He said that with the aid of a flashlight he searched the opposite bank of the river and actually saw what he later learned was the bundle of Flynn's clothes, though in the gloom he had mistaken them for a tree stump.

It was not until half past seven this morning that the clothes were actually discovered on the bank. They were found there by Grace Lawford who was going for the morning milk in the family canoe. "I told my daddy and he notified the police," she related.

While firemen worked up and downstream with the drags, Traffic Officer Grant searched the waters in another boat being accompanied by Rover Scout Albert Holmes of 1st Port Erie Crew. Other Scouts who stood by to lend assistance when needed, were Rover Scouts Harold Ruch and Edwin Gorham of the 1st Port Erie Crew.

Magistrate Leans Toward Wife Beating

Hamilton, July 31.

After expressing the opinion that a man had the right to chastise his own wife in order to enforce certain rights, Magistrate H. A. Burbidge, in Family Court yesterday afternoon, said he would reserve his decision in the assault charge again William Cleary until he had opportunity to refer to authorities and delve into ancient law.

"I think that the common law of England as in effect in 1870 still holds good here. I think that the husband by the Common Law still has the right to chastise or confine his wife to enforce certain rights, excluding those of conjugal relationship," remarked his Worship.

REVOLT SWEEPING FRANCO'S FORCES MADRID REPORTS

Mushrooms Into Open Fighting at Malaga, Granada Over Italian Troops.

INTRUSION RESENTED.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, July 31.—(AP).—Spanish government sources asserted to-day that revolt was spreading through the insurgent rearguard.

They said discontent had mushroomed into open fighting within Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces at Motril and Malaga on the southern coast.

The outbreaks were said to be afimilar to that which the government recently reported within ancient Granada, another southern Spanish city, site of the famed Moorish Alhambra.

The Fabra (Spanish) News Agency in a dispatch from Gibraltar said the bomb explosions could be heard within the ancient city and insurgent authorities were struggling to localize the mutiny.

The agency said the Granada uprising came when Spanish soldiers were ordered from their barracks to make room for Italian volunteers under Franco's banner.

A radio broadcast by Gen. Queipo De Llano, one of Franco's chief aides, denied reports of the Granada revolt. In the same broadcast he hinted that Franco might be preparing for a new offensive on beleaguered Madrid.

'Tranquility is complete along the Madrid front,' said the radio commentator, 'but we must not forget that after the calm comes the storm."

Spreading to Biscay Area.

Government reports were that the revolt had extendeed also into Franco's Biscayan army. The defense ministry said government troops had heard a battle between two insurgent groups on the Bantanda front, in Northern Spain.

Insurgent airmen put an end to the conflict, it was said, when they roared overhead, machine gunning, dropping bombs and throwing hand grenades.

The Government reported Franco had pulled troops from other fronts and sent them to Malaga to quell Communist workers who had laid siege to the military headquarters there.

Several days later another group of Malaga workers barricaded themselves in a sugar factory and held it until a superior number of troops overpowered them and drove them out, said the Madrid advices.

Ostrich Has to Set on Eggs Himself As Wife Goes Wandering.

PHILADELPHIA, July 31.—(P)—Papa Rhea, a South American ostrich at the zoo, was a puzzled parent to-ady.

His wife laid six eggs, then went gadding about. Bird house keepers put the first egg under a peahen with maternal instincts. That egg hatched a Rhea.

Papa Rhea to-day was sitting on the other five.

WEEK'S SECOND BLAST SHAKES BELFAST CITY

Mine Shatters Store Only Few Feet Fro mBarracks of 20 Sleeping Police.

GANGSTERS ACTIVE.

Gunmen Line Six Against Wall and Bludgeon One Unconscious.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 31 (A.P.). — Dynamiters and sluggers spread fresh terror in Belfast to-day in a renewal of the gangsterism that marked King George's visit to Northern Ireland three days ago.

The city was shaken by explosion of a land mine 50 yards from a police barracks in the west-end. Thomas Doherty was beaten unconscious after gunmen lined him and five companions against a wall in another part of the city.

Families in a wide section of the west-end tumbled from their beds in terror when the mine ripped a large hole in an occupied store near the police barracks where 20 men were sleeping.

The three-storey building was nearly toppled by the explosion. The bomb had been planted against a wall. Dozens of windows were shattered in the vicinity and hundreds of persons came running to the scene.

Authorities said they did not know why Doherty had been singled out for the attack.

A large land mine was exploded on Wednesday at the height of the city's welcome to the King and Queen on a Coronation visit.

STRIKE PICKETS STICK ON JOB

Quiet Week-end Expected as Negotiations Settle Into Deadlock.

Strike pickets again massed shortly after six o'clock this morning to prevent a score of non-strikers going to their work in the Bonner-Worth plant but found their vigilance unnecessary. The plant was closed at 4 p.m. Friday, not to be reopened until Tuesday morning.

Two hundred pickets were on hand in accordance with the determination of the strike leaders to maintain daily mass pickets instead of the skeleton pickets of the earlier days of the strike. With all hopes of immediate strike settlement gone, strikers will concentrate on the objective of bringing all activity in the Bonner-Worth plant to a halt and keeping all workers out, Organizer Alex Welch said.

With few strike activities listed for today, Sunday or Monday, a quiet week-end is anticipated. Regular strike committee meetings were held today and the holding of a general strike rally in the East City Community Hall Sunday evening was announced.

Strikers reported no further word from the Department of Labor or the Dominion Woollens in regard to the possibility of further negotiations and the Industry and Labor Board remained silent as regards the strikers' offer to submit the dispute to arbitration.

A significant development in the general strike situation during the past several days has been the consolidation of the strike leadership following the serious dissention which arose last week. Although no word on the matter was to be obtained from the strike leadership, it is understood Organizer Welch

The bottom picture shows how the girls joined hands to form a picket chain in front of the plant. In the middle of the road can be seen the police squad while back of them can be seen Alex Welch, textile organizer. The bottom scene shows one of the most exciting incidents of the affair. 8 Badly Injured As Box-Cars Roll Down Steep Bank

97 MILES FROM SUDBURY.

SUDBURY, Ont., July 31.—(CP)—Eight transients were killed and eight others seriously injured early today when a transcontinental freight train was derailed on the Canadian National Railways main line, 97 miles northwest of Sudbury. Names of the victims were not known.

As they sat in box-cars, surrounded by lumber from British Columbia, the fast freight suddenly lurched from the tracks. Eight cars tumbled to the bottom of a deep incline beside the right-of-way.

Wreckage was strewn along the tracks for a quarter-mile, but the broken bodies of the killed and injured were nearly all found in or near the box cars which rolled down into the ravine. It was estimated the fast, east-bound freight was travelling at 50 miles an hour when the derailment occurred.

All Traffic Tied Up

Conductor Alexander Stewart of Capreol, Ont., was in charge of the train. The engineer was James McGee, also of Capreol. All train movement west of Capreol was suspended while auxiliary crews were rushed by the C.N.R. from Capreol, 75 miles of the wreck scene.

The crews started work before daybreak clearing the littered right-of-way of wreckage. Rails, torn and bent for hundreds of yards, were replaced. East and west-bound passenger trains will be delayed many hours.

The section where the derailment occured is heavily wooded. Nearest flag station is Kawa. Railway officials said the company's telegraph wire service from Gogama was disrupted. It was expected to be resumed shortly.

Bad Wrecks Since 1920.

First recorded Canadian railroad wreck in 1857 took 70 lives at the Desjardins canal. Wrecks in recent years were:

1920—Corbeil, Ont., rear-end collision, nine killed.

May 5, 1937 — Springhill, N.S., Ocean Limited derailed, four killed.

July 27, 1937—Budbury, train hits passenger car, five killed.

Nebraska's Hoppers Big Enough For Mail

Des Moines, Ia., July 31 (AP). A STORY of a grasshopper big enough to double for a carrier pigeon was told by a janitor in a downtown building.

The janitor noticed the grasshopper apparently exhausted on the sill of an eighth floor window. Tied to it was a crumpled piece of paper with the following words written in pencil:

"Nebraska grasshopper, county," and the rest was torn off.

Returned to its place on the sill, the hopper hopped into space, still bearing its cryptic message, and headed for an unknown destination.

CHINESE TROOPS MAKE NEW STAND TIENTSIN STATION

BATTLES AROUND PEIPING.

TIENTSIN, July 31 (AP).—Fighting broke out at the Central Railway station, in the heart of Tientsin, today as Japanese troops attempted to clamp complete control on the commercial gateway to north China.

New hostilities started when Japanese forces attacked a Chinese unit which still held entrenchments nearby despite two days of bombardment of the city by the Japanese batteries.

An earlier barrage of shells had brought no reply from Chinese guns. This had led to the belief Japanese domination of the city was complete.

At the same time Japanese reports asserted their army had advanced down the Hankow-Peiping Railway line south of the ancient Chinese capital to a point 18 miles beyond the city's walls, to tighten Japan's grip on the central region of the northern provinces.

The spearhead of the Japanese advance thus reached Liangsiang, three miles south of Changhaintien, on the vital railway line linking Peiping with central and southern China.

Aircraft and artillery were said to have opened fire against Chinese forces entrenched in the hills west of Peiping.

(Peiping dispatches told of guerilla warfare raging west and northwest of the city as troops retreated before Japanese machine-gunners. Fighting between 2,000 Japanese troops and the 37th Chinese division was also reported northwest of Peiping).

Nanking Troops Approach

Reliable reports from Nanking, seat of China's government, declared that the vanguard of Central Chinese troops moving north toward the trouble zone had reached Lulliho, only 30 miles south of Peiping.

If the reports were accurate, the Chinese movement northward would place the vanguard only 12 miles from the Japanese army penetrating southward and might presage a serious clash between Nanking forces and the Japanese.

The Nanking regime thus far has remained aloof apparently from the Hopeh-Chahar trouble and its future policy has been veiled in secreacy.

Chinese sources asserted Japanese planes flew out of Tientsin to Paotingfu, 80 miles southwest of Peiping, yesterday and bombed troop concentrations there. It previously was reported some 50,000 Chinese were massed near Paotingfu to reinforce the forces engaged in the northern fighting.

DIVORCE LEGISLATION.

Senator Hints Action To Be Taken At Next Session.

SASKATOON, July 31 (C.P.). — Likelihood that legislation to widen the grounds for divorce in Canada, similar to that recently enacted in Great Britain, will be brought before the Canadian Senate at the next session was expressed here by Senator W. M. Aseltine of Rosetown. Senator Aseltine said a Bill, possibly framed after the British measure, probably would be recommended to the Senate by its Divorce Committee.

DOUBLE SHOOTING CLIMAXES FRACAS

Once Famed Flying Trapeze Artist Wounds Ex-Wife, Then Suicides.

LONG BEACH, Calif., July 31 (AP).—A marital squabble and five pistol shots spelled the end today to the sensational career of Alfredo Codona, once internationally known "daring young man on the flying trapeze."

Codona, 43, only circus aerialist ever to do the difficult and hazardous triple somersault, yesterday shot and seriously wounded his divorced wife, Vera Bruce Codona, 32, and killed himself. Mrs. Codona's mother was the only witness.

The couple was at a lawyer's office to discuss division of their property. The lawyer had stepped outside at Codona's request.

Codona was star performer of "The Flying Codonas," family troupe which made several world tours.

Accidents killed Codona's second wife, Lillian Leitzel, and ruined his own trapeze career.

In 1933 Codona so seriously injured his shoulder in an act in New York that he never was able to make a comeback.

Codona had been in the garage business here recently, although he appeared in three films, once as a double for Johnny Weismuller in a "Tarzan" picture.

In addition to Millard, Miss Jean Blair of St. Catharines and Mrs. J. and Miss M. Graham of Oshawa were treated for minor hurts. Millard was returning from Windsor at the time. The car was a complete wreck.

NEWPORT, R.I., July 31 (AP).—It cost anywhere from $6 into the millions to see two swift yachts race today off Newport, but rich and poor alike had the same problems.

They were—perhaps in order of importance:

Chinese Fail To Cultivate Taste So Canada Loses A Cheese Mart

Orientals Do Not Like Either Flavor or Odor Trade Official Writes.

FOREIGNERS ONLY BUYERS.

OTTAWA, July 31.—(CP)—Export of Canadian cheese to China has fallen off in the past few years for the good reason that the Chinese do not like it.

"Cheese, a product of the western world, has not found favor among the Chinese, who do not care for its odor or taste," writes H. A. Scott, Canada trade commissioner to China, in the current issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal.

A few foreign-educated Chinese have acquired a liking for the product but "broadly speaking, however," Scott writes, "the consumption of this product has so far been confined to the relatively insignificant foreign population living in treaty ports."

Imports of cheese into China in 1936 dropped to 220,155 pounds from 387,842 in 1935 and 471,296 in 1934. Of these totals Canada is credited in 1936 with 15,728 pounds against 18,816 in 1935 and 33,138 in 1934.

Scott's article was prompted by periodical inquiries from Canadian exporters.

Brigand's Writings Win Him Freedom

WARSAW, July 31 (CP-Havas).—Serge Pasecki, ex-smuggler and brigand, yesterday proved the pen is mightier than prison bars.

Pasecki was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment in 1926. During his years of imprisonment he wrote a fantasy entitled "The Lober of the Great she-bear." He sent the manuscript to a newspaper and it was published in the press.

It won immediate acclaim and a flood of letters requesting that Pasecki be liberated soon deluged President Ignace Moscicki. A pardon was signed yesterday.

Nabbed As Horse Thief Farmer Uneasy Lest Crown Gets Away With His Bail

London, Ont., July 31.—(CP. HUSKY James R. Steel, farmer from the fourth concession of West Nissouri township, doesn't exactly distrust Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw's court officials, but he would like to get his hands on the $100 he handed out as bail money a week ago.

Charged with horse theft, Steele said to Magistrate Hawkshaw Friday: "I plead not guilty, but first of all, I'd like to have my bail money. You said I could have it when my case was called."

Court officers recalled how a week ago, Steele hesitated long over the signature of a $100 check and demanded assurance that the money would be returned before he signed his bail.

You'll get your money back. Just sit down," the Magistrate told him.

Then the name of John Daly, neighbor of Steele, from whom it is alleged the horse was stolen, was called. Daly didn't answer. At the request of the Crown Attorney, the case was adjourned for another week and Steele was week ago. Steele hesitated long ov-

"Well, can I get my bail money back now?" he asked.

He was told he could have it back, but that he would have to stay in custody if he took it. He agreed that the bail should stand.

Coronation Whirl 'Gets' London 'Everyone' Holiday In August

First Week-end of Month to See Fifty Million Train Journeys Alone.

OUT TO SEE THINGS.

LONDON, July 31. —(CP)— A post-Coronation-pre-August fatigue has London under the eyes and between the arches. All that shouting and tramping of May is beginning to tell, and a nation that doesn't take its holidays until August—and then packs them in in the mass—is conscious July has been a long, warm month.

August is measuring itself for a great blow-out. Facts and figures indicate more people will travel more places and do more things this August than ever before.

The easy-going Englishman may be shy of statistics but he can't overlook the announcement 50,000,000 train journeys will be made over this week-end—The August bank holiday. Even if you cut that in half to allow for coming and going it still represents a good bit of travelling.

Something There.

That same shy Englishman had his eye opened in May and is out to take a look around. So many nice things were said about him and his country that, "Dad sir, we must have something." And while he's

HOWE BLAZES TRANS-CANADA TRIP, 17 HOURS

Not An Uneasy Moment All the Way Says Minister Arriving in Vancouver.

TAKES PARTY OF FIVE.

VANCOUVER, July 31.—(CP).—Hon. C. D. Howe and five other aerial trail-blazers rested here today from the flight they started early yesterday in Montreal and ended 17 hours and 11 minutes later at Vancouver's sea island airport.

From dawn to dusk the Dominion Transport Minister and his party flew eastward over the surveyed route of Canada's projected coast-to-coast airline.

"I don't think any of us had an uneasy moment all the way," Mr. Howe said as he stepped from the big all-metal plane. "But I'm mighty glad I don't have to turn around and go right back again."

Scarcely had he been welcomed by Mayor G. C. Miller of Vancouver than Mr. Howe was engulfed in a circle of old friends.

Behind him were his companions of the flight—Commander C. P. Edwards of Ottawa; H. J. Symington, Director of Trans-Canada Airlines; Squadron Leader J. H. Tudhope, pilot; John Hunter, Vancouver; co-pilot; and Engineer Lou Parmenter, of Ottawa.

Mr. Howe was spokesman during the first few minutes. He clambered down slowly, hand extended to Mayor Miller.

Facilities Ready By Fall

"Thank you, sir," he replied to the mayor's congratulations. "Glad to be here."

Speaking later from the office of William Templeton, airport manager, Mr. Howe said ground facilities for Trans-Canada Air Lines would be ready by the autumn. He did not say that actual service will be started by that time.

But after reviewing briefly the work already accomplished by his department in preparing for regular passenger flights on the Montreal-Vancouver lap of the coast-to-coast route, he said:

"I was interested in reproducing conditions under which the Trans-Canada Air Lines will function when it comes into operation at, we hope, a not too distant date."

Mr. Howe said it was this opportunity to study conditions of actual operation that was his principal reason for making the flight.

His foremost impression, he said, was the "tremendous amount of work involved in building an aviation route across Canada."

He said 100 airports had been built between Halifax and Vancouver, spaced less than 50 miles apart.

"Such a trip adds wonderfully to the knowledge of Canada possessed by anyone who may take it," he said, tracing his trip over Ontario with its industries and mining fields, Manitoba and its fine crops, Saskatchewan's southern drought-devastated farmlands, Alberta and the mountainous terrain of British Columbia.

DESTITUTE FAMILY SHIFT IS HELD UP

Saskatchewan Protests—Aberhart to Work Out Satisfactory Agreement.

EDMONTON, July 31 — (CP). — Movement of destitute families from Saskatchewan to Alberta will be checked until a satisfactory arrangement is made between the two provinces, according to announcement by Premier Aberhart.

The Alberta government already has protested to Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan over his government "moving to Alberta people who were receiving relief," said Mr. Aberhart.

"A situation is arising which deserves the notice of the people of Saskatchewan and Alberta," said the premier.

"Many requests are being received by the department of agriculture, the department of municipal affairs and the bureau of relief, requesting the province to give permission for Saskatchewan residents to move to Alberta under the various relief projects.

"The majority of these people have been receiving relief in Saskatchewan, as well as fodder, seed grain and other agricultural assistance.

"Already we have notified the premier of Saskatchewan objecting to his government moving to Alberta people who were receiving relief but advising him that we were quite prepared to enter into negotiations with a view to making some satisfactory agreement.

"As there have been a considerable number of families arriving from Saskatchewan, many of whom are destitute, I feel it is necessary to give some publicity through the press bringing this decision to the attention of those concerned.

"It will be necessary that the families moving by relief assistance into Alberta must return to Saskatchewan, as assistance will not be available in Alberta until such time as the government of Saskatchewan makes arrangements with Alberta that will be satisfactory to both provinces," said the premier.

PUBLIC MEETING PICKS MEDIATORS STETSON STRIKE

Two Men Will Interview Head Officials in Philadelphia as Citizens Take Hand.

UNION FIRMLY OPPOSED.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 31 (CP).—W. B. Reynolds, a director of the strikebound plant of John B. Stetson (Canada) Limited, and J. Gill Gardner, of Brockville, were selected last night as delegates to interview the strike situation with officials of the company's head office in Philadelphia.

They were selected at a public meeting called by the committee of Local 74 of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' international union. When they would go to the United States city was not indicated.

A citizen's committee composed of Donald E. Lewis, K.C., Hon. H. A. Stewart, M.P., and George T. Fulford, M.L.A., formed in an effort to open negotiations to end the five-weeks' old strike, reported last night it had made little progress. It said the company was firm in its stand it would not recognize the union.

Herman Finklestein, a union official, made reference to a proposal issued this week by the company as a basis for negotiations with its employees. He said it contained practically the same conditions of settlement issued shortly after workers struck June 26.

The company's proposal issued to its employees, said in part: "We would like to discuss with any representatives committee you elect, wages, hours and working conditions. We ask only that the committee be made up of our employees and that they meet us as a committee representing the employees on strike and not in another capacity."

JUDGE SANCTIONS GATINEAU PLANS

Finds Shareholders in Majority Used Good Judgment in Exchange Move.

TORONTO, July 31.—(CP)—Proposed compromise and arrangement for first and second preferred and common stock shareholders of Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation, Limited, Ottawa, to exchange their stock for preferred and common shares of Gatineau Power Company, Limited, was sanctioned by Mr. Justice C. P. McTague at Osgoode Hall.

The plan had been approved July 15 at a meeting of shareholders at Ottawa. Application of the company to Mr. Justice McTague for permission to put the plan in operation was made Thursday and argument continued Friday.

Mr. Justice McTague said while there was no question holders of six per cent first preferred stock of the Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation would be making a sacrifice, he could not find that the vast majority of those shareholders did not exercise good judgment in deciding to exchange their stock in the holding company for stock in the operating company and in voting for the plan.

He replied to a contention he had exceeded his powers in approving the form of proxy to be used in connection with the stockholders meeting July 15 and appointing a chairman and secretary for the meeting. He had felt there was some duty on the Judge to supervise procedure and had never seen anything unfair or unreasonable by so doing, he said.

CANADA SLIPPING IN DRIVER'S SEAT ON WHEAT EXPORTS

New Crop Year Opens With Harvest of Only 85,000,000 Bushels Predicted.

RYE PRICES SOAR TO $1.60.

WINNIPEG, July 31 (CP)—Wheat quotations on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange concluded the 1936-37 crop-year in a price slump this week, placing futures 17-1¼ cents lower than the seasonal highs established July 17.

The new crop year opens tomorrow with brokers forecasting Canada would be removed from the driver's seat as a wheat exporter. Some estimated that Canadian wheat exports in the new crop year would not exceed 85,000,000 bushels.

With prices irregular and foreign demand for wheat light, values closed the week's trade Friday 4¾-3¼ cents down, July at $1.40⅝, October $1.32⅞-$1.33 and December $1.29¾.

Actual export business in the week was reported around 2,000,000 bushels, partly for November and December shipment.

Brightest feature of the market was the spectacular movement of July rye which ended the week seven cents night at $1.60 a bushel—almost $1 above last year's price. With only 179,000 bushels of rye in store at the lakehead, eagerness to purchase the grain to fill July contracts sent the price to its highest level in more than 12 years.

Traders said they did not remember any rye price fluctuating as much as 20 cents above the highest current wheat future in the last 10 years. But July rye at $1.60 was nearly 20 cents above July Wheat.

A private estimate of the spring-wheat crop in the United States placed the prospective yield 43,000,000 bushels lower than a government forecast early in July. The estimate of 175,000,000 bushels was said to have been set due to rust damage in the north-western States.

ROCK SLIDE GIVES PASSENGERS THRILL

Mud Hits Coaches, But Engineer's Burst of Speed Saves Tragedy in Mountains.

CALGARY, July 31—(CP)—Passengers of a special train told how they obtained a ringside view of a slide of rock and mud as it broke from a mountain to cover railway tracks to a depth of 40 feet. The train carrying the passengers, members of the American Express Banner Tour, passed through Calgary Thursday night.

They said they rumbled over a section of track three miles east of Field, B. C., just as the first pieces of rock and mud slithered down Mount Stephen.

Apparently the vibration of their train, being pulled uphill by three large mountain engines, started the descent of the mass from the huge, crumbly mountain, passengers said.

Applying all possible speed engine crews were able to pull the lengthy string of cars over the danger area with some splatters of mud on the sides of the last few coaches, and a litter of mud and stones in the open observation car at the rear, the only signs of damage.

"Rocks came pounding down on the roof of a snowshed as we were underneath," said Jack Finn of Detroit. "When we looked back we could see small stones hitting the roof and bounding off, while farther up the mountain a huge mass of stone and mud was sliding down."

Inside the coaches confusion reigned," said O. J. Bela, Chicago. "A woman screamed," he stated. "Everybody looked out of the windows, saw the slide, and started to crush into the aisle, scrambling to get to the cars ahead."

Then, with the danger point passed, everyone rushed back to the rear, to watch the main slide.

Sabbath Message For the Shut-Ins

SABBATH MESSAGE
By
REV. E. R. JAMES
Toronto

THE LIFE OF THE LORD TO COME.

Jesus saith unto her: Mary. Mary saith unto Him: Rabboni, which is to say, Master.—St. John 20, 16.

This happened on the first Lord's Day. Our Lord, full of compassion, comes to reveal Himself first to the sorrowing woman.

One of the horrors of the age is that on the Lord's Day there comes death and tragedy to many through motor accidents. The more glorious the weather the greater the number of fatalities. What comfort is there for the sorrowing ones? Christ rose from the dead and ever liveth to reveal some truths of the life of the world to come.

1—There is RECOGNITION. Mary Magdalene is astonished to see the risen Lord. She does not expect Him nor does she recognize Him immediately. There is some change in Him. He has passed through the horrors of the passion and crucifixion. Perhaps His face still bears the marks of suffering. He is risen with His spiritual Body, which is fit to live in the spiritual world. His human body has been transformed, transfigured. But His voice is the same. How true this is to experience. You meet an old friend. You may not recognize his face because of illness or sorrow. But you know his voice.

Bishop Westcott, one of the intellectual giants of the nineteenth century, was asked whether there is recognition in the other world. "Do you think we shall ever know each other till we get there?" was the thought-provoking reply.

The writer's private belief is that when you pass through the valley the Lord Jesus Himself will be with you. Your eyes will see Him and you will be satisfied with His likeness. You will behold His beauty and loveliness. But with Him also will be your dear ones. We are all one body in Christ. As Newman sings:

Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile."

2—A promising young life passes away. "To what purpose is this waste?" you exclaim. One answer is that he takes with him all those gifts and talents unspoiled, unsoiled by this world. You meet a man you have not seen for twenty years. You are disappointed. He was such a promising youth. Those talents have been misused or neglected. But the gifted lad passing into the other life develops them in the Paradise of God.

The life of the world to come.

We shall not stand still in that other world. It will be a life of progress and development. This should inspire us to develop our gifts and talents. Let us cultivate loving thoughts, generous acts, charitable gifts, laying up treasures in Heaven for the Lord's service.

3—There is a renewal of FELLOWSHIP.

Our Lord revealed Himself first of all to His Apostles and disciples to convince them that He was indeed risen from the dead and liveth for evermore. "They preached Jesus and the resurrection."

But the human heart of Our Lord desired fellowship with His beloved Apostles. "He loved His brethren, and loved them unto the end." He had much to say to them. During those forty days He spake to them of the things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. There were misunderstandings to be cleared away.

Fellowship is the very essence of our personality. "It is not good for a man to be alone." It must also be the essence of the life of the world to come. In the Paradise of God they see things with larger eyes. They understand us better now.

Moreover, fellowship is the very heart of God's revelation of Himself as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. As we think on these things we say, with deeper feeling: "I believe in the Communion of Saints."

"Now therefore we are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God."

God Leads a People

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 1 is Exodus 13: 17-15:21, especially 13: 17-22; 14: 10-15, the Golden Text being Isaiah 58:11, "The Lord will guide thee continually.")

ISRAEL'S redemption from Egyptian bondage is typical of our redemption from the bondage of sin. God leads his redeemed hosts over a highway of salvation even as he opened a way for Israel through the sea.

The Safe Way

The short cut from Goshem to Canaan might have been made in a journey of 10 days. But this would have taken Israel through the country of the war-like Philistines. They were not yet ready to meet such warriors. They would have become discouraged and returned to Egypt. So God led them by the safer way southward where the Red sea would cut off return to Egypt. So as God at times closes a way to us it is but to open to us a better and safer though it be a longer and more difficult way.

"Lead Kindly Light"

"And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night: he took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people." And to us he says, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." His kindly light still leads amidst encircling gloom.

"The Salvation o fthe Lord"

"Fear ye not, stand still and see the salvation of the Lord," said Moses to God's people in the day of their redemption. We, too, may behold in it our own redemption in type and parable.

There is first PURSUIT: our spiritual foes will no less let us go without PURSUIT than did Pharaoh in the case of Israel: "The Egyptians pursued after them" (verse 9). So Satan tries to reclaim us. In Israel's case there was PANIC: "And they were sore afraid" (verse 10). But there is never need of panic if we are in the way of God's leading. What we need is faith in the PROMISE of God: "Stand still and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will show to you today. . . . The Lord shall fight for you and ye shall hold your peace (verses 13, 14).

"That They Go Forward!"

There comes a time, when nothing but action suits God, when we must PROCEED in the way he leads us: "The Lord said unto Moses, wherefore cryest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward." Up to a certain point we must ask God, and after that we must tell people. When God says, "Forward! March!" even prayer may not delay, we must proceed. In all of this God has a PROGRAM in which he knows the end from the beginning: "The children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea"- (verses 16-18). In this program God provides PROTECTION for his people: "The angel of God, which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them" (verse 19). Thus God always stands between us and our foes. Furthermore he exercises his POWER for our deliverance: "And the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind" (verse 21). He also metes out PUNISHMENT upon his foes and ours: "for the Lord fighteth for them against the Egyptians" (verse 24). The object of it all was the PRESERVATION of his people: "Thus the Lord saved Israel that day . . . . and the people feared the Lord, and believed the Lord" (verses 30, 31). And the result was a great hymn of PRAISE: "Then sang Moses and the children of Israel this song unto the Lord" (15:1-22).

Earl Jersey Weds Virginia Cherrill

Lord Jersey's divorce from his first wife became absolute 11 days ago. Miss Cherrill is the former wife of Cary Grant, film star.

The bride is 29 and made her name as the blind flower girl in Charlie Chaplin's "City Light." She said she would leave the stage and settle down "to be a good housewife."

A National Message

Let us now turn to our Lord's description of the Kingdom in Matt. 13, 44: "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto treasure hid in a field; the which when a man hath found, he hideth, and for joy thereof goeth and selleth all he hath, and buyeth that field."

Thus we see that the especial treasure of the Lord is His people Israel. His Kingdom nation, and that the treasure is hid in a field.

Where is the field in which the especial treasure of the Lord is hidden? Mark you the church is a city set upon a high hill which cannot be hid.

In II Samuel chapter 7, we read of the place in which the treasure shall be hidden:

"Moreover, I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetimes."

In Rev. 12, Israel is described in symbolic language as: "A woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and a crown upon her head of twelve stars. . . . And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred and three score days."

Thus we see that the Christian nation Israel went to her prepared place, prepared of God, and was fed there in seclusion for the appointed time of her hiding from the face of the dragon.

The appointed place is the place of Israel as related in II. Samuel, and in Revelation, and elsewhere.

This is the treasure hid in the field, the Kingdom nation, and the field is the appointed place occupied by Israel for twelve hundred and sixty years. This is none other than the Isles of the north and west—the Islands of Britain.

The treasure of the Lord is hidden in these Isles, and therefore we are certainly right when we say that the place of the hiding of His Kingdom nation is the secret place of the Most High.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

Another aphorism of the Ancient Wisdom which the neophyte finds hard to grasp is the command to "Kill out desire of Life." Jesus amplified this when He taught that he that loveth his life shall lose it and he who layeth down his life shall find it. This sounds very cryptic but the saying is true and based on sound principles. The great difficulty of the neophyte and indeed of all men is that they find it impossible to distinguish between the moral and the immortal sides of their being. It needs a high state of spiritual unfoldment to separate the "I" from the true Divine centre.

People speak glibly of the soul, but know not of what they speak. They invariably confuse the emotional side of their subjective selves with the True Light of the Christos, and mistake the glamorous illusions of the astral condition for the White Light of the Cosmic. Hence the growth of the more uncontrolled emotional religious sects. If one loves his life, whether it be his moral life, or his astral life, his consciousness will tend to centre in that life; therefore, when that life comes to its natural end the consciousness associated with it ends likewise. It cannot be too often repeated that conscious immortality is of God and not of man while everything in a sense is eternal, e.g., the life force and the forces of material substance that form the elements, yet these are always changing in their manifestations and there can be no true immortality without a continuity of consciousness. We see that in ourselves. From birth to death there is a continuity so that while our personalities change during life yet we are in a sense the same, but how many of us are conscious of existence before they were born? It is absolutely certain that we did exist before with but as we are not conscious of it, it is as if it were not so. Yet the rare individual who has centred his consciousness in the eternal can look back upon many ring of the ladder of life up which he has so painfully toiled.

To know immortality we must lay aside our worship of self and selflife and centre our consciousness in God. To the extent we do this, so do we lay down our life and find the greater life. So that to kill out desire of life is the highest wisdom. Psychology has said much about the extrovert type and the introvert, but nothing about the God centred folk, who, as far as their selves are concerned pursue the Middle Way, neither extrovert or introvert, neither centred on the outer things or inwardly on their own selves, but who rest in God indifferent to either the praise or blame of this world.

Palestine's Chief Public Enemy Seen Behind Split Of Holy Land

Has Organized Resentful Arabs For Well-Planned Attacks On Jews

AND BRITISH ALSO

By Max Lehus.
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

JERUSALEM, July 31 — Britain has made its mind to divide Palestine into three parts—Jewish, Arab and British neutral corridor—in accordance with a report of a royal commission sent there after last year's riots.

Britain is somewhat reticent concerning the actual reason for this splitting up of Palestine. The Arab-Jewish riots of last year have not been the only disturbances since the beginning of Jewish large-scale colonization following the world war.

Attack British.

But last year's turmoil differed radically from earlier disturbances. Whereas formerly there has been rather unorganized attacks by the Arabs upon the Jews, this time Arab irregulars dared open attacks on the British military, something that has never occured before. These raids were organized and executed by Palestine's public enemy No. 1, Fawzi Bey Al Kaoukji.

If the British plan to isolate Arabs and Jews in Palestine materialize, it is because of Fawzi. For this professional terrorist has taught the Arabs all the methods of guerilla warfare. Only by complete segregation of the two racial groups do the British hope to control the situation in the Holy Land.

Fawzi's career reads like fiction. Of medium height, dark complexion and military bearing, he was born 38 years ago in the city of Tarabulus, Syria. That made him a Turkish subject and, after graduating from the Officers' War college at Constantinople, he served in the Turkish army during the world war and was decorated for bravery.

After the armistice Fawzi returned to Syria, which had become a French mandate, and accepted a position in the intelligence service of the Syrian police. But in 1925 the Druzian tribes under Sultan Atrash rebelled against France and Fawzi promptly joined up with them.

Soon the rebels were mopped up by the French. Fawzi and his band were almost caught, but got away. A death sentence by the French awaited him, and a price was put upon his head.

Escapes Again.

Jobless, Fawzi turned to Hedjas, ruled by King Ibn Saud. For a while he was a member of the Saudi Arabian police and served Ibn Saud as military adviser. Then, in 1929, a tribal chief rose against Ibn Saud and Fawzi joined the rebels. The mutiny was easily quelled by the king and Fawzi was sentenced to death. But again he made good his escape.

Next he turned to Bagdad. Here, King Feisal gave him a job as instructor at the Bagdad war college, with a commission in the Iraq army thrown in. But such routine living was not to Fawzi's taste. Though by 1934 he had worked himself up to rank of assistant commander at the war college, he took leave of absence that year to fight in the Yemen rebellion against Ibn Saud. The following year he saw some service in the Italo-Ethiopian war, fighting on the side of Haile Selassie's forces.

Then came the Arab riots in Palestine. By August, 1936, raid had been made on Jewish settlements and lone British outposts. These expeditions, however, were ill-prepared, badly executed and easily repulsed.

Just who sold the Arab insurgents the idea of letting Fawzi organize them is something the British secret service would like to know. At any rate, Fawzi came, saw and built up a formidable power from among the poorly trained but fierce Arab raiders.

Secret Operations.

He established secret headquarters in the rocky hills near Nablus, half way between Jerusalem and Nazareth. From here he led organized riots on the British and also established a secret signal system that kept him in contact with other Arab groups in more distant parts of Palestine.

When Gen. John G. Dill, commander of the British forces in Palestine, promised a reward of 500 pounds for Fawzi's capture, the Syrian terrorist body announced 500 pounds as rekard for General Dill's head.

The damage and the political repercussions brought on by Fawzi's campaign were plentiful. Finally, after much loss of life and property on both sides, the Arab kings of Iraq, Transjordania and Saudi Arabia mediated a truce.

Expelled Form Iraq.

The chiefs of the Palestine Arabian nationalists managed to persuade Fawzi to return to Iraq. His mere presence had become an incentive for lawless Arab brigands to raid peaceful Arabian villages "for contributions to Fawzi's cause." But upon his return to Iraq, he found himself persona non grata and was expelled, probably due to England's influence.

Since then Fawzi's whereabouts have been unknown. However, repeated reports from Palestine have it that he is now hiding in the mountainous sections of the Holy Land, harbored by sympathizers and preparing to launch another campaign against the British and Jewish settlers. And in order to beat Palestine's public enemy No. 1 to it the British have now decided to separate the hostile elements once and for all.

Mauled By Lion Ex-Rector Passes

SKEGNESS, Lincolnshire, July 31—(AP)—Harold Davidson, the unfrocked rector of Stiffkey, died Friday of injuries received Wednesday when he was mauled by a lion. He had been delivering a speech from the lion's cage as part of his job in a sideshow.

Davidson died a victim of his penchant for doing strange things in strange places.

Since he was convicted in 1932 of immorality by an ecclesiastical court and deprived of his living he had used unorthodox methods of protest, such as "fasting unto death" in a glass case at a museum.

The immorality charges were made by two waitresses.

Travelling 10,000 miles to see his 96-year-old mother at Kirkcaldy, Scotland, William McGregor of Durban, South Africa, found her unconscious and sat with her until she died.

God Leads a People — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin R. Bell And Alfred J. Sandbach

Scripture—Exodus 13:17-15:21.

After Israel's departure from Egypt Pharaoh decided to force them to return. He pursued them to the Red sea. Here God opened a path for them.

God caused the east wind to blow the waters of the sea away before the Israelites so that they passed through on dry land between great walls of water.

When Pharaoh pursued them into the sea God made his chariots sink in the sand. Then he made the waters return to destroy the Egyptians.

Delivered from their enemies by the power of God, Moses led the children in a song of praise to God for his salvation.

Reverse The Order

This took place in Buffalo, but there is something in it common enough to make it of interest in any section. B. G. Tallman had trouble with his wife and was living apart from her.

The Tallman person went to the home where his wife and daughter were living, and with him went a revolver. He was bent on a shooting expedition.

The man turned the weapon on Mrs. Tallman and she dropped, although she will recover; then he shot the cook and she died. The last movement was to turn the weapon on himself and by that time his shooting had so improved that he died from the first bullet.

Of course passing a law about it would do no good, but something should be done in such a case to cause the gentleman to try the shooting on himself first and leave the women until the last.

The Combine At Work

On the farm of Ernest Oliver, near Thorndale, in Middlesex County, there has been a demonstration given of the combine, a machine which was becoming common enough in the large grain areas of the West during the normal years. It has not been much used in Ontario.

The machine on the Middlesex farm moved through a well-ripened wheat field at a speed of five miles an hour, cut the wheat in five-foot swaths, threshed it, delivered the straw and produced the grain which was running between 30 and 35 bushels to the acre. The machine does away with the use of the binder, the work of setting the sheaves up, the loading and the unloading and the threshing equipment.

The figures of the cost per bushel of threshing wheat by the combine method were not given, but it was stated the machine was more adaptable to large grain areas rather than the fenced-in fields of this province. If one wishes to do so they say it is possible to start drawing the bagged wheat to market a short time after the machine begins operating.

A Wonderful Car

Cars are traded so frequently that when a deal gets a place for itself in the news of the day there must be something unusual about it. From Kelvington, Sask., there came on the wire a story about Louis Simes having traded in his car. Louis, we learn, regretted having to part with his car because it was the second one brought to Canora, Sask., and the bringing in took place 24 years ago. He got it in the spring and that would be a good year and a-half before the war started.

It is said the cushions in the car were as good as new, but we are moved to doubt that. None of the fenders had ever been dented, and that is also a hard one for mental mastication in the interests of truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. No person except Louis had ever driven the car. We take it that Louis has no sons, because no man living could be the sole driver of the family car for 24 years were there any masculine heirs in line.

Then there was something said about the engine in this remarkable car owned and traded in by Louis Simes. Just this: "The engine was still purring like a pussy." We dare say every car dealer in the world has heard that one; we have a notion something like that is spoken in many foreign tongues. In multiplicity of translation it rivals "Brother can you spare a dime."

Louis also added when the historic deal was concluded that the person who got his car of 1913 would never regret it; he would like to see his best friend become possessor of it, certain in the knowledge that no corners would be chipped from the sure foundation of that friendship. And every car dealer in the country will smile and say "Yes, I've heard that one before."

Predicting The Weather

The Examiner was informed a few days ago that the weather reports in this paper were somewhat erratic. One day it called for rain, but the rain did not fall in Peterborough, so the reader who was making the remarks said the Probs had been wrong. On that same day there was no rain at Sturgeon Lake which is about 28 miles from Peterborough, but on a trip from Sturgeon Lake to this city one passed through a strip of territory between Omemee and Fowler's Corners where there had been rain. A few weeks ago we had quite a heavy rain in the city and there was none at Springville, which is only a few miles out of the city.

Considering the size of the territory involved the people who send out weather reports are quite accurate, but when they predict rain they cannot guarantee that it will rain in every section of so great an expanse as that covered by the general heading as "Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley" or the "Lower Lakes Region." But the chances are that in some section of such areas there will be rain. In our district it has never been clearly established whether we are affected by forecasts of the Upper St. Lawrence or Lower Lakes district. We seem to lie in between, and our own idea is that as a rule we get the best there is from predictions of each of these areas.

Judge Rules On Picketing

When workers go on strike they resort to an instrument of protest which may legally be used only within limits set up by law. In striking they are likely to become involved in a struggle for which governments in the role of referee have formed rules that are otherwise known as enactments and legislation.

Men who have been working in factories have no occasion to study strike laws, or any other labor legislation, and yet these rules are in effect, and the people who through their representatives authorized that they be passed and put on the statute books expect they will be enforced.

A group of workers at South Bend, Indiana, believed in their ignorance of the law that as strikers all of them were permitted to put on picketing demonstrations, which became mass threats against other men who wished to remain at work. An injunction against that kind of picketing has been supported by a United States federal judge who restricted legal picketing to "ten men at any one time marching not more than two abreast." Judicial opinion, especially across the border, has shown rather wide divergence in the interpretation of "legal picketing", and they agree everywhere that mass threats of violence or intimidation are outside the law.

And the Judge's further assertion of the law may also have been news to most of the strikers in the assertion of the general statute of rights: "One man may choose not to work and to strike, another to work and to refuse to strike. The one may, by peaceful persuasion, try to convert the other to his view, but he never shall use force, duress, intimidation and violence, and say 'You shall not work'."

Not A Solution

Premier Aberhart of Alberta announces the movement of destitute families from farms in Saskatchewan to Alberta will be checked until there is some definite understanding regarding their future care and the responsibility for that care.

It is said that families which have removed by relief assistance from Saskatchewan to Alberta will have to return as assistance will not be available in Alberta until such time as the government of Saskatchewan makes arrangements with Alberta that will be satisfactory to both provinces.

This is an old question in a larger setting. Municipalities in this province have passed through the experience of having a good many families move within their boundaries in order to better their chances of securing relief. Figures show that seventy per cent. of the people who were receiving relief during depression years in Peterborough were not residents prior to the depression.

Alberta is probably trying to make certain its relief load is not increased, but that does not in any way answer the question or solve the problem of the farmer who wants to get out of the dried-out dust bowl of Saskatchewan and try for something better in the way of more favorable land in Alberta. To tell a farmer who has made his way to the new land that he will have to go back to the old place of hopelessness until two governments talk it over is no solution at all. It is merely inviting a duplication of moving expenses and is solving nothing. We have no powers vested in provincial governments which say that a family cannot move from one province to another. If a man or his family wanted to move to Alberta and settle on a farm or within the shadow of the provincial legislative buildings it could be done. It is possible to understand why the premier of Alberta wants some sort of understanding about families from Saskatchewan taking up farms when they have nothing to carry them along until they get started, but telling such folk they must pick up and get back into Saskatchewan until the method of dealing between two governments has been arranged is not helping things in the least.

Marrying On $18 A Week

Angus Buchanan of Windsor has been doing some figuring and his conclusion is that young folk who get married can live on $18 per week—that is if they love each other. Angus has it all figured out and says they can save $3.66 per month. He allows $15 per month for rent; $22.03 for food and so on.

That is something about which people like to talk. The Examiner asked some of the men whom it was easy enough to locate within short distance of the office what they thought about it. That is, if they believed they could start now and live on $18 per week, or if they had gone through anything similar to that experience at the start. The answers were much the same—they would not care to try it now, but they had started on little enough. Like this:

Number One: He is a merchant today in comfortable enough circumstances but admits he will have to keep on working. "I was a clerk at $14 a week when I was married 29 years ago this fall and I was being fairly well paid then. Rent was $11 a month for a rather small house. I didn't furnish it all at the start because I didn't have the money. Bread was 5 cents a loaf; milk was 5 cents a quart, and if we wanted to put on style then we could get a chicken for 25 or 30 cents. I paid about $7.50 for the first ton of coal I bought. We came through all right, but things are far different today, and I do not know if I would care to try it on $18 a week in 1937."

No. 2: Married 32 years ago; had a family of five and they are all away from home now. Started working in a bank, and quit at the end of two years to enter the office of a lumber company. "When I was married I made $60 a month, and it was in a town of about 5,000 people where we secured a house for $10 a month. I planted quite a garden and that helped, but I remember when we bought a baby buggy and it took us a good three months to get it paid for. Of course there were no cars then, there were no movies and such a thing as stopping in some place down town to get a bite to eat was never thought of. Would I try it today on $18 a week? It might be done, but it would be cutting it pretty thin. If I had to take $20 out for rent from the $60 per month that would leave just about $16 per week on which to run the house and buy the clothes. No; I don't think it could be done."

It serves no good purpose to relate what the others said, because they were in agreement with what the gentleman quoted above had stated. One of them said he had not a word of criticism for young people who were prepared to try it, particularly if the young man were of the type who could expect to make more as he advanced.

May Have To Wait

Fannie Hurst, novelist, returned from Europe to New York, and she started to talk about what the young people in United States were going to do. She also said she wished a good many of them might have opportunity to go abroad and see how people lived in some countries there. Such a trip would end their complaining.

Miss Hurst said the trouble in United States is "We educate them and then cannot use them and that makes fertile soil for unrest." That is true enough, nor can it be changed. A young man may decide to go through for medicine or law, and all over the country young men are making similar decisions. The result is when the young man graduates he finds a great many others doing the same thing, and when he wants to start on his career he finds many others with similar desires. As a result he may find the going hard. There are not enough people who want to buy his services because there are so many others who are offering the same service.

But it has been that way for a long time, and it has generally turned out that the man who has something worth while will eventually find customers for it.

DECISION

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I start planning going away, and figure where I'm going to stay, I get a trifle lost; it sort of spoils the fun for me, to reckon what the price will be, and what it's going to cost.

¶ I put down this for board and feed, and try to reckon what I'll need, so much for getting there; and then I have to have some clothes, some ointment for my sun-baked nose, of socks a giddy pair.

¶ I'll have to wear a sporting cap, so I won't be a run-down sap, I need a line and hook; I need some razor blades and soap, likewise it is my fondest hope, a good detective book.

¶ I need some gas to run the car, the pink sedan may travel far, and tote a heavy load; and I don't want to have to stop, along the way where things are hot, and sit beside the road.

¶ When I start adding figures up, I'm dizzy as a flea-bound pup, I feel inclined to groan; for I'd be better quite a bit, if I forgot about the trip, and just kept staying home.

¶ I can't afford to go away, and spend kale for a holiday, it wrinkles up my brow; but after I have worked and stewed, there's just one thing that I'll conclude—that I'll go anyhow.

PEOPLE walking on the streets in New York and crossing them may consider at times they are in dangerous places. Consider James Osman, 36, of New York. He is a window washer and his work is all on tall buildings. Like others in the business he wears a safety belt with two buckles. Yesterday as James went about his business one buckle snapped and allowed him to dangle over the street beneath. He was afraid to try and swing back for fear the other would snap. But it didn't. And at the time James had been washing windows which were just 24 stories removed from the hard pavement below.

Not right to say that Toronto is beginning to worry about the infantile paralysis situation, although the record so far is not as good as that of last year. Two cases recently reported bring the total to six and there has been one death resulting. Last year up to the same date there had been only one case reported.

Long Time In Deciding.

It is months since the U. S. government started action in the rather famous $3,000,000 tax case of Andrew Mellon. One judge gave his decision months ago, but another has not yet finished his. Claim is made that Mellon's gift of an art gallery to the nation was hastened on the advice of his solicitor, hoping that such a gift would help influence the decision.

The C. I. O. is a new thing and John Lewis finds he has too many free riders on board. They appreciate all they get from higher wages, but they do not see the value in making regular or substantial contributions to bring the strike funds up to the point where they must be maintained. Example: Employees of the biggest steel plant in Cleveland were asked to put 5 per cent. of their pay in the strike chest and the result was a collection of $20.

Fishing Hits All Alike

Its Lure Will Never Die Expense Cuts No Ice.

(From the St. Catharines Standard.)

D. J. Taylor, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries for Ontario made the statement that more tourists invaded Ontario in the good fishing seasons of 1928-1929 than in any comparable period since the birth of the Dionne quintuplets. From the nature of the statement, it is obvious that the Deputy Minister does not propose to let the famous Quints take the lion's share of publicity and credit for the great influx from across the line. Mr. Taylor is right. He has committed no heresy whatever.

Mr. Taylor was an elected member of the Legislature in 1934 and he resigned to take the appointment in the Game and Fisheries Department. Such things have happened before in political life, but not so happily as in the case of D. J. Taylor, who has proven his worth and capacity in every way as an official with very heavy responsibilities. He has a sound outlook in conservation of game and fish, and he has sponsored one of the best autumn shoots in the country, that on Felee Island, when the farmers gain by the great invasion and all other business there abouts gains too.

But to get back to the lure of fishing. It is no respecter of persons. The rich and the poor alike are hit hard. We have seen the former with enough fancy expensive tackle and equipment, plus high-powered boat with guide to catch all the fish in the lake in no time. But the catch in it all is that they don't. They monkey first with one lure, then another. Finally it often occurs, they take the worms the guide has brought with him, do an hour's still fishing and make a good catch of black bass. And are they happy and proud. Expense cuts no ice at all; it is the catch which counts, for which many have burnt up dollars in gas and have travelled far. When it is a good catch, the home town newspaper gets a picture with all the particulars. The Dionne Quints may be the passing rage, or vogue for many tourists; the lure of fishing will never die out in the human breast.

And talking about fishing lures, an article by a scientific expert recently submitted that all the high-colors on spinners, flies, etc., were of no account at all to the fish, which when looking at the bait, had no sense of color at all, just of motion. The colored fly, spinners and spoons were just made to attract the sucker on land. We can neither prove nor disprove this scientific conclusion.

Beetle Attacks School House

Insect Really Voracious Menu Has 200 Items.

(From the New York Times.)

TWENTY-ONE years ago the Japanese beetle made its first appearance in New Jersey. It lost no time in making itself a nuisance and a curse. In half a dozen years or so it covered a territory of 2,500 square miles. Since some time in June it has been raiding New Jersey. It has invaded Westchester and Long Island. Pennsylvania suffered from its depredations years ago. It looks like the pirate it is, gaudy and green, its wing-covers done in copper-brown. Hardly any other pest is so loathsome to the dweller in the country.

Its bill of fare contains 200 or more items. We firmly believe that it has been trying to eat up a Jersey school house; and it is entirely credible that it is actuated not by hunger but by an insatiable desire to do malicious mischief. It tears your roses to tatters. It strips the trees of leaves. It ruins the grass. It loves best your best-loved fruit tree. A prohibitionist, it hates grapes. A new economist, it reduces the corn crop. As befits a savage, it rages especially against shade trees and beautiful shrubs. Underground the larva, the beetle-to-be, is at work on the roots, spoiling the lawn. Underground and overhead it is a tireless destroyer.

Trees can be sprayed with arsenate of lead, but that makes the fruit dangerous. Starlings and even gulls, not at present a common land bird, are said to be fond of the Japanese beetle. We never had the luck to see the Japanese flies and wasps that have been imported from Japan to make away with this undesirable immigrant. As we think of Westchester and Long Island and Jersey we have a glimpse of weary and exasperated men, women and children patiently picking these infamous creatures off their prey and dropping them into a can of kerosene. They poison Summer. Would that some magical incantation could wipe out the whole brood!

Big Appling Latest Craze

Combines Square Dancing And the Modern Swing.

(From the Stratford Beacon-Herald.)

HAVE you met up with the "Big Apple"?

Not the mellow "Yellow Harvest" that is now filling out nicely in the old orchard. Nor the "Red Astrachan" that will a bit later flaunt its colorful appeal. Nor even the "Maiden's Blush" with its nature-rouged cheeks and cidery juice along about October.

Fruit isn't the subject of discussion at all. It's dancing.

Down South in Carolina some university students frequented a negro night club called the "Big Apple"—why so-called we know not.

Watching the repertoire of dances attempted there, the college kids got the recipe for a sort of dance salad. And when they got the steps mixture to their liking, they decided to call it after the scene of its birth. So, like the place of its nativity, the new dance was named "Big Apple."

Now the Southerners are "big applying" from the mountains to the seashore, from dusk to dawn.

It seems that the "Big Apple" is a combination of the old-fashioned "square" dance and the modern "swing"—which, it must be admitted, is covering some territory.

Starts off mildly and sociably. From four to twenty persons form a circle on the dance floor. The music begins in "medium fast tempo." There's a "caller off" who sings out series of fancy wiggles and rhythm steps. These steps are a hodge-podge of such erstwhile favorites as the Charleston, college drags, modern swing movements and negro Harlem's own truckin'.

Hot and lively, we opine. But now and then—though not often, we suspect—the pace slows down into the formal dignity of the Virginia reel!

Let's check it over again. Everything goes into it. First warm, then hot, then cool.

That's it—appleasure!

BACK TO MUTTON.

(Vancouver Province)

THERE is a rumor of occasional splendid mutton to be obtained on Salt Spring and on Vancouver Island. There is no doubt we have the makings of as fine mutton—the most wholesome meat of any—as any country, as fine as South-down or prime Scotch or Welsh. New Zealand, which wants to sell us more of anything that she produces, would like to sell us more of her superabundant mutton.

There is as much difference between mutton and lamb, the oldtimers say, as there is between beef and veal. And with lamb double loin chops at 60 cents—well, perhaps we might return to our muttons, just to see how these things are.

THE ART OF PLOWING

(Windsor Daily Star)

PLOWING is one of the most pleasant, as well as the most important, parts of farming. Provided one has a good team, and the land is free from stone, it is not an arduous task, differing in this respect from some other types of farm work. It is important because good plowing is the basis of good farming. Usually a good plowman is a good farmer, while a bad one is a poor farmer who soon finds his land overrun with weeds. It requires some skill to be adept at the practice. The best plowmen have a natural aptitude for it, and one lacking this can never become perfect. The good farmer knows the proper depth at which to plow his soil, as well as to how to keep a straight furrow.

No matter how good a plowman is, however, he is not going to be much of a success unless he has a well-trained, experienced team. After all, it is the team that does the most of the work, and it is not difficult to keep a straight furrow if possessed of horses that know how to walk straight and pay attention to directions. The horses must also have the proper gait. Anyone who has been kicked on the ribs by a plough handle when the implement is being pulled by a headstrong team knows just what this means.

A SPEED BUG

(London Express)

BEFORE we learned to fly at all our ancestors watched the birds soaring, hoping to learn the secret of flight. They learned little from them because the secret was not to be found in imitating the birds by attaching wings to the arms of men.

Now we have fast aeroplanes, but again we go back to nature to improve them. Down in Brazil there is a small fly, like a honey-bee, which travels at a speed of 600 miles an hour, so scientists estimate. It is only half an inch long and difficult to catch, this fastest living creature. American aircraft designers will study it and hope to get new ideas for building speed "planes."

To the Editor

HE LIKES IT HERE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Want to thank you, and express my appreciation for the copies of your paper that you sent to my Father, and to me this summer. I believe that reading that issue which brought back to me, very forcibly, memories of other very pleasurable vacations in your vicinity, was very largely responsible for my deciding to go back and fish on the Chemong for ten days this summer instead of going to Michigan. And we got fish every time we went out after them, and nice ones too. The kindly interest in our enjoyment and welfare, as evinced by Mr. R. Nurse of RFD 2 Peterborough, out at Fowlers and members of his family, as well as of many others, (I forget the name of the gentleman from whom we rented the dandy little cottage next to Mr. Nurse's Boathouse-Cottage,) and of a Mr. Flood out at Pigeon and many others makes it a real pleasure to have a vacation in Ontario.

I believe that your idea of awakening and holding interest in the locality is a fine one, and to show you that I'll be glad to assist in this, if you care to write and remind me about May First 1938, I shall be glad to send you the names of a few more ardent fishermen, who know how to use artificial bass and musky lures very artistically and who might possibly be glad to learn more through your beautiful illustrations and snappy descriptive matter, of surroundings where game fish can be caught if they are gone out after, and landed if one is reasonably careful to keep that line tight.

There were four of us "Boys" in the crowd this last time and one of the crowd took the little woman along to share the sport. She held her own with the fellows, when it came to bringing in the bass and muskies, and I believe, enjoyed herself as well as anyone who went.

We liked the people, the food, the climate, the sport, the cottages. What more could we have desired? And we again thank you for remembering to mail us a Peterborough paper.

Sincerely,
B. F. CRAIG

NOTHING DONE.

(Timmins Press)

IT is learned," says the Oshawa Times, "that motorists who ignore the courteous gesture of an oncoming motorist who dims his headlights may be summoned for violation of the Traffic Act if a recommendation approved by the Toronto Police Commission is accepted by Queen's Park;" and after making a few pointed remarks about this too common discourtesy, it adds: "We have more than once wondered why nothing has been done to check up on such drivers and force them to realize that they have not the right to drive as they please without regard for others."

The Times is not the only one that has wondered why nothing has been done. Time after time we read about death, injury and damage being caused by—or blamed on—glaring headlights. But nothing has been done about it.

BEGGING PREFERRED.

(Smiths Falls Record-News)

TRANSIENTS are still including Smiths Falls in the itinerary and many of them call at the Record-News for a "touch." According to a local citizen, two apparently healthy young men called at his residence the other morning and asked for money to pay for a breakfast. They were told they would have no difficulty in getting work on a farm if they would accept. They wouldn't do farm work, and proceeded on their begging mission.

Jap Fishermen Halt Salmon Run

Fears that Japanese fishermen may destroy the whole fishing industry in the Pacific waters along the coast of Canada and Alaska by not permitting salmon to reach their spawning haunts, has Canadian and American fishery authorities worried. Huge floating canneries operated by Japanese are reported working the rich fishing grounds which Canadian and American fishermen work on a treaty basis and it is disclosed that the Nipponese have formed an artificial shore line outside the three mile limit in Alaskan waters by use of three sets of nets each two miles in length, which effectively prevent salmon from reaching shore waters. American and Canadian fishermen are permitted only 900 foot gill nets. The photos show a map of Alaska's Bristol Bay, a favorite salmon haunt and of a Japanese cannery vessel anchored in Alaskan waters.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, July 31 (C.P.). — The sight situation in July rye stole the spotlight of trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange by soaring nearly 4 cents to $1.60 a bushel, its highest level in more than twelve years.

July wheat rose 2¼ cents, partially due to export business estimated between 500,000 and 1,000,000 bushels, but final values were ¼ to ⅝ cent higher. Trading throughout the session was generally dull, and apart from selling at the opening offerings were light.

Only a minor portion of the Canadian wheat export trade was reflected in the Winnipeg pit, but the fact that United Kingdom interests were in the market led to a strong undertone. Reliable sources stated sales were made from stocks afloat and supplies in store at European ports.

Liverpool closed firm. Liquidation in July contract left that future 1d lower, but good investment buying in sympathy with drought reports from Australia found other wheat futures around 1d higher. Buenos Aires at noon was more than a cent up.

TRADING LOWEST PAST FOUR YEARS

Only 1,800,000 Shares Change Hands in Five Full Sessions of the Week.

METAL MARKETS ACTIVE.

TORONTO, July 31 — (C.P.). — Volume of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange dropped to the lowest point this week in more than four years as summer dullness still further burdened the market already suffering from four unbroken months of depression.

Only 1,800,000 shares changed hands in the five full sessions of the week, compared with a daily average of 1,600,000 shares in the corresponding week of last year.

While the golds turned in a drab performance, there was some restless churning about in the base metal group with International Nickel leading part of the list to higher ground. The period was marked by general firmness in the London and New York metal markets accompanied by more talk about the prospect of higher commodity prices shortly.

Nickel held 75 cents of a larger gain; Ventures firmed 25 cents, and Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Hudson Bay, Waite-Amulet and Sherritt were unchanged to slightly stronger. Noranda declined $1 and Sudbury Basin lost 20 cents. Interest in the silvers was low and Eldorado took a net loss of 12 cents.

In the golds the widest change was a decline of $1.35 for McIntyre in light trading. Lake Shore dropped 35 cents, Dome 25 and Hollinger improved slightly. Moderate buying resulted in narrow gains for Wright Hargreaves, Teck Hughes, Pioneer, Little Long Lac, Siscoe, Sylvanite and Kirkland Lake.

Weakness was displayed by a dozen of the medium-priced golds. Those showing net losses of 20 cents or less included Pickle Crow, O'Brien, Central Patricia, San Antonio, Hard Rock, Kerr-Addison, MacLeod - Cockshutt, Beattie and Stadacona. Glenora hit the skids in Friday's market on the news that the mine was being closed because of disappointing ore developments.

Selective trading pulled a few of the industrials out of the rut. Abitibi common was the feature on Monday as it sold off in apparent disappointment over the bondholders' plan for reorganization of the company. The price declined $1.65 in active trade. On Wednesday Brazilian claimed the spotlight and keener interest was displayed in the steel group. Dominion Steel and Coal B advanced a point but most of the gain was dropped. Brazilian gained about $1.

Paper stocks came to the front again on Friday with the Great Lakes advancing.

has consented to take a less active part in the executive strike leadership in view of the public attitude toward C.I.O. Welch is, however, continuing as the prime mover in the mechanics of the strike activity and apparently has won again the undivided support of the strike committee.

The strike publicity committee today released a statement commenting on Friday's picketting incidents. In part, the statement follows:

"Yesterday morning, in answer to our call for a demonstration of numerical strength, our pickets at the Bonner-Worth plant took advantage of the occasion to explain to those persons who have been working in the plants the advantageous position of those at present engaged in a valiant attempt to win increased wages and better working conditions. Rather than pause to listen to an explanation of the rallying support of the citizens of Peterborough and an appeal to come over to the side that has won the popular assistance of this city, these persons, either conscience-stricken or acting under instructions, pushed their way belligerently past our pickets.

"Another attempt to persuade, by peaceful means, these persons to join us at noon hour was met by even more forceful disrespect. As far as we are concerned, the action of the police in helping to protect our pickets should not be misunderstood. It is easily understandable that the scare story that brought the policemen to the scene was greatly exaggerated.

"It is unfortunate, in view of the laudable assistance being rendered our strikers by the citizens of Peterborough, that a handful of men should permit themselves to be so misguided that they allow themselves to be used as a butt upon which their advisors would try to alienate public sympathy for our cause."

BETTING RUN 3-2 AGAINST SOPWITH

How to keep straight enough nautical terms to know what was going on and when they'd see it.

After all, the umbrella problem was the one real worry to spectators at the first race in the America's Cup series. For there was a big marine pageant out in the choppy water of the gray Atlantic for all to see, even if they didn't know a jib from a spar, and couldn't see the racers close up.

Six dollars bought a ticket for the show on an excursion steamer, with lunch thrown in. No one actually spent millions in a day to see the race, but there were million dollar investments in yachts along the race course.

Woman Aboard Each

One reward of a close-up view was a sight unprecedented in the Cup series—that of seeing two women brace against the wind on competing yachts.

On Harold Vanderbilt's Ranger was his wife, Gertrude, keeping the log, and on T.O.M. Sopwith's Endeavour II his wife, Phyllis, in white flannel skirt, navy coat and yacht cap, holding a stopwatch.

Sopwith has agreed to meet a delegation from press daily, after each race aboard his $2,000,000 motor cruiser, Philante.

Local bookmakers are laying 3 to 2 against the challenger, for any single race, but this old salt has a hunch Sopwith's boat will be tougher to beat than the first Endeavour was three years ago. This year is already notable for shuffling sports trophies around and it's about time for the law of averages to catch up with the defenders of the America's cup; especially since Americans took the measure of British in both Ryder and Davis cup contests this season.

Stevens To Assist Drought Situation

QUEBEC, July 31 (CP).—Hon. H. H. Stevens, sole member of the Reconstruction party in the House of Commons, returned to Canada Friday from United Kingdom aboard the liner Duchess of Richmond and voiced his intention of extending "sympathetic co-operation" with the Dominion government's problems arising from drought in Western Canada.

The former Conservative minister of trade and commerce had little comment to make on affairs in Canada, and least of all, would-be criticism of the present Liberal administration.

"I do not feel the government should be subjected to criticism," he said, "until they have had time to work out their policies, especially while the drought situation is so terrible." Criticism, he added, "will come later."

Ontario's System Of Signals Voted Best By U.S. Experts

"Try Courtesy" Method Used Here May Be United States' Standard.

SIGNALS EXPLAINED.

A recent national safety survey made in the United States to determine the best method for motorists to give hand and arm signals reveals that the method recommended by the Ontario department of highways is considered the most satisfactory.

In an attempt to establish uniform legislation, W. Laurence Dickey, editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, recently instituted a nation-wide safety campaign in which officials in 48 states were urged to adopt as standard the code of arm and hand signals now used in Ontario. This method, his survey showed, was the simplest and most logical, and the co-operation offered by many state governors and traffic experts indicates that Ontario's system will soon be adopted as standard throughout the United States.

The Highway Traffic Act of Ontario specifies as obligatory only the "left turn" signal. Signals to indicate "stop," "slow," and "right turn" come under the heading of "courtesy," and as such are being strongly recommended by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, in connection with his department's extensive "Try Courtesy" campaign.

He Can't Read Your Mind

A recent publication of the highways department, in discussing recommended methods of giving hand and arm signals, exclaims: "The man behind can't read your mind—SIGNAL!"

Whenever the signal is given by means of the hand and arm, the bulletin states, the driver should indicate his intention to stop or change direction by extending his hand and arm, from and beyond the left side of the vehicle.

In making a left turn, the driver should signal his intention to turn by extending his left arm straight out, then draw as close to the centre line of the street or highway as possible, and turn on a point in the centre of the road which he is entering.

The right turn is properly made by signalling intention to turn and keeping close to the right hand curb line while doing so. Two methods may be used to give the signal—either by extending the left arm upwards or by waving the left hand in a clockwise motion, which simultaneously indicates a turn to the right and signals the driver behind that it is safe to pass on the left side.

"Stop" or "slow" is indicated by extending the left arm downwards, and care should be taken, when approaching an intersection, to slow down several yards, rather than a few feet, from the crossing.

The second bridge party held under the auspices of Group 1 of the Catholic Women's League was held at the home of Mrs. P. J. Anderson at Bradley Bay on Wednesday afternoon. Tables were placed on the lawn for the occasion. After cards the ladies served a dainty lunch and the afternoon proved to be most enjoyable. The prizes were won by Rev. Father McAuley and Mrs. F. Lee.

Miss Audrey McComb of St. Catherines is visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. McComb, Victoria street.

"Try Courtesy" Means "Give A Hand"

FAILURE TO GAUGE SPEED IS REASON FOR MANY MISHAPS

With Cars at Legal Rate Much Can Happen in Few Seconds.

BEST TO PLAY SAFE.

"The car while travelling at a fast rate turned out and passed two other cars going in the same direction and then swerved directly into Professor Squirrel's car throwing it from the highway."

A contemporary points out that it only takes about ten seconds to read the above account of a recent fatal Ontario traffic accident.

In ten seconds it is well to remember that a car travelling at 25 miles an hour will go about 500 feet and a car travelling at 42 miles an hour will cover 616 feet in the same time.

Put another way two machines each moving at no more than the legal speed and 1,000 feet apart would meet at the end of ten seconds if they were moving in opposite directions on the same road.

Judging Speed

These are figures that should do something to help drivers gra.) the potentialities for accidents that lie in a high rate of speed when the man at the wheel fails to judge accurately how fast he and the other fellow are going. When one thinks that in ten seconds two cars nearly a fifth of a mile apart may collide with each other unless both drivers realize the danger, the tremendous importance of learning to gauge speed and of refusing to take chances when you are not sure becomes increasingly apparent. One of the most prolific causes of accidents is to be found in this inability to estimate relative speeds with reasonable accuracy. A driver sees a horse-drawn vehicle ahead of him on the road. Off in the distance is a motor car coming in the other direction. The first driver says to himself, "I'm closer to that buggy than the other car is" and he steps on the gas and swings wide to clear the horse-drawn apparatus and finds when it is too late he under-estimated the other car's speed and there he is, right in its path, with the two machines roaring at each other at top speed. It is a situation and it almost always ends in tragedy, in a disaster that need not have occurred if the driver had realized the danger of not being sure just how fast the other fellow was coming. A good motto is that if you are not absolutely sure play safe.

SUSSEX 'YOKELS' TURN THE TABLES

Jury Belittled By Lord Morris Invited Him to Dinner and He Changes Mind.

EASTBOURNE, England, July 31 —(CP)—Here is the story of how Lord Morris, 34-year-old solicitor, ate his words with a relish.

Attacking inquest procedure in the House of Lords he referred to the jury investigating the disappearance of Frank Vosper, the actor, from an ocean liner as "a band of Sussex yokels."

Then he accepted an invitation from the "yokels" to dine with them and was received by seven jurors in dinner jackets in a room which had for decorations pitchforks, turnips, straw and a wheel-barrow. On a big marrow was inscribed "functus officio" (having performed his duty).

Said the jury foreman "We appreciate very much the sportsmanship of Lord Morris in coming among us. We do not blame him for speaking his mind. I have a great respect for any man—particularly a member of the House of Lords—who has the courage of his convictions."

Said Lord Morris: 'No one has greater admiration for Sussex than I have. But I reserve the right to say what I like in the House of Lords. I am not paid for going there. By blackguarding coroners I am cutting my own throat—it cannot do me any good in my business.

'It was a piece of bad luck—which has turned out to be good luck—that the Eastbourne coroner was so right in having selected the best men. Nine times out of 10 I should have been right. In this case I am wrong."

Drive Carefully And Let Death Take A Holiday!

Most Accidents Caused By Folk Trying To Save Five Minutes

Hurry is Hub of Whole Business According to Experts.

COURTESY WOULD HELP.

(By John T. Courtesy)

I have a few suggestions which ought to cut automobile accidents in this province down about 50 per cent over night—well, anyway, by the middle of next week.

My first suggestion to all motorists is: Drive carefully enough for yourself and the other fellow too, because the chances are he isn't.

The present system is to let the other fellow take care of us — but look at the figures for last year: over 500 killed and more than 10,000 injured in Ontario. That can't be such a good idea. My suggestion is for each of us to take care of himself and one other driver, too. Don't you think it's a dandy plan?

If everybody agreed to this system, we'd have twice as much motoring carefulness and courtesy as we need in the world—instead of half enough as at present.

I've often heard it said that it isn't fast drivers who cause accidents, but statistics gathered by the Accident Recording Division of the Department of Highways upset this glib philosophy with figures showing that nearly 1,200 accidents last year were the result of excessive speeds. So there!

Hurry. There's the hub of this whole accident business. Probably nine-tenths of our automobile accidents are caused by people trying to save five minutes. We rush like mad to get somewhere, and it doesn't amount to much when we get there. Methods of locomotion have improved greatly in recent years, but places to go have remained about the same. If we have an appointment with somebody, the chances are, anyway, that he'll be 10 or 15 minutes late, so what's all the rush about?

Can You Save 5 Minutes?

If everybody in Ontario would resolve to contribute five minutes a day to the cause of automobile safety, we could cut the death and accident toll in two. Five minutes a day. Brother, can you spare five minutes a day?

A little ordinary courtesy would help, too. We are usually pretty peaceful in our attitude towards our fellow man, but the minute some of us get behind a steering wheel, we seem to regard every man as our enemy. We'll be darned if we'll let that fellow pass us or get across the street intersection first. I'd say, Aw, let him pass you or let him beat you to the crossing. So what? You don't have to prove to him that your car has the greatest pick-up in all creation, or that you are the maspihone and Gaston stuff would help us keep folks out of hospitals and cemeteries.

A careful study of tables of last year's motor car death and accident causes shows that a large percentage were the result of unnecessary hurry, carelessness, and lack of courtesy or consideration of the rights and comforts of others. And nearly all of them could have been avoided if every driver had started out every morning with the resolution to drive carefully enough for himself and the other fellow too, and to tax himself five minutes a day for the general cause of automobile safety, and to show his fellow humans just a wee bit of ordinary, everyday courtesy.

OLDSTERS LIKE YOUTH

NEW YORK—(CP)—The older a man grows the younger her wants his bride to be, according to statisticians of a large life insurance company here. But the later a girl marries the more closer to her age is that of the groom.

CAREFUL DRIVER CAREFUL BEFORE HE TAKES WHEEL

TIRES, BRAKES, LIGHTS.

The really careful driver starts in being careful long before he climbs in behind the wheel of his car. That is before he undertakes to drive in traffic he makes sure of the mechanical fitness of the machine he proposes to pilot, and in that way he automatically removes a very potent factor in accidents.

He is especially on his guard to see to it that his automobile is sound in three most vital respects. First he satisfies himself that his tires are good, because he realizes what a blowout may mean when a car is travelling at a fair rate of speed. So he goes over his tires carefully and satisfies himself that they will stand up.

Then he has his brakes carefully tested and adjusted so that they will operate efficiently and effectively because as a careful driver he appreciates just how much depends upon the ability to brake his car speedily and completely should an emergency require a sudden stop. He does not want to find himself in a jam and then be betrayed by a set of brakes that will not work properly when their assistance is needed the most.

Checks His Lights

Finally he makes the same careful checkup of his lights. He does not want to start out on a journey without being sure that the bulbs in all his lights are good, that his head lights are properly focussed and his rear light can be counted upon to keep burning.

With these important features properly inspected and other equipment closely scanned then the careful driver has the satisfaction of knowing that will be handling a machine that will give him every chance for safety provided his driving technique matches the mechanical fitness of the car he is about to drive.

There is no excuse for taking a chance on bad tires, inadequate brakes and poor lights. There are scores of service stations and dealers waiting to supply your needs, the necessary inspection can be readily made and common sense should suggest the vital importance of driving a machine that has no mechanical weakness to add to the ordinary hazards of the road.

The 10 Commandments of Safe Driving

1. Show to others the same courtesy that you would like to have shown you.
2. Keep the MOTOR, TIRES and BRAKES of your car in perfect condition at all times.
3. Never "cut in."
4. Remember that the car on your right has the right of way.
5. Obey every traffic rule. They are compiled for your safety.
6. Never try to race a train to a crossing. Stop—look—listen.
7. Do not pass on a hill or curve.
8. Always carry SPARE HEADLIGHT, TAIL LIGHT BULBS and FUSES.
9. Never stop on the highway—pull free of the right-of-way.
10. Pedestrians—aid all motorists to safe driving. Watch all traffic signals.

FOR SAFE FLIGHT OVER HIGH PEAKS

Britain Sees Air Progress In Adam's Great Altitude Record

LONDON, July 31 (CP).—British aviation experts hail the achievement of Flight-Lieut. M. J. Adam of the Royal Air Force in a new world airplane height of 16,440 metres—approximately 54,000 feet or more than 10¼ miles in the air—as important progress in Britain's systematic study of stratosphere flying.

The Empire's interest in this stratosphere flying is commercial and military. Above 25,000 to 30,000 feet clouds are rarely encountered, and visibility is always perfect, allowing opportunity for full exploitation of astronomical aids to navigation. Further, for many years to come the higher operational speeds will be achieved well above the earth.

"Given secure pressure cabins," says the technical publication of the British Aircraft Constructions, "even passengers may be safely transported at heights above the highest mountain peaks. In war, the successful stratosphere bomber would mean radical changes in aerial strategy and tactics. Defensive problems would become vastly more puzzling if ground observation posts and patrolling fighters were asked to follow the progress of raiders flying six or seven miles high."

In 1934 the Air Ministry placed an order for construction of an airplane suitable for flights at levels of 50,000 feet and over. It was to be used as a high-flying laboratory, to gain experience in operation of aircraft and the working of engines, equipment and instruments in the tenuous atmosphere and the severe cold of the great heights.

This craft, a low-wing monoplane called the Bristol 138, has twice set a new world height record. Last September, piloted by Squadron Leader F. R. D. Swain, it climbed to 15,230 metres (about 50,000 feet), breaking the record set only a month previously by a French aviator.

Slight structural alterations since Swain's ascent included the fitting of smaller wheels to diminish the weight and head resistance, and removal of the wheel brakes to save weight. Flight-Lieut. Adam's record was preceded by six or seven trial ascents in each of which he climbed to approximately 50,000 feet. That experience proved invaluable to the record flight, made in a gale rising high above the earth to nearly 100 miles an hour and with thick cloudbanks hiding landmarks by which he might check his position.

"In the circumstances, the pilot's achievement is outstanding, and deserves to the full the official congratulations on his sustained flying effort," says the aircraft publication.

To end the shortage of servants in New Zealand the Government will be urged to train, pay and hire out a national corps of domestic workers, employers reimbursing the Government according to their means.

RELIABLE BRAKES

Brakes can be a safety factor or a hazard depending on how well they operate. Brakes that do not pull evenly, grab, or only half work should be checked immediately.

RELIABLE MOTOR

The motor is the heart of any car. If it is not functioning properly it may be the cause of any one of many accidents. A few minor and inexpensive adjustments or repairs very often saves many accidents.

GOOD TIRES

The safety of your family, while in your car, depends on how safe your tires are. Tires should be checked regularly and inspected carefully. Let us check your tires for you before taking a trip.

If you are driving

This Week-end

Try Courtesy

every inch of the way

ANOTHER week-end is here and for the residents of many municipalities it includes a Civic Holiday. Traffic will be unusually heavy with the comings and goings of gay holiday-makers. Will the price of this week-end be measured by pleasant memories or by the tragedy of accidents and death on the streets and highways?

The answer is "up to" every motorist. If you will "Try Courtesy" every inch of the way in your driving this week-end you will have done your part to make this an accident-free week-end.

Wait when it seems courteous to do so, and give your fellow-motorist a chance to pull-out, turn or park. Always hand-signal your intention to slow down, change direction or stop. Sound your horn (briefly) when you are about to overtake another motorist. Drive in your own traffic lane on both streets and highways. Where there are children or cyclists always drive with extra caution. Drive at the speed of the traffic you are in and do not "cut in and out" or cause others to do so. Do not jockey with your fellow motorists. It is dangerous to do so and may result in a serious accident.

Be guided by these suggestions in your driving this week-end and thereby do your part to avoid accidents that may injure or kill you or some other equally happy holiday-maker.

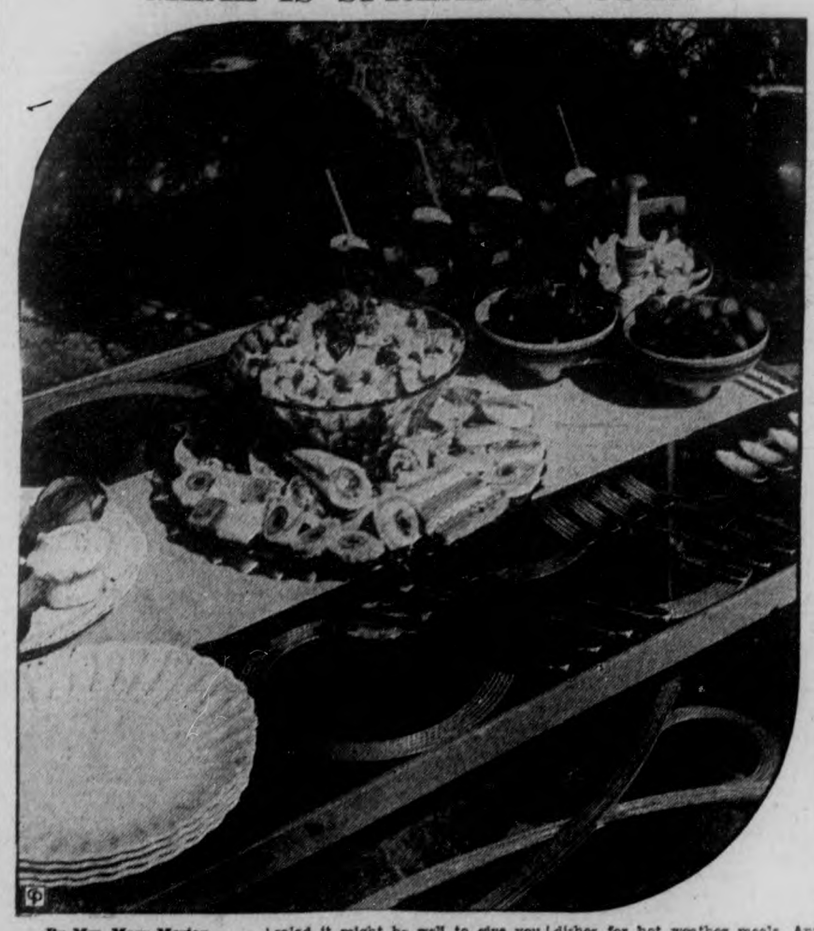
MEAL IS SPREAD IN OPEN



By Mrs. Mary Morton

Are there lagging summer appetites in your family? If so, there is a tried and tested means of overcoming the situation. Lay your supper out doors on the terrace, lawn, or porch and watch the plates come back for second helpings. There is something about the out-of-doors that enhances the attractiveness of the most common food dishes. Eat out in the open as often as possible in the next few weeks. Before you know it the time will be gone and you and your family will have passed up this grand opportunity.

Plan simple menus, but fill the salad bowl to the top and use the largest one available. This is just the time to serve buffet style. Use the brightest linen you have. Table runners or doilies will be just the thing to use in the out door set-up. If you really want to save yourself some work, lay in a stock of paper doilies, dishes and napkins. The new assortment in this line is amazingly attractive, and will add much to your table settings.

You may agree with the old saying, "there is nothing new under the sun", but at the same time you are constantly searching for the exception to the rule, especially when it comes to menus for the family three-a-day. For example, has the potato salad bowl in your home always been just the same? Potato salads make such an excellent main dish for the summer menu, its variations might well be cherished as exceptions to the rule mentioned above.

Bureau Sponsors Potatoes.

In suggesting the use of potato salad it might be well to give you a few facts recently released by the bureau of home economics of the U. S. department of agriculture, to combat any comments from the young daughter, or even the head of the family, who may be laboring under the false impression that potatoes are not the best food in the world for them to eat when they have become conscious of their waist lines.

According to the bureau's report, the potato has for some time been the innocent victim of a widespread notion that it is fattening. Because it is listed among the starchy foods, weight-conscious Americans have come to look on it with suspicion. Actually 78 per cent of the potato is water, with only 11 to 21 per cent starch. One medium sized potato totals 100 calories, but so does one large apple and one large orange. With 3,000 calories, the estimated calorie need for the average fairly active adult man, a medium-sized potato a day could hardly be blamed for any letting out of his belt.

On the other hand a diet without potatoes could be blamed for the lack of some very important and essential food elements. Potatoes are particularly rich in the minerals, iron and phosphorous; it is a fair source of vitamin C, and also known to contain vitamins A, B, and G. Cooking in the skins will conserve the maximum amount of the potato's food value.

Among the following suggestions for the variation of the potato salad you may find a number of good main dishes for hot weather meals. Any one of the following ingredients will make a tasty addition to your favorite potato salad; Red kidney beans; frankfurters cooked, skinned and sliced; diced pineapple; green peas; shredded carrots; chopped sweet pickles; tuna fish; salmon; shrimp; flaked corned beef, or cold boiled ham, diced. Add in the proportion of one cup to each eight servings of potato salad.

CHEESE DRESSING FOR POTATO SALAD—One-half cup thin cream, one cup American cheese, grated, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon dry mustard, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons chopped pimiento, one-fourth cup mayonnaise. Place the cream, cheese, salt, mustard and papper in the top of a double boiler and heat until the cheese is melted. Beat well with a rotary beater. Then add the pimiento and mayonnaise. Chill.

STANDARD POTATO SALAD — Three cups cooked potatoes, diced, one small onion (chopped fine), one-fourth cup green pepper (chopped fine), one-half cup cucumber, diced, one-half cup diced celery, one-fourth cup minced pimiento, one-third cup chili sauce, salt and pepper to taste, mayonnaise. Combine all ingredients with enough mayonnaise to blend well. Chill before serving. Serves eight.

If you care for a jellied potato salad, try using a tomato aspic for this purpose. A teaspoon of prepared mustard added to the dressing for potato salad makes a delicious contrast in flavor.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

I think it rather fine, this necessity for the tense bracing of the will before anything worth doing can be done. I rather like it myself. I feel it to be the chief thing that differentiates me from the cat before the fire.—Arnold Bennett.

Dear Friends:

I have given you some idea of part of our trip, because so many of you seem to like travel articles, and because I want to share things with you. And outstanding about the whole thing is, the goodness of God who had us in the shadow of His wing, so that we two lone women went almost the whole length of New York state and back again without a mishap of any kind, altho' it came near being a tragedy outside of Bewdley with a bad blowout, but there again He was with us.

Naturally I cannot tell you all our experiences in one or two articles, but I will refer to it now and then. We had been told of the excessive traffic over there, and the two days it took us to go were holidays there, yet candidly there was little or no traffic at all.

The two countries adjoin one another, yet there seems to be a difference even in the atmosphere, the air being clearer here, and there scenery not a patch on ours. And it is truly weird the idea they have of our climate.

When we went to the bank to change our money, I asked the manager why he was taking exchange from us when the dollar was above par. (The Canadian dollar). And he said they bout it in at less and sold it out at more! Wasn't that nice of him, to do a thing like that?

You can get gas and oil and water but if you need any little thing fixed they shove you from one to the other, until in desperation you let it go. Candidly the U.S.A. has been greatly overrated and it is time Canada woke up to her own possibilities and advertised more. Canada is, as I have always maintained it to be God's own country, the best place in the world bar none, and I have travelled some.

We went in at one part, and came back another way, but the way we went in is the nicest, with more variety, more to see. Most of the wayside eating places have large signs reading "beer on tap" and in the cities practically every second store has liquor in the windows, yet we saw no drunkenness what ever.

Of course, there may have been some at nights, but we were asleep then, or talking at home. Whether it was the climate or being too tired, I don't know, but my appetite deserted me and I ate very little, but as the heat was intense it was just as well.

Their food is similar to ours, but they have french fried potatoes in cans, beer, wine, and a whole lot of other things canned which we have not got around to yet. You can buy milk in cartons, and the amount of ice they use is amazing, even the poorest buy it.

In the cities, their driving is wild, we think we have some silly drivers here, but not a patch on them. Never a signal do they give, you are supposed to be a mind-reader as to whether they are to turn a corner or not.

The nearer you get to New York City, the higher the prices of clothes and shoes are and anyone who thinks they can buy to better advantage over there at less cost, will be badly fooled as we were.

So very few of the cities have lakes or beaches, and oh how we missed them, for they do lend variety to the scenery. It seems to me that the U.S. scenery got all the mountains while we got all the beauty. Mountains are all right in their way, but you get infernally tired of them when you get too much of them. I shall tell you the names of those we skirted in a later article. We were glad to go, we enjoyed every minute but very glad to get back. More later.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

ROVER SCOUTS HOLDING MOOT AT BALD LAKE

More Than 200 From All Over Province Have Gathered.

A LONG JAUNT.

Two Fort Erie Scouts Arrive Here in Two Rides.

Two-hundred and thirty reservations are listed at provincial scout headquarters of the seventh Ontario rover scout moot which started at Bald Lake, 20-miles north of here today. The moot will last until Monday afternoon.

Two of the scouts who are attending the moot dropped into The Examiner office late Friday afternoon to enquire their way to Bald Lake. A couple of green-shirted healthy-looking young men who had hitch-hiked here from Fort Erie in seven hours flat, they indentified themselves as being Assistant Scoutmaster J. D. Yeo, 2nd. Fort Erie Scout Troop and Scribe C. C. Clouston, 1st. Fort Erie Rover Crew.

The pair were referred to Scoutmaster George Groombridge of this city, and when they suggested they would like to make an overnight stop to see something of Peterborough and its points of interest they were accommodated by their fellow-Scouter in true Scout fashion.

Here On Two Rides

Both young men resented the suggestion they had begged rides here. "We didn't use the thumb, but we got here in two rides," Yeo declared. Leaving Fort Erie at 9.30 a.m. they landed into The Examiner office at 4.30 p.m. Their first lift was from the outskirts of Fort Erie to Port Hope and the second was from Port Hope through to Peterborough.

On 1000 Acre Ranch

The site of the camp where the rover moot is being staged is on the 1,000-acre ranch of James Irwin. It is on an entirely different type of camping ground from any previous moot. The committee headed by Dr. H. M. East, rover leader of the 106th Toronto Crew worked hard to prepare an interesting program and such well-known Ontario men as Professor T. M. Taylor, Provincial Commissioner W. J. Cairns, the Rev. W. G. Nicholson and Arthur Herbert Richardson, all have important parts in the week-end gathering.

The first rover leaders' camp course yet held in Ontario is scheduled for next week, commencing Monday afternoon and continuing until the following Saturday. It is to be held adjacent to Bald lake. A class of 14 rover leaders under the direction of W. L. Currier Jr., assistant Dominion commissioner for training, Ottawa, assisted by Frank C. Irwin and Arthur E. Paddon, of provincial headquarters, Toronto, will consider many problems and topics relative to the rover leader's job in scouting. A unique feature of the course will be that each member of the class will give one lecture as well as taking the course.

STRIKE RELIEF BODY ARE READY TO BEGIN WORK

Members of Committee Are Announced By Hon. G. N. Gordon.

ANOTHER TAG DAY-

The strike relief committee which is to distribute the funds of tag day and the contributions made, is reported by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., as substantially completed. The members of the committee are: The Reverend Father Kelly; Alderman James Hamilton, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council; ex-Alderman Fred Tuggey; Ronald Knox of Knox Brothers Jewellers, and the Hon G. N. Gordon, K.C., member of the City Council.

Those nominated by the employees of the Bonner-Worth and Auburn Mill are: Miss Hortence Terrace, Hugh Pollard, Alex Stephen, T. J. McMurray. There is nearly $1,000.00 in the bank, and large quantities of food are being distributed. The restaurant keepers and hotel men are sending food to the relief depot on Bethune street, opposite the old Grand Trunk Station. The bakers are sending in bread, and everybody seems to be helping, Mr. Gordon says.

The Police Commission will be asked to provide for another tag day and as the C.I.O. is not represented on this committee, it is expected, Mr. Gordon intimates that $1,500.00 can be raised at the next tag day and this is based on reports of business men and others who have that opinion.

Says They Can Hold Out

A large number of young men and women, among them Bonner-Worth employees, have taken holidays, and are visiting relatives and friends in the country, and are working on farms. Several of the married men have taken position with farmers in order to keep their families.

The monies to be disposed will be used under a strict voucher system, and every individual case will be investigated, and no money will be used except in payment of the necessities such as food and occasionally some case of assisting in paying rent. Mr. Gordon stated after he had canvassed the situation among the business men and the committees of the strikers, he was confident the employees could hold out longer than the company, or at least until a minimum wage is fixed by the Labor and Industry Board of the Ontario Government at Toronto.

ANY WAY IT'S A SMART IDEA.

At one of the smarter Kawartha resorts they have a refined, chummy method of salesmanship that seems quite effective. A waitress who could sit across the table any day and add plenty to the scenery says to you in a nicely low pitched voice, "This fish was caught by Mr. Schondelmeyer," a little en famille note that might imply that of course you and Schondelmeyer are buddies, even if he is staying for two months and you just happen to drop in for fish dinner at seven p.m. And so the word is quietly passed around about friend Schondelmeyer's catch, and presently he enters the dining room and gets a big hand from the regulars with exclamations such as "Mr. Schondelmeyer your fish is just lovely. It was really clever" and so on and so forth. And Schonde old pal beams on all the folks, and you get the idea it is just a big happy family, and you're kicking yourself that you haven't a kit bag along to stay till Labor Day with the Schondelmeyer crowd and have a waitress who looks like Irene Dunne at your elbow with Schondelmeyer fish dinners.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, August 1

Sunday's horoscope is a rather conflicting one, with affairs of labor, industry, quick deals and property under fair auspices, but with certain tendencies to rashness, imputting things in jeopardy. Be petuosity, hostility and jealousy cautious with this and also be discreet with all papers and writings.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of some progress if they refrain from impetuous, rash, quarrelsome and jealous activities. These may incur enmity, rivalry and bafflement. Be wise with all manner of papers and be generally discreet. Attend quietly and rigorously to affairs in hand.

A child born on this day may be quick, impulsive, prone to disputes and violence, although industrious, dependable, clever and witty of speech.

For Monday, August 2

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather disconcerting or confusing state of affairs, which may possibly be felt in the purely private interests and associations rather than business or employment, which are under fairly propitious augurles. A change looms and should be profitable.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a fairly active and prosperous years in business and employment, and these may call for an unexpected change, journey or removal. But in intimate matters there is sign of duplicity, intrigue, collusion or entanglements of a mystifying, occult or erratic nature. Be very circumspect in all personal contacts.

A child born on this day may be original, talented, a dependable worker but may have some personal idiosyncracies or peculiarities, possibly demonstrating in its emotional or cultural life.

DENMARK'S FARMS HIGHLY EFFICIENT

High Standard of Products Impresses Ontario Women's Institute Workers.

LONDON, Ont., July 31—(CP). — The excellence of the farming and dairying system in Denmark was the chief impression Miss Edith Zavitz of the Ontario Women's Institutes staff brought back after a visit to the Coronation and a trip through Europe.

Country life naturally interested Miss Zavitz most on her trip, for she is on the staff of the Ontario department of agriculture as a lecturer and knows a great deal about farm life, both in practice and theory. She visited folk schools in Denmark and found these most important. They are residential centres in which boys are trained in agriculture and girls in domestic science.

"Denmark has the English market for butter, cheese and bacon," Miss Zavitz said, regretting this from Canada's viewpoint, but as one versed in farm craft she was full of admiration for the splendid co-operation which has given Danish products so high a standard. This standard is meticulously maintained, she said.

Everything in Denmark impressed Miss Zavitz from the bronze mermaid on the coast near Copenhagen which commemorates Hans Christian Andersen to the folk schools at Odense which was the birthplace of the master story teller. She loved the Danish farms with their lilac hedges and their white houses and barns, so much alike, with thatched or red-tiled roofs, that one must look twice to see which is house and which is barn. She visited Elsinore where thousands throng daily to see the production of Hamlet.

In Germany, she found the many regulations and restrictions wearisome, but was charmed with her Rhine journey between castled shores built up with stone terraces to hold the vineyards. "They tell me the hill-side grapes make the best wine," said Miss Zavitz, housekeeper, as well as tourist.

Craft exhibits interested her because she is a teacher of many crafts. She saw pillow lace and tapestry made in Belgium. She saw with satisfaction what Germany has done in the way of reforestation, and learned in Amsterdam how many weeks it takes to drill through a diamond. She saw many diamonds but regretted that she reached Holland too late to see the tulips in bloom.

Boys In Ashburnham Boosting Exhibition

Ten small boys in Ashburnham have become boosters of the Peterborough Exhibition with daily parades in the business section of the community across the river. They carry banners declaring that they deal only with merchants who distribute tickets for the drawing of the four automobiles. It is also reported that they bought one store's stock of all-day suckers.

"The Exhibition people should have those kids over 'town," George Stevens told The Examiner. "And the best of it is they got the parade up themselves and the whole thing is so natural it makes a big hit."

GREATER POWER IS BEING USED REPORTS SHOW

COMPANIES TAKE MORE.

Reduced Rates Have Been Approved By Ontario Hydro Commission.

Consumption of power in Peterborough increased during June in both the domestic and commercial services, and both the Canadian General Electric Company and the Quaker Oats Company boosted their purchases from the Utilities Commission, R. L. Dobbin, manager, reported at Friday afternoon's meeting.

The number of kilowatt hours sold by meter for domestic lighting in June, 1937, was 343,375 as compared with 316,004 in the corresponding month last year, the rate of increase being 8.6 per cent.

Commercial lighting was up 18.6 per cent from 244,664 kwh to 290,183; and commercial power advanced 17.5 per cent. from 789,796 kwh to 928,032.

Since July 1 the C.G.E. has been buying 1587 horse power from the city's Utilities Commission, and the demand from the Quaker Oats Co. is almost as heavy, Mr. Dobbin said.

Adopt Reductions

The reduced rates which are being passed on to the public from the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission are to become effective in the September billing, the Commission decided. The reduction, it was said, amounts to $17,300 with the price dropping $4 to the rate of $26 per horse power. It was said the Hydro proposed even a larger cut to the total amount of $37,000, but the Commission concluded they could not safely reduce their revenue to that extent. As a matter of sound management the present lower rates were regarded as the limit to which the Utilities Commission could safely go in distributing to consumers the decline in Hydro's price of power.

The new schedule of local power rates, published some time ago, will be reviewed in an advertisement to be published in The Examiner, on page 5 to-day.

The Commission's revenue, G. S. Matthews said, had shown an increase for the last six months in spite of the reduction in rates which were made effective last year.

KNOCKED DOWN CROSSING STREET

Mrs. M. Pomeroy and Daughter Escape With Slight Injuries.

Mrs. Max Pomeroy, 171 Douro Street and her young daughter, Marilyn, were slightly injured on Friday afternoon when they were struck by a car driven by James Kills. The two were crossing Water Street, a short distance below the Hunter Street intersection and were apparently looking south as Ellis' car came from the north. The driver slapped on his brakes quickly and his car had practically stopped when the two met it. Both were knocked down, but neither was much hurt. One of the headlights of the automobile was smashed.

Sparks from the Preacher's Anvil

God's Word is an archive of wonderful engravings and happy is the man who through faith has spiritual vision quickened to appreciate them. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the spirit." Spiritual illumination is required for rewarding revelations from the Word of God. Yet faith, this spiritual agency, comes from looking into the dealings of God with man. Again and again God calls, "Look!" Let us obey.

First, behold our past of sin—shapen in iniquity. The racial background of man is a black one. There is the damning intrusion of sin with its degradation and death. A sorry picture we all are as sinners. Then behold the manner of the love of God for the sinner—He so loved that He gave His Son. Behold the mystery of the incarnation, God in man. "Behold the Man." Behold the glory of this Divine Deliverer, full of grace and truth. Grace for the sinner is in This One alone. Behold the slain Lamb of God, for it is a sacrificed One who suits the condemned one's need, who in voluntary suffering bears the creature's punishment. A full salvation is offered; behold all things are now ready—forgiveness, pardon, peace, assurance of acceptance with God, union and communion with Christ. But better still, behold the wonder of a God endeavoring to make this real to human hearts as He stands knocking, seeking entrance at the door, pleadingly saying, "Behold, now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation."

The one thing required for your salvation is a look of appropriating faith at the Christ of Calvary—God's provision of life. Look now, for behold He is coming again with clouds and every eye shall see Him and they also which pierced Him. That will be a day of judgment and wrath for all, the kindreds of the earth shall wail because of Him. Therefore, "Look and live" now!

GORDON CHARGES COMPANY'S DATA WAS DECEPTIVE

Statement is Tricky He Alleges in Assault Upon Textile Concern.

SAYS WORK IS EXACT.

The Dominion Woollen and Textile statement as to wages, the Hon. G. N. Gordon stated this morning, was as deceptive as it was tricky. Married men, according to their own statements, have been paid 18 cents on hour for years and the best they can earn for two weeks' work of 100 hours is $18.00.

"The work in this plant is exact and requires great accuracy," said Mr. Gordon, "so that if a mistake is made, as it frequently happens, the employee is made an insurer by this company, and the result is he may work two weeks for practically nothing. For instance, there is one weaver who has been employed by the plant for twelve years, and his pay for 90 hours was $12.07, while another carder employed for ten years, for 99 hours obtained $26.73. Then, it is said that certain employees are in receipt of compassionate jobs. If any person thinks A. O. Dawson and his associates know what compassionate jobs are, I wish to tell that person he is wrong."

"The real facts," continued Mr. Gordon, "are that Dominion Woollens has exploited child labor for long periods of time to help pay dividends on its watered stock; it has worked its employees on rush jobs, seven days in the week, contrary to law; it has polluted the Otonabee River with the refuse and worse than that from its Auburn plant."

Has No Defenders, He Says

Mr. Gordon further stated that he had not heard a single man or woman say one word in defence of the Dominion Woollen Company's position, and he had discussed the matter with business men, officials of manufacturing concerns, members of the clergy, and working men and women.

"President A. O. Dawson and his associates have made it difficult for the officials of other companies where working conditions are good by squeezing the employees of the Dominion Woollens until they were forced into a strike," said Mr. Gordon, "and Mr. Dawson and his associates have created a feeling of unrest and disturbance, which is likely to affect other companies carrying on business in Peterborough.

"Small investors and widows purchased the preferred stock of this company at a par value of $20.00 per share, and they were told it was worth that money. The preferred stock was bid at $3.50 a share this morning and the common stock was offered at $1.00 a share, with no bids, so I am informed by a brokerage house. In other words, you cannot get a kopeck for the common stock, concluded Alderman Gordon.

Greece's exports to the United States are over double those of a year ago.

TOURISTS ENJOY RICE LAKE OUTING

Pennsylvania Parties Have Good Time in Sojourn at Hiawatha.

Most of the American tourists to the Kawarthas are repeaters. Many of them have been coming year after year for the good fishing and the free and easy outdoor life that is theirs for the taking. But each year witnesses a crop of newcomers.

Among those who were in the district during the present week, making their first acquaintance with its fishing and cottaging, was Harry Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. Vandervoes all of Scranton, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bennett, Miss Florence Richardson and Mr. C. W. Becker all of Grove City Pa.

The two parties were vacationing at Hiawatha on Rice Lake. Each of them was impressed with the district and took keen enjoyment out of witnessing Hiawatha regatta earlier in the week, which they said was the first event if its kind they had seen.

Out fishing with an Indian guide, Mr. Jones declared he and his party had caught a nice mess of bass, and had also seen a couple of lunge which set them all agog with anticipation. They came close to landing a big pickerel, but were unfortunate enough to lose it.

CYCLE ON FIRE AT FULL SPEED CAUSES THRILL

Sam Carew's Machine Bursts Into lames in Fast Workout.

BLAZE SOON OUT.

President of Kawartha Club Provides Spectators With Some Excitement.

Spectators were treated to an unrehearsed thrill at Exhibition grounds last night when a motorcycle burst into flames as it was being ridden at high speed around the half-mile dirt track.

The rider, who threw himself from the blazing machine and hastily smothered the flames with dirt scooped from the track was Sam Carew. He escaped injury.

Carew, who is president of Kawartha Motorcycle Club was practising with three fellow riders who are entered in competitive events to be run off on Civic Holiday afternoon under joint auspices of the Motorcycle Club and the Lions Club.

He had raced around the track several laps in addition to having made several spectacular leaps over a ramp placed in front of the grandstand, when his machine caught fire as he was rounding the bend near the horse barns and sheep pens. A number of people who had come to see the rehearsal performances, the majority of whom were children, witnessed the mishap.

Broken Gas Line

Carew said a broken gas line had caused the fire, and declared he would have the machine ready for Monday's races. He will ride on the dirt track in a competitive event for the first time along with three fellow clubmen in the persons of Hilton Greenlay, Finlay Clarke, and Harold Choate.

Out of town riders which include experts and novices are entered from Sudbury, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Walkerville and Windsor. Races will be staged with Auto Cycle Union sanction, and any records that might be set up here will be officially recognised by that body, it was stated.

Both the motorcyclists and members of the Lions Club are hoping for a bumper crowd. They have spared no trouble to make the program eventful and exciting. They advertise "thrills and spills" and to prove it is no idle boast have insured the crowd against public liability and property damage.

From the proceeds of the event the Lions are hopeful of being able to contribute $600 towards instruments for the newly organized Lions Club Boy's Band.

STAYS WITH NOTTS

LONDON—(CP). — Harold Larwood, fast bowler who has played in many cricket test matches for England, has signed for another three years with Nottinghamshire County club. It was rumored he might join Lancashire.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We cannot be at our best when discontent rules the spirit. If we are willing to have God choose our paths, we need no longer be a prey to wearing anxiety, gloomy forboding and heart sickening dread. On the other hand to be satisfied with spiritual attainments is dishonoring to God. In the Spiritual Life, there are heights to be scaled, depths to be sounded, and broad extended plains to be occupied.

Oshawa Unionists Lose To Auburn Lacrossers

Locals Take 17-9 Decision Here to Maintain Undefeated String.

ABOUT 900 FRNS.

Auburns continued their undefeated C.O.L.A. march here last night before 900 lacrosse fans at the George St. arena when they took a 17-9 win over Oshawa in a loop fixture. It gave them 11 victories in their group standing—besides several exhibition wins, and one loss to Orillia. Last night's game was a hard-fought affair with the locals having better condition to cop the nod. Play was rugged but fairly clean throughout.

Oshawa made it plently close at times, having a 5-3 edge in the first quarter and holding the homesters to a 2-1 margin in the third after Auburns had counted five without a return in the second heat. The Petes had better reserves and they bumped the classy Motor City veterans hard to slow them up before the finish.

Boath goalies had plenty of work to do, especially in the hot first half. The defences checked well for the most part and the rival forwards turned it on the greater stretch of the struggle. Whitton, Crowe and Magee were in on a lot of local scoring but all the players went well—except for a period in the third quarter when their passing looked bad. Daniel, Barron, DeGray and Bovin were the pick of the losers all through. ... ...

DeGRAY IS CHASED

DeGray went off early for charging but was back when Barron scored from Daniels. Crowe took Whitton's pass to tally and then Cooper got one from DeGray, and sunk it. Dundas scored alone, followed by Cooper. Crowe was waved off for charging and Whitton took Magee's pass to score. Red made a rush from the local net. Barron later picked up a loose ball to counter and Daniels took Bovin's pass for one. Crowe counted early in the second on E. Creighton's assist and Magee got one from Pammett. King scored another on Dundas' assist and Vitarelli went in for a lovely one by himself. DeGray was gated for slashing and Crowe scored on Magee's neat pass.

Bovin got the lone Oshawa marker in the third while Whitton scored one on Dallin's pass and then gave Dundas a pass for another. It was a hot period with both goalies good and the checking close. Magee tallied to start the fourth and then he and Crowe combined for two, each tallying. Daniels got one with DeGray's help and Whitton burst through alone to ring the bell. He got another on Vitarelli's assist and Barron blazed one by Red on Daniels' pass. Magee and Leroy got the finger for roughing it and E. Creighton scored on Pammett's pass. Dundas got Magee's rebound to finish the locals' scoring and Barron ended it with a lone effort for Oshawa.

The teams:

Oshawa: Goal, Garrison; defence, DeGray and Campbell; centre, Cook; wings, Bovin and Daniels; rover, Fleming; alternates, Barron, White, Armitage, Armour, Cooper, Leroy and Clark.

Auburns: Goal, R. Creighton; defence, Miller and Whitton; centre, Magee; wings, E. Creighton and G. Creighton; rover, Crowe; alternates, King, Dallin, Dundas, Vitarelli, Sloan, Pammett and Anderson. ... ...

Toronto Falls Behind Chiefs, Who Take Double Header From Montreal.

ROCHESTER WINS 15-3.

TORONTO, July 31 (CP)—The baseball adage still holds good. You've got to win the close ones if you want to go places.

Manager Travis Jackson will vouch for that. His Jersey City Giants would be battling for a playoff berth, instead of languishing in the International League cellar, if they could come through when the chips are down.

The Giants have played an unusually large number of tight ball games, with 48 of them being decided by one run. Of these, the Giants have been able to take but 19 decisions.

The Jerseys followed form yesterday and dropped a pair of close ones to Buffalo Bisons. They lost the opener 6-4 after 13 innings and were nosed out in the nightcap 2-1.

The double win gave Buffalo solo possession of third place as Toronto Leafs lost 6-4 to Newark and fell back to fifth place behind Syracuse Chiefs, who swept a doubleheader from the Montreal Royals 9-7 and 7-1. The Bears overcome a four-run first inning deficit to beat the Leafs.

Meyers Rink Wins Consolation Cup

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 31.—Two teams of Campbellford bowlers visited Warkworth on Wednesday to enter in the men's tournament held there during the afternoon and evening. Although the local team, skipped by W. S. Wiggins, got a bye in the first game, they were matched against the team skipped by Meyers, also of Campbellford later in the day, and were thus eliminated from the prize list early in the games. Meyers' team lost only one game out of seven and were awarded the consolation prize.

The teams were: Meyers (skip), Dr. O. C. Watson, L. B. Glover, and P. M. Locke. W. S Wiggins (skip), J. P. Archer, T. L. Diamond and C. H. Calver.

America's Cup Series Will Be Tussle Between Fellows Named Mike And Tom

Both Sopwith And Vanderbilt Are Ultra - Democrats Liked And Respected By Friends And Writers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles on the America's cup yacht races which begin July 31 off Newport, R.I.

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 30.—To friends and newspaper men, Harold S. Vanderbilt, millionaire, who will sail the Ranger, July 31, in defense of the America's cup, is known as "Mike."

The challenger, Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith, British millionaire and master of Endeavour II, is called "Tom." Common qualities of democracy have endeared both Mike and Tom to the men assigned to Newport, R.I., to cover the international yacht races for the newspapers.

Sopwith is not a stranger to America. His last visit, in 1934, when Endeavour I lost to the Vanderbilt Rainbow, was not his first by any means. America first knew him as a flyer 25 years ago when he was regarded as one of the young daredevils of Great Britain.

About Bessie's Engines

"Tom" is 49 years old, son of a former director of the Bank of England. As a boy it was his ambition to "make Bessie's engine go," Bessie being the family yacht. Motor boat, yacht and aviation engines have been his hobby. In 1910 he made the longest flight of the year, across the English channel and 150 miles into France. He won the around-England air derby in 1912 and 1913 to win the Harmsworth motor boat trophy, which has been Gar Woods steady possession for many years.

It was a seaplane designed by Sopwith that won the Schneider cup in 1914, the highest prize in naval aviation. Royal Air Force experts say the war was won by Sopwith Camels, high-powered pursuit planes he designed. As head of Hawker Engineering Co., Sopwith supplies the R.A.F. with about half the planes the force uses.

Wins Prizes as Flyer

As a young man he took a fling at automobile racing, but preferred aviation. He brought three planes to America back in 1912 and won $12,000 in prize money. He woke up Philadelphia by flying around William Penn's statue at city hall. Later he crashed into a fence on Long Island, with Nelson Doubleday, publisher, as passenger.

Sopwith took up yachting ten years ago, and in three years won 109 prizes (75 firsts) with his craft Doris and Mouette. He has won some reputation as a clever starter. His protest following the Vanderbilt victories in 1934 were based on the starts Vanderbilt made, and though Vanderbilt did not protest the starts Sopwith made in the first two races (which Sopwith won), the American skipper might have done so.

Sopwith's first wife was a daughter of Lord Ruthven. Two years after her death he married tall, blonde Phyllis Brodie, in 1932, and he has a son four years old. In 1928 he bought Lord Ribblesdale's mansion in London, but sold it to the Crown when Queen Mary expressed admiration for the house, and moved around the corner. His wife goes along as timekeeper during his yacht races. She is an expert fisherman, once having caught a 505-pound tuna all by herself.

Sailed Yacht to Portugal

The defender of America's cup is Harold Stirling Vanderbilt, whose share of the family fortune amounted to some $30,000,000. He won the Founder's medal at St. Mark's school for being the best pupil. At Harvard he finished a four-year course in three years, was a member of the Porcellian club and manager of the football team. He won note as one of the best acution bridge players in the world, and fathered the Vanderbilt convention, a well-known contract maneuver.

Like Sopwith he went in for automobile racing as a young man. He flew his own plane, too, once flying from Newport to Southampton to play golf, thence flying to a Harvard-Yale baseball game, soaring on to a boat race at Poughkeepsie and finally to dinner at Port Washington, L.I.

He has been a yachtsman ever since boyhood. In 1913 (he was 29) he sailed his yacht Vagrant from Portsmouth, Me., to Lisbon, Portugal, in 23 days and won the King's cup. He has been commodore of the New York Yacht club. During the World war he served on a submarine chase. Like Sopwith, he prefers a pipe.

Vanderbilt had the slower boat in Rainbow when he sailed against Endeavour I in 1934, but after losing two races, he won four to defend the cup. Last fall he ordered Ranger built at his own expense ($500,000), following a design by W. Starling Burgess. Ranger has proved her mettle by showing her heels to all trial competition, and should be a good match for Sopwith's Endeavour II.

Bobby Murray Reaches Final Canadian Net Championships

Walter Senior Qualifies By Beating Ross Wilson in Straight Sets.

KAY STAMMERS BEATEN.

TORONTO, July 31. — From away back in the deep shadows of impending defeat, young Bobby Murray of Montreal fought his way yesterday into the final round of men's singles in the Canadian lawn tennis championships and averted what would have been the tournament's major upset.

There were other surprises—three or four stunning ones — but the black-haired Murray pulled himself together in time to qualify for his big chance. Opposing him to-day will be Walter Senior of San Francisco, rangy No. 12 in the United States rankings.

While Murray was conquering Leonard Hartman of New York in their semi-final by scores of 4-6, 1-6, 6-0, 6-4, 6-2, Senior polished off hard-hitting Ross Wilson of Toronto in three quick sets. The scores were 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

Kay Stammers Beaten.

Unable to come from behind as Murray did and wrest victory the hard way, the two British favorites in women's singles went down to decisive defeat. Kay Stammers accepted a 6-4, 6-0 beating from her teammate, Evelyn Dearman. Freda James bowed to aggressive Mary Hardwick, 6-4, 6-1.

Another surprise carried the biggest players in the tournament, Walter Martin of Toronto and David M. Jones of New York, into the men's doubles final where to-day they will face the Montreal combination of Murray and Laird Watt.

Martin and Jones, moving up for punishing blasts behind service, eliminated Ross Wilson and Grant McLean of Toronto, 6-2, 7-5, 6-4. Murray and Watt, Ontario and Quebec champions, had to stage a great rally to overcome Joe O'Hara of Ottawa and Ed Tarshis of Montreal at 4-6, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Following this reversal was the defeat of England's ranking women's doubles team, Miss Stammers and Miss James, by another Wightman Cup duo, Miss Dearman and Miss Ingram. The scores were 6-1, 5-7, 6-1.

Then the streak was carried further by Mrs. Helen Fisher of Calgary and Forman, who trounced the favored pair, Miss Hardwick and Hartman, in a mixed doubles quarter-final match, 6-3, 9-7. Murray and Miss Stammers defaulted their mixed quarter-final to Miss Dearman and Watt.

Shoe prices in Italy are 40 per cent. higher than last year, while summer silk and men's light suitings have jumped 40 to 50 per cent.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Tey, Mac, old boy, they gotta stop kicking our ball club around the way they been doing since my last billydoo. Here last Sat. the Kingston Ponies comes along and bumped us off 7 and 1 and then after transferring their home game to Riverside Park, Walt Gerow's Naps which has been cousins to us all summer drops into town and outlasts us in a fine exhibition of picnic ball in which they was more folks on the bases than they was up in the stands. The Kingston loss was the sixth in a row to the clan of Daley and this time the Ponies made their win under their own power because they was the boss ball club on the day's doings. In most of the other games with the gang from Kingston the Petes was well ahead at 1 stage and then blew but last Sat. the invaders was in the driver's seat all the way. This here Mister Parkykarkas had the Petes' attack pretty well stopped throughout while on the other hand the Ponies did some mean hitting and got a few breaks on some other blows so that there was only 1 answer.

It Was a Lulu

The sparkling feature of that ball game, Mac, was the running one-handed clutch by Mister McQuaide of a floater to short, retire from the bat of our Mister Long. That was the best bit of fielding of the season and I'm ready to argue a month on that point.

You Remember the Kind

The Wednesday affray, Mac, was the kind that the barbers and bartenders used to play in the old days when they got together at a picnic. The final count was 13 to 10 and they may be a couple of small polls yet to hear from although they couldn't change the final result. The Petes started off as if they was going to romp through the lads from the furniture district. They got theirselfs 2 runs in each of the 1st 2 frames while the Naps was going out in order but they couldn't stand prosperity for the Gerowmen piled up 6 counters in the 3rd session to drive Mister Gunner Whitehill to the showers. Then the teams seesawed along a while until the last of the 8th arrived. By that time the homesters was 10 to 7 in front and that lead locked safe enough even in that screwy kind of a ball game.

Got a Big Six

Then came disaster for the Gibbard gang bust through the service of Mister Kitchen, aided by some weird right-fielding, and what looked like a little defective vision on the part of Umps S. Johnston, helped themselves to a half-dozen runs which was enough to grab off the ball game. The worst of it was the whole six was scored after 2 was out and after a neat double play had apparently shot the Napanee rally full of holes. The only happy folk in the park, outside the Gerow gang, was Mister Kearns and Mister Burton, the former getting 5 blows in 5 ambles to the plate and Mister Burton swelling a rather healthy average considerably by pouring the pine to the extent of 4 safe ones in 5 attempts.

Bravo Lacrosse

Our hats is off to the local lacrosse outfit, Mac, for their enterprise in bring the champion Orillia team here and I'm glad for I that they was rewarded by a gate that will be a big help. The game was a huge success with a couple thousand spectators out and they seen lacrosse at its best as played by a team which holds the Dominion championship. They was good enough to bring their whole team here and give the big crowd a demonstration of individual brilliancy and perfect teamwork that showed the possibilities of boxla as a crowd-pleaser. Nobody expected the Petes to beat a team like that and of course they didn't but they put on a good show against a crack outfit and you couldn't ask no more than that.

Well, Mac, old timer, that seems to be the issue so I'm dropping outa the picture pronto.

Sportfully Yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Two Fishers Bag 70 Bass in 6 Days

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 31. — Messrs. William Brewster and Thomas Paul of Buffalo, who have been spending two weeks at Tipperary Hotel, have had good luck with their fishing. In six days' fishing they caught 70 bass, 50 of which weighed over 3¼ pounds each. The best caught weighed 6 pounds and 5 pounds respectively.

Mr. Brewster stated that in fifteen years' fishing in the United States and Canada, he had not found another place where the bass were so numerous and as large.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

THE chug-chug artists will be painting a potent sports' picture Monday afternoon, and their canvas will be the half-mile dirt track at the Exhibition Grounds here. Quite a flock of entries from near and far in novice, expert and pro classes for Dominion titles and $250 in prizes. It ought to attract a big crowd from the city and district as these dare-devils take their lives in their hands on every skidd'ng turn at high speed. Something new around here and it is sponsored by the Kawartha Club and the Lions Club. A real revival in motorcycling has been noted this summer in Peterborough, and also throughout Ontario. A lot of the credit goes to a bunch of local officers who organized the Kawartha Club.

* * * * * *

A LOT of last-minute entries are expected to swell the list at the Bridgenorth softball tournament on Civic Holiday. Quite a few local and district gals' and men's teams will battle for a raft of good prizes. No entries will be taken after tonight for this event. Managers may apply at once to Mac McWilliams or George Dormer. One buck entry fee. There will also be some hoss-shoe pitching and a buckaw contest, and this annual affair promises to be as successful as ever Monday and to draw a host of people.

* * * * * *

AND the bash-'em boys will go into session Tuesday eve at the Y.M.C.A. in the first football meeting of the year. Ye Orfuns will get squared around again and set for another grid season. The boys are getting some cocky ideas and you can hardly blame them. They will have a better team than last year, and the 1936 squad was the best in Central Ontario. A slow start last semester let the Scugog outfit get a lead which they never relinquished, but the Lindsayites themselves admitted at the end of the schedule that our Orfuns were a better team then. We hope they get off to an early start this fall and roll roughshod over the opposition. Dunno how they'll be grouped yet. Cobourg is said to have bolstered with several smart players—and that team wasn't any setop in '36, either.

* * * * * *

THE ball-playing (sometimes) Petes are off to the wars for the holiday weekend. They play Oshawa in Cobourg today and the Ponies in Kingston on Monday. A couple of wins would look nice but we are not unduly optimistic about the up-and-down locals. They'd better not pull any slump now or the Naps will breeze by 'em into the playoffs so fast the Collins' contingent will catch cold from the breeze. Next Wednesday Oshawa is here and on Saturday it's the Gibbards again. These four tilts will about tell the tale.

* * * * * *

BATTING averages of the Ponies, before their last game, showed Vin McQuaide on top with .382, while Buck batted .318, Jim Arnell got .312 and Red Scrutton .310. The others weren't so hot, especially Compeau and Elliott of the regulars. Good pitching and timely hitting combined so far to keep Kingston in the top slot of the loop standing. Little Yammy Jamieson who hurls three speeds—slow, slower and slowest—had an impressive string of six straight wins; while Paczkowski had four nods and three losses; and Williams won one and dropped two. The Petes have been a big help to the league laders this summer but Oshawa is bad news for 'em. Napanee goes a trifle better against the Daley scrappers than our team does. Mayhap the playoffs will see a different story told.

* * * * * *

NORWOOD lacrossers were billed to play the Auburns here next Monday night—the holiday—but it has been laid over till next Friday. That date is an open one since Cobourg folded like a worn dollar bill a week or so back. Monday sees Belleville at Oshawa, and they do a vice versa on August 6th. The C.O.L.A. schedule concludes on August 20th and playoffs will then start, loop winner entering the O.A.L.A. intermediate playdowns. We haven't yet heard how many teams or games will comprise the group playoffs.

* * * * * *

AUBURNS took a nice 17-9 win over Oshawa here last eve before a goodly crowd. The Local 222-ers put put a stiff fight but they found the homesters in better condition and couldn't keep up the pace. Their veterans played a swell game but Auburns bumped 'em hard and had them slowed to a snail's jog in the last half. However, we look for fireworks when these teams collide in playoffs in about two weeks. Oshawa is improving every time out and they'll be hard to take. Play was fairly clean last night, even if some of the boys threatened to chop off their opponents' ears during heated moments. Magee, Crowe, Whitton seemed most effective for the winners; while Barron, Bovin, DeGray and Daniels were Oshawa spark-plugs.

* * * * * *

THOSE lacrosse games continue to draw the crowds. It is not too hard to understand. Here we have a winning team playing in a good group and in a smart outdoor arena fairly centrally located. A fine combination for the gutted stick moguls. The kids were playing last night before the game and at halftime, much to the amusement of the fans. Ladies are turning out in large numbers to these tilts and where you have the fair ones at sports you know you're clicking. Coach Chute will not be playing for Auburns much before the playoffs if at all, but Cliff Cadd has been signed and ought to again help a lot on defence.

* * * * * *

LEANDERS FALL AT ROYAL HENLEY

Hamilton Eight Suffers First Defeat Since 1931—Toronto Sweeps Board.

PORT DALHOUSIE, July 31 (C.P.). — The six-year reign of Hamilton Leanders, famous crimson runners of two Olympiads, ended at the fifty-fifth Royal Canadian Henley yesterday as Bob Hunter's newest eight failed in its first international test, climaxing a day in which Toronto oarsmen virtually swept the boards.

After a fine junior eight from the Dons Rowing Club had scored the day's most convinving triumph and Argonauts had piled up a lead in points over their ancient West Side rivals from Buffalo, the defeat of the Leander senior eight topped off the thrills.

Only two of Hunter's 1936 Olympians were in the Hamilton boat when it pulled alongside Mike Broderick's experienced Bisons for the second heat of the eights. And this was a race in which experience counted. The Buffalo crew was intact from last year.

Yet the Crimson Runners took an early lead and held it gamely for a mile. Only over the final 550 yards did they yield to the West Sides, who relentlessly raised their beat to thirty-six, and rode across the finish line two lengths ahead in the good time of 8 minutes 43.4 seconds.

Leanders' First Defeat Since 1931.

The defeat was the first at Henley for a Leander senior eight since 1931, when a Penn A.C. crew from Philadelphia, stroked by Chet. Turner, showed the way home. Twice the Leanders won Olympic trials on the old Welland Canal course, and they were unbeatable.

TOP OSSERS In the Majors

LEFTY GROVE

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, Red Sox pitcher, may or may not be the greatest left-hander of all time, but to many, including Connie Mack, Lefty is the greatest, and that takes in people like Rube Waddell, too.

Year after year, the great southpaw has hurled his speed-ball past opposing batters in the American League. His 12-year record in the majors is among the best of all times. And now, in his thirteenth year, at the age of 37, he still is burning them across and stands among the top tossers.

Pro 17 Years Ago

As a lanky youth near Lonaconing, Md., Lefty had his first taste of baseball. When 18 he joined an amateur club near Midland, Md. In 1920 he was signed with Martinsburg of the Blue Ridge League and quickly transferred to the Baltimore Orioles for $3,200. Lefty had struck out 23 batters one day for the Blue Ridge League club to get the call from Baltimore.

Lefty pitched five years with Baltimore, compiling a fine average before he was sold to the Athletics for the then enormous price of $106,000. That was in 1924.

In his third year with the A's he banged in 20 victories and right through 1934 won 20 or more games each year. His greatest year was 1931, when he won 31 games and lost four for a marvellous .884 average. In 1934 he was sent to the Sox for a reputed $125,00 in cash.

For seven consecutive seasons, Lefty either led or tied for the lead in strikeouts. He has been in three world series, winning four and losing two.

Lefty is six feet two and one-half inches tall and weighs 178 pounds. He is married.

WICKER SCORES SECOND VICTORY FOR THE YANKS

Gehrig's 20th Homer Helps Ex-Newarker Along in New York's Win.

RED SOX BEAT TIGERS.

NEW YORK, July 31.—(UP). — Kemp Wicker, rookie southpaw from Newark, scored his second straight victory since joining the New York Yankees by limiting the St. Louis Browns to seven hits for an 8 to 2 decision yesterday.

The Yanks blasted Hogsett and Strickland for 12, including a home run by Lou Gehrig. The victory increased New York's lead to 6½ games over the Chicago White Sox, whose game with Philadelphia was postponed until a later date.

Red Sox Beats Tigers.

The third place Detroit Tigers were defeated, 6 to 5, by the Boston Red Sox when Pitcher Jack Wilson smacked a double to centre in the tenth inning that drove in the winning run. Wilson was the third Sox pitcher, following Grove and Walberg. He held the Tigers hitless in the final two innings and was credited with his ninth victory. Coffman, who relieved Bridges in the eighth, was the loser.

Washington's Senators slugged out a 13 to 3 triumph over the Cleveland Indians. Jimmy Deshong held the Tribe to six hits, while the Senators walloped Whitehill and Brown for 18, including a four-bagger by Travis.

CUBS LENGTHEN LEAD TO FOUR

Four Errors Prove Disastrous to Terrymen and Giants Lose 5-3.

LEE BESTS GUMBERT.

NEW YORK, July 31.—In the National League, the Chicago Cubs increased their lead to four games when they bested runner-up New York Giants, 5 to 3. It was a triumph for Bill Lee over Harry Gumbert. Both were solved for eight hits, but the Giants made four errors.

In the only other National contest, Ed Brandt bested Guy Bush in a brilliantly pitched game, giving the Pittsburgh Pirates a 1 to 0 victory over the Boston Bees. For eight innings, it was a runless duel, but Todd opened the last half of the ninth with a double. Brubaker was passed intentionally to set the stage for a double play, but Young punted safely, filling the bags. Red Lucas, pinch-hitting for Brandt, drove a long fly to Moore in right field and in came the only run of the game.

Philadelphia was scheduled against Cincinnati in Crosley Field tonight, and St. Louis and Brooklyn were not scheduled.

MAN BURIED FOR 17 HOURS DIRECTS OWN RESCUE WORK

Girl in Frail Health Offers to Descend Treacherous Shaft

KESSINGLAND EVENT

Lowestoft.—After having been buried by falling earth 28 feet down a well and trapped for 17 hours, a man was dragged to safety at Kessingland, near here, and taken to hospital in a critical condition.

The man, William Mallett, 52, a bricklayer, displayed great courage during his long ordeal, directing the rescue operations and joking with his rescuers.

He had been at work on the well and was ascending when a portion of the sides caved in and he was buried up to the neck.

Campers from Kessingland holiday camp, which the well is to serve, ran to his help.

Miss Muriel Mounter, of Forest Gate, London, who is convalescing after an operation, offered to descend the shaft, declaring that she was the smallest and lightest of the party.

Another camper, Frederick Reading, of Kentish Town, went down. He had cleared earth from Mallett's face when a second fall forced him to return to the surface.

A local man, Stanley Brown, took Reading's place and remained working in the shaft for 16 hours until Mallett was eventually freed by the combined efforts of campers, local men and firemen, police and corporation workmen from Lowestoft.

Mallett himself directed rescue work which went on through the night with the aid of light from hurricane lamps.

He was so weak, however, that he had to be supported by a sling and given restoratives of brandy and oxygen.

After seven hours' work soil had been cleared from around Mallett down to his legs, but the suction of sand and water at the foot of the well held him fast and it was with the greatest difficulty that he was finally hauled free.

SCHOOLS, CHURCHES RANSACKED BY LADS

Leave Sign Behind "The Red Hand Gang" After Escapade

Dunstable, Beds.—Story of a raid on two schools, two churches and a co-operative store by three boys, aged 11, 12 and 13, who called themselves the "Red Hand Gang," was told in court by Supt. J. F. Whitehorn here.

"We had a lot of trouble in these cases. We have been looking not for boys, but for men," he said.

Describing the scene in one of the schools, Superintendent Whitehorn said, "They turned the classrooms upside down, emptied cupboards, played football and broke windows. They went in every classroom and took money from the drawers.

"Then they went to the headmaster's office, forced drawers, and mixed cocoa and spattered it over valuable documents.

"They left behind them the sign 'The Red Hand Gang,' written on the walls and blackboard in red chalk and typed on sheets of paper."

"One cupboard they could not open so they got a Bunsen burner and set fire to it.

The oldest boy was sent to an approved school. Decisions in the cases against the other two were postponed until September 7.

MARRIED POLICEMAN TO PAY HEART BALM

"I Apologized," He Says, When Court Told He Tricked Girl

Monmouth—Damage of £100 ($500) were awarded against a metropolitan police constable, to Miss Ada Annie Phillips, of Newport, at Monmouth assizes.

She had sued Henry Harvey Rich, of Larkhill Rise, Clapham, for breach of promise, and was also given costs.

Miss Phillips burst into tears when she gave evidence. She said she was 30, and became engaged to Rich at Newport in 1929.

It was arranged that there should be no wedding for two or three years, so that they could get enough money to provide a home, and she bought her wedding trousseau and some other things.

She saw Rich in London, and, later, he wrote and told her he was married.

"I thought more of my wife than Miss Phillips," said Rich. "I went the wrong way about to get her to turn against me. I apologized to her.

"My circumstances are not pleasant. I have a wife in hospital, and our baby died lately."

British Prime Minister Approves, But Inskip Objects

London.—A proposal that the British parliament open its regular daily sessions with a routine of physical jerks has been advanced by Oliver Stanley, minister of education.

Declaring that the appeal to the youth of the nation to keep fit would come better from those whose figures were concave rather than convex, Stanley suggested that he would like the job of putting the House through its "daily dozen."

Neville Chamberlain, prime minister, approved the plan, but Sir Thomas Inskip, the most rotund member of the cabinet, blushed at the prospect of having to touch his toes in the presence of 615 colleagues.

SAW MAN 26 MINUTES GOING TO MARRY HIM

Virginian Fell in Love With Scottish Girl

Glasgow. — Eighteen-year-old blacksmith's daughter Margaret Cant, of Ellensview, Loch Katrine, is to become the bride soon of a man she has seen for only twenty minutes, twenty-six-year-old Leonard Furbee, a West Virginian landowner.

Two years ago Miss Cant was standing behind the counter of a little tartan novelty shop on the Trossachs shore of Loch Katrine when a tall, broad-shouldered American entered and bought a few novelties.

While Miss Cant tied up the parcels she told him something of the beauty spot's history. When the tourist left twenty minutes later he had the young shopgirl's name and address in his diary.

"That was the only time I saw Leonard," Miss Cant said in her father's little lochside cottage. "About a month after our meeting I was surprised to receive a letter from him.

From then onwards we have been corresponding regularly. "A few months ago he proposed. "I asked my father and mother what I should do, then accepted."

ANTI-TANK GUN MADE TO AID BRITISH ARMY

Light Rifle Blows Them Up Mile Away, Experts Insist

London.—Anti-tank weapons designed to make the British army proof against tank attack have been perfected by gun experts at Woolwich Arsenal.

After three years of intensive experiment and research, they have invented an anti-tank gun and an anti-tank rifle. Infantry armed with the anti-tank rifle will be able to stand up to tanks and beat them, experts insist.

A two-pound shell, fitted with a special armor-piercing nozzle, is fired by the anti-tank gun. This shell can penetrate the armor plates of any tank and explode inside. One direct hit from an anti-tank gun means death to the whole tank crew and the destruction of the entire mechanism.

The gun travels on a small rubber-tired truck and is so light that it can be taken up into the front line. It can be stripped from the truck, mounted on a tripod, and brought into action in less than 30 seconds. It fires with terrific rapidity and can blow up a tank a mile away.

The anti-tank rifle is made for use against whippet tanks, and fires special armor-piercing bullets which can bring a tank to a stand-still at a range of 500 yards.

PLACES MOTHER LOVE AHEAD OF EDUCATION

Woman Won't Give Son to His Father, Despite Offer

Manchester. — "Mother-love is more important to a child than luxury," said Mrs. Bebe Pollitt, Cheetham Hill, Manchester, after the magistrates had given her custody of her two-year-old son Leslie, despite his father's offer of a governess and a university education.

Leslie was just going to bed, tired with the joy of playing with the tricycle his father had bought for him when he took Leslie and his mother round the shops in his motor car after the magistrates had given their decision.

The father, George Pollitt, a traveller living in the Isle of Wight, was stated in court to be earning £15 ($75) a week. He asked to be given custody of the child, instead of the mother, from whom he was separated.

Later she said: "When the time comes for his education Leslie shall have the best that I can possibly give him. Perhaps I shall even be able to send him to a university."

COURT PREVENTS GIRL FROM SEEING FIANCE

Banished From Weymouth—Can't Reach Portland Without Passing Through

Weymouth—Winnifred Cutis, a pretty 21-year-old girl of the little Dorset village of Chesilborne, left home and became a waitress at Weymouth — but her dance-hall visits left her short of money. She stole a small sum from her friend.

Police court missioner Mrs. King told the magistrates, "Winnifred is a good worker who could do well, but she has very bad associates. She should leave Weymouth. I can get her another job in a fortnight."

Winnifred pleaded that she was engaged to a young man in Weymouth, and if she was allowed to stay she would turn over a new leaf.

The chairman, Harold Stevens, decided to banish her from Weymouth. "If you return here you will be sent to prison, perhaps for six months," he said.

UNREQUITED LOVE IN PALACE WINS SERVANT HEART BALM

Royal Kitchenmaid Tells of Romance With Scot—Letters Read

$750 DAMAGES SET

Windsor.—Phoebe Triggs, royal kitchenmaid, daughter of a palace policeman and a palace chambermaid, told of romance below stairs at Buckingham Palace, Sandringham and Windsor, when she sued her former sweetheart, her second cousin, for breach of promise in London sheriff's court. Then, with £150 ($750) damages in her handbag, she toiled alone up the hill to the castle.

She said a bleak "Good evening" to the policeman on the staff door, and went through the dark corridors to the kitchens to change into white overalls and help to prepare dinner. She looks after the sweet dishes.

Love letters which had come for her with the mail for monarchs were read in court. Miss Triggs is 27 years old, tall and dark, good-humored and pleasant-faced.

Her home is in Pimlico, but for eleven years she has served in the royal kitchens. And to Buckingham Palace, Sandringham and Windsor, Robert Dewar Thomson, travelling engineer for a Scottish firm, came to woo her, she told the court.

Thomson did not appear. "Sweetheart of all my dreams," and "My darling wife-to-be," were phrases he used in writing to her.

"Your happiness means everything to me," he wrote.

"My precious darling, I just long to hold you close, for, my sweetheart, I cannot do without you," ran one letter.

"I will never go astray if you say a prayer for me, and I will say a little prayer for you," ran another.

Miss Triggs said Thomson suggested marriage in 1933. But later he wrote: "I am sorry I have not been true to you, and have been out with other girls."

PRISON REFORM PLAN WIDENED IN ENGLAND

Greater Privileges Now Given at Dartmoor, Parkhurst and Chelmsford

London. — Reforms, extending wider privileges and more humane treatment to convicts in some of the smaller prisons in the British Isles, have proved so successful they will be introduced in the more populous prisons at Dartmoor, Chelmsford and Parkhurst.

In announcing the experiment, the new home secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, said among the chief innovations would be the right of a prisoner to receive wages during his incarceration and to spend the income on luxuries such as cigarettes and tobacco. Hitherto prisoners in the larger jails have not been allowed to use tobacco until after serving three years of a sentence and then only if their conduct has been without blemish.

Sir Samuel alluded to an experiment of greater freedom at the large prison in Wakefield. There, between 400 and 500 selected prisoners carried on their work in the open without guards and slept at night 10 in a hut. More recently the men have been given the right to associate and talk freely, to smoke, read newspapers and to avail themselves of a wide range of vocational training.

TEACHERS ASK LAWS FOR STAGE CHILDREN

Would Save Young Actresses From Becoming Old

Cardiff.—New laws to save child actresses from "existing dangers" are demanded in a resolution adopted by a conference of head teachers here.

"They grow up too quickly and therefore badly," Miss I. Payn, Cardiff headmistress, declared in describing the lives of children behind the footlights. "They become physically and mentally older. They suddenly lose the freshness of their girlhood and budding womanhood.

"Most of us are acquainted with these little nomads who have attended three or four schools in almost as many months. The child naturally tends to put her stage work first and school second. With their permed hair—some of them need to take half a day from school to have it permed—with their use of rouge, lipstick and powder they are to be pitied."

NAMES PHANTOM SHIP AFTER EARLIER GHOST

Crew for Zebrina Hard to Find—Owner Paid $250

Portsmouth, Eng.—Phantom ships are just as hard to man these days as they ever were—perhaps a little harder because the ranks of sailing men have become depleted. And that is probably why the mysterious Zebrina brought only $250 at an auction here recently.

Her new owner showed he had a complete contempt of sea superstition by renaming the vessel Maine Celeste, whose career the Zebrina emulated.

No. 1 mystery ship of the seven seas, Marie Celeste sailed from New York on Nov. 7, 1872, for Genoa with a crew of 18 and the captain's wife and son. On Dec. 13 she was found off Gibraltar deserted, but with all sails set, an unfinished meal in the cabin and everything "ship shape." No trace of the crew was ever found.

In 1917 the Zebrina was found off Point Rozal, France, with all sails set and her tables prepared for a meal. Her crew of five had vanished and were never found.

'HOUSE COMES DOWN' ON STAR—AND HOW!

Actress, Daughter Escape When Excavation Causes Home to Collapse

London.—"I have often heard of actresses bringing the house down, but if it is anything like this I would not wish to have it happen to me again," said Mary Clare, the star of the St. Martin's theatre play, "A Ship Comes Home," as she surveyed the wreckage of her home in Brunswick Sq., Bloomsbury, from which she had escaped after the whole building had collapsed on top of her.

While workmen were busy on an excavation in the square, Miss Clare's house caved in on its five occupants. Bricks and slates were hurled on to the pavement and roadway only a few yards from where children were playing.

"That was my house," Miss Clare told a reporter a few minutes later, pointing at the heap of ruins. Through the drawing room windows protruded joists, the edge of a picture frame, and curtains flapping in the wind. Of the roof and top storey nothing remained.

"I had just returned from the matinee and with my daughter was in the basement telephoning," she said. The next minute the house was on top of us. I don't know how we all escaped.

BRIEF STORIES GATHERED FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

ITALIAN DREW UP HIS WILL ON 'ORDERS FROM BEYOND'

Court Holds Spiritualism Not Cause Determining Insane Psychological Functioning

WIFE'S MESSAGE

Rome.—The Italian supreme court for the first time in its history has been called upon to decide the legality of a will, made under "orders from the beyond" through the use of a medium.

Eugenio Calilli with his friend Lorenzo Casavola acting as medium, "received orders" from his deceased wives to leave almost all his patrimony to the medium himself.

He depended so much on her will that it is stated he married her sister, Anita, after having been "notified" that his late first wife thought it would be "a wise thing to do."

Shortly after the marriage Anita died, but Calilli kept in touch with her as well as with his first wife—always through the medium, his friend.

All business transactions were guided by Anita and Maria, Calilli always scrupulously following their advice.

Upon Calilli's death in 1933 it was found his testament had been "dictated" by his defunct wives. He had been told to leave his two sisters Oronza and Maria penniless, Calilli wrote.

The medium, apparently in great favor with the two wives, received the larger part of the estate amounting to about $2,000, while the Bishop of Lecce was given a sum to be spent in prayers "for the souls of Maria and Anita."

Notwithstanding the fact that Calilli might be considered a perfect example of loyalty, his two sisters opposed the will charging that he was mentally incapable.

The court of appeals, however, decided that "spiritualism cannot be classified as a cause which determines insane and abnormal psychological functioning."

The Bishop of Lecce, it is stated, intends insisting on the validity of the will on this basis.

The Italian supreme court's decision in any case is expected to cause a storm in legal as well as clairvoyance circles.

CHINESE WILL SURVEY COUNTRY'S POSITION

Editorial Circles Welcome Inquiry of Strength on Modern Lines

Peiping, China.—Decision of the Central Political Council to conduct a comprehensive survey of China's strength along modern lines was welcomed in editorial circles.

Asserting that such a nationwide investigation will facilitate the institution of administrative reforms and heighten governmental efficiency, one journal suggested that the survey should include the collection of data regarding population, area, resources, political, economical and cultural conditions of the country.

"China has never made any comprehensive survey in the past," says one writer, "although investigations along somewhat similar lines have been conducted for more than 2,000 years."

Since the founding of the Republic in 1911, census has been taken only twice, one in 1916 and the other in 1928.

POLO PONIES ON TOUR

Honolulu.—Six of Hawaii's finest polo ponies will see action in various parts of the United States this year. Walter F. Dillingham, noted polo-ist and breeder, has sent his outstanding pony, Toy Mo-on, to Ebby Gerry of New York or use in eastern contests. In addition five others are being sent to Long Island for use by Gay Dillingham on the Harvard university team.

HAVE DEBT STRUGGLE IN CHINA'S LEGATIONS

Ambassador at Washington Draws $275 Monthly in Wages Plus Expenses

Peiping, China.—At the moment when Dr. C. T. Wang is superseding Dr. Alfred Sze as Chinese ambassador to Washington, interest attaches to the revised list of ranks and salaries of diplomatic and consular officials serving the government abroad.

According to that list, a Chinese ambassador of rank equal to Dr. Wang's draws but Chinese $800, or approximately U.S. $275 per month in wages. This U.S. $68.75 a week is not a large salary for an ambassador. However, additional sums are provided for staff and living expenses.

Nevertheless, Dr. Alfred Sze has for many years been forced to battle to keep his legation and subsequently his embassy out of debt. This struggle is indicated in the official statement that the Nanking government has sent $6,800 to Berlin and Rio de Janeiro for "repayment of loan obligations incurred by those embassies."

The government announces that another $18,000 has been sent to the Paris embassy for "payment of arrears in telegraph tolls."

The foreign office at the same time has raised the status of the Chinese consul general in New York to that of first rank. Such rank carries a salary of approximately U.S. $200 per month.

FORETOLD DEATH, MAY MAKE 'HOLY SHOE MENDER' A SAINT

Italian Repairer Preached Gospel to Customers—Tomb Opened 150 Years Later

Moncalieri, Italy.—A small mountain village workman, known as the "Holy shoe-repairer," Gian Antonio Panighetti who died 152 years ago may some day become a saint.

Born in the tiny village of Varzo, in the Italian Alps, June 11, 1740, Panighetti soon revealed his faith in the Roman Catholic church and after wandering from village to village, earning his way by repairing shoes, settled down in the town of Moncalieri.

Here he opened a shoe-repairing shop where he daily preached the doctrine of Christ to all those who came into his store. Soon his fame grew to the extent that cardinals and high prelates would make long voyages from all parts of Italy to speak to the holy man.

In 1785 following a brief illness, Panighetti died, but it is stated that the sorrow at his loss was tinged with surprise by the fact that he himself had predicted the day and hour of his demise.

Following his death, the parish priest of Moncalieri began studies so as to gather the necessary elements to propose Panighetti for beatification.

A century and a half later, in 1935, the tomb of the "Holy shoe-repairer" was opened after authorization had been given by the Vatican. In the presence of prelates his remains were exhumed and enveloped in silk cloth while a new casket adorned with a commemorative plaque was placed in the tomb, in sign of recognition of his faith and merits toward the church.

The beatification cause will probably be discussed this year and perhaps the first step toward sanctification will be made.

DOLPHINS TRAINED TO BE FISHHOUNDS

Men Sit and Smoke While Sardines Are Caught

Prague. — "Set a fish to catch a fish" would appear to be the motto of Adriatic fishermen—if the world's tallest fishing story, printed in a Jugoslav periodical, may be believed.

According to this, two fishers in the Adriatic village of Novigrad have succeeded in training a couple of dolphins to act as fish-hounds. When a large school of sardines appears, the faithful dolphins, according to the newspaper, go out to sea and drive them into the fishermen's nets. The men have nothing to do but sit smoking comfortably till the nets are full.

CHINESE WILL FIGHT AGAINST OPIUM PERIL

Nanking, China. — As part of China's drive against opium smoking a nation-wide "Opium-Suppression day" has now been observed. It has been held to commemorate the death in 1840 of Mr. Lin Tze-Hsu, viceroy of Kwangtung province, under whose orders confiscated opium was first burnt. Nine slogans urging the public to fight the opium peril were prepared as part of the national commemoration day.

THREE STAGGER OUT IN MASS OF FLAMES

Explosion Damages Electric Power Station

Uddington.—Three workmen employed by Clyde Valley Electric Power Co. were seriously injured when an explosion occurred at Newstevenston sub-station. The men, John Taylor, John Marshall and Robert Stephen, all of Uddington, received burns and were removed to hospital.

People heard a rumbling noise and saw flames and smoke belching from the building. The three men staggered out a mass of flames.

Rescuers wrapped them in blankets.

MASTER AND 14 BOYS HURT IN EXPLOSION

Glasgow.—Fourteen schoolboys and their master were injured in Bearsden academy, near here, when a large glass flask in which potassium chlorate and manganese dioxide were being heated exploded during a chemistry experiment.

Temporarily blinded by flying glass and deafened by the noise, the boys ran panic-stricken round the laboratory, and one of them fainted. Teachers in other rooms rushed to their aid.

PACKERS TAKE CIRCUIT LEAD

Defeat Politicians By Five Goals to Two in League Fixture.

JOBE BRILLIANT.

The Canada Packers took the lead in the local soccer league competition, last night, when they defeated the C.C.F. by the score of five goals to two, on King Edward Park, before a good attendance. Eddie Jobe, played a wonderful game in goal for the losers.

Henwood Made The Openings

In the early stages, the Packers forced the issue to pepper the C.C.F. goalie with long shots and in scrimmages. Twice did Henwood penetrate the Packers' defence to test Curtis, custodian, but he had to admit defeat after the outside right shot for the corner of the goal where Dyer connected with a snap drive into the rigging. Five minutes later, the Packers' halves tackled keenly to offset the loser's fast moving forwards that finally rewarded them with the equalizer through Cribbens, at centre. On the next visit, the pivot man dribbled his way towards goal, side-stepped a player to leave his inside man a perfect pass, that bulged the rigging, to take the lead. Eddie Jobe, new custodian in a new role, made some spectacular saves, in fact, his confidence was a stimulant to his teammates to renew the long swinging style of play that confined the ball to the Packers' territory for the remainder of the period. Half time—Packers 2, C.C.F. 1.

Packers Added To Score

On resuming, it was evident that the winners were not going to allow the Politicians to get any advantage because they settled down their regular style of play that proved productive of goals aplenty. After the winners had bombarded the C.C.F. goal for a while Art Downer registered the third tally with an unavailable drive. Jim Buchan added the fourth counter. But the best goal of the game came from the foot of Thorne, C.C.F. when he let drive a left-footer that landed in the net like a rocket. Towards the finish the Packers made the score read: Canada Packers 5, C.C.F. 2.

Canada Packers—W. Curtis, goal; F. Todd and Asa Downer, full backs; N. Downer, J. Buchan and B. Wilson, halves; Art Downer, G. Downer, W. Cribbens, T. Foster and W. Harris, forwards; subs, O. Adkinson and E. Jones.

C.C.F.—E. Jobe, goal; H. Adams and W. Begys, full backs; F. Lawrence, G. McDonald and H. Dineen, halves; S. Henwood, S. Leggett, P. Dyer, P. Thorne and H. Clapham, forwards.

Referee—W. Jones; linesmen—J. Isle and W. Geary.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

CHAPTER 47

Marcia couldn't believe her own eyes, as she saw the rapid turn of events at the Trocadero. Full of concern over Gary, she likewise was worried about Sandy. He seemed in a sort of stupor as the officer took him roughly in hand. Compassionately she went to Sandy's side.

"You mustn't worry, Sandy," she said to him, then turned to the policeman. "Let him alone! Can't you see it was an accident? He thought he was protecting—"

"Keep quiet, Marcia!" Sandy brushed aside her sympathetic efforts to help. "No use getting involved any further in this. It looks like it's going to be a nasty mess before we're through. Better keep your pretty skirts clear of it."

Disregarding the bitterness in his voice, she turned again to the officer, "Do something. You can't arrest this man. I won't have it!" Her voice rose to a high pitch in the stress of the emergency.

"Too bad, lady. I'd like to oblige you, but as far as I can see this man is guilty of assault and battery with intention of doing bodily harm. I've got to hold him. You'd better get to your friend over there, he might need you."

Marcia looked longingly at Sandy but the man refused to meet her gaze. "Yes, get to your friend. He needs you," he said. "You can't do anything—more—for me." With a nod to the policeman he indicated he was killing to go with him quietly. Anything to get away from this mob of semi-hysterical women, bustling waiters, and the still form of the man on the couch.

How different this evening was from the one Sandy had planned so hopefully that afternoon! Then, filled with his new determination to rush Marcia off her feet, he had been confident that he could win her promise of marriage before another day dawned. In the hectic confusion that had followed his headstrong actions, since he found her with Gary he had no opportunity——nor any great desire—to tell the girl of his changed ideas. As Marcia saw him rushed out the door, she did not know how unselfish and undemanding his love for her had grown. Instead, she thought of him as being still involved with the grasping Paula . . . and now this new disgrace!

She heard the scream of the police car as they hurried him away, and turned desperately to Gary.

"Gary, you can't let go, you can't! Open your eyes and talk to me; can't you see what's happened?" She was leaning over him, looking for some sign of life in the placid face. Suddenly she put her hands on his shoulders, shook him gently. "Don't you hear me, Gary—!"

Sympathetic hands drew her away from the couch as a doctor said suddenly, "I think we can move him now. Better rush him to the Emergency hospital."

The cafe manager had tried desperately to cover up the unfortunate affair, and the orchestra was blaring loudly to keep the guests' minds from the incident being enacted under their very noses. He breathed a deep sigh of relief when the ambulance drew to the curb, and the inert figure of Gary was put within it. He shuddered to think of what the papers would print as they smacked their lips over another "Hollywood brawl."

Marcia climbed into the ambulance, too, dumbly watching the man on the stretcher. "He can't die!" she said over and over to herself, not realizing that she was concerned primarily with the effect on Sandy. She shuddered when she heard one of the attendants say something about "manslaughter for that poor cuss if the fellow here doesn't pull through." She was on her knees in a second, again pleading with the unconscious Gary.

"Won't do you any good, ma'am," the doctor told her. "We'll have to wait till we get to the hospital and operate. You'd better keep hold of yourself. Is there anyone you can call?"

The girl shook her head. Gary lived at the University club, and she didn't know of any relatives except Marie.

"Do you think it's that serious?" she begged, hoping they would reassure her. "He has a cousin in Santa Cruz."

Her world crashed about her as the doctor said seriously, "Yes, I think you'd better call her."

At the hospital, white-clad attendants rushed Gary away from her, and Marcia walked blindly to the telephone booth. A hurried call brought Marie to the other end of the wire, and brokenly she told her the news. She felt a flood of relief when Marie said calmly, "I'll come right down. What hospital is it? And keep your head, my dear. It takes an awful lot to get a good man like Gary down."

Marcia sat in the waiting room, and watched the minutes tick off slowly. She had been there for almost two hours, when the head nurse came to her side. "Come on, young lady. I'm going to put you to bed. They've operated on Mr. Warren now; but we won't know for several hours how he will rally."

The girl was grateful for the placid tones of the woman. How could she get so immune to suffering, she wondered as she allowed herself to be led to a narrow bed in an empty room? They gave her a sedative that sent her into a troubled sleep, her dreams peopled by a thousand Sandys being pursued and persecuted by burly police.

Sandy himself was experiencing in fact what was merely a hazy nightmare to Marcia. Taken to headquarters he was hastily booked for assult and battery, and possible manslaughter, and held without bond. Mike Borst had rushed down to the station and reached it almost as soon as his friend. Furiously, he addressed the captain, "Cap, you can't do a thing like this. Knight here thought he was defending a lady; it was just an unfortunate accident, that's all. You can always find him at—"

"We'll keep him right here where we won't have to bother to look for him," the captain replied cautiously. "If this Warran dies, he'll face a pretty serious charge. The public has had just about enough of these society brawls; somebody is due to take the rap for them."

Furiously, Mike began to plead his friend's cause but the officer shook his head steadily. Finally he lost patience. "You're wasting your breath. We've got a duty to do, and we're going to do it regardless of you or anything you can say. Now get out!"

Sandy was being ushered out between two guards, and Mike watched him futilely. Loyally, he shouted, "Keep your chin up, Sandy. We'll see you through this. I'll get a lawyer and have you out of here in a jigger."

Mike took a taxi to the hospital first, to ascertain the seriousness of Warren's injury. What he learned at the reception desk did not ease his anxiety, and he went solemnly to the phone. He routed Lawrence Crocker, an attorney, out of bed and told him the predicament in which Sandy was involved. Crocker advised him to wait until morning, when Warren might have regained consciousness sufficiently to exonerate Sandy.

"But if he doesn't? If he should die?"

"Then you couldn't get him out anyway, so you might as well go home and get a good night's sleep," the attorney said laconically. "We'll do all we can in the morning; your friend will be taken care of where he is."

"Yeah, hot and cold running sweat," Mike said in exasperation, "and a choice room overlooking the city dump. Swell prospect!"

Disgustedly, he hung up the phone and walked out of the booth. As an afterthought he stopped at the desk to inquire about Marcia, leaving his phone number and a message to the effect that she could depend on him to be of any service. With characteristic abandon, he forgot about the work on his new job that was due to start tomorrow; he felt his sincerest efforts would be demanded to see Sandy through a difficult situation.

THE TUTTS By Crawford Young

AIRCRAFT FACTOR IN TRADE DEFENCE

Value of Air Arm Demonstrated in English Channel Tactical Exercises.

LONDON, July 31 (CP).—Air power receives recognition as a dominant factor in modern warfare in a communique issued by the Admiralty on the trade route defence exercises just carried out, and in plans for coastal defence.

The trade route defence exercise took place in the approaches to the English Channel and showed how the airplane is being increasingly called on for protection of merchant shipping and ports and harbors.

A "Blue" raiding force based on the Azores attacked merchant shipping while a Red force based on Falmouth sought to put up an effective defence. The Red force under Rear-Admiral T. H. Binney consisted of the aircraft-carrier Glorious, the 9,000-ton cruiser Newcastle, the destroyer Brazen, representing another 9,000-ton cruiser and eight flying boats of the coastal command of the Royal Air Force.

British merchant shipping was asked to co-operate in the exercise. A "raid" was effected by a raiding vessel of the Blue force signalling to her victim and then remaining in the vicinity for 45 minutes to represent the time needed to take off passengers and crew before sinking the ship.

In order to give the Blue raiders a fair start the Red forces retired to the east of the area. The Blue forces were commanded by Rear-Admiral T. F. P. Calvert and consisted of the cruiser Southampton and a disguised raider represented by the Royal Fleet Auxiliary Prestol, supposed to mount four six-inch guns.

Immediately the exercise opened, aircraft from the Glorious came into action. The Blue raider Southampton, capable of 32 knots, attacked a ship which called for help and gave position. The Glorious rushed for the spot but an error in the reported position prevented location at once.

The next two merchant ships attacked sent out calls enabling the Southampton to be found. Eight airplanes poured from the flying deck of the Glorious, swooping to the attack with torpedoes and bombs. As a result the raider was adjudged to have been sunk in quick time.

The exercise was repeated during the following three days. Low visibility hampered operations until the last day when the Prestol was located and "sunk" by air attack and the Southampton "sunk" by gunfire from the Newcastle assisted by air attack. Strategists are agreed that full use of the air arm alters trade route defence work and that the raiding of merchant vessels would be a more hazardous proceeding than it has been in the past if the defending forces were well equipped with ship-borne airplanes and flying boats.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BEE

"Wiggy! Wiggy!" screamed Mrs. Longears one day as she and Uncle Wiggily were riding in their auto from the woodland camp to the village store to buy some groceries. "Oh, Wiggy! Hit it!"

"Hit what?" asked the rabbit gentleman as he steered the car along. "Do you want me to hit a post or a fence?"

"I mean hit that stinging bee in our car!" said Mrs. Longears, as the buzzing bumbler zoomed against the windshield trying to get out where he belonged. "Kill the bees before it stings me!" screamed the rabbit lady.

"Nonsense," said Uncle Wiggily calmly. "Don't get excited about one bee in our car. If there were a whole swarm here it would be different. But this is just one, poor, lone bee. He wants to get out as much as you want to see him go."

"Then why doesn't he?" asked the lady rabbit shrinking as far back on the seat as she could.

Too Much Air

"Because I am going so fast and the air is so strong the bee can't fly out," said Mr. Longears. "I'll stop here and you'll see how quickly the bee will fly out himself."

"You spoke the truth there," buzzed the bumble bee as the rabbit stopped the car. "I flew in here by mistake and so much wind came through the open windows I couldn't life myself off the inside of the windshield. But now I can. Thank you, Uncle Wiggily. You did me a favor by not smashing me as your wife asked."

With windy air no longer rushing into the car as it speeded along, the bumble bee had no trouble flying out a side window. Before flying away to gather honey the bumbler buzzed:

"Never swat at any bees that get in your car, Uncle Wiggily. It only excites them and they may accidentally fly in your eyes. And then you couldn't see and you might run your car into a pole or tree and be hurt. Go quiet and easy and we bees will always fly out."

"I'll remember that," promised the rabbit gentleman.

"But you bees have such painful stings," said Mrs. Longears giving a little shiver as if she had been stung.

Only Enemies

"Yes, that's the only way we have of protecting ourselves — by our stings," said the Bumbler. "But we never sting our friends. And even a bee sting is better than smashing your car."

"Indeed it is," said Uncle Wiggily. "I guess I won't be afraid of bees in the car again," said Mrs. Longears as the bumbler flew away."

Uncle Wiggily drove to the village and bought some sugar and other things for the camp. On the way back several bees, smelling the sugar, flew in the auto to get some. With them was the bumbler.

"But don't feel afraid," he buzzed to Uncle Wiggily and his wife. "We aren't going to sting you."

Uncle Wiggily stopped his car so the bees could more easily get some of the sugar from which to make honey. And while the car was stopped the Bob Cat sneaked up and tried to get in.

"Get out, you impolite Bad Chap!" called Mrs. Longears.

"If you give bees honey you must give me nibbles from your ears!" snarled the Bob Cat, getting ready to bite.

"Come on, fellows! Let's sting him!" buzzed the bumbler. And they stung the Bob Cat so many times he was glad to run away.

Then the bees, having taken all the sugar they wanted, flew off.

And if the lead pencil will stop bouncing up and down on its rubber end like a tennis ball, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's hammock.

AUGUST RESPITE GAINING GROUND IN MANY CITIES

Civic Holiday Widely Observed in the Province of Ontario.

FAVORED IN THE WEST.

(By The Canadian Press)

TORONTO, July 31.—That welcome spot on the calendar, Civic Holiday, rolls around again Monday for residents of many cities and towns in Ontario, and some Western cities.

Originated in Toronto 68 years ago, the holiday has been adopted by most other centres in Ontario and several places in Western Canada, but as yet has made little headway in Quebec and the Maritimes.

Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Brandon and Edmonton are the largest cities observing the date. Regina had its civic holiday last Wednesday. A host of smaller cities and towns will also close up shop while civic employees, storekeepers and workers generally take the day off.

While the custom spread in the West, some slight inroads have been made in Quebec. Although Montreal and Quebec City have no observance, Three Rivers and the towns of Grand Mere, Shawinigan, Cap de la Madeleine and Louiseville set aside a day.

There is no civic holiday in the Martimes, but several cities have a day of their own—Halifax observes Natal Day, June 21; Saint John, the anniversary of the landing of the Loyalists, May 18, and Sydney a mayor's holiday the day after civic elections.

The date fills in the list of summer holidays where it has been adopted, following Dominion Day for July and preceding Labor Day for September. In this respect it parallels the English August Bank Holiday, though the latter is nationwide.

Hull in Quebec does not have a civic holiday; but across the river in Ontario the day is observed by Ottawa, Pembroke, Arnprior, Carleton Place, Perth, Smith's Falls, Brockville, Prescott and Cornwall. And cities and town scattered west to Windsor and north to Sudbury and North Bay mark the day.

There was considerable opposition when the idea was first mooted in Toronto in 1869, it is recalled, one merchant protesting that idleness should not be encouraged. It was only two years previously that Dominion Day had been declared a holiday.

But the first Civic Holiday in Toronto was enthusiastically observed and now it has an indisputable place on the civic calendar. The first Monday in August has been the fixed date since 1875. Winnipeg inaugurated the holiday 22 years ago and Edmonton followed after the war.

Ford At 74 Would Live Long as Useful

DETROIT, July 31—(AP)—Henry Ford was 74 years old Friday. Seemingly in the best of physical condition, his looks belies his years by still indulging in such exercise as bicycling and running.

Ford nearly 40 years old when he organized the present Ford Motor Company, has no intention of retiring.

Ford attributes his splendid physical condition to the fact he "keeps active and interested in things."

Somebody asked the manufacturer if he wanted to live as long as John D. Rockefeller. "If was asked that question not long ago, and I replied that I want to be around as long as I am useful," he said.

Ford's plants at present are shut down for the annual inventory. He plans to reopen them on August 9, and put assembly lines on a production schedule of 6,000 cars a day.

Education Not Neglected Pioneer Days Of District

OWNED 1,140 ACRES.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, July 31.—Mr. Henry Humphries of Keene was a distinguished visitor to the village recently and while there told some very interesting facts of pioneer days. This delightful old gentleman is the wonder of those who make his acquaintance for his brightness of perception and high agility of person are not usually connected with those who have seen 97 summers. Mr. Humphries now resides with his daughter (Mabel) Mrs. Peter Gillespie of Keene but during the week she was on a vacation, he visited at the home of his son Walter on the old Humphries homestead near Hastings.

Mr. Humphries, an amiable old man with a once erect figure now slightly bent with age still goes about enjoying life. Perhaps the reason why he has attained the wonderful age of 97 years is due to the fact that he never smoked or drank and always took the best care of himself. Although he can recall and relate events of his early childhood he is able to converse about the modern topics of interest. Each day he anxiously awaits the coming of the Peterborough Examiner and keeps abreast of the times by reading it through.

Mr. Humphries was delighted during the past few weeks to have his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. M. McKay of Los Angeles, Cal. make him a visit. He has one other daughter, Mrs. Lancaster (Helen) of Armstrong. Walter is the only surviving son as Joe and Allan have both passed away.

Interesting Story

With all the brightness of a man half his age, with memory alert, Mr. Humphries delighted in giving this very interesting account of the pioneer days of his late father. Never once did he hesitate to think of the many dates.

His father Robert Cayford Humphries was born in 1787 in Brixton, Deverell, Wiltshire County, England. In his early manhood he learned the carpenter trade and in 1815 at the age of 28 years took a notion to emigrate from England. In order to obtain a passport for emigration it was necessary for him to go to a British colony. He arrived in London three days after the Battle of Waterloo which was fought the 18th day of June 1815. He then took a sailing vessel for the West Indies. The vessel when out on mid-ocean needed repairing but after some difficulties they landed at Halifax for repairs. While this work was being done he took a survey of the county and liked it so well he decided to remain. He worked at his trade or at anything he could get to do in Nova Scotia. In 1817 he married Katharine MacGuire who was born in Upper Canada, King's County, Cornwall's Town on January 18, 1787. After their marriage they moved to Pennsylvania and resided in Westchester County, a Quaker settlement for four or five year.

His father bought a horse while in Westchester which cost him $40 for hay alone for one year. He also had a cow and made a light wagon. Two children were born during their residence here. They then decided to go to Upper Canada where his youngest brother Job was living. Together they helped survey the townships of Otonabee and Asphodel in 1820. Job who was born in 1796 did not live many years but passed away at the age of 34. During his short life in Asphodel township Job took up a section of land on Lot 2, Concession 3 and cleared the land and built a home. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Humphries and family after leaving Pennsylvania drove a horse and wagon through to Ogdensburg, N.Y., across to Barkville, then from here they made their way to Oak's Landing in the township of Percy, two miles west of the village of Hastings. They lived for a short time with his brother Job and later took up Lot 3, Concession 3, the price of the land being 10 shillings an acre. He built a house, a log barn and cleared the land and lived here the rest of his life. He died in 1879 at the age of 94 years and his wife in 1884 at the age of 92 years.

Education Not Neglected

Education was not neglected in these days. The school house in the township of Asphodel was built for 30 shillings, Robert Humphries gave the logs and helped in the construction. The first teacher spent 20 years in the Imperial Army, went through to Spain under Lord Wellington. He got his discharge a short time before the Battle of Waterloo, and he and his chum came to Asphodel and took up land on the 7th line of Dummer, but as they knew very little about farming, they did not make a success of it but spent their money. The teacher Francis Sharp lived in the school. His desk was fastened to the logs and the seats were slabs of wood. Mr. Humphries gave him a piece of land for a garden, apple trees, plum and cherry trees, gooseberries and raspberries and fenced the garden. Each child was to pay a shilling a month towards his or her education. The teacher lived here the rest of his life. Robert Humphries raised a family of ten boys and one girl and they all received their education in this first school.

Three years before Francis Sharp died he came to the cemetery now 107 years old, and picked a spot for his burial, and after his death he was interred in this grave. Job Humphries was the first one buried in the cemetery and a Mr. Stevens, a neighbor was the second one. When Robert Humphries died he left 2140 acres of first class land to be divided among his seven sons and one daughter, all clear.

TEN YEAR QUOTA ON BRITISH FILMS TO BE CONTINUED

Government Plans Also Include Move to Improve Quality of Home Productions.

STIMULATE OUTPUT-

LONDON, July 31—(CP-Cable)—The government has decided to continue the 10-year quota for British films. Unless some action was taken the quota system would lapse next March 31.

The quota system is aimed at stimulating production of British films by imposing an obligation on renters of films and exhibitors to show a certain proportion known as a quota during each year. The government's plans, embodies in legislation, further aim to improve the quality of British films.

(Under the government's proposals, a renter is a person who acquires films from the producer. He distributes copies to the exhibitor for exhibition of movies).

To permita British film to run for the quota, the government proposes to combine a test based on viewing with a test based on costs. If a certain minimum sum s expended on production of a British film it becomes eligible for registration without further inquiry. If the minimum sum is not reached it remains open to the producer or renter to apply for registration on the ground the film is of special entertainment value.

The proposed cost test is £1 per foot for labor with minimum labor costs of £7,500 (about $37,350) for the film. Seventy-five per cent of salaries and wages specially paid for labor in making a British film must, with certain exceptions, have been paid British subjects or persons domiciled within the British Empire.

Cut 5 Per Cent Off

To cover the lag in applying the new tests exhibitors' quotas for 1937-38 would be reduced from 20 to 15 per cent.

British long-film quotas are now 20 per cent for renters and exhibitors alike. The government proposes to make a long-film quota 15 per cent for renters, 10 per cent for exhibitors in the first year of the new legislation. Thereafter the British quota will be increased steadily. In the second year it will be 20 per cent for renters and 15 per cent for exhibitors. Over a 10-year period the renters' long-film quota would be increased to 30 per cent and the exhibitors' quota to 25 per cent.

A British long-film on which at least £3 per foot had been expended in labor costs, with a minimum of £22,500 (about $112,050) would count at twice its length for the renters' quota.

The board of trade would be empowered to vary quotas within defined limits.

A separate quota would be instituted for short-films—those under 3,000 feet in length. The short-film quota would be 10 per cent for renters, five per cent for exhibitors, increasing by stages over a 10-year period to 28 per cent.

Stirling-Marmora Pavement In Sight

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, July 31. — It is reliably reported that the Department of Highways has decided to complete the paving of No. 14 Highway from Stirling to Marmora this year.

This affords pleasure to the public generally because of the improvement a paved surface will mean to this much travelled highway, and because of the absorption of surplus labor in the municipalities through which the highway passes.

A strong petition was recently circulated in this section of the county, and it is believed that it was largely responsible for the decision of the Department of Highways.

The wallet, which contained $40.00, was not missed until the party returned to the cottage. The fishermen returned to the lake and after donning swimming suits, proceeded to search for the money. It was later discovered floating on the shore line.

ENJOYABLE PICNIC HELD AT COBOURG

Pupils of Grace Sunday School, Millbrook, Have Fine Outing.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, July 31 — Fine weather and good sports' program were outstanding features of the picnic outing sponsored by Grace Presbyterian Sunday School, on Thursday afternoon to Victoria Park, Cobourg, the event being well attended in spite of the busy season, and providing a most enjoyable occasion.

Cars left the church at 1 p.m., and upon arrival at the popular picnic grounds, as usual, the chance for a dip in the lake proved a major attraction. Swings and slides, with play in the beach sand, kept the little folk well occupied until the hour for the races, when big and little entered heartily into the various events. The winners included:

Girls 5 and under: Elizabeth Williams; Norma Ball; Boys 5 and under: Jackie Gray; Girls 8 and under: Norma Gray; Mary Blair; Boys 8 and under: Tommy Peers; R. Guthrie; Girls 11 and under: Marjorie Hubbeard; Ruth Forsythe; Boys 11 and under: Donald Guthrie; Allen Blair; Girls 14 and under: Mary Armstrong; Colleen Blair; Boys 14 and under: Bobby Peers; Donald Kerr; Boys 15 to 20: Harry McLeod; Married Women's Race: Mrs. Frank Gray; Mrs. R. Guthrie; Married Women's Shoe Kicking Race: Mrs. R. Guthrie; Wheel-Barrow Race: Harry McLeod and Donald Kerr; Three-Legged Race: H. McLeod and D. Kerr.

Centreville Presbyterian Sunday School joined with Grace school, Millbrook, for the picnic, and ran off its own sports' program, both being together at the supper hour, with the teachers and officers from each charge looking after the service of the hungry guests. Tables were laid for the picnic tea, and an abundant menu was provided.

The men enjoyed games of baseball throughout the afternoon, and in the evening most of the picnickers remained for the concert by the Kilties' Band, always an event looked forward to with pleasurable anticipation by visitors to the Cobourg Park.

TRAIN WRECK COSTS 8.

Tire Rim Kills One, Harvest Mishaps Are Fatal to Two Others.

TORONTO, Aug. 3 (CP) — Six drownings and seven fatal traffic accidents contributed to Ontario's Civic Holiday week-end death toll of 25. Highways streamed with automobiles as residents took advantage of fine weather for the mid-summer holiday and water places were likewise crowded.

Week-end disasters opened with and were topped by the Sudbury district train wreck in which eight transients were killed and six others hurt Saturday. One of the highway accidents produced a driver who failed to stop after knocking Joseph Falsetti, 48, from his bicycle and injuring him fatally.

Train Kills Girl In Car

A train crashing into an automobile near Niagara Falls brought death to Stella Szymusiak, 14, Crowland Township, but three others in the car received only minor hurts. Maurice Lafortune, 18, New Edinburgh, died after an automobile left the road and crashed into a house.

An automobile-truck crash was fatal for Albert Bongard, 53, Port Arthur, in the lakehead district, while three-year-old Edward Johnston was hit by a truck and died in St. Catharines. At Kingston, William Lloyd, 53, was killed by an automobile while walking on a highway; Mrs. Delmer L. Scriven, 59, Tiverton, was killed in a two-car crash near Parkhill.

In unclassified mishaps, Peter M. Campbell, 36, Chatham, died from injuries received when struck by an automobile tire rim; in Owen Sound district Elgin Henry received a fatal skull fracture in a fall from a hay mow; Sidney M. Dowds, 17, Ingersoll, was fatally crushed by a wheat rack; John McIlvene, died from monoxide poisoning in his Toronto garage.

BIRTH CONTROL CLINIC RAIDED

Brookline Police Prepare For Action Against All Connected With It.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 3. — (AP) — This fashionable town's birth control clinic remained closed today while the police department's vice squad prepared for court action "against everybody connected" with it.

The clinic, officially known as the Mothers' Health Office, was raided last night by a squad of officers. A few weeks ago a similar clinic was raided in Salem. Several persons were fined $100 as a result of that raid.

Their cases now are pending, on appeal, before superior court.

Police Lieutenant James Tonra said "We obtained considerable birth control literature and a large supply of contraceptives," he said prosecution would be made under state laws prohibiting dissemination of birth control literature, as was done at Salem.

Both the Brookline and Salem offices were conducted by the Birth Control League of Massachusetts. Tonra said he had obtained a complete list of the league's clinics throughout the state. He indicated this information later would be given to all police department directly interested.

"We may not have to call on any of the 'patients' as witnesses," the raiding leader said, "because we have sufficient evidence without them."

He said the dozen women present, in addition to workers, were described as "young wives."

Present at the time of the raid, Tonra declared, were Dr. Ilia Galeani, in charge, and Dr. Lucille Lordheimstein. The latter was one of those fined in the Salem case. "We intend to prosecute everyone connected with the clinic," the police official said.

Chases Cat To Death Dog Mothers Kittens

New York, Aug. 3 (AP). TRIXIE, 11-year-old bull terrier, today mothered the four kittens of a cat whose accidental death she caused.

The dog was chasing the cat over the world fair site, said Mrs. Victoria Costanzo, Trixie's owner, when the cat was buried beneath a load of dirt dropped by a giant crane at work on the fair grounds.

Mrs. Costanzo is sure it was remorse that prompted Trixie to retrieve the cat's small kittens and carry them, one at a time, to her kitchen corner box in the Costanzo home, where she has since guarded them.

BOARD TO HEAR COHEN PRESENT STRIKERS' CASE

Twenty Non-Strikers Prevented From Entering Bonner-Worth.

HEAVY PICKET LINES.

J. L. Cohen, legal adviser who lead Auburn and Bonner-Worth strikers during last week's unsuccessful negotiations with Dominion Woollens and Worsteds officials, was invited to meet the Industry and Labor Board at 2 o'clock this afternoon in Toronto, strike leaders revealed here this morning. Granted at his own request, the appointment was sought by Cohen in order that he might lay the strikers' case before the Board and ascertain whether or not assistance toward settlement of the strike can be obtained from that source.

After rejecting company proposals for strike settlement at a meeting last Thursday, the general strike body voted to inform the Industry and Labor Board of its willingness to submit the strike dispute to arbitration. A resolution to this effect was forwarded immediately to the Board along with Cohen's request for an interview.

Picketing Cancelled

News of Cohen's scheduled meeting with the Board was the only development in a holiday week-end which was the quietest for strikers of any since the strike began on June 29. Picket lines waned and disappeared entirely at both the Auburn and Bonner-Worth plants during the greater parts of Sunday and Monday. Picket stewards passed the word that those who wished to take a "holiday" on Civic Holiday would be excused from duty. A strike meeting had been scheduled for Sunda yevening, but few strikers appeared.

More than a hundred strikers reported to the Bonner-Worth plant for picket duty at six o'clock this morning and finally succeeded in preventing entrance of the twenty

NORTHERN MANITOBA.

SIFTON, Man., Aug. 3 (CP) — Henry Boyachuk, 24, and Mary Presilowski, 20, are dead as a result of a murder-suicide pact, according to police who say Boyachuk shot the girl through the heart and then turned the gun on himself.

The couple drove Sunday to the cemetery near Valley River, 180 miles northwest of Winnipeg and parked their car. The man shot the girl as she sat in the car, then stepped to the ground and killed himself.

Miss Presilowski's sister, Mrs. Jessie Lupchak, and her husband arrived at the scene shortly after the shooting, having found a note from the girl in their home. The note said:

"Henry and I are going to the Valley River graveyard and you will find us both there. I am going to die with a smile on my face.

"Mary."

Boyachuk left a note to a friend reading:

"I am leaving for good. Please say something nice at my funeral. We both decided to do this."

One Week After Being Married Groom's Body Found In River

Body of Patrick Flynn Recovered From Otonabee River Monday Evening.

DROWNED FRIDAY NIGHT.

Within just a week after being married, the body of Patrick Flynn, 31, of 261 King street was recovered from the Otonabee River early Monday evening.

Discovered by a young couple who were paddling up river on their return from a fishing trip, the body was towed ashore near the camping site above the sewage disposal plant, where the bridegroom of a few days and his 18-year-old bride the former Helen May Douglas, had been spending a few days before moving into the house they had rented on King street.

After investigating the circumstances, Coroner Dr. Herbert N. Young recorded a finding that Flynn came to his death from drowning by misadventure and decided no inquest would be necessary.

Following services conducted at Duffus Funeral Home this afternoon by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, pastor of Knox United Church, the remains were interred at Little Lake Cemetery.

Flynn who came to this country from Ireland was last seen alive by his young wife at nine o'clock Friday night, when she rowed him across the river to the foot of Park street when he expressed the intention of going up town to collect twenty-five dollars, he had said, was owing him.

Early the following morning his clothes were found on the bank of the river at the foot of Park street, and the theory is that Flynn returning to camp early in the morning had undressed and attempted to swim across the river when he did not find a boat awaiting him. He was said to have been a good swimmer, but it is possible he misjudged the current in the darkness.

Throughout Saturday members of the City Fire Department, assisted by Rover Scouts and others dragged the river in a vain search for the body. Over the week-end Wesley Lawford, a neighboring camper of the Flynn's searched the river, but without success.

Returning up the river around six o'clock Monday evening in a canoe, Martin Guerin and Miss Christine Rivard discovered the body floating down-stream. They raised the alarm and assisted W. R. Parker of Charlotte street in towing the body ashore.

UNIONS GAINING ON MANY FRONTS

Units Covering 23,000 Workers Get Contracts Signed in Ohio Valley.

WASHINGTON, August 3 (C.P.). —Both John L. Lewis' C.I.O. and the American Federation of Labor reported gains to-day on several fronts in their battle for supremacy in the organized labor movement of the U.S.

The Committee for Industrial Organization said in its weekly bulletin that various affiliated unions had signed contracts in the last six weeks covering 23,000 workers in the Ohio Valley without a single strike.

It also recorded that the Transport Workers' Union, an affiliate, had signed a closed shop agreement with the New York City Omnibus Corporation to cover 1,800 bus drivers and mechanics.

The Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, a C.I.O. subsidiary, reported gains in the South, asserting it had 42,000 of the 58,000 employees in the 136 plants where a membership drive now is concentrated.

The A. F. of L., however, said Marlsboro Mills employees in Bennettsville, S.C., had asked the court to release them from tyranny of the C.I.O. Textile Workers' Organizing Committee and to stop check-off dues collecting system."

The A.F. of L. also said two Pacific Coast State Federations were working to combat the C.I.O. activity in that region.

The Federation reported new contracts in Austin, Tex., Rochester, N.Y., Merced, Calif., Miami, Fla., Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn., and Minneapolis.

Ontario's Fall Wheat Yields Bumper Crop Of 35-40 Bushels

Some Barley and Oats Cut, With Threshing Likely General Next Week.

CORN, ROOTS, APPLES GOOD

TORONTO, August 3 (C.P.). — Threshing of wheat was general throughout Western Ontario last week with average crop returns ranging from 25 to a high of 48 bushels an acre, the Ontario Department of Agriculture reported to-day. Some barley and early oats have been cut, but general threshing will not start until next week, the report said.

All fall wheat in Southern Ontario has been cut and a start made on early oats and the second alfalfa crop. About half of the wheat has been threshed, yielding from 15 to 35 bushels to the acre. The district's harvesting was delayed by weather conditions and all hay is not in yet.

Early grain will be ready for threshing operations early this week in Hastings County, the report on Central Ontario crop conditions said. Good growing weather prevailed last week, but haying was delayed by wet weather. In some sections no grain has been harvested, but in Northumberland wheat and rye are all cut and in the barn. Wheat

Dance Band Solves Sit-Down Strike Plays National Anthem To Squatters

Owen Sound, Ont., Aug. 3 (CP). A DANCE hall proprietor had a tough time ending a "sit-down" strike here but when the band played the National Anthem, the squatters hastily jumped to their feet and the "strike" was called off.

Dancers at a hall on Lake Huron Saturday decided the dances were too short and when someone shouted "C.I.O." they immediately squatted on the floor, refusing to rise unless the proprietor promised them a larger nickel's worth of dances. The proprietor argued then pleaded but it did no good until the band played "God Save the King"

King Uses His New Monoplane For Annual Trip To Boys' Camp

Travels From Windsor to Southwold on Coast in 35 Minutes.

FIRST SINCE ACCESSION.

SOUTHWOLD, Suffolk, Aug. 3.—(CP)—The King flew here from Windsor to-day in the new Royal red-and-blue monoplane for his first flight since he came to the throne last December. The 115-mile flight was made in 35 minutes.

The plane was flown by Wing Commander E. H. Fielden, captain of the King's flight.

The twin-engined plane circled over the Royal Lodge in Windsor Great Park where the King had been spending the week-end with his family before heading for the boys' camp here which the King organized when he was Duke of York. Some 400 boys chosen from factories and schools are given holidays at the camp by the sea.

The King's plane landed on Marlesham Heath, about 20 miles from the camp, because it was too speedy to use any nearer landing field. His Majesty proceeded to the camp by automobile. He went bathing, and wore a gray suit.

When Duke of York he visited the camp every year, joining in the games of the boys and spending a night under canvas. Although as Sovereign it is impossible for him to remain over night, he plans to make another visit this year.

Wears Open Shirt and Shorts

The King was sunburned, and for his inspection of the camp wore an open-neck tennis shirt and grey shorts. He shook hands with Lord Wakefield and obliged the boys by halting in the middle of the hand-shake so they could take camera shots.

"You won't get a good picture standing that close," he warned some of them. "Try about six feet away."

Later in a marquee he addressed the boys, hoping they were enjoying themselves. He took lunch under canvas among the boys, eating the ordinary fare after a bugle had sounded "Come to the cookhouse door, boys."

After lunch His Majesty joined in games and later left for London by plane.

PICKETS ON GUARD 9 QUEBEC PLANTS IN TEXTILE TIEUP

Catholic Federation of Workers Plan to Wait Next Move By Company or Government.

ONE CLASH OCCURS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 3 (CP)—Pickets and employees who had been working as a skeleton crew clashed today outside the Drummondville factory of Dominion Textile Company, one of the company's nine plants closed by the strike of nearly 10,000 workers. One man was injured and was taken to hospital.

Meanwhile, mounted police officers were posted at the four properties in Montreal where company officials claimed non-strikers had been prevented from returning to their posts. There was no trouble today, police report.

Meanwhile a general alarm for reserves from all stations to go to the St. Paul plant in Montreal was sent out today although no open break had flared between pickets and non-strikers.

Reaching into seven communities, the walkout had crippled eight mills of Dominion Textile Company and one operated by a subsidiary. General operations were halted, though skeleton staffs manned three of the factories.

Standing pat on yesterday's strike call that drew the men and women workers out, Alfred Cote, president of the National Catholic Federation of Textile Workers, said the Federation planned to sit back and await the next move, either from Dominion Textile or from the Government.

His union is demanding collective bargaining rights, shorter hours, and standard wage rates. The pivotal issues were the first two, a union spokesman conceding the Federation would accept present pay if hours were cut from 55 to 48 a week.

While Managing Director G. Blair Gordon of Dominion Textile claimed "only a minority of the company's men were involved, Cote asserted the union demands were backed by 90 per cent. of the company's employees.

3,000 Quit in Four Mills

In Montreal, about 3,000 had walked out of the company's four city mills. Another 2,500 were out at Sherbrooke, Magog and Drummondville in the Eastern Townships, and 1,700 more at St. Gregoire de Montmorency, near Quebec. The Valleyfield mill, operated by the subsidiary Montreal Cottons, had lost 2,800 employees.

Though Gordon charged in a telegram to Labor Minister Tremblay, that "intimidation and restraint against other workers had been exercised by the strikers, no physical violence on non-strikers was reported. At Sherbrook, pickets broke a window to get into the company's plant to evict four workers, but they dispersed when the plant superintendent had the non-strikers leave voluntarily.

No Sign Any Alive Army Plane Pilot Reports To Base

Craft Bound From Guayaquil to Cristobal Had 12 on Board.

FOUND 35 MILES OFF GOAL.

Sixty-five Aircraft and Two Destroyers Engaged in Search.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The United States War Department received a message from its Panama military establishment today asserting an army plane had located the missing Pan American-Grace Airways flying boat 30 miles northeast of Cristobal but had found no sign of life near it.

The brief radio message said merely the air liner which carried nine passengers and a crew of three, was located "totally under water with no sign of life."

The Pan American-Grace ship took off yesterday from Guayaquil, Ecuador, for Balboa in the canal zone.

In its last radio message to Panama, it reported it was circling downward because of overcast skies.

30 Miles from Goal.

The message sent to the chief of army signal corps here by the signal officer of the Panada Canal Department said:

"Missing Pan American plane located 30 miles northeast Cristobal. Totally under water. No sign of life."

War Department officials expressed belief an army plane participating in the search for the missing air liner had made the report.

(The U. S. Navy Department at Washington said a total of 65 planes, the Navy aircraft tender Teal, the survey ship Nokomis and the destroyers Taylor and Babbitt had been ordered into the search.)

(On the Atlantic side of the canal officials said, 20 Navy patrol planes, three Navy amphibians and 14 Army planes were ordered out; on the Pacific side two Navy patrol planes, one Navy amphibian and 25 Army craft.)

A radio message then indicated the ship was nearing Cristobal, its destination on the Atlantic ocean side of the canal and was descending in search of an opeing in a heavy cloud bank.

Laverty, New Chairman, Is Authorized to Visit Quebec and Ontario Centres.

WELCH IS SECRETARY-

Plans Include Immediate Co-ordination of Peterborough and Cornwall Strikes.

CORNWALL, Aug 3. (Special)—Immediate steps to enlist all textile workers in affiliation with the newly formed Textile Workers' Council were considered at the first meeting of the Porivision Committee, held here over the week-end.

Mr. Laverty, President of Cornwall Textile Workers' Union and Chairman of the new committee was, authorized to proceed to other centres in Ontario and Quebec for this purpose, and a campaign of organization will be decided upon at a textile workers' conference in Ottawa shortly.

Alex Welch of Toronto, former organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, a C.I.O. affiliate, which has now switched to the new all-Canadian Textile Council, is Secretary of the Provisional Committee.

Issues Statement

He issued the folowing statement today:

"At the first meeting of the recently elected Textile Workers' Council, held in Cornwall over the week-end, it was decided that immediate steps be taken to concentrate and co-ordinate plans in respect to current activities in the field of textile workers, with immediate emphasis in unionization of all employees of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, Ltd., and Canadian Cottons, Ltd. Arthur Laverty was authorized to proceed to other centres at once, as may be necessary, for the purpose of implementing this decision.

"Plans include immediate co-ordination of the Peterborough and Cornwall strikes, involving a total of 2,400 textile workers.

"It was decided that Arthur Laverty, as President of the Textile Workers' Council, be regarded as official spokesman of the joint committee.

"Mr. J. L. Cohen, well-known international labor lawyer was appointed attorney for the Council and requested to come to Cornwall immediately to confer with members of the Council. Mr. Cohen arrived in Cornwall Monday morning.

To Plan Campaign

"Alex. Welch, Toronto, Secretary of the Council, was instructed to draft plans for an immediate organizational campaign for presentation of the forthcoming textile workers' conference to be held in Ottawa early this month."

The Provisional committee meeting here comprised Mr. Laverty, Mr. Welch and Alphonse Morissette, Three Rivers, Que., who is French Secretary of the Council.

The Canadian Cottons strike, affecting 1,700 workers here, went into its 14th day last night, with few developments to indicate an impending settlement. A workers committee went to Montreal this morning with Mayor Aaron Horovitz, who is acting as intermediary, and met with officials of Canadian Cottons Limited. Up to a late hour this evening they had not reported the result of the conference to union headquarters here.

All was quiet on the picket lines. The picket crews were smaller than usual today, as many of the workers took the day off to enjoy picnics, boat trips or to attend Civic Holiday sports events.

IMPERIAL VETS PROPOSE BOYCOTT ON HON C. J. POWER

Resent "Slur on Entire British Army" Great Rally in Brantford.

OVER 7,000 ATTEND.

BRANTFORD, Ont., August 3—(CP).—All men in Canada who fought in the ranks of the Imperials were to-day petitioned to protest "slur on the entire British army," by staying away from veterans' functions were Hon. C. G. Power, Dominion Minister of Pensions and National Health, is expected to attend in his official capacity.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King was asked, in the same resolution passed by the gathering of Imperial Veterans at their closing session here yesterday, whether he approved statements attributed in Hansard to Mr. Power and relating to Imperials now resident in Canada.

The words to which the Imperials here took umbrage were spoken in a parliamentary debate. Mr. Power was quoted as saying of a certain group of Imperials that they fought for the United Kingdom "they did not fight for this country. If they have a complaint, let them make it to the Imperial Government."

Lenghty debate on this and other issues marked the final business session, while outside the warriors' parade with a march-past before the city hall was featured by the presence of a group of German war veterans carrying the imperial German flag. Major Handley Gerry, a Toronto holder of the Victoria Cross, took the salute.

GIRL SUSTAINED MINOR INJURIES

Marion Miles Is Injured in Triple Collision on Sunday Evening.

Marion Miles, 492 George street sustained injuries to her mouth when the car driven by Reg. Dunford, 41, of 3022 Grand River, Detroit, Michigan, in which she was a passenger was involved in a triple collision at nine o'clock Sunday evening. She was attended by Dr. H. N. Young.

According to police report John Duggan, 18, of 148 London street was driving a coupe south on George street between McDonnel and Murray streets when he ran into the rear of a car driven by William S. Addison, 254 Elm street which had stopped on the centre of the roadway prior to making a left turn into Detcher's Service Station.

Glancing off the Addison car, the Duggan coupe met head-on in collision with the Detroit car which was proceeding in a northerly direction, causing extensive damage to the front of both vehicles and injury to a young woman passenger in the Detroit car. Another passenger Burrell Dunford of Windsor escaped injury.

Passengers in the Duggan car were Tony Vitarelli, 541 Elm street, and William Bennett, 394 Wolfe street.

CANADIAN BACON FINDING LARGER BRITISH MARKET

Lard Sets New High and Cheese, Eggs and Turkeys Also Show Increase.

LESS MILK, BUTTER.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—(CP)—Imports of bacon from Canada into the United Kingdom increased sharply in 1936, according to "dairy produce supplies in 1936," a review published by the Imperial Economic Conference.

Other commodities to show increased supplies last year included cheese, eggs and turkeys, while a record quantity of Canadian lard was received. But Canada sent less processed milk, butter and chickens.

Last year the United Kingdom absorbed more than four-fifths of the butter entering world trade, more than half the cheese and eggs and practically all the bacon.

Total imports of dairy, pig and poultry products into the United Kingdom in 1936 cost near £8,500,000 ($42,308,750) more than in the previous year, following an increase of £3,000,000 between 1934 and 1935.

The features of significance which affected the trade in dairy products in 1936 included unfavorable weather conditions in Australia and the consequent reduction in the export of butter, unusually mild autumn and winter weather throughout Europe which greatly increased winter exports of butter and eggs, and poor cereal harvests, particularly in the United States, which had an effect on pig products.

Greater Buying Power

The most important feature on the demand side was probably the increased purchasing power arising from greater industry activity.

Imports of butter into the United Kingdom in 1936 reached a record figure of 9,750,000 hundredweight valued at £44,400,000. Supplies from Empire sources comprised 53 per cent of the total, compared with 57 per cent in 1935, the decline being due to smaller shipments from Australia. Prices in general were higher than in 1935.

The United Kingdom's imports of cheese have been declining in recent years and the total quantity of

Red Editors Agree Another War Near

Moscow, Aug. 3 (AP).

SOVIET editorial writers agreed yesterday the prospect of a new world war looms more ominously than at any time since the last one.

In the Soviet Union it was "Anti-War Day," anniversary of the outbreak of war between Russia and Germany in 1914, and the Government-controlled writers almost unanimously turned to the Spanish and Far Eastern conflicts for evidence that a new holocaust is in the making.

George Dimitroff, Secretary General of the Comintern, writing in Pravda, charged that "Fascist aggressors are setting the world on fire." The Soviet's power prevents them from starting a "new world slaughter," he added.

Downeyville Boy Injured By Horse

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, August 3. — On Saturday Kevin, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Perdue, met with a very painful and somewhat serious accident while riding on horseback. The horse jammed the little fellow between the wire fence and he had two of his toes badly broken and cut. He was rushed to Omemee, where Dr. Earle dressed the wounds. It required several stitches to close the wound, and the little fellow will be laid up for some time.

A Dialogue on Moderation

Mr. A: It's my opinion, sir, there's a big gap in principle between moderation and prohibition.

Mr. B: Yes, moderation means the avoiding of extremes, being temperate in conduct . . . that sort of thing.

Mr. A: It's a matter of character, a matter of control: Prohibition denies that people can exercise self control.

Mr. B: Yes, but every decent citizen is agreed that young people should be protected from the abuse of drink.

Mr. A: And yet, those same decent citizens listen to the shouting of extremists who want to return to prohibition.

Mr. B: What about those figures . . . arrests, convictions, accidents, etc.

Mr. A: Mostly misinterpretations of conditions. Half-truths. Examine the situation fully and you'll realize that even with their occasional abuses, the beverage rooms are the best safeguards against the evils we all want to destroy.

Mr. B: But aren't you arguing in circles?

Mr. A: Yes—in a circle that goes back to 1916. Remember how I warned you that prohibition was going to make drinking a sport, and drunkenness a distinction? Have you forgotten already how this actually happened?

Mr. B: Who's talking about prohibition? Ontario has one of the soundest liquor control systems in the world.

Mr. A: Agreed. But the agitators who are trying to create a public demand for restrictions are forgetting that fact. They forget, too, the degrading conditions that existed under so-called prohibition.

Mr. B: I must admit there's a great deal in what you say, and rather than go back to the bad old days, I'd rather see young and old in public government controlled premises . . . drinking a wholesome mildly stimulating beverage like beer.

Mr. A: Right you are, and so would every other thinking citizen.

Regent Theatre Modernized and Re-Opened

MODERN IDEAS INCORPORATED IN CHANGES

Decorators Changed Auditorium in Delightful Harmony of Color.

NEW LIGHTING EFFECTS

In its handsome new appointments and decorations the Regent Theatre re-opened on the holiday to capacity crowds in the afternoon and evening, and also to unanimous approval and congratulations in the management's modern improvements which have virtually provided a new theatre for Peterborough.

Comfort of patrons and the eye-pleasing effect of attractive colors have been effectively accomplished in every detail of the work that has been in progress since the house turned off its light three weeks ago. Decorators have transformed the auditorium into a delightful harmony of color ranging from flesh and salmon tints to dark reds, with striking panels which accentuate the atmosphere of height and space.

Rich Harmony of Color

Modern theatre ideas are incorporated in all the improvements. The seats are all air cushioned, the wall and ceiling lighting fixtures are additional details of beauty. Deep carpets of cubist pattern have a dominant red color note that is carried out in the leather of the seats, the painting of their supports, and extending beyond into the wall decorations, the ultimate effect being a rich harmony of color that made an excellent impression on the preview crowds Monday.

The lobby has been finished in lighter cream design with a pastel shade of green and color agreement is found in the new linoleum, creating a bright and attractive airiness. This same sense of brightness has been enhanced in the new sidewalk canopy and entrance lights.

Modern Lighting

In fact the modern lighting that has been employed by the Regent management is one of the outstanding features of the new theatre. When the house is darkened, the main lights dissolve into a dark green, and the tubular wall fixtures are also subdued, affording sufficient illumination for necessary movement, but in no way interfering with the screen. Incidentally, several details of the original plans had to be suspended to enable the other work to be completed for the Civic Holiday opening, but these further improvements will be added in the near future. New lenses in the projecting machine were bought for the purpose of securing the utmost clearness in th secreen reproductions of the films, and patrons of the Regent are going to find new delights in their favorite theatre.

The ladies' rest room has been completely renovated and refurnished. The thick carpeting of the auditorium has been used on the floor and the decorators have made a most attractive job of the wall coloring. Even the leather upholstering of the chairs reflect the pervasive restful note in this room.

And the new Regent opens for the August business with an outstanding series of pictures, and in its central location on the cross town Hunter Street between Ashburnham on the east, and the residential sections of the north and west, the Regent should play to larger crowds than ever.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 3.—(AP).—Crooner Bing Crosby's nervous whistle gave him away.

Hospital attendants, recognizing the famous trills, discovered it was Crosby's four-year-old son who was being preprade for tonsillectomy today.

"A crooner?" he cringed. "Never."

HAS NO EXCUSE DODGING KILTS

Scottish Chairman Asks War Minister To Show His Skirted Colors

SEPTEMBER VISIT

LONDON, Aug. 3—(CP)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, Minister for War, intends visiting Scotland in September for the conference of the Scottish Liberal National Party, and has been invited to wear a kilt.

Sir William Baird, chairman of the Scottish Liberal National Association, says: "I hope when he comes Mr. Hore-Belisha will wear his kilt. There can be no excuse because he has the Gordon Highlanders and the Camerons in his charge as war minister, and if he cannot get a kilt to fit him I will supply mine. After all the Leslies are a famous clan in Scotland."

Sir William added that if at any time they got tired of the conference speeches they should ask the war minister to sing Scottish songs, he sings them well.

In Scotland they had one great complaint. They were all tired of hearing of "England and the English," instead of "Britain and the British." He had complained before in the Liberal Federation days and he did not think it was good for a new party.

Sir William said he was almost amazed at the growth of Scottish Liberalism. They were not chasing shadows like some people in Scotland, but were facing realities.

Veteran Founder Disclaims Any Intention To Hit At India

LONDON LUNCHEON

BOMBAY, Aug. 3 (CP-Reuters).—Following the suggestion by World Chief Scout Baden-Powell at a luncheon in London that the use of scout training in India was the subject of criticism in Indian circles, the Bombay Municipal Council by a vote of 44-14 decided to disaffiliate the boy scout and girl guide troops in the Bombay schools from the organization of which he is founder and head.

In a subsequent explanation Lord Baden-Powell said he had no intention of directing hits at India or its people. The Chief Scout continued: "In summing up the defects which are remediable to some extent through the scout training, we found in England that they lay chiefly in lack of character, of health and of unity. In India, as in most of the other countries of the world, the same defects were to be found to some extent.

"One minor difficulty which we found in inculcating there the all-important sense of honor lay in the fact that I could not find a word in Hindustani which actually stood for honor. But my remark to that effect was not intended to impute any lack of honor—it was merely stating a small fact."

Lieutenant-Governor's School Days Recalled By Class-Room Visit

THIRTY YEARS' ABSENCE

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3 — (CP). — His Honor Eric Hamber, lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, went back to school for half an hour on a recent visit here and scanned initialled desk tops for the first time in 30 years.

'Well, well, here are the old class rooms,' he commented running his hand over the scarred surfaces of the forms, possibly remembering his own furtive pocketknife-signatures.

Eric Hamber was born in Winnipeg, and entered St. John's College school, where his father was a master from 1884 til his death in 1913. Headmaster Walter Burman, the visitor's guide, recalled that the lieutenant-governor won his B.A. degree in 1898, specializing in classics.

Souvenir Hunters Causing Trouble For Toronto Kiwanis Club.

TORONTO, Aug. 3.—(CP).—Souvenir hunters among tourist visitors to Casa Loma are causing concern to the service club (West Toronto Kiwanis) which guides them through the famed castle built by Sir Henry Pellatt.

Two knobs were removed from the sewing box of the late Lady Pellatt, a knob from a valuable chest of drawers and a guide's autographed book were missing yesterday after more than 5,100 had been conducted during the holiday week-end through the building taken over by the city for unpaid taxes five years ago.

Walking On Highways

In one evening the names of two people were added to the long list of those killed while walking on the highway. Both were on No. 2 Highway not far removed from Kingston, and traffic is generally heavy on that road. What provision is made for walking off the edge of the highway there is something we do not know. It may be a pedestrian has as much right to walk on a highway as a car owner has in driving on it, but if such right exists it is not the part of wisdom for the pedestrian to seek to assert it. We have seen pedestrians walking three abreast on a highawy and perhaps that is also legal. And it is also dangerous.

There was a case within recent days where a railway company took action against two individuals on the ground of trespass. They had been walking on a railway track. That is considered dangerous, but we do not believe it is nearly as dangerous as walking at night on our much-used highways. A train is equipped with whistle and bell and it makes plenty of noise. In many localities the time when a train may be expected is well known. It is also a fact that railway train will run exactly on the rails; it is fixed traffic and will not turn suddenly to the left or right. And yet walking there is considered dangerous. Grant that it is. What then of walking on a highway where cars in each direction are constantly passing, driven by people who can and do turn left or right at will and many of whom travel at a rate which is faster than a number of our railway freights or local trains. Traffic being what it is, we do not believe it is safe to walk along a highway at night without carrying a light. Walk facing the traffc, and then get clear of the road when a car is coming. That may sound extreme but it is not. It is necessary to view such matters in the light of what is actually taking place, and peoole are being killed by walking on highways at night.

A Trifle Confused

It is a trifle difficult for the average land lubber to follow with interest and intelligence the reports of the races between Harold Vanderbilt's (U.S.) Ranger and T. O. M. Sopwith's (British) Endeavor II, near Newport, R. I.

These yachts cost something like a half million dollars, and the British contender has to be brought across the ocean. The cup for which they compete is no more valuable than one which might be put up for a bowling tournament, but it is regarded as the most coveted trophy in the world. It has been resting in United States a long time.

That much is easy enough to understand, but when it comes to the sailing of the race we become confused. Easy enough to understand the driving of a team of horses where people say "Gee haw . . whoa," and so on. Nor is it difficult to understand the wording of auto traffic, with its "parking . . cutting-in . . road-hog," etc.

We confess openly to confusion. We read that the British boat used a "starboard tack," and also a "port tack," and at yet another place they crossed on a "split tack." We cannot condemn or approve of such tactics as we know nothing about them. The Yankee boat, we learn, threw out a "Genoa gib," and as that boat won the race we take it that must have been the proper thing to do, but when it "gybed around the windward mark," we feel inclined to say that was in error. Likewise "setting a parachute spinnaker" must have taken up quite a bit of good time which might have been profitably employed otherwise. It is easy to understand that one boat beat the other: that is indeed simple, but as there is nothing about spinnakers and gibs and tacks in the Parliamentary Guide, the Canadian Almanac, the Dunning budget or in the Ditches and Watercourses Act we admit being somewhat at a loss when it comes to trying to give an intelligent opinion regarding what actually took place.

The Farmer's Hat

From a farm reader we received a note which starts: "Put this in your paper." And here it is:

"I was reading something in your paper about the kind of hats farmers wear during the harvesting season and until they think it time to leave them off in the fall. You said the ones on the bench by the wash basin on your Tenth Concession were probably unsanitary or something like that. This is to let you know in case you haven't done any farm work lately that the style hasn't changed. And no one here has suffered.

"Not so many days ago I was working on what you might call the back fifty and the wild raspberries were good along the fence and I always like the wild ones best. I thought I'd take some to the house and I picked my farm hat a good half full and took them along. My wife now and then lets loose on some of these sanitary arguments and I expected there would be something about it on me using my old straw hat—third year—for a berry basket. But never a word. That night we had rasoberry pie for supper and it was big and thick and juicy. And nothing happened to any person in the family. So there may be germs in those old hats but again it may be the old farm hat has built up such a strength of its own that the germs are scared to go near it."

Something About Rain

Byron Daily, druggist of Waynesburg, Pa., keeps a record of the days on which it rains in his town, and with the exception of two years it has rained on the 29th of July ever since 1875 when the records were established. Of course it rains on other days in the year in Waynesburg, but the 29th of July has been so regular that it has come to be known locally as "Rain Day" and the folk go out for a little celebration.

It is well known that precipitation is greater in any given area at certain times of year. David Bonnis, of St. Marys, Ont., when he became secretary-treasurer of the annual fall fair, started to study charts and records covering a period of over 30 years in order to put his finger on the date most suitable for the annual fall fair. The exact date we cannot recall but it was early in October, and the method of calculation was so correct that a succession of fine fair days turned a deficit for the fair board into a surplus. Records of the extent of precipitation are available and the St. Marys man selected the days when according to the law of averages there should be no rain. He could not possibly be right all the time by that or any other system, but he was seldom wrong.

Riding Freight Trains

Occasionally the statement is made that times are so much better that we no longer have transients riding around the country on freight cars. It is significant that when a freight train was wrecked 97 miles from Sudbury eight transients were killed and a similar number injured.

The Examiner was informed by a transient who visited this office only a few days ago that virtually all the men "on the road" used the freight trains. They had given up the idea of trying to get rides on cars as few drivers would stop for them and truck drivers were worse. Even if one did get a lift in a car it might be only a short one. It was different with the freights, especially those which were billed for long hauls. If a place could be found on one of them then the trip to new territory was easy enough.

Our informant apparently knew what he was talking about as he had just made his way from Winnipeg, stopping for a day or so at North Bay. From there he had found little trouble making his way to Orillia, then to Lindsay and on to Peterborough. Leaving Winnipeg he said there were ten or twelve free riders on the freight.

Asked if he had inquired at the employment office here to see if there was work available our visitor replied in the negative. He was at least honest about it, and said he was not particular whether he worked or not. He had been on the road four years and was certain to find some person he knew in every place he visited. He also admitted he had a pretty good idea of the best places to call in every community. There were always people who were ready to provide the price of a meal. The frankness of the visitor was almost refreshing as he said he had taken $2.20 in Peterborough in one morning's "hard work." By hard work he meant persistent calling and touching people in offices and on the street. Occasionally the police in some place got after him, but his experience was it was rather difficult for the "cops" to tie a charge of begging on the transient who knew his business. If there was anything done about it then it would be a night in the police cells and a warning to get out of town next morning. This man was born in Owen Sound, but he has no relatives there now. He said he was 34 years of age and had never even had a cold since taking to the road. But as far as taking to work he was not the least interested. As long as there are people ready to put their hands in the pocket at his approach he will keep on being a tramp—and a bum.

He Was Under A Tree

A report published in the Barrie Examiner tells exactly how a young farmer lost his life during a thunderstorm. The young man and his father were cutting wheat when the storm came up. They unhitched the team, and horses and men took shelter under a tree. The son was leaning against the trunk of the tree when a bolt of lightning struck it. The bark was ripped off the tree as far as where the young farmer was standing and then it entered the ground through his body. He was instantly killed. That was the report of the family doctor who was called shortly after to the scene.

The father was standing a little to one side and was stunned but not otherwise injured. When the father recovered from the shock he noticed that the horses seemed to be down on their knees, but he gave them no attention after noticing the condition of his son. Afterward the horses seemed to come out of the shock and showed no ill effects.

Seeking shelter under a tree was the one move which should not have been made. We read within recent days of a farmer who was caught with a binder at some distance from shelter. He unhitched the horses and gave them a start, and then went to the barn. He then crawled inside a bundle of sheaves which had been set up and stayed there until the storm was over. In a field not far off three cows were killed while standing under a tree near a wire fence. The farmer said "I was a little cramped but did not even get wet."

There have been a number of things published telling people what to do and not to do when a thunderstorm comes. All are agreed on keeping away from trees. Some advise seeking a culvert, getting into a ditch and lying down even if one does get wet. There are traditions in certain places that beech trees are not struck by lightning, and one Indian assured the Examiner recently that he had never known a beech tree to be struck. To what extent that holds we do not know, and we would be pleased to hear further evidence on the point. As a rule it is well to keep away from trees when a storm is on.

A Man Beating His Wife

Case in Hamilton court had to do with a man beating his wife. There was no doubt about that part of it as admittedly the husband has taken his wife upstairs, used a strap on her and then locked her in a bedroom. He advanced as a reason the fact that his wife was not giving proper attention to three of his children by a former marriage.

It was stated in court that the Common Law of England of 1870 still held good in this country, and under that law a husband had the right to chastise or confine his wife to enforce certain rights.

Whether the Common Law of England of the vintage of 1870 applies in this country, and to what extent, is something which we do not know, and also something about which we are not particularly worried. There are certain standards of life and of living to which we have attained, and in these there is nothing which will subscribe to any ancient document giving to a husband the legal right to beat or punish his wife. If it is not possible for the people to live together without moving into that armed atmosphere then it is possible for them to separate one from the other.

There is small patience for the man who enters court to explain why he beat up his wife. There is less for an attempt to show that he has a right to do it. That view may not be the result of a deep knowledge of law, but it is one which has good mooring in the common sense view of the people of this country.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We have never been able to figure out what the regatta winners do with all the flash lights they receive as prizes.

The test trans-Canada flight from Montreal to Vancouver was a success. And Howe!

With a government commission to control horse-racing in Ontario perhaps the governors will be taken off some of the horses we have been selecting.

A Cleveland woman includes in her claim for divorce the complaint that her husband keeps the family home in a trailer. That of course makes it difficult to avoid getting behind.

A Wisconsin man escaped with a couple of broken ribs when a 2,500 pound tractor ran over him. The item did not state what college football team he had graduated from.

Story comes along from Texas of a grasshopper stopping a tractor by perching on a spark plug and shorting the ignition. Some of those intelligent insects could be usefully employed on some of the speeding cars in this district.

Toronto claims to have been the first Canadian city to proclaim a civic holiday. It was characteristic of course of Queen City folk that they wanted to have a day when they could all leave Toronto.

¶ Dan Dougal is not happy now, new wrinkles settle on his brow, he's fighting with abuse; Dan Dougal weighs two sixty-three, and so perhaps you will agree, it's time he should reduce.

¶ Dan Dougal's doctor told him so, and placed his victuals rather low, he is a paunchy man; he wrote a list out long and neat, of all the things that he might eat, his wife controls the plan.

¶ Dan Dougal loved his spuds and pie, he liked his beef and pudding high, preferred his bread cut thick; he liked three layers on his cake, liked everything his wife might bake, the diet made him sick.

¶ When he comes home to eat at noon, he can't get at it none too soon, he craves for deep-cut beef; his wife has fruit juice there for him, his bread is cut alarming thin, he gets a lettuce leaf.

¶ There's sorrow in Dan Dougal's eye, when he asks for a slab of pie, six slices more of bread; it strikes him rather mean and cruel, that he can't stoke his tank with fuel, that's what the doctor said.

¶ Dan Dougal wanders forth at night, his innards feeling gaunt and light, he's starving so it seems; Dan Dougal's wife is never there, and so he shuffles to a chair—and scoops in pork and beans.

Leads A Busy Life.

EVANGELINE Booth, General of the Salvation Army, is 72 years of age. Since she became General she has not slowed down her activities. Her powers of endurance are remarkable. In England in 1935 while on a tour of inspection and evangelization she had to preside over ten meetings per day, speaking twice at each of them. When night came she was fresh and alert and would laugh at her worn-out officers who could hardly keep their eyes open. Following morning she would be the first up ready for another day.

When in England the General lives in a little house on the outskirts of London. An early riser she eats sparingly and takes as much outdoor exercise as possible, preferring swimming and riding a horse. Her days are given up entirely to work; in the evening when she is not preaching she reads, writes, composes hymns and plays the harp. She never goes to bed without a pencil and paper beside the bed. She says some of her finest inspirations come as a result of nocturnal meditation.

The General recalls that when her father returned from his first street meetings in London his clothes were often in tatters because he had been attacked. But there was always a great and a kindly light in his eye.

What's Wrong With the Church?

Has It Lost Its Message?
This Writer Thinks It Has.

EDITOR EXAMINER. Sir: In your issue of July 17th I read with interest your editorial "Jumping on the Churches." Others, commenting on said article, seem to be only touching on the fringe of things. Reading the article in question, I was struck with the fact, that many of the excuses given by subscribers, in the nature of accusations against the church, are so true that the church stands condemned before the world, with no excuse to offer. The church which on the day of Pentecost moved thousands to repentance and salvation, others to fear, and yet others to anger and persecution, is today like Samson stripped of his power and blinded, buffeted and made the laughing stock of the world. Well may the world ask: "What's wrong with the churches?" When the church could say: "Silver and gold have I none," it would also say rise up and walk. But now she says, I am rich, and increased in goods, and have need of nothing (self sufficient). Therefore God says, "I will spue thee out of my mouth."

Speaking of "The Church," I mean the visible, nominal Christian Church of today, although all down through the church age, God has preserved for Himself a body of people (called at different times by different names) faithful in their witnessing for Him, who have counted the cost and are willing to live, and die, for Him, if need be. Such is the true church or "ecclesia" as it is rendered in the Greek", meaning "called-out" ones. Separated from the world and sanctified for the Master's use, referred to often in Scripture as "The Bride."

ONE thing the secular papers forget in their criticism and analysis of the church is that there is no comparison between a secular organization and the church. Inasmuch as the church is not an organization, but a "living organism" (Read I Cor. 6:15) Know ye not that your members are the body of Christ, (also Eph. 4-25) For we are members one of another and (Eph. 5-25-27) Christ also loved the church, and gave Himself for it, that He might sanctify, and cleanse it, with the washing of water, by the word, that He might present it to Himself "a glorious church," not having spot, or wrinkle or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish, and verse 30—"For we are members of His body, of His flesh, and of His bones."

That is a picture of the church as inaugurated at the beginning. But today we have the majority of ministers denying the deity of Christ, His virgin birth, the efficacy of the shed blood, and the inspiration of God's word in general, and substituting for ordinances the commandments of men.

Last year, I read of a certain church, in revising and modernizing, their hymn books, decided to leave out all hymns like, "There is a Fountain Filled With Blood," and other "bloody hymns" as they termed them. They said such a theme was repulsive to civilized minds. Savoring of the slaughterhouse. Again they decided to leave out the hymns with "worms" in them, referring to "Alas and did My Saviour Bleed...Could He Devote that Sacred Head, for Such a Worm as I." Degrading they said.

Listen, friends, the Church of Christ came to life at Cavalry, under the shed blood, from that riven side, and note this, when you drain the blood from a body, it become a lifeless corpse.

That is the answer to the question: "What's wrong with the church." Our learned friends have let out the blood of Christ from their teaching that blood through which alone there is remission of sins, and consequently all the church has on their hands, is a lifeless corpse, not only lifeless and powerless, but stinking with corruption, graft, and greed, in the nostrils of an enquiring world.

✣ ✣ ✣

WHEN JESUS uttered the Great Commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, baptizing them in the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." He also said something which is very rarely quoted with the foregoing verse, although it is part of it really, "teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo (or behold) I am with you always even unto the end of the age."

Paul said I have received of the Lord, that which I delivered unto you.

Ministers of today are not teaching those things he commanded them to teach. When Jesus commissioned His disciples in Mark 16, 15-20. He said: "These signs shall follow them that believe. In My Name they shall cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues, they shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not harm them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover. And they went forth and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following."

Subscribers to your article say: the church which one exorcised devils from the minds of men, and restored tranquility of soul has lost its place to mental specialists, etc., and the church as a fountain of healing which once had miraculous results through faith, has been replaced as physician by the science of medicine." These inquirers ask "Why are these signs not forthcoming today?" Because these truths are not any longer taught as recognized by the church as a whole. If you were to send for a minister or an elder today when you're sick to anoint you and pray the prayer of faith over you as commanded in James 5-14. How many of them would do it? They would tell you: the age of miracles is past; we no longer practice these things.

But yet God's word says "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever—and heaven and earth may pass away but my word liveth and abideth forever."

✣ ✣ ✣

WHEN Jesus commissioned his disciples, just before His ascension, He told them to tarry at Jerusalem, until they were endued with power from on high—"Supernatural power" and when they received the baptism of the Holy Ghost in the upper chamber, they recognized it as that promised enduement of power. It made Peter bold and courageous. He told the people gathered (and they represented all nationalities) the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to them that are afar off. That promise was made at the beginning, and we who are now alive, believe we are living in the "afar off," time referred to, the end of the church age; and if God's dear children who really love Him, and are seeking to serve Him, laid hold of this promise, among many others, as applying personally to them God's presence, and power to save, to heal, and to baptize in the Holy Ghost would be as manifest in our midst as it was in apostolic days.

It's not a new gospel we need. The gospel of Christ is still the power of God unto salvation. Turn to Jeremiah 6:16, "Stand ye in the ways and see and ask for the old paths. Where is the good way? And walk therein and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

"What is happening today is just parallel to what happened in the days of Josiah, king of Israel, (see Chron. 34:15). God's word "The book of the law," had been "lost in the house of the Lord," in the very place where it should have been read and used and honored. It got lost under piles of rubbish until faithful Hilkiah the high priest found it and gave it to Shaphan the scribe, who delivered it to the king and when the king read it he humbled himself before God and caused the book to be read to the people resulting in a glorious revival in Israel.

Friends, when our intellectual champions humble themselves before God, acknowledging their utter dependence on Him and their need of this enduement of power from on high, only then will they have those promised signs following. For the preaching of the gospel is to them that perish foolishness, but to us who believe it is the power of God unto salvation.

I praise God that even today in face of such ecclesiastical apostacy God still has a church made up of believers from every denomination under the sun, who dare to believe His word and step out on His promises. The presence and power of God is real and precious, where we believe in entire separation from the world, not amalgamation of all defective forces in hope of patching up the whole.

Trusting these truths may be borne home to some honestly enquiring soul.

I am, one of the least of these.
M. Harvey.

THAT'S WHAT IT IS.

IT is well to have this matter settled by a high court, once and for all: "What is a drugstore?"

It is all to the credit of the learned jurist of the Indiana Supreme Court that he went into the matter thoroughly, delving into Burns' annotated statutes, Webster's new international dictionary, apothecary definitions, the Encyclopedia Britannica and even Shakespeare.

And what did the learned judge find? That a drugstore, of all things, "is a store in which drugs are sold."

BLOWING THEM UP.

(London Express)

SCIENTISTS have put forward a new theory. They say that if the icecaps which cover each Pole, North and South, could once be removed, they would never reform. Once they went the whole climate of the earth would be altered. The hard climate of Britain would change to the soft warmth of the semi-tropics. Scientists say that with modern explosives the feat is not impossible, and certainly it would be better for mankind to use explosives in this way than to blow each other to death with them.

To the Editor

RELIEF FOR STRIKERS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Kindly publish the following open letter:

To the Mayor and City Council: Gentlemen: Six Hundred and fifty citizens of Peterborough, members of our community, are on strike against starvation wages and intolerable working conditions.

Although textile barons apparently are bent on starving them into submission, it is in the best interests of the merchants, professionals, and rate-payers in general, that the strikers get their demands granted, as it would improve their standard of living and health conditions.

The tag day last Saturday has shown conclusively that the entire community is behind the strikers. It is gratifying to know that your worship and most of the councillors are in sympathy with the strikers' cause. But gentlemen, gratifying as it is, and no one, I am sure, appreciates it more than the strikers themselves, it requires more than sympathy to win this just cause. It requires material assistance.

Gentlemen, you more than any one else can give them this assistance. You can do it simply by granting every striker relief for the duration of the strike. Only by so doing will you help the strikers win their just cause.

Gentlemen, you know the old saying, "A friend in need is a friend indeed." The community owes this material assistance to the strikers, and you as the elected representatives should grant it to them.

Yours for a successful and speedy conclusion of the strike.

R. H. RUSKIN.

SHADES OF JUNIPER

Editor Examiner:

Sir: When the Dominion Government over a half a century ago ceded Juniper Island on Stoney Lake to a couple of well known Peterborough citizens in connection with the holding of the annual meeting of the American Canoe Association it was even less known to the people of this province generally, then The Queen of the Kawarthas. Following this event, however, it became socially as well as physically the accepted centre of the Lake and with its Post Office, store and convenient pavilion became a rendezvous for a much widened area.

Some of the memories of those early days will long linger tenderly in the thoughts of old "Stoney Lakers," and names, incidents and the associations they recall would make most interesting reading. The neighborhood in fact was made a compact family which on boat or shore exchanged the kindliest relationships offered by constant association.

To give added permanency as well as to provide a social and religious rendezvous an organization was formed thirty years ago (1907) which acquired from the original grantees a small acreage at the north-east end of the island including the store, premises and pavilion and the government was induced to provide a postoffice and a commodious dock, involving the expenditure of several thousands of dollars.

Unfortunately, as often happens even with joint stock companies, formed for benevolent purposes, individuals occasionally use the "centre" power for their own personal ends and the Stoney Lake Cottages Association has not escaped this danger. It is now being frankly admitted that the recent "round-up" has for its final purpose the clearing of Juniper Island of its present buildings and equipment and the turning of it into a private preserve.

Is Juniper Island with all its history and associations to thus become a name on the map hoarded in with "no trespass" notices, after its many years of service to those who love the Lake and its half a century or more of family and friendly intimacy?

It seems that the whole matter should be taken up by someone competent to speak not only for Stoney Lake but the public at large.

Yours truly,
A SAD ELIJAH.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Wheat futures continued into the new crop year on the downgrade today, with October wheat crashing the five-cent allowable limit on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Final prices were 4⅞ to 4¾ cents lower, October $1.27¼, December $1.23⅝ and May $1.24½.

Wheat skidded lower at the opening in sympathy with the easier trend of United States yesterday and unexpected weakness at Liverpool today.

Early losses were partially eliminated at mid-session due to a minor rally in Chicago prices, but support proved insufficient to cope with liquidation operations. Prices again dipped three cents lower near the close. Export business in Canadian wheat worked since saturday appeared to be negligible.

Brokers intimated private U. S. crop reports were in line with expectations and failed to have a marked bearish influence to-day.

JOHNNY MARCUM

HERE'S A PITCHER WHO USES HIS HEAD

By Walter Johns.
Central Press Canadian Writer.

A pitcher who uses his brains as well as his arm that's John Alfred Marcum, square-shouldered, hard-working pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, who rose to major league prominence as a hurler for Connie Mack's Athletics.

While Johnny sits on the bench on off-days, he studies the batters. Then when he faces the same club he knows how and when to use his curve, fast ball or his puzzling knuckle ball.

Born in Campbellsburg, Ky., in 1909, Johnny played sandlot ball and got his first break in the professional circuit with Louisville of the American association in 1928. He soon was transferred to Dayton, O., pitching and playing in the outfield.

He was sold back to Louisville in mid-season in 1930 and showed to good advantage in the box and with the stick. He stayed through 1933 when he was purchased by the Athletics. In 1933 Johnny won 20 games and lost 13 for the Colonels.

In his first full season with the A's, Johnny showed Mack he could be "somebody" if given the chance. He lost his first six games and then told Connie if he'd be patient and keep him on(he'd win 12 games before the season was over. He won 14.

In 1935, Johnny won 17 and then was traded to the Boston Sox for a reputed $150,000 cash. Last year Johnny didn't fare so well, winning only eight games against 13 losses, but now he again is in there with a better than .500 average.

Little Lord Fauntleroy Dies Hero

All his life, Vivian Burnett (Left) writer and editor, tried to escape the "sissified" role of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," the fictional character created by his mother, Frances Hodgson Burnett. At 61, Burnett is dead—a hero. He and his wife were cruising in their yawl on the choppy water of Manhasset Bay, New York, when they saw a sailboat overturn. They immediately went to the rescue and saved four people. On the way to shore, Burnett collapsed and died, presumably of a heart attack. Trying To Provoke War With Soviet Moscow Charges

Press Expresses Sympathy For China in Her Conflict With Japan.

NEW STRAIN ON RELATIONS

Nipponese Ambassador Refuses to Order Raiders Punished, or Pay Compensation.

MOSCOW, August 3—(AP).—The newspaper Izvestia, official organ of the Soviet Government, to-day charged Japan was trying "to provoke a conflict with the U.S.S.R. by any means" in a denunciation of the wrecking of the Russian Consulate at Tientsin.

The Soviet press blazed with indignation as Japan rejected a "determined" Russian protest against the rain on the Russian Consulate during the fighting between Chinese and Japanese for possession of the city.

Izvestia declared the attack on the Consulate by White Russians opposed to the present Soviet regime was inspired by the "insolent, cowardly action of Japanese militarists" and charged it was made in revenge for the failure of frequent attempts to raid Soviet frontiers.

The Russian press expressed sympathy for China in the conflict with Japan over the rich North China provinces of Hopeh and Chahar.

"It is not enough that the Japanese army is bombing Chinese cities, exterminating a peaceful population and occupying foreign territory," said Prvda, organ of the Communist party.

"It is using every occasion to try to provoke new conflicts. The path of the Japanese troops is strewn with bodies. Passing through the burned Chinese quarters they are strolling all over the city like hungry wolves searching for objects to attack."

Pensions Withheld.

The press also attacked the Japanese administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway and accused it of again withholding pensions due former Soviet employees of the line.

Soviet moves had failed to obtain payment of pensions for more than 1,500 Soviet citizens under the terms of the Soviet cession of the road to Mancnoukuo, press despatches declared. They asserted payments had been previously suspended in April, 1936, and January, 1937.

The Japanese Ambassador to Moscow, Mamoru Shigemitsu, told the Russian Foreign Office last night his government could not comply with the Russian demands the raiders be punished, property seized by them returned, and compensation paid for the damages.

The Soviet charged the attack was made by White Russians, who are opposed to the Soviet regime, and was organized by the Japanese Intelligence Service.

"Japan has no interest in troubles between the Russians," the Ambassador said. He said the raid was executed by White Russians and denying that Japanese intelligence men had organized the attack.

Verbal representations were made to the Japanese Embassy in Moscow while a formal protest was lodged with the Japanese government in Tokyo. Soviet officials described their protest as "determind" but gave no indication as to how far they would carry the demands.

Milk Bottles Waken You In U.S. Roll Of Drums Does It In Europe

Youth Abroad Regimented While Americans Educated But Not Used.

FERTILE SOIL FOR UNREST.

NEW YORK, August 3—(AP). — American youth today, as viewed by Fannie Hurst, the novelist, is "all dressed up intellectually and no place to go." Youth, she said, is just about the biggest cosmic problem astir.

"The trouble is that we educate them and then don't use them. We can't absorb them," she added; in an interview today on her return from six months in Europe, "and that makes fertile soil for unrest—dangerous soil.

"Naturally, they look at youth abroad to see what they are doing—in Germany, and Russia, and Italy. But there is a vast difference between free American ideals and the regimented ideals of youth abroad.

"The difference might be illustrated by this point. Now that I'm back home, I awake to the rattle of milk bottles on the doorstep. In Europe, I awoke to the roll of drums."

"It would be a nice miracle, though," she said, "if we could send our youth and unsatisfied element abroad and let them see the thousands and thousands of Europeans starving for the things we have—the opportunities, the freedom and the little creature comforts."

Where They Get 'Em.

The holiday brought out fishermen from near and far and all enjoyed a wonderful day. Among the lucky anglers was Allan Parker of the Canadian General Electric Company. Fishing near Wallace's Point he hooked what he thought was the bottom of the Otonabee River. However it turned out to be a 12-pound lunge 37-inches long and full of fight. It required careful handling as Mr. Parker was trolling with a silk line and steel pole. Cameras clicked as he walked ashore at the point with his prize.

AT 85 ADVENTURER LIVING RESTFULLY

Was Franco - Russian War Captive—Killed Cattle Rustlers

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3 (CP)—Charles Goodyear roved the world and adventured in strange lands before settling down to quiet life in Winnipeg 31 years ago. Now he is 85 years of age and expects to round out a century.

He ran away from his Hertford, England, home, at the age of 16 and went to the United States. On a Wyoming ranch he pursued and killed cattle-rustlers and for a time worked in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

In 1870 he enlisted with the French in the Franco-Prussian war, was captured by the Germans and taken to Berlin. There he met Carl Hagenback, wild animal trainer, who commissioned him a few years later to trap wild animals for his circus in South Africa.

He joined the Australian gold rush, fought in the South African war and was stabbed by a Chaco Indian in South America.

Malaria caused his physician to order him to live in Manitoba in 1906. He speculated in real estate and made and lost a fortune.

Potatoes Doing Well.

Rains retarded haying in Eastern Ontario, but some grain has been cut. Corn, roots and potatoes were doing well last week, and a good crop of apples was expected.

Rains, beneficial to some crops, has come in streaks, and most of Lanark County suffered from dry weather, while leaf rust destroyed much of the late grain. Live stock was in good condition, lambs doing particularly well, the report said.

Drought conditions in Northern Ontario were relieved by last week's rains and crop conditions improved the report said. Haying was almost completed, but caterpillars and grasshoppers made hay crop light and some farmers are faced with buying winter feed for their stock.

Youth Is Back On Job Inside Month After Heart Removed Twice, Sewn Up

London, August 3—(CP).—A month after surgeons had twice removed his heart to close stab wounds, Harold Aldridge, 23-year-old munition worker, was back at his job filling shells.

The story is told in the Medical Journal, the Lancet, by Dr. William Gissane and Dr. Bodo Schulenberg, surgeons who performed the operation.

The lung covering was opened and a wound found in the envelope which encloses the heart. This envelope was opened, but nothing could be seen of the heart.

One surgeon placed his hand inside the envelope and gently levered out the heart, which beat steadily. A wound three-quarters of an inch long was found and sewn up while the first surgeon held the pulsing heart in his hands. The heart was then replaced.

To their dismay the heart envelope again filed with blood and one surgeon again put his left hand inside the heart envelope and traced a second stab wound with his finger and the operation was repeated. In six days Aldridge got out of bed and walked 40 yards. In 28 days he was discharged.

VICAR CONDEMNS ABBEY'S COURSE

Military Tactics Just Whited Sepulchres, Writes Critical Cleric

EWELL, Surrey, England, Aug. 3 (CP).—The "glorification of mass murder" in the Aldershot military tattoo, and the "commercialization" of Westminster Abbey were vigorously attacked by the vicar of Ewell, Rev. C. G. Holland, in his parish magazine.

"Hundreds of thousands of our people," he writes, "will witness one of those (literally) whited sepulchres, euphemistically called tattoos, during the next two months. Whited sepulchres because they present war under the aspect of a glorious adventure instead of showing it as it is, a filthy bestial shambles. Whited sepulchres because they show our own side always victorious, the 'enemy' ignominously routed.

"They glorify a foul blot on humanity. They nourish national pride. Franco's destruction of Guernica is what war will be like, not the crash of military bands and the singing of 'Abide With Me' as the final blasphemy of the tattoo."

Of "the desecration of Westminster Abbey" the vicar of Ewell writes: "We are amazed that no voice has been raised at what seems to us to come perilously near the desecration of what should be one of the two centres of spiritual life in London, Westminster Abbey.

"Turnstiles and money tills have been erected, the chink of entrance money and the excited chatter of sight-seers has created an atmosphere of a show place rather than a house of God.

"The excuse given is that the Abbey has lost the collections owing to the long months during which there has been no services. Since the Coronation was at the expense of the public purse there is no reason why a grant should not have been made to meet this loss."

'NOTHING WAS GUARANTEED' CLAIMS MEDIUM ON TRIAL

Officer's Widow Charges False Pretences—Famous "Indian Spirit" Appeared

London.—More stories of the appearance of "White Moose, the North American Indian spirit," at a seance in the attic of a Blackheath house were told at Greenwich police court.

Central figure in the seance was 47-year-old medium Clive Holmes, who is accused of obtaining money by false pretences from Mrs. Violet Evens, widow of a naval officer. Holmes pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Evens went to the seance, accompanied by her apprentice-engineer son, Charles James, in the hope of getting into touch with her late husband.

Her son flashed an electric torch in the face of the "spirit" and declared that he saw it was the medium Clive, as Holmes was called.

Evens said he attended three seances. The first time he went he was convinced it was not genuine. The form supposed to be that of his father was that of a big man; his father was small.

At the second seance "White Moose" (wearing a white headdress) and many other forms appeared over a period of an hour and a quarter.

He agreed that on the third occasion he put out his foot intentionally.

"When the form stumbled," he added: "I broke hold of my mother's hand, flashed my torch in the face of the form, and saw it was Mr. Clive. I was then struck by his luminous slates, and I seized a chair to defend myself.

When Clive came out of the cabinet he was handcuffed to the chair. Mr. Evens said he did not see any robes, head-dress or beards.

"When the torch was flashed," said Mr. Garnett, "Mrs. Evens stood up, and was immediately knocked back again. My wife went over to the 'form' and said, 'Stop hitting that woman on the head with the slate.'

"The spirit form ran back to the cabinet. It was then I saw its face and recognized Clive."

W. H. Chitty, solicitor defending Holmes, told him that it had been said Mrs. Evens was promised she would be put in touch with her husband. Holmes replied that nothing was guaranteed, and a notice to that effect was displayed on the board. He never knew what would happen.

The further hearing of the case was adjourned till to-morrow week.

'NOT PULLING WEIGHT' IN ARMY, FOUND DEAD

Farm Workers Discover Lieutenant's Body in Car

Sussex, Eng.—"My son had no romance or anything of that sort. . . . I think he had an impression that he was not pulling his weight in the army."

Major-Gen. C. G. Fuller made this statement concerning Lieut. Cuthbert Vladimir Fuller, 24, of the Dorsetshire regiment, who was found shot dead.

Farm workers had seen Fuller's body in a ditch near a car four miles from Rugby. They thought he was sleeping. Later a revolver was seen by his side.

His captain said: "He pulled his weight in everything he did."

RACE AS NIGHTMARE BUT SURVIVED TRAP

Devon Yachtsmen Smash Centuries Old Tradition of Seven Tides

Southhampton. — Two young Devon yachtsmen smashed the centuries-old legend that anyone trapped in the Portland Race—most dangerous point in the English Channel where seven tides meet—never escapes.

In their seven-ton sailing yawl Pauamma they survived the Race—and the 70 m.p.h. gale which swept the south of England.

At the height of the gale at 3 a.m. they were rolling helplessly in the Race. Their distress rockets were seen by a fisherman, and Swanage lifeboat, having just returned after a rescue at Bournemouth, was called out.

The captain in charge of the Portland naval base ordered out the admiralty tug St. Just, which arrived just in time to save the yawl from going ashore.

Said Owner Wright: "Our boat did everything but overturn. The whole thing was a positive nightmare."

GROUP INVESTIGATES BEGGING BY LETTER

Check 1,200 Letters Yearly Says Secretary London Mendicity Society

London, Eng. — Begging-letter writers, who in many cases live in luxury on money extorted from wealthy people, are causing concern to the police.

In the past few months their activities have been on the increase. The writers keep within the law by enclosing with the letter a book of poems or some writings which they claim to be their own work and which they implore people to buy.

Captain Medley, secretary of the London Mendicity Society, investigates something like 1,200 begging letters every year.

"People send these letters on to us for investigation," he said, "and a very large percentage are found to be fraudulent.

"One man well known to us has an office in the city and employs a secretary to do his correspondence. He has been making a very good living by writing begging letters for the past 30 years. He has a country house and obviously makes a lot of money."

A woman who all her life had lived by writing begging letters had her own house in the London suburbs, kept several servants and ran a large car. She was living over the rate of $4,000 a year.

Another man kept two clerks addressing envelopes for begging letters which brought him a large income. He had his own banking account and managed his business on a very scientific scale.

LARGE BUCKET SHOP FRAUDS REVEALED BY LONDON POLICE

Institute Extradition Proceedings Against "The Brains" of English Gang

STOLE $1,250,000

London, Eng.—Police are instituting proceedings against Stanley Grove Spiro — the brains behind some of the city's most serious bucket shop frauds.

Leaving the country two days before a warrant was issued for his arrest, he is now believed to be in Vienna while one of his chief lieutenants, a man named Graham, is said to be operating in Berlin. Both are well known for their activities in South Africa.

The three men he left behind were sentenced at the Old Bailey for their part in fleecing the public of about $1,250,000.

In passing sentence, Judge Dodson warned never to deal in stocks and shares except through the medium of a recognized stock exchange, or through a branch of one of the great banks.

Total of $2,500,000

During the hearing, which lasted seven days, it was stated that Spiro and his agents induced the public to part with more than $2,500,000. Of this the public lost $1,250,000, while the police themselves received complaints involving $800,000.

Two years ago Spiro and accomplices acquired an old-established Scottish firm of stockbrokers named Maclean and Henderson.

Under this guise shoals of worthless shares were foisted on the public.

Method Uncovered

Their method was to get in touch in various ways with people holding shares and stock. To them they gave accurate information until their confidence was gained. Then clergymen, doctors, and retired army men were persuaded to buy the worthless securities.

Touts reported to the head office the progress they had made with prospective victims. One of these confidential reports found in an office read:

"Small house, retired coachman, good reception, cautious, likes our firm. Prefers industrial to gold, very nice man, says 'yes' to everything, and then switches. Think $15,000 could be lifted from him."

QUARRELS WITH GIRL CRASHES INTO WALL

"Still Fond of Him," Says Former Fiancee

London, Eng.—"I am still very fond of him," declared Miss Amelia Lamboureux of Hubert grove, Stockwell, S.W., after sentence had been postponed on her former fiance, accused of trying to commit suicide in a car.

It was stated in court that after a quarrel with Miss Lamboureux, Edwin Lionel Kidd, aged 22, drove the car into a wall in the street where she lived in an attempt to kill himself.

PURSE THIEF CAUGHT BY NEWSPAPER 'AD'

Attempts to Return Purse Contents Worth $1,600 for $50

East Colne, Essex — After being robbed of her handbag at a London station, Mrs. Enid Motion received a letter which read:

"Judging from the contents of your bag you are a sport.

"If you will send me £10 in notes without trying to trap me, I will return all your property, which I really could sell for much more."

The bag contained jewelry and other property worth £320.

The writer advised Mrs. Motion to insert the following advertisement in an evening newspaper personal column:

"E.E.M.—Willing to agree your proposal. Will await your instructions as to address.—E.E."

Mrs. Motion told the police. They suggested that she should insert the advertisement. She did.

This produced a further letter, signed "F. Jackson," and reading:

"Send ten £1 notes. I promise on my word of honor (and I still value that, although I am a thief), to return your goods within an hour.

"My circumstances are brought about by what I think you indulge in—backing horses."

An address in Caledonian Rd. was given.

The police watched, and when William Matthews, aged 28, a furrier, of Glynn Rd., Clapton, called at the address and received the letter which Mrs. Motion had sent there, he was arrested.

FORSAKEN FOR SECT BY WIFE, DAUGHTER

Husband Denounces 80-Year-Old Leader of Religious Community

Pembroke, Eng.—A strange religious community in a tiny village, with an 80-year-old man known as "Shiloh the Ruler" as a prominent member, has been revealed by a husband who believed that his wife and daughter had joined the sect.

The husband and a companion drove to Wooden, a few miles from Tenby, where, nestling in a fold of the hills, two farmhouses are used as temples of "The Chosen Few."

Tearing away the veil of secrecy that had enshrouded the colony, he declared that his wife and daughter had left him. He denounced "Shiloh the Ruler"—whose name is Charles Geard—and distributed pamphlets.

Eventually he drove away, stating that he would pursue the matter.

Geard, described as having a magnetic dominating personality, is regarded by his followers as "The Messiah." He is also known as the "Man Child of Revelation."

He has visited the farmhouses periodically and has conducted ceremonies there, most of his followers being women.

Many of them came from distant parts of the country to make their pilgrimages.

COUNTERFEIT COINS PUBLICITY BARRED

Mint Asks Court to Keep Method Secret

London.—Officials of the royal mint asked at the Old Bailey that secrets of a new process of making counterfeit coins, found by police who raided a loft over a garage at Clapton, E., should not be revealed.

The process used was a novel and ingenious one, it was stated, and publication of details concerning it would "not be in the public interest."

Stephen Amos, 30, a fitter, of Clapton, was found guilty of uttering and making counterfeit coins and possessing apparatus for coinage. Sentence was postponed.

KEPT BRIDE WAITING GROOM IS FORGIVEN

Was Kept at Haymaking by Parents, So Girl Rearranges Wedding

Barnard Castle.—Reunited with the bridegroom who kept her waiting vainly for four hours after failing to meet her on the altar steps of the parish church here, Miss Doris Whittaker, pretty 22-year-old Bishop Auckland girl, has rearranged her wedding day.

The bridegroom, George Spensley, 25, explained that he was kept haymaking on his father's farm.

He said that his parents had learned of the marriage, had kept him busy all day and had hidden the ring he had bought.

By then the wedding guests had eaten the meal provided for them, the clergyman, the Rev. F. V. Robinson, had gone away to play in a cricket match, and Miss Whittaker was on the verge of collapse. She travelled home by bus still wearing her bridal finery.

ALMOST SOLD BULL NOW WORTH $25,000

'Animal Has Just Been Judged Supreme Champion of Shorthorns

Wolverhampton.—Capt. J. MacGillivray, of Ross-shire, wanted to sell his one-ton white bull Calrossie Control four years ago for $2,500. The deal fell through. At the Royal Agricultural Society's Wolverhampton show it has just been judged supreme champion of the Shorthorns—a prize that raises its value to $25,000.

Calrossie Control is not for sale now. Its offspring are already worth $100,000.

Captain MacGillivray has the war to thank mostly for his success.

Before 1914 he bred Highland cattle. Then he joined the Lovat Scouts under Lord Lovat, a Shorthorn breeder. They were great friends.

After the war he went back to Ross-shire, abandoned his Highland cattle, and took up Shorthorns. Now, after 20 years, he has bred the king of the breed.

'KILLED' HER FAMILY FOR MONEY, JAILED

Leeds, Eng.—A series of frauds on insurance companies, during which, said counsel, a woman "killed off" her mother, her husband, and her brother, all of whom were alive and well was disclosed here.

Elsie Ludlam, 28, who pleaded guilty to stealing a number of death certificates and forging and uttering parts of a register of deaths, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Harry Morris, prosecuting, said thta Mrs. Ludlam, wife of a laborer, had 41 policies in respect of members of her family.

She obtained a certificate regarding the death of a man named Barker which she altered to the name of her mother, Elizabeth Beesby. On this she obtained $135. A certificate relating to the death of a man named Arthur Cliff she altered to the name of her husband and obtained $435.

HOSTILE TRIBESMEN RAID HOCKEY GAME

British in East Post Attacked From 500-Yard Range

Razmak, Waziristan. — Hostile tribesmen made a daring sniping attack on British forces here. As the 7th Mountain Battery and the Divisional Signals were finishing a game of hockey 100 yards outside Razmak Camp, the tribesmen opened fire from a range of 500 yards.

They fired a dozen rounds. The players came hurrying in while the camp replied with rifles and machine guns. No casualties are reported.

The tribesmen's daring is all the more remarkable because as recently as June 29 they suffered heavy casualties in a fight with British forces.

The Gurkhas were in their element, bayoneting, bombing, machine-gunning and firing from close quarters. They killed 26 tribesmen.

The Gurkhas themselves lost one killed and two wounded. The man who was killed was shot by a tribesman who shammed death. The tribesman was himself speedily shot.

DIARY READ IN KNIFING TRIAL SAID TO SHOW MURDER PLAN

Birmingham Married Man Is Charged With Stabbing 20-Year-Old Girl

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Birmingham.—A diary in which Stanley Alexander Lilley, 39-year-old married man of Tufton Grove, Pype Hays, Birmingham, was alleged to have entered plans to murder Olive Yorwerth, 20, was read in court here.

Lilley was sent for trial to the assizes on a charge of attempting to murder Miss Yorwerth by stabbing her with a butcher's knife at the works where they were both employed. He pleaded not guilty, reserved his defence.

M. P. Pugh, prosecuting, said that the two had been associating since November, 1935, but at Christmas the girl broke it off following a visit from the man's wife.

When Lilley was searched a diary and a note were found.

"The piece of paper and the diary go clearly to show that this was not an act of momentary passion," said Mr. Pugh, "but a calculated act well thought out by the prisoner over a number of months."

On Feb. 11 the diary read: "Visit from Olive's uncle. Make plans. Choose Thursday, May 13."

There were others which read, "Sharpen knife for that night." "Took knife to work. Put in locker ready for 13th."

The entry on the 13th read: "I have been foiled by a few minutes. Involved in a slight motor accident on way back from town. This is my third try, and my heart beats at 12 each time."

WILL ASK HOUSEWIVES HOW MONEY IS SPENT

Seek to Fix Cost of Living Figure for Working Class

What does a modern housewife, helpmeet of a British working man, choose to buy? What does she spend her man's money on?

The minister of labor, who ought to know the working classes because he has a staff of 27,897 people in touch with them, is starting an entirely new type of inquiry to find out what the cost of living is in every working-class home.

His voluntary workers are going to knock on the doors of 30,000 housewives picked at random all through the country, and when the door is opened they are going to ask: "Madam, how do you spend your husband's wages?"

Mr. Brown anticipates that two doors out of every three will at once be banged in the faces of his investigators. Because he said that if only 10,000 housewives co-operate with him he will be able to find a basis for fixing the cost of living index figure on an up-to-date modern basis.

BRIEF STORIES GATHERED FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

BEES SWARM UP TROUSERS OWNER TAKEN TO ASYLUM

Mistaken for Mental Patient by Train Guard Who Saw Only Negligee

HUNGARY CHUCKLES

Prague, Czech.—All Hungary is laughing at the amazing story of Anton Kertesz, the young man with bees in his trousers.

Anton, a peasant, who lives in the village of Nyiregyhaza, had been advised by his friends to take up bee-keeping as a profitable hobby.

He soon discovered, however, that his new acquisitions were yielding no honey, and putting them into two stone jars which he covered with paper, he took the train to Budapest to consult an expert.

He placed the jars underneath his seat, but while he was unsuspectingly reading his paper the bees managed to escape from the jars and began to swarm up their owner's trousers.

As sting after sting found its mark, Anton shifted nervously in his place, but since it is a punishable offence to take bees in a passenger compartment, he dared not explain his plight.

Finally, unable to bear the pain any longer, he leaped to his feet and yelled "For heaven's sake get out!" at his fellow travellers.

As they streamed, with frightened expressions, into the corridor, he pulled down the blinds, tore off his trousers, and started shaking them vigorously out of the window.

Just at that moment an express roared by in the opposite direction, and tore the trousers from his hands.

Anton was still puzzling what to do when the guard appeared. Taking one look at the young man, clad only in pants and jacket, he slammed the door and locked it.

"GAVINI" SO STRONG NATIVES GO CRAZY

Durban.—A close guard is being kept by the South African Sugar Association over all treacle supplies in an effort to stamp out the traffic in illicit liquor among natives of Natal and Zululand.

From treacle is made a potent spirit popularly known as "gavini," which is so strong that it can be easily ignited with a match.

The executive committee announced it had decided to allow sale of treacle only for industrial purposes.

"Gavini is a drink which sends natives mad," explained Mr. Lugg. "It is demoralizing the native people and causing a general degradation."

ONCE DEALT IN LARD LATER OWNED BANKS

Brazilian Count Controlled Greatest Private Enterprise in South America

SHOWMAN VANISHES

Buenos Aires.—Slim, young Count Attilio Matarazzo's long fingers gently smoothed the broad crepe band on the lapel of his jacket as he told of the greatest man he ever knew.

"He was my father," he said, simply.

The little general dealer's business which he started had grown into the greatest privately owned enterprise in the whole of South America, controlling shipping, banks, mills and factories throughout Brazil.

Count Francesco was Brazil. Presidents came and went, but the fortune of Matarazzo grew until he became the most influential man in the country.

"As a youth, he started dealing in lard," said Count Attilio. "He prospered, the business grew. Then he began to import flour from North America. He bought land and grew his own grain. Then he purchased a mill and ground his grain into flour. Realizing the possibilities of a great industry, my father decided to build the most modern mills.

"Now the business is the biggest in South America, employing 30,000 people. Just before the war the king of Italy ennobled my father with the title of count."

GREEN GIRLS FROM COUNTRY TURN GREENER IN NEW JOB

Told Had to Dance "Green Part" So Painted Selves

SHOWMAN VANISHES

Paris—Three policemen making their nightly round in the Paris Exhibition grounds recently discovered four girls, painted a vivid green, bathing in one of the fountain basins and frantically scrubbing themselves.

At the police station the girls—still green—told their story.

They had arrived from their Alsatian village in answer to an advertisement for rural dancers. They were interviewed in one of the exhibition booths by a man who engaged them on the spot.

But he gave them a pot of paint, saying they would have to "dance the green part" in a color ballet. Then he left them to their make-up.

For hours they awaited further instructions. But the "ballet-master" did not return.

FIVE BRITONS TREK THROUGH PALESTINE

Belgrade.—Five young Britons, four Cambridge undergraduates, are on a 10,000-mile trek from Wolverhampton, via the Balkans, to visit a lost Byzantine city which has remained buried for nearly 2,000 years.

Their vehicle is a lorry, specially fitted for the difficult route. They will take the route of St. Paul to Palestine.

The trip has a mixed bag of aims: Archaeology as expressed in our visit to the ruins of Eski-Adalia; then medicine, involving the photographing certain leper colonies for the Cambridge Pathological Institute and getting samples of certain forms of river life; and, lastly, architecture—the study of the marvellous Byzantine monastery architecture scattered throughout the Balkans and Turkey.

Man Charged With Arrears Had "Plenty of Money," Claims Ex-Wife

Slough, Eng. — When William George Butler, of Cippenham Lodge, surrendered at Eastbourne to a warrant charging him with arrears on a maintenance order, his former wife, who had obtained a divorce and remarried, declared that he had had an aeroplane, motor-cars, horses and dogs and appeared to have plenty of money.

He had called himself "Sir William Duncan," and "Mr. Duncan," brother of Miss Duncan, by whom he was employed as chauffeur.

Butler said that his employment with Miss Duncan ceased when her name had been mentioned in and then withdrawn from the divorce proceedings.

He was now living in a small lodge in the grounds of Miss Duncan's house and was looking after her horses and dogs.

Short Waltz Dress in Black Silk Net

(Courtesy Good Housekeeping)

Black silk net gown with ruffled bolero, flowers at waist.

Sheer black is a frquent theme this summer. It might be called THE summer theme song.

It is worn for morning, noon and night. And for night the query is, shall it be a slim, long dress that touches the floor, or a short dress with an infinite amount of material used—one of the new "waltz" dresses?

By the way, the note now being sounded by French couturiers is short in front and long behind.

Sketched is a gay waltz frock in exquisite black silk net, which shows the popular shorter length inspired by Degas' paintings. The low, square decolletage is concealed by a tiny net bolero, beruffled at the shoulders.

Flowers accent the waist, and horsehair braid in the hem gives the ballerina flare.

Black Leads.

Black is featured for silk afternoon dresses as well as evening, and also in velvet. Black is the favorite for winter coats, too, with Directoire plum and wine as runners up, and green coming closer to brown than for a number of seasons.

Did you ever give a thought to the type of gown you need when you plan to go a dancing stop one of the swank hotels or at the country or night club and the weather is NOT clear and moonlight? If you have not given this little matter thought, you may be caught going through and through your wardrobe without being able to decide which dress is appropriate or will show the least damage if it gets a bit wet and wrinkled.

Black, White Is Answer.

Black and white is the answer given in New York on a recent wet night when the crowd was dancing. Hardly any color was visible at the height of the dancing. And that in a night club that permits dresses of street length—informal in type—to be worn during the summer months.

A long black satin skirt worn with white top, and maybe a small evening hat would be smart and practical for such an occasion. There is a wonderful opportunity for originality in such costumes, in the black with touches of white, or the more even matching of the two colors.

Braid in scroll embroideries and scroll appliques are fall trimmings noted in the new line of dresses.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Men rarely succeed in changing the world, but a man seldom fails of success if he lets the world alone and resolves to make the best of it. It is always easier to climb a mountain than to level it.—Lytton.

Dear Friends:

Once before I wrote you about the futility of trying to change one human being. How much harder then is it, when we try to change the world. People may copy us if they think our way of living is better than theirs, or we seem to be getting more out of it, but they are the ones who must do the changing, not us.

There have been those whose voices have swayed thousands, but they did not change the multitude, they only convinced them. And after all, were not put here to right the wrongs of the whole world but only newspapers play a very important those in our immediate vicinity.

And this will bear repeating, the part in what we say or think or do. They have the means of finding out the truth about things, which we could never do ourselves.

The books we read are also important, but we must have variety else we shall just change our own ideas for someone else's. And if we all took pleasure as we could in doing our own part, in keeping the wheels near us turning smoothly, we wouldn't have time to bother about the rest of the world.

We can change our own habits, but can only be an example as far as changing other people's habits. Moreover if we were able to change those around us, and everyone had that power, what a mix-up there would be, for we would be as Mrs. Brown would have us one hour or day, and as Mr. Jones would have us another time, and we would be doing the same thing to others, until we would be more like hash than individuals.

So the best way is to leave the world alone and attend to our own knitting, otherwise we shall be so busy showing where the other fellow dropped some stitches, our own work will be all snarled up.

Besides, how do we know our way is the best way for other people. Maybe if we changed them to our liking we would wish we could change them back again to what they were before.

Each of us have some characteristics which appeal to our friends, and if God had meant us all to be alike, He would have made us all in the same mould, and wouldn't that be boring?

So, the next time you are tempted to change someone, just stop and think if you would like them to change you. You think you are pretty good as you are, and no doubt

And all of us are only part of one another, some having one fault, and some having another, some with good traits of one kind, and some of another, so that we all supplement the other fellow, while he does the same for us.

All of us copy each other in some way, and why shouldn't we, for are we not all human, and the children of one Father whose name is God?

And there are so many of us, that if we do not like what we see in one, we can turn to another. How few also can be "all things to all men", for we get kindness from one, criticism from another, spiritual help from a third, praise, and hope, and charity, and all manner of things from different people.

So, Let us be glad we have so much variety among ourselves, and stop trying to standardize everyone to one pattern. Only in that will we have pleasure and profit from one another. Hoping you get enough variety from

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Sally's Sallies

Generally a girl who is quick to catch on doesn't loose when to let go.

Mrs. Sopwith Smiles Even in Defeat

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 3.—(AP).—Phyllis Sopwith, wife of the skipper of Endeavour II, said after the second heat of the British sloop, "Ranger went like a train."

"Nobody minds being beaten by a better boat," said Mrs. Sopwith, who sails in each race as her husbands timekeeper in the Americas Cup series off Newport.

The series, she added quickly, is not over one always hopes to the last breath."

In the lounge of their palatial yacht Philante, named for her and the Sopwith's five-year-old son, Thomas Edward, she said of the race:

"We're not —a bit unhappy about it. It would be a pretty poor sport who didn't say to the victor, 'Jolly good luck to you'."

Bagpipes—Sopwith's dinner music—skirled on Philante's brightly lit deck. There was gay laughter aboard, as Sopwith and his wife dined with their 10 yacht guests.

Skipper Sopwith's wife is a tall, graceful woman with fair English coloring, gold-blond hair and blue eyes. She was wearing a white satin dinner gown with light blue sleeves, a triple strand of pearls and satin sandals.

Movie Actress Gets "The Works"

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 3—(AP).—Barbara Stanwyck, mistaken for an autograph hunter, got "the works" from a policeman—and was rescued by Robert Taylor—at the preview of her newest film, "Stella Dallas," last night.

An old hat pulled down on her head and her coat collar flipped up, the actress was not recognized by the officer, who shoved back autograph hunters swarming around Taylor, her escort.

Miss Stanwyck attempted to follow the actor.

"No, you don't," commanded the officer, forcibly putting her into reverse.

Once safely through the mob, Taylor found it was a strange young woman who had hold of his coat tail. He rushed out again. Miss Stanwyck sat weeping on the curb, rigorously guarded by the law.

"I'm going to sock you if you don't let her go," threatened Taylor.

By this time, the officer had discovered his mistake.

The Goldwyn press department chief, Jock Lawrence, said Miss Stanwyck suffered bruises on her arms and shoulders, for which she received a physician's treatment.

Ruffles Trim Linen Lace Dress

Betty Grable
By LISBETH

Lace has its day every day and all year around in these modern times. Once a "luxury" fabric, it now is worn by every woman and for daytime as well as evening.

Of course there is lace and lace. There are the exquisite hand-made laces that are worth a queen's ransom and more; and there are the machine made types that are also very lovely, but which are more moderately priced.

The pretty little dress chosen here by Betty Grable of the screen, is of linen lace in deep rose with a finely pleated ruffle accenting the V neck and the loose, short sleeves.

There is no belt, and the waistline suggests the empire. A little cluster of maroon raffia is fastened at the base of the neckline.

For the girl who has the time to make herself a pretty frock to wear the rest of this month, all of August and into September, there are many materials that she may buy for little cost. Embroidered organdies, for instance, plain and printed linens, piques and crashes, lawns, muslins. It is a field day for the home dressmaker when the crest of the summer wave has passed and materials are marked down for quick sale. She can "pick up" many a bargain and make herself some dresses that will see her through the balance of the summer and which may be worn for house frocks during the winter.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

NO matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

CANADIAN BACON FINDING LARGER BRITISH MARKET

2,876,000 hundredweight, imported in 1936 was the smallest in any year since 1922. Empire supplies, however, increased slightly, and comprised 90 per cent. of total imports. New Zealand alone accounting for 63 per cent., although sending less than in 1935; Canada supplied 23 per cent. of the total against 17 per cent. in 1935. There was an appreciable increase in prices, Canadian cheese rising by 12 per cent.

Eggs Rise 25 Per Cent.

Imports of eggs in 1936 amounted to 246,500,000 dozens, or 25 per cent. more than in 1935, and were the largest since 1931. Denmark supplied nearly one-third of the total and Empire countries only 19 per cent. against 24 per cent. in 1935.

The regulation of imports of bacon by quota was continued in 1936 when total imports into the United Kingdom, amounting to 6,570,000 hundredweight, were five per cent. smaller than in 1935 and 42 per cent. below the figure for 1932, the peak year.

Imports from Empire countries, chiefly Canada, increased and accounted for 24 per cent. of the total, the highest proportion ever recorded. At the same time output in the United Kingdom itself was 18 per cent. greater than in 1935. Bacon prices on an average rose slightly during the year.

supported by artillery and tanks, was pressing southward by forced marches to dispute the advance of the central government troops into Hopeh province.

Japan claims she holds a special sphere of influence in the North China province and in a week of undeclared war has captured its two main cities—Tientsin and Peiping.

The Japanese troops were reported to have reached a point 15 miles south of Tientsin, fighting scattered engagements as they advanced. Japanese headquarters reported, however, they had met no real resistance.

The advance brought the Japanese within a few miles of the eastern column of the 29th Chinese Army, being reorganized after defeats at Tientsin and along the line of the railroad to Peiping.

The Japanese movement to the south from the general headquarters at Tientsin was the materialization of their long expected thrust to gain a deep enough front to assure strategical and military control of Hopeh province.

Scouting operations were reported far afield in Shantung province with Japanese bombers attacking as far south at Pingyuan, 30 miles below the Hopeh border. Observation planes were said to have flown over Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung province and 200 miles in a direct line south from Tientsin.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 3.—Two Americans, Charles Koch and Vern Washem, of Akron, O., who have been staying at Max Humphries' "Sunnymede" on the Trent, were on their way to Peterborough one day last week, when they decided to try their luck at fishing from the Indian River bridge on No. 7 Highway, between Norwood and Peterborough. The ladies accompanying them took the car and went on to the city and were to call back for them on their return. The story, as related by Koch and Washem, is that they landed a 7½-lb. muskie much to their surprise, before the ladies arrived back to pick them up. The water where the fish was landed, they claim, is not over two feet deep.

NEW IMPROVED PALMOLIVE IS EXTRA GENTLE ON YOUR SKIN

"I DEPEND ON PALMOLIVE TO KEEP ALL MY SKIN SMOOTH AND YOUTHFUL" Says Mary Hutton

attractive Vancouver secretary

"I can thank Palmolive," continues Miss Hutton, "for the clear, smooth texture of all my skin. Palmolive seems to protect my complexion—keeps it from becoming dry and rough."

And you, like this charming business girl, will thank Palmolive for a skin that's lovely all over . . . if you follow the simple beauty treatment shown below. It's the easy Palmolive method recommended by the world's leading beauty specialists.

Try the new improved Palmolive

See for yourself how Palmolive's new, extra mildness keeps your skin lovely and fresh and smooth; how its new perfume makes Palmolive so much more thrilling to use; and how its new hardness makes Palmolive last much longer . . . saves you money. Phone for three cakes now. Start your complexion on the way to real, all-over loveliness.

DR. DAFOE Says:

"At the time of the birth of the Dionne Quintuplets, and for some time afterward, they were bathed in Olive Oil . . . When the time arrived for soap and water baths, we selected Palmolive Soap exclusively for daily use in bathing these famous babies."

CUT DRIVING COSTS to an all-time low!

"THE MOST ECONOMICAL CAR I HAVE EVER DRIVEN"

". . . There is no doubt in my mind that Pontiac is the most economical car I have ever driven (one bantam car excluded). On checking up my mileage on two recent mountain trips, I averaged 25 miles to the gallon at a speed of 40-45 miles per hour. Having in mind that it is a new car with less than 800 miles on the speedometer, I consider the mileage extraordinary . . ."

G. M. Firmstone

(Original letter on file at Oshawa)

DO you wonder why 1937 Pontiac sales are more than double those made during the same period last year? Here is a distinctively beautiful car "stepped up" to 89 horsepower . . . a bigger car with long 117-inch wheelbase . . . providing the safety and stability of more weight than any other low-priced car . . . yet many owners report that Pontiac has cut their driving costs to an all-time low! Mr. Firmstone's comment is typical. Invariably, people who take "time off" to investigate Pontiac's outstanding record for trouble-free performance, Pontiac's all-around economy and big car comfort are sold on the spot. And when they learn Pontiac costs only a few cents more a day to buy than the lowest-priced cars, they can hardly believe their ears!

That's why we say: see and drive Pontiac before you buy any car at any price. The General Motors Instalment Plan provides monthly payments to suit your purse.

AB. CHASE NAMED GRAND CHAMPION OF STONEY LAKE

Kay Acton of Toronto Wins Honors in Ladies' Events at Premier Regatta

MANY CLOSE BATTLES.

(By Staff Reporter)

JUNIPER ISLAND, August 3. — Power boat races, swimming contests and a wide variety of paddling events thrilled Stoney Lakers who assembled with scores of visiting spectators from district points on Juniper Island for the premier Stoney Lake regatta of the season Monday afternoon. No part of the colorful social and sporting pageantry which has graced this meet over many past years was lacking.

Ab. Chase of Peterborough was grand champion of the day in the men's division of the regatta and Kay Acton of Toronto won ladies' honors. Point runners-up for the championships were Ross Pulkinghorn, Charles McIlmoyle, Billie McKenzie and Ruth Easton.

Close Battles

Always a regatta which has drawn fair numbers of entries, the meet won full entries for each event on the card. The card was well designed with races which are perennial favourite among both participants and spectators. Excitement ran high during such events as the gunwale race which Chase won after a stiff battle with Pulkinghorn and others of a closely-following field, the ladies single canoe won by Kay Action in close competition with Billie McKenzie and Ruth Easton and the mixed canoe fours event where Kay Action again triumphed as captain of the winning crew.

Ruth Dalliday was first to the line in the ladies' swim which drew one of the largest entries of the day. She managed to hold a slight advantage gained over Ruth Easton and Alice Townsend who finished in second and third places. Joe Fitzgerald, Mike Wood and Ralph Johnston were the first three to finish in the men's swim, one of the outstanding events.

Ditchburn Trophy

The Ditchburn Trophy went to Mrs. W. L. Beatty as a result of her victory in the championship power boat race open to any boat placing first or second in the other boat race events on the card. She finished with six mile distance, two laps on the Viamede course, with a margin of two minutes over the second-place boat piloted by Fairburn Smith. George Johnson finished third, Col. J. E. Osborne, fourth and J. G. Spragge fifth.

Proceedings were directed from a barge anchored at the east end of the Government wharf, Jock Spragge of Toronto handling the megaphone. Starters were Lyman Crawford-Brown, Bill Beatty and George Scofield, all of Toronto, and serving as judges were Col. F. Bandford-Smith, G. C. Temple and Dr. Don Myers, all of Toronto.

John Richer Grand Champion Of The Kawartha Park Regatta

KAWARTHA BOYS WIN.

(By Staff Reporter)

KAWARTHA PARK, August 3. — A full representation of the summer residents in the Kawartha Park district of Stoney Lake were on hand to see the fun and cheer on their favorites as the annual Kawartha Park regatta was run off Saturday. A high standard of aquatic competition prevailed through the varied program of events which was designed principally for participation of the young generation.

John Richer of Toronto demonstrated an able talent with the paddle in the several types of paddling competition provided during the afternoon to win himself honors as grand champion of the day with a point total which gave him a safe margin over the nearest runners-up. However, the prize winnings were well distributed over a large number of contestants as competition was keen in almost all events. Entries were good with from six to a dozen at the line for most of the starts.

The regatta was sponsored by the Kawartha Park Cottagers' Association. Among those who assisted in the events were Charles Coulter of Toronto, announcer; Dr. Carmen Richker, Dr. John Dale and Ed. Shipp, all of Toronto, and W. J. Scott of St. Louis, judges; and Ray Price of Toronto and Tom Farr of Weston, starters. D. G. Townsend of Hamilton was the recorder.

Possession of the Shipp Trophy was awarded Ricker as grand champion of the day. A generous portion of the fine array of prizes provided by the association went to boys from the Kawartha Boys' Camp, who were represented in every race in which they were eligible.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, August 4

A rather eventful day, with matters of a sudden or surprising nature, is to be looked for, judging by the aspects of major planets. Transactions with large corporations, political or diplomatic circles, fraternities or with other influential contacts assume paramount importance. These should prove an expansive and fruitful venture, although resulting in withdrawal of funds and resorting to speculative chances.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of rather sudden and surprising events, with the necessity for quick decisions, taxing of resources, and the need to undertake some speculative ventures. These require some extra outlay or unusual expense, but seem justified under the expansive probabilities. Change or a journey in connection with major propositions is imminent. Be wary with contract and writings.

A child born on this day may be capable and ambitious, with leanings toward large affairs having a rather speculative aspect. They should bring position, wealth and personal gratifications.

BOARD TO HEAR COHEN PRESENT STRIKERS' CASE

non-strikers who have remained on duty during the strike. The non-strikers assembled in a group at the corner of Park and McDonnel streets and it appeared they intended to march in a body to the plant entrance. They finally withdrew shortly after seven o'clock without attempting an entrance, to the accompaniment of boos and jeers from the picket body up the street.

A mass picket of strikers, mostly girls, again turned out at 12.30 o'clock noon, anticipating a possible further attempt of the men to get into work. A rotating picket chain was set in motion along the plant front but no non-strikers appeared. It appeared this afternoon that no workman, either boss or employee, was inside the Bonner-Worth.

Organizer Alex Welch was again in Cornwall over the week-end, engaged in perfecting the new Canadian textile union set-up which will eliminate any direct C.I.O. affiliation. He announced there efforts would be concentrated on bringing about closer unity between Peterborough and Cornwall textile strikers.

It was reported this morning office workers at the Bonner-Worth and Auburn plants had been advised they would not be required to report for work until further notice. Up to the present, only those members of the office staffs required for attention of mail and telephone switchboards have been on duty, it is understood.

INSURGENTS TAKE MOUNTAIN FORT

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 3 —(AP)—Two insurgent brigades were reported to-day to have driven Madrid-Valencia troops from their principal mountain fortification on the Teruel front near Bezas and to have cut their main communications artery.

An official insurgent communique recounted in detail the twin operations, the latest developments in Generalissimo Francisco Franco's effort to hammer a wedge into government territory in eastern Spain and split the lines between inland Madrid and coastal Valencia, temporary heat of the Republican Government.

The thrust brought capture of the government field headquarters, stock of munitions and supplies, the communique said, and at least 100 government dead were left in Bezas.

Bezas, southwest of Teruel, is about 15 miles north of the Cuenca road, an immediate objective of Franco's drive toward the main Madrid-Valencia highway.

POISONED SOIL FATAL TO STOCK

Plants Absorb It In South Dakota, Giving Horses Blind Staggers, Deforming Fowl.

BROOKINGS, S.D., Aug. 3.—(AP).—Chemists battled to-day against a deadly poison in an effort to make farming profitable on a wide area of Western South Dakota land which bears selenium.

The element in the soil produces the commonly-called "alkali disease" which results in blind staggers in horse and cattle and causes deformed, hairless pigs and distorted chickens. The animals absorb the toxin from plants which have taken it from the soil.

Farmers have abandoned many homesteads in areas being studied by Alvin L. Moxon, chief chemist at the Experimental Station at South Dakota State College here, he reported.

Animals drop dead as soon as 24 hours after eating the poisoned food, he added.

Three pounds of the element in a million of flesh will kill, Moxon explained. It takes five parts of the next deadliest poison to do the same damage, he said.

The Rambling REPORTERS

CAME UP FOR AIR.

A party of young people took the wrong turn in the road when leaving Gore's Landing headed toward Peterborough. They landed in Cobourg. Also ran into and through a heavy shower on the holiday. Riding in the rumble seat was one young man of six feet and several odd inches, and when the rain came down hard, he crawled inside and pulled the seat closed on top of him.

"Well, wouldn't he just about smother in there?" the Examiner inquired of the driver of the car.

"Oh no, he got along all right. Every time we heard his thump on the side of the car we'd stop and open the door while he got a little air."—K.

ABERHART OPENS FOURTH SESSION

Premier Announces Cabinet to Take Over Social Credit Administration.

EDMONTON, Aug. 3.—(CP)—The Alberta legislature to-day will open its fourth session since the Social Credit government of Premier Aberhart swept to power in the August, 1935, landslide at the polls.

Premier Aberhart, who returned two weeks ago from a two weeks' holiday at Vancouver, has announced that the session is being held to pass legislation to implement Social Credit.

Apart from a statement that Social Credit administrative power will be taken from a Social Credit Board and returned to the cabinet, three premier has made no announcement on details of the proposed legislation.

Third session of the House was prorogued June 17. Earlier in the year that session had been adjourned when insurgent and loyalist members in the Social Credit ranks disagreed on matters of policy. But at the June sittings their differences appeared to be ironed out.

Members of the Government were in caucus here yesterday and last night adjourned.

Meanwhile G. F. Powell and L. D. Byrne, emissaries of Major C. H. Douglas, British founder of Social Credit, remained in Edmonton. They were sent out to Alberta to report to Major Douglas concerning the feasibility of inaugurating Social Credit in the province.

Seven Sailors Stage Fake Lock Up For Benefit Of Peterborough Friend

SEVEN Peterborough sailors who took part in sailing races at Juniper Island and Crowe's Landing Regattas on Saturday found their way to Bobcaygeon on the Civic Holiday.

An eighth Peterborough man who had planned to meet the other seven for the purpose of going to Sturgeon Falls sailing races got into town at the appointed hour, but searched for some time without success for his friends. Finally he located them in the brig.

Through the bars of the single cell into which they were crowded they besought him to get them out of their apparent predicament. Taking the situation quite seriously, he arranged so he fondly believed, for the release of his friends. Later he learned the whole affair had been neatly stage-managed for his sole benefit.

215 ROVER SCOUTS ATTEND BIG MOOT ON IRWIN RANCH

"Backwoods Lore" is the Theme of Seventh Ontario Rover Moot.

LEADERS' CAMP COURSE.

"Backwoods Lore," was the theme of the Seventh Ontario Rover Moot held during the past week-end on the 1,000-acre ranching property of James Irwin at Bald Lake, north of Buckhorn.

Representative of various sections of the province and also including a representation from Moncton, N.B., over 200 Rover Scouts were under canvas at Bald Lake from Saturday to Monday for an instructive program that included lectures in forestry and botany and practical demonstrations of campcraft, woodcraft and axemanship.

A feature of the program was the big council fire on Saturday night at which Dr. H. M. East, Moot Chairman and leader of the 106th Toronto Rover Crew, welcomed visitors. Speaker at the program was Arthur Herbert Richardson, M.A., chief provincial forester.

Mr. Richardson's original entry into Scouting was as a lecturer at Gilwell Camp some years ago, and it was he who started the famous Scout reforestation camp at Angus.

Little Sleep

While the council fire did not break up until three o'clock Sunday morning, according to report, the camp was alive with activity at sunrise. At dawn a number of the Rovers attended a service of Holy Communion that was celebrated on the point by the Rev. W. G. Nicholson, rector of St. Clement's Anglican Church, Toronto. A party of Roman Catholic boys went by boat to St. John's Church at Buckhorn, to attend Mass which was celebrated by the Rev. Charles Begley.

Following these earlier services there was a "Rover's Own Service" conducted by the Rev. Mr. Nicholson in which the whole camp participated. The minister spoke on the topic, "Body, Mind, Sociability and Religion."

During the morning and afternoon on Sunday there were lectures on "trees, mapping, nature study ancient man and his weapons botany, and allied subjects. Lecturers included Mr. Richardson, J. L. Simmons, Art Paddon, Professor T. M. Taylor, and others.

At the council fire Sunday night, Ronald Winter was one of the chief speakers. Other speakers were Professor Taylor and Provincial Commissioner W. J. Cairns.

Conferences and inter-crew visits featured the program Monday morning, the afternoon being given over to breaking camp and trekking out the odd two miles or so through the bush to the road, where the car park was located.

Visitors to the camp Sunday included District Scout Commissioner John T. Hornsby, Assistant Commissioner Ernest J. Wolff, and Cub Leader Gordon Clegg, all of Peterborough. When they dropped into the camp around noon they were informed by the camp registrar that 215 Rovers were registered.

Much of the preliminary work in preparing the camp site and marking the road in from Peterborough was performed by Peterborough Rover Crew. They were in camp at full strength and also operated the canteen were supplies of various kinds could be purchased.

During the remainder of this week the first Rover Leaders Camp Course yet held in Ontario is under way at the summer home of Rover Leader Gordon Langley at Sandy Lake nearby.

Peter Inglis, editor of "The Yeoman, official organ of the Toronto Rover Council, expected about twelve Rover leaders would stay over for the camp leaders course.

PAIR CAN MAKE TRIP ON $32.00

Toronto Couple Visits New York City Via Hitch-hike Route.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, August 3. — Hitch-hiking may be illegal in the United States but if you're contemplating a holiday and have only a limited budget to come and go on, it can be done, J. H. Allen of Toronto who recently returned from a round trip to America's greatest city via the thumb route told the Examiner in an interview at the Hollywood tourist camp on Wednesday. Starting from Toronto early on a Saturday morning, Mr. Allen and his wife, who incidentally he claims was the greatest asset to his trip "since a man's traveling alone is much less frequently picked up" they arrived in New York on Sunday evening. The longest lift on the way down was 225 miles and the average length of time between rides was about twenty minutes Mr. Allen stated. "We took the train for thirty miles out of New York on the way home before hitting the road again on Tuesday night and got a four hundred mile life with a fellow who insisted on seeing that we had a place to put up for the night before letting us out," explained Toronto's number one hitch hikers. The highlight of the trip came when a kindly motorist drove the pair over a route which was to be a short-cut but being a little travelled road it resulted in a two and one-half hour walk. In all they travelled fourteen hundred miles with their last lift in Toronto taking them to their own door at no extra cost.

Not content with their trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Allen set out the next day for Campbellford, arriving in less than three hours. Regarding luggage they learned that it is best to travel as light as possible, it being advisable to forward any luggage you will be needing by train. And if you're interested in the economic side the net cost of the trip was $32.00 which includes the two-day stay in N.Y.C. and sleeping in tourist cabins on the way, in fact the Allens say it could be done for $25.00 if you were very careful.

Steel from the United States will relieve the shortage in Wales.

3,000 SPECTATORS GREET FIRST SHOW MOTORBIKE RACES

Fully 200 Riders From All Parts of Province Take Part in Program.

BLANKET FINISHES.

Three thousand clamoring fans saw a new sport introduced to Peterborough yesterday as racing motorcycles thundered a mile a minute past the grand stand at Exhibition Park.

Blanket finishes, daring slides on turns, see-sawing bursts of speed on straightaways, all mixed with the staccato roar of the machines and a blaring from loud speakers, kept the huge crowd on their feet in a state of frenzy through the long program. Sponsored by the Kawartha Motorcycle Club and the Peterborough Lions' Club, the meet was the first of its kind ever to be held in this city, and marked the first sports day on a Civic Holiday here in many years.

Fully 200 motorcycles lined the infield of the track as cycling enthusiasts and competitors from all parts of Ontario and near-Eastern States converged here for the meet. There were 25 entrants in all, hailing from Belleville, Montreal, Ottawa, Windsor, Toronto, Sudbury, and Port Huron. Three Peterborough entrants, Sam Carew, Hilton Greenley, and J. F. Clarke, failed to make points, although Carew was a finalist in a consolation race.

Spectacular Races.

Most spectacular racers in the meet were Romeo Masse of Montreal and Elwood Stillwell of Windsor. Masse carried off first honors in the senior event of the day, a 5-mile run for expert riders, in 5 minutes 50 2-5 seconds. He won the first heat after a sensational race against Leo Anthony of Port Huron in even faster time, 5 minutes 45 1-5 seconds. In the final, Anthony was once again his chief competitor until engine trouble forced him from the race with only a lap and a quarter to go.

The final of the 3-mile event, which saw Elwood Stillwell cross the finishing line in 3 minutes 4-10 seconds, was the fastest and closest race of the day. Nine contestants who had qualified in preceding heats crowded the track to capacity and got away after two false starts.

The only spill of the day came in the first heat of the first race, a 3-mile run for novices. Doug Cameron, Montreal, was leading by a quarter lap as he entered a turn on the last lap and went into a spin. He was not hurt, but did not finish. The final was won by Howard Tinson of Toronto in a blanket finish, with Bob Sparks, Walkerville, in 3 minutes 39 4-10 seconds.

Two local riders were featured in special novelty events that thrilled the crowd. Curtis Gould dove his motorcycle through a flaming board wall and Sam Carew did a broad jump over five men lying prone in front of a take-off board.

Opens Program.

Introduced by Lions' President Fred Cripps, Mayor George Macdonald officially opened the day's program and acted as official starter for the first race. He extended congratulations to the Lions' Club, and said the newly-formed Peterborough Boys' Band, to which the majority of the proceeds will go, will make a valuable addition to the city. The races were run under A.C.U. auspices, represented by Jim Nesbitt, Toronto.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NO, no, it isn't true. We feel sure it is a blooming lie. Some rumors have been floating around over the holiday weekend that there is a nudist swimming colony located in these parts. But that is the usual summer rumor around here. Little gaffers have been hopping into the waters of the Trent Canal and Otonabee River in the raw for lo, these many summers. But just here and there—no organized colony. As for nude grownups, they are few and far between, we feel sure. There is a lovely feeling of freedom in swimming in nature's suit—yeah, we've done it though not since leaving school—but such pleasure is temperd with the watchfulness required, the old weather eye cocked for the law or some indignant respectable citizen. However, if we hear of the location of the rumored nudist colony, we will let our readers in on it.

* * * * * *

A FUNNY incident happened a few summers ago when some gents decided to have a swim about one a.m. at Inverlea, without benefit of bathing suits. A complaint from some neighbor drew a cop to the scene and the young men scrammed in various directions. But the officer tore after one huge chap. Big and bare, he raced through the park and up on the bridge, the limb of the law after him. The naked one was being overtaken halfway across the bridge when he jumped off the railing into the river. He calmly floated off on his back and, as the infuriated officer bellowed threats at him, he crooned that hill-billy number: "You're 'way up thar—I'm 'way down hyar, etc." Then drifted off like a blown-up blimp.

YE GRIDDERS go into a huddle tonight at 8.30 in the "Y". It is the annual re-organization meeting of the Orfuns' Rugby Club and a big turnout is anticipated. They will present financial reports, elect officers and make plans for the coming season. The Orfuns last year ended their season quite impressively—being the best team in the group at the finish, though Lindsay nosed 'em out for the title. Lindsay is not entering this year and two of their best players, Loucks and Begley, will turn out with the Orfuns. The group will probably consist of Peterborough, Oshawa, Cobourg and a Belleville-R.C.A.F. combine. Those interested in tonight's meeting are invited.

A NEW system of intermediate O.R.F.U. playoffs has been arranged for this autumn. The team winning its group goes into Ontario intermediate "A" playdowns. In case of a tie at the end of the season, the squad having the best scoring record for the season will get the nod. This system gives some incentive to a club to keep in there battling, if not for a first-place spot then for the runner-up position. The O.R.F.U. wants all intermediate groups going by Sept. 18th, which is only about a month and a half away.

* * * * * *

PREXY Dave Leether has set the men's softball playoffs. Westclox and Motorists meet tonight at seven here in the first of their four-in-seven serial, the ultimate winner to go into O.A.S.A. intermediate "A" playdowns. A round-robin series, taking in four teams—Westclox, Motorists, Young Petes and Omemee—will start tomorrow night with Omemee meeting Young Petes here. Each team plays the other twice, and the winner is declared city champion and holder of the Taylor Trophy. Omemee will not enter the O.A.S.A. intermediate "B" playdowns this year, but Young Petes plan to hop into the Ontario junior division. These local playoff series may cause some argument around and about, but anyway there they are. Other dates will be announced as we get them.

* * * * * *

AND in gals' softball, Prexy Ev. Thomas informs us that there are still two more games before the playoffs—the latter maybe starting about Friday night. In the meantime, Keene plays Westclox here tonight in a postponed game, while Omemee and Keene replay a tie tilt here on Thursday. The Keene, Cobourg and Westclox damsels are all in the running yet for the two second-half playoff berths, Cobourg having won the first half. The P. W. S. U. ordered the local champion to commence playdowns with Oshawa—which drew a bye—here Aug. 25th. At present Westclox have five wins and two losses, Cobourg five and three, and Keene four and two. That's all for the present.

WEDNESDAY—tomorrow night—Oshawa GM-men play the Petes here at 6.15 in Riverside. It is Oshawa's home game, transferred here when the Motor Citizens couldn't obtain their own diamond. Probably Turner and Russ Kitchen will pitch. The standing is in elsewhere and shows the locals but a full game up on Napanee and the race pretty nearly over. Hence, the Collins' crew need this win like parched throats require liquid refreshment. The Petes up and dropped two over the weekend. They lost a 5-3 decision to Oshawa in Cobourg on Saturday and they dropped a 2-0 heartbreaker to the Ponies in Kingston yesterday. Meantime, Napanee and Kingston had a 4-4 tie on Friday, in a postponed game; and the Gibbards lost a 6-4 decision in Oshawa on Civic Holiday. Which leaves the Ponies barely on top ahead of Oshawa and the Petes, deep in third place, barely ahead of the Naps. And less than two weeks of the C.O.B.L. schedule remaining.

* * * * * *

THE PETES had tough luck in both their reverses over the holiday weekend. In Cobourg Saturday, Turner and Calladine both pitched neat ball but the Liftlockers were juggled around and they booted a couple of costly ones in the fifth to get nosed out. They used Starr in right ,Kingdon back on second, Whatley on third and Mowry catching. It didn't quite work out. In Kingston last e'en, Joe Jakafby returned to the mound for the locals and hurled three-hit ball in a dandy performance but our gang again lost when Paczkokski also twirled three-hit ball and the Ponies proved a better money team. You can't get better flinging than Jakafby dished up but those Daleyites could fall in a sewer and come up with a roll of greenbacks in each mitt! The Ponies play in Napanee tomorrow. Saturday's tussles see Napanee here and Kingston in Oshawa.

* * * * * *

GRAB-BAG: Dope on the big motorbike races here yestiddy, seen by 3,000 or so people, is in elsewhere tonight....Ditto the Bridgenorth softball tournament of the holiday....Belleville lacrossers are billed to play in Oshawa tonight....Pointer pitched eight-hit ball and Jamieson and Williams split eight hits hurling for Ponies in the tie game of Friday night....Starr and Foley led hitters in Saturday's fray but bingles were mighty scarce as the locals lost on Civic Holiday ....Junior Rotarians have a ball practise tonight at Six in Riverside Park, and all should attend....They open their two-in-three playoffs in Cobourg on Friday and here next Monday or Wednesday, the winner to play Belleville in playdowns...Some Southend Softball Loop dope is in this e'en...And a bit of local tennis chatter, too...Kingston scribe figures the C.O.B.L. will be broken up within a few years—and he blames the loop officials and clubs for this for not looking after the minor teams....Can't seem to get going properly today after the big holiday, but this much wordage will give you a rough idea of local sports for the nonce.

LOCAL GOLFERS KINGSTON PLAY

Col. Ackerman and Hubert Chown Take Part in Annual Field Day.

SOMERVILLE WINS CUP.

KINGSTON, Aug. 3.—(Special.)—Sandy Somerville, of the London Hunt Club, who won the Canadian amateur golf title in Ottawa Friday, annexed the Whig-standard trophy and the championship of Eastern Ontario over the Cataraqui Golf Club course here Monday, defeating a field of ninety-two entries.

Somerville showed true championship form when he played the thirty-six holes in 146; 73 for the first eighteen holes and 73 for the second eighteen. William Mooers of Kingston was second, six strokes behind the Canadian champion. D. Carruthers of Kingston was third with 154. Henry C. Bruce of Rivermeade, Ottawa, last year's winner, who was second on the first eighteen holes Monday, finished in fourth place with 156.

Cataraqui Club won the team prize for the best aggregate score of four members from one club. William Mooers, Douglas Carruthers, Ed. Gibson and Roy Travers made up the team.

A. J. Kemlo of Port Hope, won the low net honors, with Col. Ackerman of Peterborough, and G. L. Brackenbury of Port Hope, second and third. The low net during the first 18 holes, was won by Roy Travers of Kingston, with Hubert Chown of Peterborough second. J. Kirkpatrick of Ottawa Rivermeade, took the low net for the second 18 holes, with H. Ridley of Belleville, a close second.

HAVELOCK CLUB DEFEATS KEENE

Eastern Ontario Softball Champions Win From Villagers 17-10.

BRUNTON ON MOUND.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, August 3. — The Havelock Albion Club softball team which last year were Eastern Ontario Intermediate "B" O.A.S.A. champions, were assembled for the first time this season last evening in a snappy exhibition game with Keene, and handed the latter a 17 to 10 trimming.

The Havelock and Keene softball clubs are combining this year to enter a team in the Eastern Ontario Intermediate "B" O.A.S.A. playdowns, and the pick of these two scrappy teams should go a long way in the series.

Brunton, star pitcher for last season's champions, was on the mound again for the Albion crew, and exhibited all his former speed, striking out no less than nine, and allowing only three passes. Keene used three hurlers, Whalen starting off, Woods relieving him in the fourth, with D. McCarthy finishing up the seventh.

Both teams showed plenty of batting power, but the locals had the advantage in superior pitching.

The teams:

Keene — Woods, ss; Renwick, 1b; O. McCarthy, c; Whalen, p; Gillespie, 3b; D. McCarthy, cf; Nelson, lf; J. McCarthy, 2b; J. Barnes, rf.

Havelock — Voyer, 2b; Hill, 3b; Mathison, 1b; Hagerman, c; Hunter, lf; Jones, ss; Brooks, rf; Brunton, p; Wrightly, cf.

Score by innings:

Keene	104 310 1—10
Havelock	700 405 1—17

Umpires—A. Clarke at plate, K. McGill on bases.

Sopwith Challenger Trailing Ranger In America Cup Series

British Seaman Using Off Day to Groom Endeavour II For Restart.

USING GENOA JIB.

(By Mary Elizabeth Plummer.)

NEWYORT, R.I., August 3 (CP). —T. O. M. Sopwith, British challenger for the America's Cup, took advantage of a day's grace today to groom his Endeavour II from stem to stern before pitting her against the United States defender Ranger, twice a winner in the current yachting series.

By tonight a new double-sheeted genoa jib will be ready aboard the British sloop. With this sail Sopwith hopes to match the double-clewed kite which Harold Vanderbilt has used to such great advantage on his Ranger.

And tomorrow the boats go out to the open sea to renew the 16th match for the prized trophy. Ranger, having won the sea-going arguments yesterday and Saturday by decisive margins, needs only two more wins to retain the cup in the best-of-seven series.

Sailing over a 30-mile triangular course of 10 miles to each leg yesterday the Vandervilt boat came home 18 minutes and 32 seconds ahead of Endeavour or approximately three miles in the van. Saturday the British sloop lost by 17 minutes, five second over a 30-mile windward-leeward course.

The tilt over the triangular course appeared to definitely establish Ranger as the faster boat in light weather on and off the wind.

Whether it actually was Ranger herself, or Vandervilt's sailing skill, the fact remained the defender overtook Endeavour II and was "ghosting away" after being more than a quarter of a mile behind in the opening stages.

SKYROS PAYS TOP IN FEATURE RACE

Jockey Herbie Lindbergh Scores Triple Win at Hamilton Club.

HAMILTON, Aug. 3.— (CP).—Skyros, a rank outsider, won the featured Toronto Star purse in the Civic Holiday race card at Hamilton Jockey Club yesterday. R. Johnstone brought Mrs. H. Talbot's horse home a nose in front of Bunty Lawless, the favorite. Skyros paid off at 20 to 1 for the top price of the day.

Jockey Herbie Lindberg scored a triple win on Blue Wren at nearly 5 to 1 in the second, Green Iris in the fourth and the Cosgrave stable's Lady Challenge in the sixth. Green Iris, owned by Mrs. J. Badame, paid off $18.60.

Jockey Timmy Moore kicked Denclaire into first position in the final race of Queen's Park race meet yesterday to score his 29th victory. The clever jockey rode three winners on the last day's card.

Motorists Windup Schedule With Win

The official schedule of the men's senior city softball league was brought to a close last night with Motorists' 4-2 victory over Omemee. The losers outhit their rivals 6-4 but errors played a prominent part in their defeat, having nine chalked up against them. Shine had five strikeouts and one walk while Stephenson fanned seven and gave out four passes.

The playoffs will start on Tuesday evening at Central school grounds, the schedule will be announced the same evening.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

The present game committee had intended to feature a local twilight mixed tournament tomorrow (Wednesday) night, but owing to the rapidity by which so many complications have set in during the last forty-eight hours, the games committee have decided to cancel the contest, therefore there will be no tournament on Wednesday evening.

Our club was well represented at tournaments held on Civic holiday—At Bowmanville, four local rinks were entered, E. Wall, R. Downey, W. Oke and G. Gimblett being the skips. At Owen Sound, H. Freeman had a rink entered while at Cobourg, J. McDonald was the only rink in the mixed tournament.

On our own greens, fourteen mixed rinks celebrated the holiday by playing all afternoon and evening and weather was ideal. The winning rinks were skipped by R. Dyer, G. East, H. Martin and T. McMillan.

TORONTO PLAYERS BEATEN IN SERIES

Peterborough Tennis Club Wins 7 to 5 From Visiting C.N.R. Team.

In the first of their home-and-home series of tennis matches with the Toronto C.N.R. Club over the holiday week-end, the Peterborough Tennis Club—which did the entertaining—won 7 to 5. Events were run on Saturday afternoon and all day Monday, with fine play produced, particularly in the men's doubles. Cowling and McPherson had a real battle with Morton and Hinton of Toronto, this being the ace pair from that club; and the second doubles combination of Mounts and Varey proved too good for Marsh and Kirkwood ,though it too was a nifty scrap.

Vi Davidson pulled out a smart win from Bertha James, while Anna McKenzie and Jack Kirkwood lost a close three-set match to Edith Brocklesby and Bill Martin. The mens singles were mostly in favor of Peterborough players, with Doug. McPherson winning two matches, He, Bill McPherson, Morton, Mounts and Scott all looked exceptionally good. The return match is scheduled for August 21 and 22, in Toronto, and a strong local representation is expected to make the trip.

The results, without scores are: Mens singles—Howie Hammell of Peterborough, lost to Al Gallipe, but Doug. McPherson won from Herb Gormaly and Jack Varey, while Bill McPherson won from Danny Morton; Vi Davidson took the ladies' singles from Bertha James; ladies' doubles—Anna McKenzie and Barbara Cutting dropped theirs to Bertha James and Edith Brocklesby; men's doubles—Jack Cowling and Bill McPherson won from Morton and Glen Hinton; J. Kirkwood and H. Marsh lost to Neil Mounts and Jack Varey; Boy Maybee and John Waldon tied with B. Brocklesby and Horace Brown; Doug McPherson and Jack Kirkwood lost to Tom Scott and Neil Mounts; and George Scott and Jack Cowling won from Allen Gallipe and Glen Hinton; mixed double—Pat McClennan and Harlow Cutting won from Babs Smith and Herb Gormaly, while Anna McKenzie and Jack Kirkwood lost to Edith Brocklesby and Bill Martin.

COAST RETAINS SOCCER HONORS

Toronto Ulster United Bows 3-2 in Final Game For Coveted Cup.

DOMINION SUPREMACY.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3 (CP)—The elaborate silver trophy presented by the English Football Association for Canada's champion soccer team will remain on the Pacific coast for another year. Vancouver Johnston Nationals defeated Toronto Ulster United in a best-of-three game series here for the title.

Winding up the series last night, Nationals stormed through to a 3-2 victory over Ulster to win the Dominion Football Association title and the trophy, two games to one. Both teams previously had won a game 3-1. Westminster Royals were titlists last year.

Swede Larson, lightning-fast Vancouver centre forward, was the toast of the town for soccer fame here today. After playing sensationally against Winnipeg United Weston in the Western Canada finals, he failed to hit his stride in the first two games against Ulster.

But last night he turned on the heat, scored two goals, assisted with another and missed half a dozen times when he stumbled around the goal mouth.

Along with Hugh Greer, lightweight inside left with an uncanny dribble, his playing was enough to give the coast team the edge in the final 45 minutes.

Petes Battle Hard For Playoff Berth

C.O.B.L. standing to date:

	P.	W.	L.
Kingston	18	13	5
Oshawa	20	13	7
Petes	20	7	13
Napanee	18	5	13

Oshawa GM-men and the Petes play here to-morrow (Wednesday) night at 6.15 o'clock in Riverside Park. It will be Oshawa's home game, transferred here since they cannot obtain their home grounds for this date. As the above standing shows, the Petes are battling bitterly for a third-place playoff berth, and have but one full game's margin over Napanee. A loss on Wednesday will be a serious blow to their hopes, as the schedule nears its end, but a win will keep them in front of the Gibbards. It should draw a big midweek crowd and n[illegible] see Kitchen and Turner on the opposite mounds.

Petes Dim Playoff Chances With 2-0 Loss At Kingston

Jakafby Allows Three Hits But Errors By Teammates Are Costly.

SOME SNAPPY FIELDING.

(Special to The Examiner.)

KINGSTON, Ont., August 3.—Peterborough's chances of getting into the C.O.B.L. playoffs were somewhat dimmed here on Monday afternoon when they were blanked by the three-hit twirling of Tony Paczkowski, the Ponies remaining at the top of the league standing by virtue of their 2-0 win. It was easily the best local game of the season, with snappy playing winding up the game in an hour and twenty minutes.

It was a tough game for Joe Jakafby to lose, for the Petes' burly hurler allowed only three hits, errors by teammates proving costly, while some not-so-good base-running by the Petes spoiled their chances.

Jakafby hurled perfect ball for four innings, holding the Ponies hitless until the fifth and he might have had a shutout had it not been for miscues. Compeau was safe on Clark's error to start the fifth and he advanced on T. Scrutton's sacrifice, S. Scrutton came through with the first Kingston hit of the game, a Texas leaguer to short centre on which Compeau made third. He then scored on a hard hit ball by Joyce, the batter being retired at first.

Compeau Scores Again.

Again in the seventh it was Compeau who did the scoring. He started the inning with a hit to short right field and once more was sacrificed along when T. Scrutton laid down a perfect bunt. S. Scrutton drove one at Whatley, who made the stop and then fumbled the ball long enough to allow the batter to make first and Compeau, to reach third, with Joyce at bat. Compeau and Scrutton pulled a smart double steal, Compeau sliding in under Mowry, while Scrutton continued on to third.

But that finished the scoring, and while Buck got a hit in the eighth and made third on infield outs, he was left stranded.

Peterborough foozled their big chance in the eighth. They had been hitless from the third inning when Long drove a liner to S. Scrutton, who made a nice stop on the sure hit and then proceeded to throw wildly to first, Long going on to second. Mowry laid one down to third, being tossed out at first, while Long made the hot corner. Jakafby slipped one at S. Scrutton, who made a nifty pickup and throw to first, Joyce relaying the ball home in time to nail Long, who slid into the plate.

Both pitchers worked well throughout. In five innings Paczkowski retired the side in order, while Jakafby did the same thing in three frames. The Petes hurler fanned six, to two by Paczkowski, and he issued two walks, but neither amounted to anything. As a matter of fact, he walked Buck twice and the latter with a single also to his credit, found himself three times on third base with two men out and McQuaide at bat each time, but the league's leading hitter failed to come through.

It was a smartly played game all the way, and one in which the losing pitcher deserved a far better break.

Kid McCoy Starts 9th Honeymoon

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Kid McCoy, former world's middleweight champion, embarked to-day on his ninth and last honey-moon—last, he said, because "they count me out at ten."

The 63-year-old "Kid," born Norman Selby in Moscow, Ind., near Rushville, came back to his home county yesterday to be married to Mrs. Sue Cobb Cowley of Detroit, Mich.

His bride, distant relative to the humorist, Irvin S. Cobb, had been married three times previously. She gave her age as 44 when the couple obtained a marriage license.

Selby remarked jokingly, he might "have to get out my scrapbook" to list his former wives. All are living, Selby said.

REVAMPED PETES BALL CLUB FAILS TO HALT OSHAWA

Motorists Cop 5-3 Verdict in League Game Played at Oshawa.

PLENTY OF HITS.

Manager Fred Collins of the Petes, worried after three losses in a row, desperately sent a revamped lineup into action against Oshawa Motors in Saturday's Central League game played at Cobourg as part of the Lakeshore town's centennial celebration but the move failed to check the squad's losing streak, Oshawa copping the verdict 5 to 3.

It was an interesting ball game. Jack Turner on the mound for Oshawa and Bill Calladine who made his first pitching start of the season for the Petes were in trouble frequently but they pitched with plenty of courage and aided by smart fielding got out of most of the holes. As a matter of fact Turner after yielding 5 hits and a trio of runs in the first two frames found his stuff after that and held the losers to one hit for the balance of the game. Calladine was nearly as effective in the clutches and a little loose baseball in the fifth frame giving Oshawa their winning margin of two runs was the only difference between the two outfits.

Good Defensive Work.

On the whole the Petes did some great defensive work, Kearns and Starr featuring with great throws from the outfield and Whatley starting a double play by a diving circus catch of Osborne's bunt fly. Clark also inaugurated a rapid-fire double killing, with Kingdon as the pivot man.

Oshawa scored in the first when May walked, was sacrificed to second by Hurst, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Mathews' single between short and third after Calladine had tossed out Jubenville. Foley struck out to end the frame.

The Petes came back with two, Kearns strolled and Starr sacrificed him to second. Burton hit over the left field fence for a ground rule double scoring Kearns and then trotted home himself when Calladine blasted a long triple to deep centre field. Whatley grounded to May, Calladine being held at third and then Clark was robbed of a hit by a one-handed grab by Wallace.

In the second Wallace walked with one out, Osborne singled to right and Starr threw Wallace out at third. Turner was passed. May singled to centre scoring Osborne and when Kearns' throw to third got away from Whatley Turner also scored. Hurst rolled to the box.

The Petes tied it in their half. Long singled over second but was forced on Mowry's attempted sacrifice. Kingdon singled through short. Kearns popped to Jubenville but Starr came through with a single to centre to send Mowry in. Burton rolled to May.

Oshawa won the game in the fifth. Hurst was walked and Jubenville was safe when his roller got away from Kingdon. Mowry tried to pick Hurst off second and both advanced on his wild throw. Mathews rolled to Kingdon and Hurst scored on the play, although he delayed and should have been nipped between third and home. Foley beat out a tap to Calladine, Jubenville holding third. Bennett's single through short sent Jubenville in. Wallace hit into a Clark-Kingdon double play to end the inning.

There was no more scoring.

All-Toronto Ties With Touring 11

TORONTO, Aug. 3 (CP)—Toronto Cricket Club faced the English cricketers in the second match of their Canadian tour today, a one-day match being scheduled for Armours Heights where the visitors drew with an all-Toronto eleven yesterday.

Enthusiastic over the tour to date, the visitors fielded a strong team. They were impressed with the showing of the representative Toronto side that compiled 189 runs for seven wickets in reply to the M.C.C. total of 351 for four, declared.

A great display by H. J. Enthoven, Middlesex and Cambridge University player, exhibited a wide variety of strokes, batting confidently for 101 not out.

LEAFS DIVIDE SYRACUSE TWIN

Outfielder Tom Oliver Spoils Moore's Bid For No-Hit Battle.

GIANTS WIN 5-4.

TORONTO, August 3 — (AP). — Syracuse Chiefs may not win the International Baseball League pennant but they appear to have a virtual monopoly on the league's low hit pitching performances.

Lloyd (Whitey) Moore has contributed a no-hitter and a one-hit game to the league's 1937 records and ancient Fred Fussell has turned in a couple of low hit performances.

Johnny Gee followed up by hurling a two-hit game yesterday to win 8-0 after the Chiefs had shaded Toronto Maple Leafs in the opener 6-5.

Only outfielder Tom Oliver of the Leafs spoiled Moore's bid for a no-hit game. Oliver got two singles. The Chiefs pounded Bots Nekola, Ted Horton, and Mike Meola 13 hits including a homer by Al Glossop, who also collected two singles.

Thriller From Start

The first game was a thriller. The Leafs led 2-1 going into the ninth but the Chiefs rallied to score five times. Then the Leafs came back to score three runs and just miss tying up the game. Shanty Hogan hit a homer for the Leafs in this game and also got a double to drive in three runs.

Giants Win 5-4

Jersey City Giants won their third straight by shading Rochester Red Wings 5-4 in the opening five-game series. The Giants rallied in the third, bunching a pinch-double by Walter Brown with another double and a single to take the lead.

Leo Mangum, lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, was credited with the victory when Don Brennan blanked the Wings over the last two innings in a relief role.

WESTCLOX TAKES TOP PLACE TITLE AT BRIDGENORTH

Clockmakers Defeat All Stars 14-2 For Senior Men's Honors.

BIG SPORTS DAY.

Westclox won the senior men's section from an All Star team by a score of 14-2 in the annual Bridgenorth Sports' Day. The tournament was a big success, drawing a large number of entries in all events.

The tug-of-war contest was won by the Harvey outfit and Walter Order easily took down first honors in the bucksaw contest.

The ladies of the Bridgenorth United Church served supper on the grounds, and their big tent was well patronized by the large crowd.

Intermediate Girls' Section

The Bridgenorth girls won the intermediate section, defeating the Dark Horses in the first event 16-4 and taking the Lakehurst girls in the finals 11-8. Bing, The Track Operator Fares As Well As Crosby, The Crooner

DEL MAR, Cal., Aug. 3 (AP).—A freshman promoter no longer Bing Crosby tucked his first turf season away with a plump profit today and prepared for bigger and better things at Del Mar race track.

Whether Bing Crosby the promoter eventually will show more profit than Bing Crosby the crooner remained an unanswered question but evidence from the 22-day inaugural meeting gave an indication in that direction.

In spite of dire warnings he would lost his shirt in the race track business the pari-mutuels records showed a $177,946 "take" for the brief meeting, not to mention considerable profit from concessions.

The handle for the meeting was $2,224,325, for a daily average of $101,105.68.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 48

Marcia woke from a deep sleep the next morning, to see the homely face of Marie silhouetted against the curtainless window.

"Hello," she said in some confusion. "Then as recollection flooded upon her, she said, "Oh, how is Gary this morning? And how did you get here so quickly? I'm so glad you're here. So glad."

"Whoa. Take it easy; just one thing at a time," Marie soothed her, realizing that the girl was still in a daze. "Gary is as well as can be expected. We won't know how he's going to pull through for several hours. I flew down as soon as I could get to a plane this morning. I thought those planes could travel fast—why, I'm surprised that the kite could stay up in the air, at the slow rate it was going!" Marie was talking of inconsequential things while she studied Marcia.

Suddenly the girl's eyes filled with tears, and she turned to the woman who was now sitting on the side of her narrow hospital cot.

"Oh, Marie—it's all my fault," she wept. "He only drank because he was so disappointed with me; he really wasn't on a regular spree. And Sandy thought he was helping. It's all been such a terrible mess."

Marie gathered the girl into her arms, consoling her as best she could. Between breaths Marcia told her the whole story, how Gary had planned the festive celebration; how she had gone against her better judgment, and tried vainly to postpone the proposal she knew was on the tip of his tongue.

"He took it like a soldier, I thought. We drank a toast to our continued friendship, and he seemed to have hold of himself. It wasn't until after—," and suddenly Marcia stopped short. "Sandy! Oh, what will they do to him? Is he still in jail?"

Marie shook her head in perplexity. She had been too concerned with Gary's welfare to think of the other man.

Marcia jumped from her bed, mumbling something about getting to Sandy.

"If he said what you told me he did, he probably won't want to see you," Marie told her. "This Mike fellow seems to be on the job; I think you'd better leave that to him." Wisely, she soothed the overwrought girl, then took her down to the hospital coffee shop for some nourishment.

"You'd think it was my cousin instead of yours," Marcia told her. "You have been so calm, and I—I've just gone to pieces. I never dreamed things like this could happen. I feel as if I were personally responsible—just as if I'd deliberately shoved Gary down those stairs, and had Sandy blamed for it."

Between gulps of hot coffee, Marie talked philosophically. "You can't take the blame for the whole thing, my dear. It's not your fault that you couldn't come to love Gary. You would have done him a greater injustice if you'd accepted him in a half-hearted pitying way. He'll pull through this, and even get over the unhappiness you've had to bring him. Come, let's talk to Dr. Winter now."

"I'm inclined to give him the benefit of the doubt," that bespectacled old gentleman told them. "He has a surprising amount of resistance in that slender body of his. Loss of blood is his main trouble just now, but we gave a transfusion this morning that has strengthened him. I expect the crisis this afternoon, so just be brave."

The day passed slowly, with the two women alternately encouraging each other. Marcia called Mike and felt relieved to learn he was on the job to help Sandy. She asked him if Paula had been down to the jail, and was pleased that Mike had been in the dark as to the identity of this girl.

"Either she hadn't gone to him, or—or maybe Sandy hadn't wanted to worry her," Marcia thought, and wished she could go to him herself. "He probably hates the ground I walk on by now," she mused, "after causing him all this trouble."

During the afternoon, Marie turned inquiringly to the girl. Trying to divert her mind from worrying over Gary she said, "What are you going to do about this Sandy, after all the trouble is over?"

"Nothing."

"What do you mean, 'nothing'?" Marie demanded. "Where is your fighting spirit? Are you going to let him slip out of your life as easily as that? Seems to me if you're willing to sacrifice a fine man like Gary because of your love for this Sandy, at least you owe it to yourself to have a thorough understanding with him."

"It's no use, Marie," she said in a discouraged tone. "We just seem to be misfits. Ever since we first met, we've quarreled back and forth. Sometimes the things were important but most often they were trivial. If Sandy wants to blame me for this, too, that's his privilege. I've given him every opportunity to speak his heart. Why, I haven't seen him for over a month until last night."

"But I thought you said he called you last night? Maybe he had something important to tell you," Marie went on, delving deeper into the maze of contradictory facts she found in analyzing the romance of Sandy and Marcia. For a moment Marcia's eyes brightened hopefully, then she shook her head. "No, if he'd wanted to tell me anything really vital, he'd have found time in spite of all the excitement."

"Maybe seeing you with Gary, and him—drunk." Marie shuddered a little, "maybe that changed his mind."

"Maybe. But I don't think so. He could have managed somehow to tell me. He was only reproachful and accusing when he bothered to speak to me at all." Marcia's emotions were getting the better of her, and she concluded abruptly, "Let's talk of something else."

Marie shook her head. The girl was dear to her, in spite of their short acquaintance, and she had hoped to help her solve her problems. But she could see that Marcia had faced so many disappointments, she couldn't bring herself to question Sandy directly. Maybe she was right, but in the face of her overpowering love Marie felt she should sacrifice every shred of pride to get to the truth of the matter. It was then that Doctor Winters came into the immaculate little waiting room where they were sitting.

"I think I have good news for you, ladies," he said with a broad smile of satisfaction on his shining face. "Mr. Warren has rallied a little, and asked for you, Miss Madden."

With sudden and almost paralyzing relief, Marcia sank back on the hard davenport. Seeing the end of the nervous vigil which she and Gary's cousin had kept she suddenly let go.

"Come, now," said the physician "Are you trying to give me two patients where I only had one before? Brace up and go talk to the lad. But I'm warning you not to stay; he's not completely out of the woods yet."

The three walked down the long awesome hall, and Marcia thought of that other time she had faced an emergency in just such a setting when Ellen was sick. Fearfully, she wondered what Gary's mental attitude would be, if he would blame her for the disastrous events of the night before.

It was with some trepidation that she entered the door which Dr. Winters was holding for her. On the bed, lying extremely flat and still, she saw Gary. With the clumsiness that most healthy people feel in facing anyone serious ill, she walked stiff-legged to the bedside.

"Hello, Gary," she said, feebly.

"Sorry," he said with considerable effort. "So sorry, Marcia. Don't blame yourself. Or you friend. I'll get well."

The tears flooded Marcia's eyes as she considered the thoughtfulness of the sick man on the bed, thinking of her peace of mind and of Sandy when he was wracked by pain. She nodded when he spoke, and pressed his hand in appreciation. Then catching the doctor's eye, she smiled. I have to go now, dear. Take care of yourself; Marie and I both will be here pulling for you."

Quietly she slipped from the room and hugged Marie in her happiness.

"Now they will let Sandy free?" she asked almost before she had time to catch another breath.

"We'll have to wait until Mr. Warren is able to talk to the police, to tell them whether or not he wants to prosecute," Dr. Winters explained.

"But of course he won't," Marie disclaimed.

"Probably not. But the police will want his statement on that. They'll probably want to wait until he is definitely out of all danger; you'll have to be patient, I'm afraid."

COTTESLOE

Mrs. M. Knox entertained on Tuesday afternoon at a miscellaneous shower in honor of her sister, Miss Josephine McGee a bride-elect of August. The dining-room was very prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, white bells, and sweet peas. An enjoyable afternoon was spent in stunts, music, singing and recitations, during which little Jimmy and Muriel Andrews carried in a lovely decorated basket full of useful and handsome gifts to the strains of the wedding march played by their mother, Mrs. G. Andrews. Miss McGee then opened the gifts and thanked each one separately. Those attending were: Mesdames R. Buck, A. McGee, S. McGee, Ted McGee, Gerald Andrews, Jimmy and Muriel S. Elmhirst, Blanche and Mary W. Girven, C. McMillan and Dorothy, R. Patterson, P. Allen, G. Baker, H. Morgan, A. Stinson, A. McMillan, P. Gardner, H. Vanvolkenberg, L. Freeburn. Misses L. Greenbank, Hazel Elliott, Doris, Helen and Josephine McGee, Hazel Rodgers, Winnie Metcalfe, Lila Burgess, Angeline Scott.

About thirty Cottesloe friends and neighbors of Mrs. Goldie Drain (nee Lila Girven) drove to her home at Clarina on Tuesday evening. The evening was spent in music and games during which Mr. and Mrs. Drain were presented with a silver tea service. The address was read by Miss Margaret McDonald and the presentation made by Mrs. M. L. Clysdale on behalf of the community. Mrs. Drain made a very suitable reply and asked everyone to come and see her. Lunch was served at midnight and the evening was brought to a close.

Tries Some Strategy on Advertising Space When Merchants Slip.

BROADWATER, Neb., Aug. 3 (A. P.). — That bugaboo of newspaper publishers—lack of advertising—may have terrors for Editor J. P. Kelley of the Broadwater News, but in this week's edition he did something about it.

In a large blank space in which the ads might have been, Editor Kelley inserted three well-spaced words:

"OUR IDLE ACRES."

In another gaping white hole, he chided non-advertisers thusly:

"A newspaper which hasn't a representative volume of local advertising is a dead newspaper and indicates a dead town. Either the non-advertiser or the paper is dead. But in this instance there's nothing wrong with the newspaper."

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY TAIL

(By Howard R. Garis)

"What shall we do first?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Get him out of the hammock," whispered the Fox.

"Yes, but how?" the Bob Cat wanted to know.

"Make him fall out," said the Fox. "When he falls he will be so surprised and kersplotrated, to use a scientific word which probably you never heard of, he will feel so kersplotrated he will be all in a daze and we can easily catch him."

"That is a very excellent not to say disproportionate idea," said the Bob Cat, putting on airs by using big words. "Shall we start to jiggle the hammock and toss him out that way?"

"No indeed," said the Fox, looking at Uncle Wiggily, who was asleep in the hammock Nurse Jane had given him. "If we do that he will wake up before he falls out and then he may jump and run away and hide in his camping tent and we may not find him."

Ker-ker—

"How then," asked the Bob Cat, "can we make him fall out of his hammock so suddenly that when he wakes up he will be surprised and ker-ker-ker—"

"Are you trying to sneeze?" asked the Fox politely.

"No. I am trying to say that big scientific word you used," said the Bob Cat. "Ker flummoxed, that's it."

"Kersplotrated," said the Fox. "Let it go. But I'll tell you how we can get sleeping Uncle Wiggily out of his hammock suddenly and grab him before he is really awake."

"How?" asked the Bob Cat.

"We can make Uncle Wiggily fall but cutting both hammock ropes at the same time," said the Fox. "Only since we have no knives we can gnaw the rope with our teeth which will be the same thing."

"Yes, we can do that," agreed the Bob Cat. "The ropes are made of wild honeysuckle vines, like Uncle Wiggily's swing," said the stub-tailed Bad Chap. "We can easily gnaw them, you one and I the other. Let's start. He may wake up if we don't."

The two Bad Chaps started softly gnawing the ropes of Uncle Wiggily's hammock so he would fall out and be so surprised and ker zoodled the Bad Chaps would have him before he knew it.

Sings

"Gnaw! Gnaw! Gnaw!" went the Fox and Bob Cat. The vine ropes of the hammock grew thinner and thinner. The Bob Cat began to sing:

"Rock a-by Wiggy, on the tree top."

"Hush!" ordered the Fox. "You'll wake him. Gnaw! Gnaw!"

So the Bob Cat gnawed and Uncle Wiggily, still asleep in his hammock, knew nothing of the adventure, with the two Bad Chaps, that had come to him.

"Get ready now! The ropes are nearly gnawed through!" the Fox whispered.

"I'm ready!" chuckled the Bob Cat.

"Bang! Bing! Bang!" Down fell hammock, Uncle Wiggily and all.

The sudden bump awakened the rabbit gentleman.

"Now we have you" howled the Fox.

But did they? No, indeed! That must never happen.

Uncle Wiggily fell upon the thick rubber sheet Nurse Jane had spread beneath him. Down he fell but up he bounced like a ball and over the heads of the Bad Chaps he went flying safely into his tent where they couldn't get him. Ha! Ha! But the Bad Chaps didn't laugh as they went slinking away.

Now that's just exactly what happened. And when you see the milkman take the hole out of the chimney and put it in a Swiss cheese I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily and the funny nut.

DRINKING BEFORE FATAL CAR CRASH JURY IS INFORMED

Driver in Accident Near Lindsay Says Woman Grabbed Him Around Neck.

TORONTO MAN KILLED.

LINDSAY, Aug. 3. — A coroner's jury heard evidence Friday concerning the death of Roland Benson Ward, 74, second-hand dealer of Lombard street, Toronto, who died in Lindsay Hospital eight days after being injured in a car accident three miles west of Lindsay, on the Stonehouse curve. At the request of the Crown it was finally adjourned to permit further inquiry.

Dr. F. A. Logan, Coroner, presided, and J. E. Anderson, K.C., conducted the questioning of witnesses.

Dr. M. E. Gorman of Lindsay told of being called to the accident, finding Ward in the back seat of the car seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital, where examination revealed a broken collarbone, scalp injuries and an ear practically torn off. X-rays showed a slight skull injury behind the ear. He testified that death folowed a gradual decline and was from a pneumonic condition. He explained that the man's history showed him to have been in ill health for a long period.

John Hugh Watson, of Toronto, partner in a retail hat business with Paul O'Neil, and alleged driver of the car, told the jury there were four in the car, but at this point L. M. Frost, K.C., asked for protection of the witness under the Canada Evidence Act, as Watson has been charged with criminal negligence and is out on $4,000 bail.

Watson said that he first met Ward in February, 1937, and knew him as Mr. Benson. On June 14, he was requested to take this man for a ride because he had been ill. When he and O'Neill arrived at Ward's place of business on Lombard street, they found Ward, Mrs. Mary Kerr and Leonard Waller, an employee. Ward wanted whiskey so he gave Waller money for a bottle of Scotch whiskey. All had a drink, then he left to go to the store. Later, he testified, both he and O'Neill went back and Mrs. Kerr brought in another bottle of whiskey. They then drove to O'Neill's house to get rid of some liquor.

Decided On Drive

At O'Neil's house, every one had a drink except Watson, and they decided to go for a drive to Lindsay to see O'Neil's mother. Ward suggested Mrs. O'Neil go along, but objected to Mrs. Kerr going. Watson said he did not like the idea of Mrs. O'Neil being in the same car with Mrs. Kerr. The latter insisted on going, and the four set out for Lindsay. Mrs. Kerr had another bottle of whiskey which she kept sipping, and both she and Ward appeared to be becoming intoxicated.

"She shoved the bottle at me, but I refused, and she spilled some on me," said Watson. "She was sitting on Mr. Ward's knee. No stops were made. At a corner outside Lindsay Mary grabbed me around the neck just as another car approached. The car went off one side, but I righted it, but I must have steped on the gas instead of the brakes. The car went into the ditch on the opposite side of the road, and all were thrown out except Ward. Under questioning he said he had no business connection with Ward, but that in answer to a telephone call from O'Neil on June 2 he had drawn up a will for Ward making O'Neil sole beneficiary and executor. His brother was a witness to the will, he said.

He denied having participated in the handling of the estate since death. He told of paying Mrs. Kerr's hospital bills and talking to her several times.

O'Neil described Ward as a very peculiar man who hated lawyers and doctors, lived frugally, but was generous to those who were poor.

MILLBROOK

LAWN CARNIVAL HELD BY CADETS

Millbrook Members Sponsor Dance and Games at Home of Reeve Stinson.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, August 3. — A novelty in the way of entertainment was provided by the Lawn Carnival held on Friday evening, under the auspices of the local Cadet Corps, Reeve and Mrs. Percy Stinson kindly giving the use of their large and beautiful grounds for the purpose.

Strings of colored lights together with the many flower beds in full bloom, the soft green of the lawns, and the dainty dresses worn especially by those indulging in dancing, all added to the attractiveness of the scene.

The object in view was a worthy one—to raise funds to send the rifle team to Ottawa in August to compete at the D.C.R.A. matches at the Connought Ranges. In previous years the local team has given a good account of itself at this competition, and the members of this year's entry are: Billy Kerr, Orville Wainman, Max Challice, and Earl Pallister.

No admission charge was made to the carnival on Friday evening, but games of chance placed at various points throughout the grounds gave opportunity to invest small amounts and take part in the general enjoyment and good feeling of the occasion. Seats were conveniently placed so onlookers might enjoy watching the dancing, the major part of the tennis court being roped off for this purpose, and the Serenaders' Orchestra furnishing music.

The refreshments booth on the adjoining Wainman lawn was used for the sale of hot dogs, soft drinks, home-made candy, etc., Harold Wainman and Robert Theobald being in charge. Outside of the dancing, largest patronage of the evening went to the bingo booth, where B. B. Dawson, P. I. Bentley, and T. W. McCamus looked after the play.

"Playing the Ponies" was another popular drawing card, Ken Kidd presiding, and Billy Kerr lookeo after the canvas alley-way where the ball throwers tested their skill at knocking down the qualnt, sawdust stuffed figures. Jack Arundel was cashier at the entry to the dance square, and the members of the orchestra included Gordon and Nelson Davis, with violin and saxophone, Gerald Todd traps and drum, Nelson Chiles trumpet, and Bill Edworthy at the piano. The Serenaders is a growingly-popular local organization, originated when Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jordan, now of Port Hope, were residents of the community, and has adopted an attractive uniform—light blue coats bound in white, with white shirts and trousers.

Unfortunately, the effort put forth in providing the carnival did not clear sufficient funds to meet the object in view, other intervening events, and possibly the increasingly cool atmosphere as the evening advanced, keeping the attendance under what was anticipated. Reeve Stinson and his wife were assisted by their son and daughter, Jack and Jean, in welcoming the guests, and in looking after their pleasure and entertainment.

Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, Cadet instructor, had a general oversight of the entire event.

Letter Saying He Was Safe Arrived 2 Hours After Telegram Listing Him Dead

NAMES MIXED UP

EDMONTON, Aug. 3 — (C.P.). — Traffic Constable Ernest Foster of the Edmonton Police Department opened a drawer today and discovered a memorable, pale-green document that recalled to him the weirdest and most important "hunch" of his life.

It was a telegram, dated Nov. 2, 1915, regretfully informing his father he had been killed in action on a Belgian battlefield. It came from Ottawa, and was signed "Adjutant-General."

But so strong and prompt was his own premonition that such a message would be sent, the veteran traffic officer remembers now, that a letter written by him arrived at home in Edmonton two hours after the telegram, assuring his parents and sisters he was alive and unharmed.

The telegram is the central momento of the strangest incident in the war career of a man who within 18 months was reported a "deserter" from the ranks, then killed in action, then seriously wounded twice —each time without a shred of truth.

He left for the front August 22, 1914, on the first full troop train leaving Edmonton. In England he was drafted into the first Ontario regiment.

Shell Arrives At Meal Time.

On October 9, 1915, he was cooking a noonday meal for the company officers in a trench dugout near Wulverghem, Belgium, when an ominous and familiar whistle made him look up expectently from his pots and pans.

"A German shell came over and landed right in a corner of the trench, and a second later I heard one sharp, choked-off yell out there," the bluecoat said. "Soon I learned the shell had killed Private John Foster, No. 18497. He had enlisted in Edmonton.

"Anyway, the minute I heard this other Foster was dead, I just suddenly had a premonition—somehow, I knew in my bones there'd be a mix-up in the names; that I, not he, would be reported killed in action. And it was right. I can't explain why I had the feeling. That letter went out the next morning."

Soviets May Help Mattern

Aid from Soviet scientists at the north pole, who have arranged to flash him an "okay" when weather conditions are suitable, is hoped by James (Jimmy) Mattern to win him a permit for a trans-polar flight from United States officials. The officials had refused him the permit until shown the flight would have some scientific value. Mattern is shown above being greeted upon his arrival at Washington, D.C., by Lieutenant-Governor Walter Woodful, of Texas. The pilot flew to Washington to appeal the Department of Commerce's refusal of a permit.

ASK CHEAPER RATE CABLE AND RADIO ON BRITISH NEWS

Labor Member Sees Threat From Subsidized Foreign Companies.

OFTEN HURT HOMELAND.

LONDON Aug. 3 (CP Cable). — An appeal for cheaper cable and radio rates for British news agencies to meet foreign subsidized news agencies and propaganda was made in the House of Commons Friday by Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor.

"I think there is abundant evidence to show there is real danger of our influence in world affairs being diminished because we are doing nothing to combat the situation which is being created by foreign countries in subsidizing their news agencies and news service and so enabling them to pour out news at a ridiculously low cost," Fletcher declared.

British news agencies, he said, apparently were compelled to stick to cable communication because considerations of imperial defence were involved. Governments were reluctant to commit themselves to radio because it might be jammed in time of war.

"Countering propaganda is equally a matter of defence and why must those concerned in disseminating British news be denied cheap radio transmission in order that they may maintain these cable communications?" Fletcher asked.

Sometimes Hurt Britain

He charged government-subsidized news agencies put their own home news in a favorable light and that news affecting other countries, especially Great Britain, was tinctured. He cited instances where he said attempts were made to create bad feeling between Great Britain and friendly nations.

"This is the time," he told the House, "for something to be done to counter this state of affairs, whereby British news not only is put into the background but such news as does get through is ingeniously but not too conspicuously distorted to our discredit and harm."

Fletcher urged the foreign office to bestir itself and call experts to study the problem and discuss the possibilities of nullifying the effects of subsidized news damaging British interests.

RANGER BEATS ENDEAVOUR OVER LINE 2 LENGTHS

ELECTION DATE LIKELY BE SET DURING THE DAY

Hepburn Expected to Announce it Following Afternoon's Cabinet Session.

OCTOBER 5 IS GUESS.

Elgin Liberals Cancel Birthday Party For Premier on 12th —Nomination Instead.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(CP).—Belief grew to-day that Premier Mitchell Hepburn would announce the date of an autumn general election following a meeting of his Ontario Cabinet this afternoon.

The Premier was expected to reach his Queen's Park office before mid-afternoon and immediately go into conference with members of the Cabinet awaiting his arrival. All political groups confidently anticipated an announcement of the date within a few hours. Most guesses in Liberal and Conservative circles were Oct. 5.

The Hepburn Liberal government was elected in the general election of June 19, 1934, winning 66 of the 90 seats in the legislature. Conservatives won 17, Liberal-Progressives four, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation one, Independent one and United Farmers of Ontario, one.

Present standing in the House is Liberals 64, Conservatives 17, Liberal-Progressives four, C.C.F. one, Independent one, U.F.O. 21, vacant two.

Since the first of the year the government has lost two followers by death—George A. McQuibban in Wellington North and J. A. Sangster in Glengarry. In neither case was a by-election called.

While rumors have been current for several weeks that an election would be called this fall, Premier Hepburn refused to discuss the possibility with questioners.

CANCEL PARTY PLANS

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 4 (CP)—Meeting at the home of Premier Hepburn here last night the executive committee of the Elgin riding Liberal Association decided to cancel arrangements for a party in honor of Mr. Hepburn's birthday Aug. 12 and to hold a nominating convention in St. Thomas instead.

Elgin Conservatives, with Hon. Earl Rowe in attendance, next Tuesday will nominate a candidate to oppose the premier in Elgin. Norman Marlin, Yarmouth township farmer, has been mentioned as the likely nominee.

Premier Hepburn after spending the week-end at his farm home in Yarmouth left today for Toronto. A meeting of the cabinet council will be held when he arrives in Toronto.

Chicago 'Kidnap' Proves Theft By Parents

Couple Snatch Tot When Mother Finds Its 'Adopted' Home

Hint Wealthy Husband Victim of Hoax Perpetrated By His Wife.

GIVEN AWAY AT BIRTH.

State Attorney Indicates Certificate Fixed to Show Boy Born to Wrong Mother.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (A.P.). — Wilbert F. Crowley, Assistant State's Attorney, said a 30-months-old boy police believed had been kidnapped last night from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Horst, was found to-day at the home of another couple who claimed to be his real parents.

Crowley said the Regans came to his office voluntarily this morning after reading newspaper accounts of the taking of Donald from the Horst residence in an exclusive north-west side section and told him they had the child.

Mr. and Mrs. Regan admitted, Crowley said, they took the child while Mrs. Horst battled, screaming, to prevent it.

The Regans denied, however, making any telephone call purporting to be a demand for $5,000 ransom. Mrs. Horst reported such a call to police shortly after the child was taken.

What Happened.

Circumstances which Crowley said the Regans related and which he said solved the "kidnapping" but left a baby mixup to be investigated were these:

Donald was born to Mrs. Regan on January 6, 1935, and Regan was the father, but they were not then married. The attending physician, Dr. John A. Rose, told the mother he knew a "wealthy man" who wanted a child.

Mrs. Regan agreed to let Dr. Rose arrange for care of the child, but believed it was a temporary arrangement and signed no papers.

The child was taken from Mrs. Regan 15 minutes after its birth at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ewert. Ewert was a chauffeur for Dr. Rose.

Crowley added his investigation indicated the baby then was given into the care of Mr. and Mrs. Horst and a birth certificate was filed purporting to show the Horsts were the natural parents.

Recently Ewert told Mrs. Regan the Horst's child was hers, Crowley said, and Mrs. Regan decided to take it "at the first opportunity."

While Crowley said Mrs. Regan told him the child was born at Ewert's home a birth certificate for Donald Otto Horst asserted the boy was born to Mrs. Horst on January 4, 1935, at another residence, home of friends of the Horsts.

Captain Daniel Gilbert of the State's Attorney's Police, added another baffling phase to the case by declaring that "Horst was the victim of a fraud perpetrated by his wife."

Gilbert said Horst was notified he was a father and found Mrs. Horst in bed with a child and was congratulated by friends.

YOUNG R.A.F. PILOT DROWNS IN CRASH NEAR BELLEVILLE

Second Flier Leaps Clear and Swims Ashore as Plane Plunges 60 Feet.

VICTIM PINNED INSIDE.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 4 (CP)—Flying Officer J. L. Penning, 23, of Wawanese, Man., lost his life and Corporal L. Collins of Belleville was saved when a Royal Canadian Air Force flying boat they were travelling in crashed into the water today.

They were flying east with a tail wind when the motor stalled and Penning tried to swing the plane around into the wind. It lost flying speed and plunged into the water from a height of 60 feet.

Eight of the R.C.A.F. personnel found the plane in shallow water and had to bring it to shore before they could cut the body of Penning loose.

Collins managed to extricate himself as the plane hit the water and swam to shore. He was placed in Belleville Hospital as a precautionary measure.

It was 45 minues before Penning's body was freed from the plane. His body will be sent to Winnipeg for burial. His mother resides there.

Dr. Stevens of the R.C.A.F. attended Collins and ordered his removal to hospital.

An inquest has been ordered by Coroner Dr. W. P. Crow of Trenton.

PIG ON WATER WAGON.

Blackberry Preserves Prove Too Much For Hog.

FINCASTLE, Va., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Willie Huffman's pig is on the water wagon.

Given some blackberry preserves grown potent with age, Mrs. Huffman fed them to the hog at the rate of a quart a day. When her husband took over the feeding he tripled the ration.

The hog passed out, Huffman said, and when it revived, fell twice in attempting to stagger to another wallowing place.

10,000 TEXTILE WORKERS WAIT QUEBEC ACTION

Violence Flares at Two Firms As Skeleton Staffs Attempt to Enter.

BOTH SIDES ADAMANT.

Leaders of Each Claim Preparedness to Hold Out For Months if Necessary.

MONTREAL, Aug. 4—(CP).—In the face of "No Surrender" stands taken by both sides, Government intervention was looked for to-day in the province-wide strike of 10,500 Dominion Textile Company employees.

No word had come from Premier Duplessis or his Labor lieutenants on the Government's immediate intentions, but the Premier's statement that Government services always were ready to aid in arbitration of such cases led to the belief his Labor Department might take a hand in the walkout from nine company plants.

As the strike for a collective Labor agreement, shorter hours and wage increases entered its third day, after a brief show of violence on two of the widely-scattered strike fronts, company President G. Blair Gordon and Albert Cote, President of the striking National Catholic Federation of Textile Workers, each claimed preparedness to hold out for months if necessary.

"I don't care if the plants stay closed until Christmas. We'll never deal with an organization that tolerates intimidation and violence," Gordon declared after strikers smashed windows and attempted to close gates of Cote St. Paul plant in Eastern Montreal.

Able to Hold Out Months

"We are prepared to carry on for months," said Cote, who claimed 90 per cent. of the company's plant workers as members of the French-Canadian Union, an affiliate of the Provincial National Catholic Syndicates.

Violence flared also at Drummondville, one of the three Eastern Township cities where the company's huge plants, employing more than 5,000 men and women, are located. Workers and pickets clashed when a skeleton staff attempted to pass the picket line, and in the brief skirmish David Smith, 24, was battered about the head and required hospital attention. At other Eastern Township plants in Magog and Sherbrooke, at St. Gregoire, near Quebec City, and at Valleyfield, site of the Associated Montreal Cottons, Limited, all was quiet.

The fighting and window smashing, which brought a call for police reserves at the Montreal plant, led Gordon to order a complete close-down of all mills. Since the walkout Monday, small staffs had kept several plants going on part-time production.

JAPS RUTHLESS INVADING CHINA

Tanks Mow Enemy Down Like Wheat—Raid U.S. Compound —Take Writer's Beer.

PEIPING, Aug. 4 (AP)—An American writer and his wife reached Peiping from a Buddhist Temple refuge today with a story of ruthless warfare.

The Americans — Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lamb of Washington — had been isolated in the temple, northwest of Peiping, since the outbreak of Chinese-Japanese hostilities in the area.

"Thank God we're back in town," Lamb said.

"A Japanese motorized brigade came in from Manchoukuo. They had hundreds of tanks. They went through the Chinese troops like a scythe through wheat.

"We saw them bombard Haiyuan, but they didn't stop with that. Their airplanes zoomed over, spitting machine-gun bullets at helpless Chinese there and in nearby villages.

"Saturday, Japanese troops invaded my compound. The American flag was flying over it but they paid no attention to that.

"They took our food and anything they thought might be valuable, including $300 mex. Then they had the nerve to offer me a drink of my own beer."

TORONTO, August 4 — (C.P.). — A $6,750,000 housing program, providing for elimination of $900,000 of dwellings and of construction of 1,800 dwelling units was recommended to-day to Toronto Board of Control by the Advisory Committee on Housing.

The plan recommended "reconstruction with four-family dwellings of those whole blocks in the downtown area in which a large percentage of existing dwellings are obsolete."

ALBERTA PLANNING MORE CONTROL CHARTERED BANKS

Terms of Legislation Kept Secret as House Prepares For Second Day.

SPEECH ADOPTED 2 HOURS.

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

EDMONTON, Aug. 4 (CP)—Legislation aimed at increasing control of chartered banks under a Social Credit financial set-up was reported today to be ready for submission to the Alberta legislature.

Terms of the legislation were kept secret as the House prepared for its second day of the special session called to consider bills which the government believes necessary before Social Credit can be introduced. It was reported legislation was based on a license system and a control board.

The House was away to a flying start yesterday when the speech from the throne was adopted less than two hours after Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen opened the session.

The first of the Social Credit bills was introduced yesterday by Provincial Treasurer Solon Low but it was considered of less importance than the one scheduled for today.

It would amend the Social Credit act passed last winter in one or two vital respects.

Start Of Dividends?

The main provision of the Low bill would empower the Social Credit Board, functioning six months, to adopt proposals for distributing Alberta credit to the people of the province.

This was considered a vital point in the platform of the government, elected two years ago on a pledge to distributed Social Credit dividends to the people of Alberta, $25 a month being mentioned as a start. Dividends would not be in the form of money but in credit forms which would perform the functions of money.

The Low bill would make the board responsible for finding ways and means of distributing the dividends, either through its own agencies or through a Social Credit commission, an organization envisioned in existing legislation but never appointed. The board which was empowered with constituting the commission, could make it temporary or permanent and any member could sit on it without remuneration.

YOUNG RENFREW GIRL DISCOVERED CRUSHED IN FIELD

Disappears While Picking Choke Cherries and Widespread Search Follows.

POLICE INVESTIGATING.

RENFREW, Ont., Aug. 4 (C.P.).—Police pressed investigation to-day into the mystery surrounding the death of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick. Her body, the head badly crushed, was found last night in a field.

Meanwhile Coroner J. J. McCann was to perform a post-mortem on the girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hedderwick of Renfrew. The coroner has ordered an inquest.

A searcher stumbled over the girl's body after she disappeared while out picking choke cherries around Carswell's Hill, one mile south-west of here.

Failing to return after having been out since early morning, the girl became the centre of a widespread search. Boy Scouts and townsfolk joined in the hunt.

When John Comba of Renfrew stumbled over the body while taking a short cut across the field to join in the search, it was lying near a strip of bush bordering the field, 12 feet inside a log fence. Cows were pasturing nearby, and there was evidence they had been near the spot where the girl's body was found.

Demand Abroad on Cattle, Hogs Sends Butcher Prices Soaring

Beef Prices Jump 30 Per Cent in Last Three Months and Will Go Higher.

BACON UP 7-8 CENTS.

TORONTO, Aug. 4.—(CP).—Within the last three months beef prices have advanced 30 per cent to consumers buying from retail butcher shops and prices will go higher almost at once, butchers predicted here to-day.

Round and sirloin steak has advanced eight cents a pound in stores with round steak 37 cents a pound and sirloin about 37 cents. Roast beef has advanced a similar amount. Bacon is up seven to eight cents a pound, with good mildcure bacon selling at 45 to 55 cents a pound. Cooked ham advanced five to eight cent sa pound, register-ing the highest jump in cooked meats. Swift Canadian Company Limited to-day said the scarcity here is due to the great demand from United States for cattle and hogs and to another sharp advance in England for Wiltshires, both live and dressed.

Believe Man's Need of Vitamin D Started Present Kissing Habit

South African Also Claims Theory Cats Wash Themselves is Wrong—After Oil.

"FLEAS GOOD FOR DOGS."

WINDHOEK, Southwest Africa, August 4.—(CP).—A theory kissing arose originally through man's need of "Vitamin D" was put forward in a paper read here by Clyde Ferguson of Aeronautical Department.

After explaining how the substance formed on the bodies of primitive people, he said:

"Primitive humans obtained their supply of Vitmain D by nibbling at themselves and one another, and the last evidence of this forgotten instinct may lie in the practice of kissing.

The belief that cats wash themselves is wrong, according to Ferguson. Cats lick themselves to absorb the oil, a form of food, distributed on their hair by natural processes.

Ferguson also said that fleas serve a valuable purpose in animal life. In a natural state, he said, a dog has fleas and in attacking fleas the dog would automatically absorb the natural oil produced on the hair by glands at its roots.

"What hours will they work?"

"From sun-up to sun-down," the grower replied.

He didn't find any young men to accept the jobs.

First Hour's Fight Sees Vanderbilt Lead Quarter Mile

Fourteen Mile Breeze Gives Yachts Fine Chance to Show Performance.

THIRD CONTEST.

Vanderbilt Sets New Course Record on 15 Mile Windward Leg.

By Tom Horgan
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

ABOARD COAST GUARD CUTTER ARGO, OFF NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Apparently headed for her third straight triumph in defence of the America's Cup, Harold S. Vanderbilt brought his Ranger around the outer mark at 2:43:47 p.m. E.D.T. today, with a three-quarter mile lead over the British challenger T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II, at the half-way point.

Ranger, negotiating the distance in two hours three minutes, 47 seconds, set a new record for a 15-mile windward leg. Her time was 38 seconds better than that established by Rainbow, also skippered by Vanderbilt, in the first race of her 1934 series against Sopwith's Endeavour I.

Endeavour II rounded the mark, set about eight miles southeast of Block Island, at 2:47:39, four minutes 12 seconds behind the American defender.

Aboard coast guard cutter Argo, off Newport, R.I., Aug. 4 (AP).—Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger seeking her third straight triumph in defense of the America's Cup, had run a two-length lead at the start to a margin of over a quarter of a mile at 1:40 p.m. EDT today an hour after the start of her contest with the British challenger, T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II.

During the first 15-mile beat of a 30-mile course to windward and return, the yachts were being pushed along by a breeze that had freshened to a volicity of more than 14 miles an hour.

Within five miles of the turning mark, set at a point about eight miles south-east of Block Island, Ranger's lead remained undiminished.

Perfect Timing

As the rival yachts set off on their 15-mile beat to windward into a southwest wind, both were on the starboard tack. Vanderbilt had timed the start to a split second and crossed the line promptly at 12.40 p.m. E.D.T. for the finest getaway of the series.

Each yacht was wearing double head-rig, with staysails and quadrilaterals. Sopwith gained the weather berth.

Endeavour went over on the port tack four minutes after the start a clear admission by Sopwith that he was trailing and had no hope of passing to the weather side of the defender. Ranger tacked immediately to keep the challenger covered.

The promise of a brisk breeze—the wind had been blowing at a rate of about 12 miles an hour before the start—was unfilled as it moderated to about 10 miles.

The outer mark was set at a point about eight miles southeast of Block Island.

MOSQUITOES yesterday spoiled outdoor life for tired Winnipegers, and last night hounded night workers in an unusual invasion of the city. Dr. H. M. POPE SAID READY FOR RECOGNITION OF REBEL REGIME

Vatican Announcement of Franco's Representative to Holy See Imminent.

OBSERVERS SKEPTICAL.

VATICAN CITY, Aug 4 (AP).—A semi-official Vatican statement said today the Holy See is maintaining relations with the Spanish insurgent government but no steps have been take toward formal diplomatic recognition.

The Vatican secretariat describe as "inexact" dispatches from Salamanca, seat of the insurgent regime, reporting the insurgents and the Vatican formally were exchanging diplomatic representatives.

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Pope Pius was reported today ready to extend formal diplomatic recognition to the insurgent regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Vatican sources said an official announcement of the new status of Pablo de Churruca, Marquis of Aycinena, as the representative of the insurgent government to the Holy See was imminent.

Aycinena has been negotiating with the Pontiff for more than a month to obtain formal recognition of his government and the transition of his position from "semi-official representative" to that of a full-fledged envoy.

Spanish circles have said that no recognition could be expected as long as the outcome of the civil war was in doubt. Although the Vatical is sympathetic to the insurgent cause, they said, it does not want to turn its backs on Catholics who support the Spanish government.

Until now the Vatican has extended semi-recognition to both the insurgents and the Valencia government.

Dispatches from Salamanca, seat of the Franco regime, reported the insurgents and the Vatican were exchanging diplomatic representatives. Aycinena was reported to have been given full diplomatic rank, with the title of Charge d'Affaires, at Vatican City.

The Salamanca reports said Monsignor Eldebrando Antoniutti, the apostolic delegate to Albania, had been designated by the Holy See as envoy to the insurgent government.

Monsignor Antoniutti, who has been frequently mentioned as possible apostolic nuncio to Spain, was in Rome recently for conferences with church officials. It was said he would assume the duties now discharged by Cardinal Goma Y Tomas, whom the Vatican lists as "provisional semi-official representatives" to the Salamanca regime.

Orillia Magistrate Refuses Child Witnesses' Statement For Girl Victim.

ORILLIA, Ont., Aug. 4—(CP). — An 11-year-old boy was acquitted in Juvenile Court to-day of rubbing poison ivy over the face and limbs of Dolly Fraser, 10. Only witnesses to testify were four 5-year-old tots.

Magistrate C. F. Eick said the children's statements could not be accepted. Mrs. Fraser, mother of the victim, said whoever did the "trick" must have known Dolly was susceptible to poison ivy.

"Dolly and the boy have never gotten along well together," she said.

The accused boy said he saw another boy use the poison ivy.

STARVED DOG PACK HAUNTS LIVESTOCK IN ROUGE VALLEY

One Rancher Reported to Have Lost $7,000 in Animals During Raids.

CHASE PONIES, COWS, ETC.

ROUGE VALLEY, Aug. 4.—Ganging together like wolves, starved dogs are roaming the wooded valleys and pasture gulches here, running down cattle and horses and destroying them for food. At night when the moon hangs high the call of dogs can be heard throughout the valley summoning other dogs to gang up.

Led by a gaunt dog of many breeds, resembling a big grey hound, the packs, numbering as many as seven, have grown so daring that even by daylight they carry on their raiding expeditions. On one occasion, states George N. Wilson, manager of the Twyn Waters ranch, owned by C. R. Purcell of Toronto, a pack was rounding up a herd of ponies in the afternoon and had pursued them down into the ranch buildings.

Around and around one of the stables five dogs tore after one of the colts they had separated from the herd, until, weary of this tactic, the gang of five divided into two gangs, one of two dogs, the other of three. Two of them crouched by the edge of the stable while the other three continued to chase the colt around. Just as they were about to spring at the frantic colt, Mr. Wilson, who had been a witness to it all, bore down upon them with a pitchfork and scared them away.

The dogs, states Mr Wilson, are neglected or disowned by farmers in the vicinity, and, driven by hunger, band themselves in packs to pillage the herds of cattle, sheep, horses and pigs that pasture in the valleys. One rancher states Mr. Wilson, lost over $7,000 in stock.

The other day, another neighbor found that dogs had run down a cow and destroyed it.

While Mr. Purcell reports that he lost a flock of Giant Bronze turkeys and Khargi ducks last year, E. Styles, former manager of the Purcell ranch, states that the marauders were not half so active last year as this year.

To combat the menacing raiders, residents of the Rouge Valley are keeping their firearms handy, bringing the stock into corrals at night, and generally keeping a watchful eye. The Provincial Police, county police, and Humane Society are expected to investigate the situation, states Mr. Wilson.

LOYALISTS BREAK, WESTERN FRONT

HENHAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Aug. 4 (AP) — Insurgent infantry and artillery were reported today to have forced the point of Gen. Jose Miaja's salient back out of Villanueva de la Canada on Madrid's western front.

Although the official Insurgent communique gave no details on the blow against Madrid's offensive, government sources said Miaja's troops "abandoned" the war torn village, about 15 miles west of the beleaguered metropolis, as a strategic move to consolidate positions northeast of the town. The government advices were considered an admission of another severe setback in the month-old attempt to spear southward into the Insurgent rearguard on the capital's western front.

Unofficial Insurgent advices reaching the French border said the forces which swept into Villanueva de la Canada yesterday found large stocks of munitions and explosives in a house which formerly was field headquarters of Miaja's army. Seven officers lay dead among the ruins. This was one of two major reverses suffered by the government on fronts more than 100 miles apart.

HOPES FADE OUT OF ANY SURVIVING AMPHIBIAN CRASH

Submarines Find Life Preservers Still in Case and Uninflated Rubber Raft.

BELIEVE TOLL 14.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Aug. 4 (A.P.). — Three United States destroyers furrowed a corner of Mosquito Gulf to-day in a virtually hopeless search for the bodies of 14 persons believed lost in probably the greatest plane disaster on water.

The destroyers kept their vigil while two submarines returned to their base with evidences of the disaster which befell a Sikorsky amphibian of the Pan-American-Grace Airways as it neared the end of a regular flight from Guayaquil, Ecuador.

The submarines S-43 and S-46 reported they had gathered such mute reminders of sudden death as an uninflated rubber life raft, two waterlogged bundles of mail, a container of ice-cream, part of a wing, an engine casing and two life preservers still in their case.

The floating debris was picked up yesterday. The last heard of the large 15-passenger plane was Pilot Stephen Dunn's radio report about midnight on Monday he was circling down through "soupy" skies to find better visibility.

When the search for the missing airliner was at its height yesterday a message was flashed from one of the submarines:

"Ship badly damaged, with no signs of survivors."

Bits of wreckage were picked up 20 miles west of Cristobal, destination of the amphibian, and junction point for connection with the regular Pan-American Clipper service along the eastern coasts of the Americas.

Stepped On Lions Paw, Killed

So often had the Rev. Harold Davidson, former rector of Stiffkey, unfrocked in 1932 on immorality charges, performed this stunt with impunity that he grew careless. Recently he stepped on the lion's paw during a show at Skegness, Eng., and was badly mauled by the indignant animal, later dying from the wounds. A 16-year-old girl assistant, Renee Summers, courageously entered the cage, beat back the lion and rescued the ex-clergyman, badly clawed on the neck, back and shoulders.

MANY ACCIDENTS IN LINDSAY AREA

Peterborough Woman Driver Forced Into Ditch—Lakeview Man Charged.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Aug. 4. — A number of automobile accidents marred the holiday observance in this district. On Sunday morning, in the village of Cameron three cars figured in an accident. Josef May of Toronto, while driving north, attemped to pass a car driven by Jessie McFee of the same city, who had as a passenger Miss Eleanor Blakeman of Toronto. May noticed another car approaching from the opposite direction, and he was forced to turn off the road on to the sidewalk. The approaching car, driven by E. W. Terry of Toronto, crashed into the McFee car. The cars were badly damaged, but no one was injured.

On the Oakwood Road, three miles west of Lindsay, a car driven by Benjamin Brown of Lakeview sideswiped a car driven by Violet Teneycke, Gladstone Avenue, Peterborough. Mrs. Teneycke was forced into the ditch on the north side of the road by the impact. Highway Traffic Officer Massingham investigated the accident and a charge of reckless driving will be laid against Brown.

Saturday night an accident occurred near Sunderland when two residents of Windsor were injured. A resident of Belleville will face two charges as a result of the mishap—having faulty lighting equipment and parking on the highway. The names of the party could not be ascertained.

James Gorrill of Oakwood was injured on the week-end in what might have proved a fatal accident. He was adjusting the bridle on the horses while drawing grain, when the animals bolted. He was entangled in the harness and dragged about thirty yards. Fortunately, however, the tug broke. When help arrived Mr. Gorrill was found in an unconscious condition. He was badly bruised about the body.

Three inmates of the Orillia Mental Hospital made a get-away from that institution on the week-end. The young men were arrested in Lindsay by Constable Hodgson. They were taken back to Orillia on Monday by two officers from the institution. One of the young men had been in the institution eight years and informed the police that he would break away again if the opportunity presented itself.

A resident of Toronto named Charles Hopkins was arrested by the local police, charged with the theft of a truck used in construction work on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway. The truck was taken from a field in town late on Saturday night, and has not been found. The accused told the police that he ditched the truck near Bewdley. He will come before Magistrate O. A. Langley of Peterborough on Monday.

DOCTOR ACCUSED ATTACKING GIRL

Adjustable Operating Table May Decide Fate of Accused.

BELAIR, Md., Aug. 4.—(AP)—An adjustable operating table loomed to-day as a major item in the fight of Dr. Carmen Greenhut, facing charges of criminally attacking a 13-year-old Baltimore county school girl.

Dr. Greenhut, 39-year-old naturalized native of Austria, went on trial for his life in Circuit Court here yesterday. He is accused of having attacked the girl last May 19 after she had come to his office as a patient.

A crowded court room—more than half the crowd composed of women heard the girl testify yesterday that she had been attacked twice in the physician's Dundalk, Md., office.

During questioning by defence counsel, the operating table was introduced as an exhibit. The alleged attack occurred on the table, the State contends.

J. P. H. Gorsuch, Jr., of defence counsel, said they would introduce evidence tending to show an attack would have been impossible while the girl was being treated on the table.

700,000 Railroaders Ready To Strike

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—(AP)—Announcement more than 700,000 U. S. railroad employees are ready to go on strike gave new impetus to-day to peace-making efforts of the National Mediation Board.

George M. Harrison, spokesman for 14 non-operating unions (most shopmen and clerks), said yesterday 88 per cent of the 800,000 members had voted to walk out unless carriers meet their pay increase demands.

The workers have asked an increase of 20 cents an hour.

Otto S. Beyer, member of the Mediation Board, resumed his work of trying to find a common meeting ground.

GOVERNOR UNVEILS LIFE-SIZE STATUE OF FAMOUS COW

Hundreds of Cattlemen Over Canada and U.S. Do Honor to Snow Countess.

RECORD NEVER EQUALLED.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 4 (CP)—Springbank Snow Countess looked down today from the place where good cows go and saw herself immortalized in lasting metal.

In a little plot of lush, green grass, like the meadows where the Countess once chewed a contemplative cud and set up a world record for production, stood the statue of Oxford County's famous cow. The plot is close by a highway where motorists may stop and wonder.

Ontario's Lieutenant Governor, Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, came here today to unveil the life-sized statue and from many Ontario and eastern United States points came hundreds of cattlemen to do honor to Snow Countess.

On a granite base, the metal Snow Countess stands to mark permanently the record of 9,062 pounds of butterfat from 207,050 pounds of milk as a lifetime production. No other cow of any breed ever produced that much on official or semi-official test.

Nearly 18 Years Old

Bred and owned by T. R. Dent, whose farm is east of here, Snow Countess died last August after giving birth to a calf and the Holstein-Freisian Association of Canada decided to immortalize her at a cost of around $4,000. She was nearly 18 years old when she died, three years after achieving the world mark for production with 7,547 pounds.

This shattered the previous record of a Jersey, Sophie 19th of the Hood Farm in New Jersey. Then, the Countess went on to greater things. On completion of her 10th lactation in December, 1936, she hung up the present world mark for other cows to shoot at.

The Countess also brought some famous children into the world. A daughter on the famous Lauxmont Farms in Wrightville, Pa., set a four-year record which still stands. A son is herd sire on the Manitoba farm of Hon. T. A. Crerar, Dominion Minister of Mines.

A second son remained on the old Dent homestead, while a third went to Japan two years ago as herd sire on the farms of Baron Wasaki. With her daughters, Snow Countess set 22 records of performance.

Haiti's 1937 coffee crop is expected to weigh 68,000,000 pounds.

ITALIAN ESCAPES WOODSTOCK JAIL

Scales Wall and Vanishes While Waiting Deportation After Serving Term.

WOODSTOCK, August 4 (CP).—John Balcastro, 22-year-old Italian in the Oxford County Jail here awaiting deportation, escaped early yesterday by climbing the jail wall.

Late in the afternoon he was still at large with no clues as to his whereabouts.

Balcastro, sentenced to four months on an assault charge early in the year, had completed his sentence, and since May 14 had been held awaiting deportation to Italy. He was in charge of the jail kitchen in the interval and took a table from the kitchen, placed it against the inside of the jail yard wall, mounted a step ladder on top of it, climbed up, scrambled to the top of the wall, and dropped over.

A minute or so later a woman residing nearby telephoned the jail that she had seen a prisoner drop from the jail wall and go north along Graham Street. The alarm was given and a search made, but the man appeared to have made good time as nothing was to be seen of him.

As no cars have been reported stolen in the city to-day, it is assumed that he got a lift or may still be in hiding nearby.

Balcastro is described as 5 feet 5 inches in height, 140 pounds, with dark hair and dark complexion. At the time of his escape he was wearing a blue denim jail suit.

Indian Tribe Refuses $3.00 a Day to Perform Tribal Dances

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 4 (A.P.). — Allegheny County offered a tribe of Salamanca, N.Y., Indians $3 a day each to perform tribal dances at the Annual Fair. They refused.

He explained the braves were earning $4 a day from the Works Progress Administration. The county hired 40 at the $4 rate.

ARMY WORM PLAGUE.

Worst Plague Since 1920 Threatens Nova Scotia Farms

HALIFAX, Aug. 4—(CP).—Nova Scotian farmers to-day prepared united efforts to combat the army worm, as the worst plague since 1920 seriously affected crops in the Annapolis Valley and Pictou, Antigonish, Colchester, Lunenburg, and Hants Counties.

In a statement issued, Agriculture Minister McDonald said all grain crops had suffered some loss already. He urged the farmers to use poison bait, which in some places had proved 90 to 95 per cent. effective.

Native Son Playing at Capitol Theatre

Peterborough should have an especial interest in the picture which opens today at the Capitol Theatre, in "Captains Courageous", a dramatisation of one of Rudyard Kipling's famous stories. It has in the cast a native son, Oscar O'Shea, in a part that, while not large, is very important. He is the Irish sailing captain who battles mightily for victory with another fishing-fleet master, Lionel Barrymore, and he gives a splendid performance. It is a memorable picture throughout, with the honors pretty evenly divided between such famous players as Barrymore, Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew, and Oscar O'Shea a close second.

Mr. O'Shea was born in Peterborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James O'Shea, who kept hotel for many years at the corner of Brock and George streets, now the site of the Rogow Ladies' Wear Store. He had an unquenchable urge for the theatre and went away first with the old Marks Brothers' stock company. For many years, he played in Canada and the United States, and visited Peterborough on several occasions in the major role of the priest in the stage hit, "The Rosary".

By an odd coincidence, the name of Marks, in another spelling, had its influence on his entry to the moving-picture world, for it was the cinema scout, Zeppo Marx (one of the famous Marx family), who saw him in a stock company in Chicago, playing in "Broken Dishes", and picked him for the role he takes with such honors in "Captains Courageous".

Hint for Sun-Bathers

MONTREAL, August 4. — Burned backs and itchy legs and arms have come to be accepted as so much a part of summer holiday experiences that an offer of relief is made with some timidity lest the offerer be accused of trying to spoil the holiday. At the risk of such an accusation the latest wrinkle, a simple relief for sunburn, is passed on.

For a stinging sunburn dip cloths in cold, strong, black tea and lay them easily over the burned area. Keep the cloths damp with tea all the time they are applied.

This simple treatment helps the skin to heal more quickly. To give the sunburn more chance to heal substitute cold black tea for soap and water when washing. Skins that freckle readily will benefit by the tea treatment if it is used before the sun has started to get in its deadly work and carried on in the case of over-exposure as outlined above.

Ten Swimming Commandments

1. Avoid sunburn. Don't try to acquire a coat of tan in one visit to the beach. Take your sun gradually—only a few minutes the first day, increasing each visit thereafter. Don't take a sunbath immediately after eating.

2. Don't overestimate your ability in the water. Even if you could swim a mile last summer don't start the season swimming a long distance alone. To test your endurance swim parallel to shore, where help can reach you quickly in an emergency.

3. Don't duck people. It is dangerous. If you must show off, don't do it at the expense of others.

4. Don't try to assist a lifeguard in a difficult rescue. You may become a victim and add to his troubles. He is trained to safeguard the lives of swimmers, otherwise he would not have been picked for his job.

5. Don't use inflated apparatus as an aid in swimming. The device may spring a leak and a poor swimmer may become separated from his "raft" at a time when he is in deep water and unable to reach the shore.

6. Don't dive unless you know the depth of the water and the character of the bottom. They may be hidden rocks or stubs of piling beneath the surface.

7. Don't throw sand at your companions. Sand in the eyes or in the lunch is not pleasant. Similarly don't play ball in crowded spots. Leave your location clean—free of papers and leftovers.

8. Don't go swimming immediately after a meal. Wait at least one hour and a half. A paralyzing cramp may result in serious trouble.

9. Don't get excited in emergencies. If you suddenly find yourself in the midst of seaweed and tentacles of kelp, don't lose your head.

10. Don't swim in water occupied by motorboats or sailboats. A speeding motorboat has a churning propeller, the sharp blades of which can make mincemeat of the best of swimmers.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

Work, every hour, paid or unpaid, see only that thou work and thou canst not escape thy reward. Whether thy work be fine or coarse, planting corn, or writing epics, so only it be honest work, done to thine own approbation, it shall earn a reward to the senses as well as to the thought. The reward of a thing well-done, is to have done it.

—Emerson.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes I hear a person complain of having nothing to do, and I look at them in surprise, for the days are never long enough for all the things I have to do, or want to do. When you suggest this or that to take up their empty hours, they say "Oh I am not fitted for that, or I could never do the other."

It does not occur to them that they could fit themselves for many things if they would but try. What they really mean is that they do not want anything different, o rthat they want someone else to fill the hours for them. I wonder they could live such a dreary life.

I remember telling you once before how disgusted we were to hear our mother tell us that happiness lay in a good day's work well done. Work, to us, was something you hurried to get finished, so that you could have more time to play, but to get pleasure out of it, how could anyone expect that?

But it is true. How anyone could spend long days putting in time when there are so many interesting things to do is simply beyond me. No wonder they are bored and weary, and life seems to have no savour to it.

Then too, when we all know many men and women who are simply worked to death, and who would welcome some of this time these others are squandering just to get some needed rest, it does seem ironical to hear another complain of having nothing to do.

Everyone's work is important to everyone else. What we do or leave undone may not seem to matter so much, but if we are industrious, we encourage others to be that way too. And to get up in the morning knowing there is a good day's work ahead of us, something we like doing, is a pleasure indeed.

Even after a holiday, altho' they may grumble about it, people are glad to get back to their work again, glad to mingle with other workers, of the everyday things that make up our lives, and of the sure satisfaction in work.

Once, when I was grieving sorely, I grudged the hours that must be spent in labor, for I wanted to give all my time to this sorrow, and yet the work I had to do saved my sanity, as it has done with thousands of others.

I like to have something else to do besides the ordinary everyday routine, like working with wools in bright colors, and this to me is not work but pleasure. Even with the everyday things, I find doing them a different way, or doing first things last and vice versa, gives a tang to it which is lacking when we keep to the old routine.

You cannot play all the time, no! ther can we work all the time, but there is more fun to play when we have worked first, or we feel as if we had earned it I think there is nothing that will make us degenerate sooner than not enough work, and degenerate does not only mean going to drink, or seeking fun in a wrong way.

But too many empty hours makes us think too much of ourselves, our aches and pains, our sorrows, our lack of friends, or what they do or don't do. It tends to depress us, breaks down the fibres of our will, doubting ourselves and everyone else. So here's to work the thing none of us can truly do without, and as some of mine is now waiting to be done, I will go to it.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA

A Tough Time To Purchase Clothes

August is a month of vacations and play, but it also is a time when thoughts turn to autumn and winter. And it has come to be the season when the woman who plans to buy a new winter coat, looks interestedly at the advertisements and the fashion magazines to see what the stylists are offering in that line.

It is a tough job being a model on hot August days, and trying to "look pleasant, please", attitude in fur and fur-trimmed coats, and it is even hard to be the purchaser and try on coat after coat, until you find the right one, although when you happen to be the latter, you have the satisfaction of knowing that you are not suffering in vain; that next winter you are going to be recompensed by feeling very smart in your new coat.

However that may be, the August sales of fur coats and capes and those of wool with fur trimmings, have become established institutions.

It's A Big Attraction

There were some five hundred people gathered around the liftlock on Civic Holiday evening when the steamer Stoney Lake came down the canal from her annual regatta trip. The majority of them were visitors who were anxious to see the famous structure operate, and the passing of the steamer gave the desired opportunity. The hydraulic lock, the largest in the world, still remains one of Peterborough's greatest attractions for visitors and it is unfortunate that so many of them have had to be satisfied with viewing the engineering marvel standing idle and have had to go away without a chance to see the thing actually work.

It seems to the Examiner that the city council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Kawartha Lakes Tourist Association should endeavor to hit upon some plan of having the lock operate more often so that a larger proportion of our summer visitors might be able to see the mechanism in action, and then try to sell the idea to the Federal government. There is no danger of over-working the machinery and it would certainly add to the value of the liftlock as an attraction for tourists if assurance could be given that frequent opportunities of viewing the machinery actually lifting or lowering boats would be provided. The liftlock cost the people of this country a lot of money to build and if its commercial uses do not justify that expenditure it would certainly seem good business to investigate what can be done with the structure as a tourist-promotion agency.

When Veterans Fall Out

It is unfortunate for the sake of harmony and good will among the men who fought in the Great War that the Imperial War Veterans should feel it necessary to adopt such a step as to decide to boycott all functions at which Hon. G. C. Power, Federal Minister of Pensions is expected. This action is to be taken because of a remark made by the Minister during a debate in the House during the last session which the Imperial ex-servicemen have chosen to view as a slur upon the British army.

The whole thing is regrettable.

It may well be that the offending remark would have a different appearance if it were not taken out of the context. Certainly most Canadians will have difficulty in believing that Major Power, himself a Canadian veteran of the great war would say anything that he intended to reflect upon the British soldiers. The Minister has always been looked upon not only as a good Canadian but a good Britisher and he does not fit into the role of a detractor of the "old Contemptibles" that the Imperial Veterans Association would pin on him. Probably a statement from Major Power himself as to what he really meant might clear the air. At all events there should be no dissension among comrades of the war, because surely if there was one thing that men learned in that terrible conflict it was the value of co-ordinated effort and sticking together, no matter what happened. It is to be hoped this incident will be cleaned up without it being necessary for the Imperial ex-servicemen to implement the resolution they have just passed.

Some Municipal Bluffing

In the method it has chosen to deal with objectionable conditions that had arisen in connection with swimming at the foot of Dublin Street the city council has taken what many citizens will feel to be the wrong turn. For forty years or more this spot has been a favorite with bathers, largely because it is conveniently located and there is a strong feeling of resentment at the notice which has been erected informing the public that swimming at this point is forbidden by order of the city council.

The action was taken at the request of a few residents in the neighborhood. Undoubtedly they have had reason to complain of the conduct of some of the visitors to the old swimming place. But surely these abuses could have been eliminated without going to the length of penalizing decent citizens who went to bathe in the river and have not the time to go to Inverlea Park. There was no need of closing the "Jacks" to well-behaved bathers.

And as a matter of fact there is reason to doubt the efficacy of the council's action should any citizen defy the order and continue to swim at this point. The police have been ordering bathers out of the water but if they refused to obey the order, we fancy the officer would be in a quandry as to what to do or how to charge the swimmer who declined to comply. There is no bylaw covering the matter, no penalty prescribed for failure to obey the council's ruling, nothing but a resolution which sounds all right but would not stand up if some swimmer elected to take to the water at the foot of Dublin Street and asked the authorities what they proposed to do about it. Our guess is that they would be unable to do anything about it for the notice posted up and the action of the police are both parts of what is merely a little bluffing on the part of the powers-that-be.

Shutting Out The Public

Oldtimers at Stoney Lake undoubtedly read with a good deal of interest the letter from James Acton in which that gentleman referred to the possibility of the whole of Juniper Island falling into private hands with the resultant disappearance of the community centre that has long been a rallying point for the summer colony. It would be a matter of deep regret were such a development to occur and yet the history of Stoney Lake shows that it is not beyond the bonds of probablity.

One by one places that were available to the public and were popular with picnic parties have drifted into private ownership. Sandy Point where camps were pitched and picnics were staged for many years is now entirely privately owned and the site of a number of summer cottages. Gilchrist Bay, once the property of the Ontario Government and one of the choicest picnic grounds on the whole Kawartha chain has also passed into other hands and while the public is not shut out entirely the conditions are different from the days when Sunday Schools used to hold their annual picnic there and steamers made their way down to the foot of the bay with their crowds of pleasure seekers. Many folk feel that the Government should have reserved such a beauty spot for the use of the public, and that other places capable of community use should have been similarly dealt with. The present indications are that before another decade has gone, all the favorite picnic spots in the whole district will be barred to the public and that is a consummation most devoutly to be avoided if at all possible.

A Well-Merited Success

The success of the motorcycle races on Civic Holiday was doubly gratifying because it put the stamp of public approval on the efforts of the Peterborough Motorcycle Club to promote power cycling in this district and also because it provided a goodly sum which the Lions will use in the laudable work of financing a local boys' band.

The Motorcycle club seems to be receiving proper leadership from an executive of live young officers and the triumph of their recent effort was well earned.

The Examiner is glad to extend this friendly pat on the back to a worthwhile organization because we have always had a kindly feeling toward the club since it first published a list of its aims and objects and we read that among the the things that would be sought would be to teach effectively the principles of safe cycling among the members of the club and the elimination of unnecessary and disturbing noise in the operation of the machines. These objects have been reasonably well attained by the organization. The members seem to have realized that the place for fast driving is on the race track and not on the highway and the majority of them have not been grievous offenders in the matter of producing noise. So long as it keeps it's eyes firmly fixed upon those two important details we have an idea that the club can be sure of the support of the public and that the splendid patronage accorded this week's event will be repeated on future occasions.

Cheese And A Bucksaw

We learn that Arvi Pentilla, 32, is the bucksaw champion of Algoma as the result of winning a contest at Sault Ste. Marie. He cut a stick of what is referred to as rock maple seven by nine inches three times in one minute and 32 seconds. Whether trees grow that way in Algoma we do not know, but it is possible the odd dimension principle has become active there.

We read too that Mr. Arvi Pentilla "ripped through the dry piece of hardwood as though it were cheese." We confess to never having seen a person cutting cheese with a bucksaw and thus we are not competent to say how the operation should be timed. But having some slight knowledge of having cut hard wood sticks with a bucksaw we consider the description somewhat of an exaggeration. We doubt whether Jim Curran of the Sault Star would admit any man in Algoma could go through a piece of dry maple like a piece of cheese.

On the Tenth Concession the fuel taken from the wood lot was nearly all beach and maple, and trees which were sacrificed in the interests of family fuel were generally those which were showing signs of old age or which in whole or part had gone down before a storm. When it came to applying the bucksaw to this stuff (location was directly behind the summer kitchen) grandfather was rather stern. He believed the cuts should be made exactly according to a rule which he had whittled with notches to show the length of firewood. If there were a nice big knot which came just in the centre of the place where the rule said the cut should be made, it was not possible to shift along a little farther and avoid that miserable spot. Grandfather's rule was not to be tampered with. That knot had to be severed and we are certain to the point of obstinate conviction that this Pentilla individual from Algoma could never have gone through that beach knot as though it were a piece of cheese. And that goes for the old-time bucksaw blade or for the Swede or drag-tooth.

When these bucksaw men get to work it may look as though they are making great speed, and they are. They work with an exuberance which indicates something like joyful participation in something they positively like. There never were any bucksaw competitions on the Tenth, and it is well there were not. It might have become a habit then to continually increase speed to the point where more wood could have been cut than was needed. It may be the admission of the slothful individual, but never could we find joy in a bucksaw. It was a stern duty to be performed. Nothing else. But a bucksaw contest, with the judges, the crowds, the prize in the offing and all such things is quite another matter. But just once more—no man in Algoma or elsewhere can "rip through a dry piece of hardwood as though it were cheese."

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Globe and Mail is nothing if not seasonal. Hence its informative article —which is not to be sneezed at—on hay-fever.

Jimmy Mattern has been given a permit to fly over the North Pole early next year. So far as we are concerned he will have no competition.

Hon. Geo. S. Henry says the C. I. O. issue is a red herring. Most people suspected there was something red about it but the herring part is new.

Cascade Idaho has registered a temperature 7 degrees below the freezing point. Now let us see just where did we put that snow shovel?

With the regatta season just being wound up it may be timely to point out that Peterborough's fall fair is just a matter of a couple of weeks away.

Boys who swam in their birthday suits in Hamilton were fined $10 each. They could have saved that money with a very little material, judging from the extent of the average bathing suits.

Taxi cabs are driving the Japanese rickshaws out of business. They probably contribute a good deal more mileage but the old—fashioned vehicles hardly ever got into any tire trouble.

The Oshawa fair has dropped the idea of holding a beauty contest for men. The management has no doubt been able to see the point that the winner of such a competition would be a life-time loser.

The headlines about American tourists being robbed almost caused an editorial on the folly of over-charging visitors before we discovered the story told about an actual hold-up.

The Canadian florists have been holding a convention in Montreal and have probably arrived at the conclusion that their business is not exactly a bed of roses.

One hundred striking W.P.A. workers have taken possession of the office of Governor Murphy of Michigan. Regard for law and order seems to fly out of the window very easily these days.

The Irish may not run New York but at least they seem able to stay at the top of the heap in Tammany Hall where the new leader is a gentleman by the name of Christopher Sullivan.

A Nova Scotia woman went to a hospital to see a sick friend and wound up by falling down stairs and breaking an arm. At least she saved ambulance charges.

According to an American business girl's organization the ideal secretary does not chew gum. We understand that a minority report will be brought in by the gum manufacturers.

We noticed where a bull named Silver Creek Forward Pansy's Forward Ruler was sold at a auction of Jerseys the other day and before we got half through the name we knew that a fancy price was paid for the animal.

Premiers Duplessis and Hepburn are to get together to discuss the administration of natural resources. If that means more government interference with business there will be a great many folk who will hope that the conference is a failure.

CONSIDERATION

They've had their way—their yea and nay,
"To mark a book or not."
Despite poetic eloquence
It matters not a jot,
If you would have your pages white,
A book look just like new,
Then that's the way, dear reader,
I would give a book to you.

But if we have a "kindred mind"
That seeks to find true gold,
And you would hate to miss the trail,
Then I would make so bold
To underline a passage there
That waked me from a dream,
Knowing that as you read it o'er
You, too, would catch the gleam!

CENTRAL City, Colorado which in the boom days had a population of 50,000 and now is home to only 372 people has some of its glory restored every summer when the days when Bernhardt, Modjeska and Booth trod the boards of the mining town's Grand Opera house are revived. This summer the stage production selected to be presented in Central City is the Jed Harris' production of "A Doll's House" and after the performance the festival crowds which include sightseers, miners social lights and Broadway celebrities gather at the Teller House, the famous old hostelry which opens its doors for the occasion each year.

The obvious case of mistaken identity won for the woman a pardon from Governor Paul V. McNutt.

German engineers have found no comfort in the news that United States Senate committee had approved of a bill to permit the export of helium for commercial Zeppelins. The reason is that the Hindenburg's sister ship the LZ 130, almost finished after two years' work was designed for hydrogen inflation. A change to helium which has inferior lifting powers would require reworking of the whole design to save weight and enlarge the gas capacity. Otherwise there could be no practical payload.

For 25 years the people of this continent have been growing carton —concious. Barrels, crates, burlap bags and wired wooden boxes have gradually yielded place to the paper container. Fastidious consumers nowadays want even their whiskey bottles and cold cream jars boxed. Since 1926 the demand for paper cartons has successively brought overproduction and a vicious price-cutting to the domestic container industry. The depression aggravated this condition but when the nadir passed in 1933 sales mounted rapidly again and last year the largest unit in the industry in the United States reported sales of $22,525,000 almost twice the 1932 total.

The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports that the United States probably will be the world's largest exporter of wheat in 1937-38. At the same time, the report intimates domestic prices are likely to average higher than in 1936-37 if the present prospects materialize. This would make Uncle Sam's 1937 wheat crop the most valuable since 1927.

MR. HENRY AND SEPARATE SCHOOLS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The Hon. W. F. Henry has raised once more the cry of Separate Schools, what his object is it is difficult to say, when Mr. Hepburn adopted Mr. Rowe's amendment that apparently ended the uproar about Separate Schools but it seems the non-religious national school idea has taken hold of the Conservatives with the object of abolishing Separate Schools about which many Catholics are outspokenly indifferent. In fact it is this indifference that has I think prompted Conservatives to adopt this new policy and no doubt Mr. Rowe's idea or if not his idea at any rate that of many people in each constituency is to send members who will compel Mr. Rowe to adopt this non-religious and non-Separate School policy for the purpose of adopting the new modernist policy of ignoring religion altogether.

MR. MURRAY'S VIEWS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I would consider it a favour if granted space in the "Voice of the People Column" to express my opinion on the strikes at the Auburn and Bonner-Worth Mills, H. S. Laybourne Controller of the Auburn Mills statement as to wages paid, appearing in Friday's issue is fair and reasonable compared with wages paid by other concerns throughout the city, this does not mean that they are sufficient to meet the necessaries of life. In the first place the employees were wrong to accept employment where the wages paid were not adequate to meet their requirements by so doing the funeral is theirs. G. N. Gordon with all his liberality and ever ready to be in the limelight changes his attitude and becomes more domineering than the management of the woollen mills who grant their employees the right to organize without any stipulation as to what organization they may belong. For G. N. Gordon's benefit I might say craft unionism has lived its day, the only solution to solve the every day problems of organized labor is the C. I. O. or the "One Big Union" if you like to call it that.

ALEX. MURRAY.

REPLIES TO MR. GORDON

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The columns of the "Examiner" in the past few weeks seem to have been at the disposal of any loud mouthed individual who wanted to take a slam at Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. This has been particularly true of Alderman Gordon who has had more than his share of publicity. Whether Alderman Gordon is actually helping the employees who are on strike at this time or not is a debatable question, it cannot be said that he ever showed any particular interest in their welfare up to the present time, and the memory of a certain election day in 1925 probably has more to do with his present attitude, than any other motive toward the employees of Auburn and Bonner-Worth Mills.

Some of Alderman Gordon's statements are grossly exaggerated and I challenge several of those statements which I personally know are incorrect:

1. The statement that married men are employed at the rate of 18 cents per hour is absurd. Neither Alderman Gordon or any member of the strike committee can name these men, and it is a fact that the strike committee did not make any such claim, probably they preferred to leave such absurd statements to Alderman Gordon.

2. Alderman Gordon's scornful statement about compassionate jobs is also incorrect. If he will ask any of the members of the strike committee they can tell him of at least six such jobs, and they can also tell him of several men fifty years of age and over who were unable to obtain employment in several other plants in the city owing to their advanced years, who are employed at Auburn because their work is not as strenuous as in other industries.

3. Alderman Gordon's other statements regarding wages are also misleading. The Turgeon Commission did not mention the wage scale of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. as being the lowest in the industry. Alderman Gordon should obtain the wage scale of several of Dominion Woollens competitors, but that of course would not fit his purpose which apparently is to make the local situation as bad as possible.

4. Alderman Gordon's opening salute, dealt with alleged enormous profits made by Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, but on Saturday last he is quoted as making the rather amazing statement that the shares of this particular company are unsaleable. If the company doing business under the name of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd., are making so much profits, it would seem strange that their stock is of so little commercial value.

Several other statements appearing in the press were erroneous. The actual number of employees at Auburn Mills who went on strike was not 350 but only third of that number. The majority of the employees are respectable citizens who would probably like to see the present dispute settled, so that they could return to work. The exaggerated statements of Alderman Gordon and the bewitching oratory of Messrs Welch and Cohen are certainly not hastening an early settlement of the dispute.

Thanking you for valuable space to publish one man's opinion on the present strike situation.

BOB TOWNSLEY.

Kemptville School's Good Work

Twenty Years Useful Service And Now What About Future.

(From the Brockville Recorder and Times.)

PERHAPS we may be excused for referring rather frequently to the Kemptville Agricultural School, that provincial educational institution which was begun 20 years ago and which has now risen to assume an important position in the field of agricultural education with special reference to the requirements of the people of this section of the province.

The school at Kemptville was conceived as an eastern auxiliary to the main Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, an institution which is rather remote to serve the young farmers and farm women of the eastern counties. Since the time of its establishment, it has been steadily improved and by no administration to a greater extent than by the present government. From the time he assumed office, the Hon. Duncan Marshall, provincial Minister of Agricultural, has displayed keen interest in the institution and has authorized numerous improvements in both its physical properties and the courses of instruction. The Eastern Dairy School was moved from Kingston to a more logical location in Kemptville, there has been an increased enrollment in the regular courses and a record-breaking attendance of school teachers at summer courses in agriculture. The Kemptville Agricultural School has become the eastern centre for the spread of agricultural teaching and it may well be understood that the people of the village and of the surrounding district regard it with considerable and justifiable pride.

And what of the future? The progress of the school during the first 20 years of its existence and the great usefulness of its services thoroughly vindicate its establishment and warrant its continuance. To do away with this school or to cripple its facilities would not only mean the impairment of a large public investment but it would be a heavy blow to the eastern Ontario agricultural community which has grown to lean upon the school for instruction and its staff for advice. Fortunately, there is no intimation whatever that any action of this description is in contemplation. On the contrary, the policy of the present government—and we hope it will be that of all succeeding governments—is to nourish and support the Kemptville school to the greatest possible extent to the end that eventually there may be established in that village an institution rivalling that at Guelph in the scope and value of its teaching. We may yet see on the Kemptville campus a college instead of a school, and it will be a most excellent thing for the farming community and for eastern Ontario as a whole when that stage in the development of the provincial institution is reached.

PERILOUS PROPHECY.

PROPHECY has always been a rather perilous occupation, but never more perilous than in these days when things move so fast.

Perhaps you will recall that a few years ago, when radio was beginning to become so extremely popular, predictions were freely made to the effect that "canned music" over the air would be the death of the amateur musician who likes to drum out his own music at home. Specifically, that the piano, once considered a mark of respectability and culture, was doomed.

So what happens? Well, we noticed that the first six months of 1937 are the best six months the piano business has had in the past 15 years.

This proves two things. First, the love of "roll-your-own" music is not so easily killed as some people thought. And that even pianos can be sold if the maker will adjust his product to today's needs—the small house and apartment, and today's price levels. Business can be had by those who go out for it aggressively and intelligently.

Hot Weather Hints.

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

THE present widespread heat wave has led Dr. Robert A. Fraser, chief medical director of the New York Life Insurance Company, to issue a health warning, cautioning every one to take simple safe-guards that their health may not be impaired by the extreme temperatures.

Dr. Fraser offers ten health hints for hot weather that are easily followed by young and old. They are:

1. Take it easy—dont' rush around.
2. Wear a hat out in the sun.
3. Wear cool, loose fitting clothes.
4. Get plenty of rest and sleep.
5. Eat moderately of easily digested foods.
6. Drink plenty of cool (not ice cold) liquids.
7. Exercise moderately.
8. Take frequent tepid (not cold) baths.
9. Do not stay in direct sunshine for long periods.
10. Avoid large meetings in poorly ventilated auditoriums.

The East Orange N. J. police have received a complaint from a dairy firm about a thief on one of its milk delivery routes. Early in the morning he stole bottles of milk and cream left on customers' porches and worst still he puts notes in empty bottles asking the milkman to leave an extra quart or two.

MEMORIAL TO SPRINGBANK SNOW COUNTESS

Hon. Herbert A. Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor today unveiled this life-size metal statue which will perpetuate the achievements of Springbrook Snow Countess 81871, world's greatest lifetime producer of butterfat among all dairy breeds. She was bred by T. R. Dent, of Springbank Farm, Woodstock, who owned her throughout her lifetime of 16 years, and who still has some of her distinguished progeny. The Countess died last August. The five ton memorial stands upon a granite shaft in a neat little park, with shrubs and winding path, alongside No. 2 Highway immediately east of the city. Its cost, contributed by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, is about $4,000. Springbank Snow Countess produced in ten lactations 207,050 pounds of milk, with a record of 9,062 pounds of fat. Her highest year's production, 1,125 pounds of fat was from 25,763 pounds of milk, was made in her six-year-old form.

These Names Make News

ADOLF HITLER

If the Sino-Japanese situation develops into a real war, the United States will remain neutral—that is, if Secretary of State Cordell Hull can hold to a rigid course in stormy weather. China has already voiced disappointment at the American attitude. But then the U.S.A. usually steers clear of world troubles when possible.

How long will the Hitler regime last?

A German Catholic in the United States, who favors the German chancellor, asserts if Hitler lasts until the present generation of Germans grows up, his type of government will last several generations.

"German youth, growing up now, will only know Nazism," he said.

FIRST HOURS FIGHT SEES RANGER LEAD

mediately drawing away from the challenger. In 10 minutes the defender had opened up a lead of about six lengths.

Sopwith, who yesterday unloaded more than 5,000 pounds of ballast from his blue-hulled craft, inaugurated a short tacking match, in which Vanderbilt followed him for the first few tacks and then apparently decided to sail the course himself.

This left Endeavor on the port tack and Ranger on the starboard.

When Ranger finally came about on the port tack, she occupied a commanding weather berth. A victory for the American boat would leave her needing only one more to retain the international trophy held in the United States since the schooner-yacht America went to England to capture it in 1851.

After negotiating about six miles to windward, Ranger appeared to be approximately 400 yards ahead. Sopwith pointed higher into the wind as both continued on the port tack.

Whitecaps Show.

The wind was fickle out the whitecaps dotting the sea were conspicuous enough to indicate it was blowing over 12 miles per hour by this time (1:35 p.m. EDT).

A destroyer squadron flanked the spectator fleet, thus offsetting the loss of numerous larger yachts which deserted the races because of Ranger's successive and decisive victories in the first two races.

At 1:25 p.m. E.D.T. Endeavour returned to the starboard tack. Ranger held on the port tack until she had the challenger well buried in her, then followed suit. The manoeuvre showed the defender to be better than an eighth of a mile ahead. Endeavour's showing was better than at a similar stage in either of the previous races.

Endeavour started another short-tacking match coming about six times inside of 10 minutes. Ranger followed her five times, then remained on the starboard tack. Vanderbilt apparently felt that the business was not profitable for his sleek white-hulled sloop.

Olin Stephens, young co-designer of the defender was at the wheel when Ranger and Endeavour were jockeying before the American sloop got away to her beautifully-timed start. At 2:30 p.m. E.D.T., with Ranger's lead still about a quarter of a mile. Ranger was too far from the cutter to discern who was handling her. As Ranger came over on the port tack with the outer mark in sight, Vanderbilt was at the wheel.

DEMANDS CONTROL OF TWO CHILDREN

Father Stops Tots' Two Aunts Believed Abducting Them By Shooting Into Car.

WELLAND, Ont., Aug. 4.—(CP)— Application will be made at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, tomorrow by Clifford Medlicott, Buffalo resident staying at Long Beach, Lake Erie resort near here, for sole custody of his two children. He fired a gun into a motor car radiator and stopped two sisters of his estranged wife yesterday until police arrived and placed them in jail on charges of attempting to abduct his son, Eben, aged nine years.

Medlicott's other child, Audrey, 12, is residing with her mother in Buffalo, he said, charging the young girl was taken from his motor car at Long Beach three weeks ago.

The two sisters arrested yesterday by Provincial Police, Mrs. Hilda McMurray and Mrs. B. Decker, both of Buffalo, remained today in Welland county jail for a hearing Wednesday, Aug. 11. Bail was set at $500 cash or $1,000 property bond for each.

Medlicott claimed that while crow-shooting yesterday, his son was beckoned to the motor car of the two sisters. He said that while the boy was on the running board the auto started moving but the boy jumped off. He fired his gun into the car radiator, detained both women until police arrived and preferred charges of attempted abduction.

ONLY HALF CATTLE EXPECTED WILL BE MOVED FROM WEST

Present Plans Call For About 200,000 to Go on Auction Kept Off Market 3 Months.

AVOID ANY GLUT.

REGINA, Aug. 4 (CP).—Detailed organization work was advancing today to put into effect the Federal Government's livestock purchasing plan on a pooling basis and move between 200,000 and 300,000 cattle out of the drought areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Movement of the cattle, said Agricultural Minister Gardiner here yesterday, was essential because feed was not available. He advised farmers to liquidate as much of their cattle as possible because of drought conditions and because prices were comparatively good.

Recent rains improved feed conditions or it might have been necessary to move about 500,000 head out of the area, he said.

Canners and cutters will be purchased outright at 1¼ cents a pound; butcher cattle will be sold at the open market price and feeder stock will be disposed of to buyers who will feed them for three months before marketing them. Any profits realized will be distributed among those selling the cattle.

Want No Market Glut

Withholding of the feeder cattle off market for three months is directed at preventing a market glut or permitting unfed cattle to affect the price of finished cattle, Mr. Gardiner explained.

One-way fare from any point in Eastern Canada or British Columbia will be paid by the Government for buyers going to the assembly points to make purchase of feeder cattle. The government also will pay part of the freight costs of shipping the cattle to the feed points of the purchasers. The cattle must be held off the market for three months to qualify for the government assistance.

ENRAGED FATHER MURDERS FAMILY

Uses Butcher Knife on Four Children, Then Wife When She Protests Treatment.

COLUMBUS, Ky., Aug. 4—(AP)— Accused by his wife of slashing their four children to death with a butcher knife and stabbing her, W. J. Morse, 45, was rushed away from a crowd of threatening neighbors late last night it was learned today.

The wife, Mrs. Jane Morse, 42, was stabbed in the back five times and a physician who examined her today said she might not live. The tragedy occurred at the Morse home near this little Mississippi River town.

Mrs. Morse said her husband became enraged in an argument when she remonstrated with him, as she said she had frequently done, over his treatment of the children. She said Morse grabbed the knife, ran to a bed and slashed the throats of their son, James Theodore, 5, and their daughters, Inez, 3, and Margaret Elizabeth, 1. She said he next plunged the blade into the back of oldest child, Billy Lee, 8, five times. The child ran from the house and was found dead later about 100 yards away.

Town Marshal Charles Burton was summoned by neighbors who heard Mrs. Morse's screams. He arrested Morse on a highway four miles from here and took him to jail at the county seat, Clinton. A crowd gathered and the man was hastily sent to another jail which officers kept secret.

Young People's Union Holds Field Day At Millbrook

Fairview Defeated Yelverton in Peterborough Presbytery Sports Program.

MILLBROOK CHAMPION.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 4.—Fine weather, a good sports' program carried through without a moment's drag anywhere everyone entering into the various events with pep and enthusiasm, with a spirit of good fellowship, harmony and co-operation prevailing, were highlights of the third annual picnic of the Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Union, which was held at Millbrook on Monday, August 2, the gathering-place being the Agricultural Park. Much of the success if the event was due to the careful planning and capable leadership of Miss Esther Thornton, recreation convenor for the Presbytery.

The picnic had a softball tournament as its opening event at 1 p.m., Fairview winning from Yelverton by a margin of 8 runs in a total score of 19-11. S. Sloan umpired at the plate, and Don Charlton, of Peterborough, on bases. The teams:

Fairview: B. Harrison, p; Pettis, c; B. McDowell, 1b; Franks, 2b; M. McDowell, b; L. Reynolds, ss; J. Harrison, rf; B. Harrison, lf; G. Harrison, cf.

In the ladies' Shoe-Throwing contest the results showed Dorothy Smith, Millbrook; C. Beer, Bethany; M. McDowell, Millbrook.

Campionship Game

Following supper hour, a highlight of the day, a softball game between George Street, Peterborough, and Millbrook for the Presbytery championship, brought interest up to fever heat. Millbrook won for the third successive year, and was later presented with the handsome oak shield, Miss Thornton pointing out that the tree small replicas along its base would each bear the name of the one Union, Millbrook, when the engraving is completed.

Camp Fire Held

Rev. D. H. Mary Dawson, of Millbrook was successful in detecting the "Mystery Man" on the grounds during the afternoon, (Ormond Benson, of Knox Union, Peterborough, filling this role), and received a book on recreation that will doubtless help to fill many winter evenings with fun.

The official welcome to the visiting Unions spoken by B. B. Dawson, Presbytery President, and the concluding worship service conducted by Rev. O. F. Kelly, of Lakefield, those assisting being Mrs. Kelly, Miss Mary Webster, and Miss Zelma Darling, the theme being "Tress." The Mizpah benediction in unison closed the service.

OBITUARY

LAVERGNE HICKSON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Aug. 4.—The sad news reached Lifford relatives on Friday morning of the death of Lavergne Hickson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John James Hickson of Mount Horeb.

The late Mr. Hickson, who had not been permitted to reach the third decade of life, was stricken with blood poisoning a few days ago spice tan, cinnamon or nutmeg shad and was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, where three doctors attended him. He was returned to the parental roof on Wednesday and on Thursday night passed peacefully away, little hope having been held out for his recovery for several days previous to his premature death.

MRS. W. H. STABLER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 4.—A large number of relatives and friends attended the funeral here on Saturday of the late Myrtle C. Fitzgerald, wife of William H. Stabler, of Lakefield.

SCRAP FOR PURSE PRECEDES DEATH

Father is Shot After Fracas With Son—Jury Blames Unknown.

OLDS, Alta., Aug. 4.—(CP)— A quarrel between father and son over a purse containing $40 preceded the death last Wednesday of Fred Farrar, farmer living 15 miles east of here, his wife told a coroner's jury here yesterday.

The jury brought in an open verdict, saying the shot which killed Farrar was fired from a gun held by "a person or persons at present unknown."

Farrar's 30-year-old son, Albert, was charged previous to the inquest, with the murder of his father. He had been held since last Thursday as a material witness.

Mrs. Farrar said Albert accused his father of stealing a purse containing $40. She also identified as her son's a purse containing $40 which she said had been found on her husband after he died.

She said the two had been out coyote shooting that day and that when they came home the rifle had been put in a bedroom upstairs. She was not asked, nor did she say how, the gun came to be in the kitchen where the shooting occurred.

Chinese Troops Retreat From Peiping

After several battles outside Peiping, the Chinese 29th route army is said to have retreated leaving thousands dead and wounded on the battlefield. The ragged Chinese army had fought hopelessly with swords nondescript firearms against Japanese machine-guns, tanks and aeroplanes. Scenes like the one above are once more the rule as Japan enforces its demands that Chinese troops withdraw from the vicinity of Peiping. Here you see one of the many troops' trains used to rush reinforcements to the battle area.

FRED TUGGEY HEADS STRIKERS' RELIEF

Relief Committee Organizes Strikers Turn Over Tag Day Receipts Amounting To $830

Organized to Help All Workers of Two Plants Now in Need.

APPEAL TO PUBLIC.

Ex-alderman Fred Tuggey was chosen chairman of the Textile Workers' Relief Committee sponsored by Alderman G. N. Gordon as the committee organized and squared away to its task yesterday afternoon. A power of attorney in expenditure of the $830 collected by strike taggers ten days ago was accepted by the new committee from the officers of the main strike body.

Headed by Mr. Tuggey, a possible occupant of the council seat vacated by Max Sloan, and including two aldermen in the persons of Mr. Gordon and Alderman James Hamilton, the committee is considered by strikers to symbolize a widespread understanding of the hardships of the workers among the general citizenry. Organizer Alex Welch declared at a strike rally last night that rarely before in Canada have strikers gained the support of such a committee and that the existence of the committee is a guarantee of ultimate strike victory.

Father Kelly

Other members of the committee are Rev. P. J. Kelly, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral; Ronald Knox, jeweller; Homer Borland, druggist; T. J. McMurray, president of the local Trades and Labor Council; and Mrs. Hortense Terrace, Hugh Pollard, Alex. Stevens and Roland Kennedy, representatives of the strike body.

In general discussion of its work, the committee members emphasized that they were organizing to help all workers of the Auburn and Bonner-Worth now in need as a result of the strike. Rev. Kelly said it may be possible for those of the workers who are members of the St. Peter's Parish to obtain direct relief from the parish.

The committee voted to hold a tag day this Saturday, Mr. Gordon undertaking to seek permission from members of the Police Commission. Printing of tags was ordered. Mr. Gordon urged that at least 100 strikers be obtained as taggers and that every intersection of any consequence in the city be covered.

Appeal To Public

Appeal to the public by advertisement for contributions to the relief depot at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune streets was agreed upon. The relief depot will be open each week day from 9 to 4 o'clock excepting 1 o'clock closings on Wednesdays and Saturdays, it was announced.

The general strike situation was reviewed at the general strike meeting in the East City Community Hall last night.

"Our main thought now is holding the fort," Alex Welch declared. "It is now apparent to all that this is not a wildcat strike. It is now five weeks old and is going to make history in the Canadian labor world. With the backing of a citizens' committee headed by such a distinguished man and the Honorable G. N. Gordon we can't lose."

He declared that the strike organization must immediately begin a check of every worker in the two plants and ascertain just what part each is playing in the strike. The main thing, now that negotiations have lapsed a second time, is to concentrate on the picketing end of the strike, he said. He asserted strong pickets must be organized for duty at both plants 24 hours each day.

Picket Results

"Your Picket work has had results," he said. "You have finally convinced the workers at the Bonner-Worth who have been going into the plant during the past five weeks that it is best for them to stay outside. We'll hold no grievance against those men. As far as I'm concerned, if they wish to enter our union now they will be welcomed."

Referring to the all-Canadian union of textile workers now being organized by Arthur Laverty, Cornwall strike leader, and himself, Welch declared: "We are going to make it the largest union in the country, second only to the railroad brotherhood."

MORE INFANTS SURVIVE

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, August 5

According to the lunar transits bearing rule on mundane affairs, this should be a day of greatly-accelerated activities, with much of major importance stirring after a prolonged period of stagnation and obstacles. It is a time for rebuilding more stable and firmer foundations and with a spirit of much initiative and decisiveness. The energies and faculties will be found under high stimuli for engineering such projects with aggressiveness and force, with results corresponding to the diligence and merit exerted.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great enterprise and notable achievement in the launching of important projects, after a period of rather static conditions. Decisiveness and initiative will be brought to bear in stabilizing affairs, with the force and faculties under high pressure and attracting the solid support of elders or old institutions to meritorious plans.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, determined, of versatility and constructive ability. It should win the indorsement of elders and superiors by its industry, practicality and reliability.

FALL DOWNSTAIRS HASTENED DEATH

Mrs. Margaret Alice Wilding Succumbs 24 Hours Later in Nicholls Hospital.

Believed to have been hastened by the shock of a fall down a flight of stairs in which she sustained a broken wrist Tuesday morning, the death of Mrs. Margaret Alice Wilding occurred at Nicholls Hospital this morning. She was 64 years of age.

She had been in fair health but was removed to the hospital after the accident Tuesday which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. E. Beals, 595 Waterford street. Her passing was unexpected.

She was born at Chorley, Lancashire, Eng'and, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor. Seventeen years ago she came from England to reside in Ontario and came to this city from Toronto six years ago. She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Beals of this city and Beasie and Ida of Toronto, and three sisters, Mrs. Edward Hodgson and Mrs. John Houghton of Toronto and Mrs. William Iddon of England. Her husband, the late John Lever Wilding, predeceased her.

The funeral will be held Friday at 1 o'clock from the D. Bellegheen and Sons funeral home to Prospect Cemetery, Toronto. Canon W. P. Robertson will officiate.

Humorist Who Broke 'Holy Deadlock'

It is harder for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for an ordinary mortal to change British tradition. But this man did it. He is A. P. Herbert, member of parliament for Oxford university, who writes humorous stories when not legislating. Herbert introduced the new divorce bill, recently passed by the British parliament, after he had written about England's stern divorce laws under the title of "holy deadlock." He is shown here with his wife at their Hammersmith, Eng., home.

Hot Weather Doesn't Bother These Five Little Girls

Hot weather—and it does get hot at Callander, Ont.—doesn't wory the famed Dionne Quintuplets. The sand shovels that Annette Marie, Yvonne, Cecile and Emilie have are perhaps just the things to make a big splash.

CROWN'S ACTION IS UNDER FIRE

Prisoner Pleads Guilty Rather Than Wait For Another Adjournment.

When the Crown was not ready to proceed with hearing of a traffic count against Max Dickson of Hall's Bridge, who appeared on bail with a plea of not guilty to a charge of failing to report an accident, his counsel, T. J. Carley, K.C., raised strenuous objection.

Stating that the case was remanded on a previous occasion and the accused released on bail with the understanding that all parties would be ready for trial when the case was called this morning, Mr. Carley said under the circumstances he was advising his client to plead guilty to the charge.

"I will take the responsibility of having him plead guilty. I am not going to have him put to the expense of coming 30 or 40 miles each time, just because the Crown is not ready to proceed," he said.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., after conferring with Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who has just returned to duty from his vacation, accepted a guilty plea, and levied a fine of $10 without costs.

The charge against Dickson was the sequel to an accident on Water street on the evening of July 24 last, in which Milton Barnard, Otonabee farm laborer, sustained superficial wounds about the face and head when he allegedly leaped from the Dickson car.

On entering a plea of guilty to a speeding charge, David H. Crowe, 213 Stewart street, was fined $10 and $3 costs, while for a similar offence, to which he also pleaded guilty, Francis Doig, McColl street, was fined $7.50 and $2.50 costs.

Roland H. Ferguson, 543 Park street north, was sentenced to seven days' imprisonment on entering a plea of guilty to a charge of being intoxicated while in control of a motor car on George street on July 26. He was represented by A. L. Elliott.

HOOKED 12½ POUNDER

O. L. Dalgleish, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, put a red mark on the calendar today for the second lunge he has caught in four years. It was a 12½ pounder, 38½ inches long, from the Hatrick's Point section of Rice Lake. "Dal" was trolling with Fred Revoy this morning when he got the strike, and then proceeded to land the big fellow.

FALL WHEAT YIELD

Several farmers along the middle line of Smith who have completed threshing their fall wheat report a yield of from 40 to 45 bushels to the acre. Some reports from Otonabee mention thirty bushels. Threshing is not yet general throughout the county, but the earliest returns are regarded as highly favorable.

IS RE-ELECTED.

At the annual convention of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association at Montreal, C. B. Thompson of Peterborough, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. C. W. Pallister of Campbellford, was elected as vice-chairman of the Retail Trade Section.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

Aube Edson, 21, of Toronto, was fined $5 and $2.50 costs when he entered a plea of guilty to infraction of a city peddling by-law. He was represented by Jacob Low. William D. McIlwain ,this city, was remanded until Wednesday next in bail of $500 on a charge of false pretences relative to an alleged stock transaction. The amount involved in the charge is $381. Declaring he was not prepared to elect or plead, McIlwain requested the remand that was given.

STRAY NOTES.

John McIntosh of North Monaghan picked up a head of fall wheat that had dropped in the lane from the wagon, and accepting it as a sample he took it to the house and rolled the grains out on a table. The yield from one seed planted last fall was exactly fifty-four grains . . . Several of the supporters of the C.O.E. tug o'war team believe their octette of heavy heavers could make a good job of dragging the Harvey yankers around the field; and they say the same goes for the Manvers men even if Lloyd Kennedy holds down the anchor position. In fact somebody might easily stir up a lot of tugging competition in the district . . . By the way, rumor says the C.O.E. may double their refrigerator output next year.

NEED STREET SIGNS

In some cities the reverse side of stop signs bears the names of the streets in which they are erected. Ald. Gordon reminded the council Tuesday night suggesting that if the Board of Works ever got around to the position of having a surplus of funds it might adopt this street naming method as a guide to visitors. On the same subject Mayor Macdonald said he had received a letter from a Toronto woman recently, commending Peterborough on its appearance and neatness and other civic qualities. "Her only criticism was in regard to a lack of street signs," His Worship said. "She said it was difficult to find streets, and as a result a stranger spent too much time that could be saved if the streets were plainly named."

IN NEED OF COOKING STOVE

The Examiner knows of a mother with two small children who is living on relief and is in need of a stove to do her cooking. Anyone having a stove who is willing to give to this woman, if they will phone 1,600 the name will be furnished.

TO PAINT NEW FENCE.

The new fence at the Exhibition Park will be sprayed with brown paint probably this week, and the ground between the fence and the curb will be levelled. Use of the city's grader driven by R. J. Manley was arranged for with the council Tuesday night, the Exhibition Board to pay for its service.

MORE DENNE PICTURES

Alderman Glover informed the council Tuesday night that T. H. G. Denne had recently presented twelve or fifteen more pictures of early Peterborough to the gallery he has founded at the Public Library. Ald. Gordon moved that the council's appreciation of Mr. Deene's continued interest in Peterborough and his gift of additional pictures be acknowledged with thanks.

POSTIES PICNIC AT SOUTH BEACH

Peterborough Letter Carriers Sponsor Annual Pionic For Oshawa and Lindsay.

The letter carriers from Oshawa and Lindsay were entertained at a picnic at South Beach on Sunday which was sponsored by the Peterborough mailmen. All spent an enjoyable afternoon in swimming, races, and softball as the weather was ideal. The Lindsay letter carriers played in a softball tournament against Oshawa and Peterborough mailmen, being in each case successful in defeating the teams. In Tug-of-War, the Peterborough men won with Lindsay rating second. After supper, three mailmen who have spent twenty-five years in the service of the Government as letter-carriers, were presented with beautiful travelling bags and their wives with boxes of chocolates, the address being read by the Postmaster, Charles Lacheur. Next year's picnic was planned and it was decided that it will be sponsored by the Oshawa men. It is expected that it will be held at Cream of Barley Camp near Bowmanville. President Bert Brown, of Lindsay Letter Carrier, and the President of Oshawa thanked Peterborough for a very delightful time. After singing of "God Save the King" the picnickers departed for their respective homes.

Letter Carried On Ill-Fated Airplane Arrives In City After Seven Months

Postmarked at Huntingdon Park, California on December 14, 1936 an air mail letter to Mrs. C. J. Alcock, 577 Chamberlain street from her sister Mrs. Frank M. Heafield, has only just been delivered after an interval of over seven months.

The letter was on an ill-fated mail plane that crashed in a mountain blizzard last winter. An official notation on the envelope, placed there by United States postal authorities states: "Damage done to air mail interrupted near Salt Lake City, Utah, December 18, 1936."

Frank M. Heafield, husband of the writer of the letter and brother-in-law of Mrs. Alcock was here on a five weeks visit when the letter was received. He returned to California today

"Can't Prevent People From Running Into Trains," Alderman Gordon Says.

"You can't prevent people from running into trains," Alderman Gordon commented Tuesday night when Alderman Glover enquired whether any progress was being made with proposed signs at the C.N.R. at Romaine and George streets.

It seems the council has to submit a photograph of the locality and the signs to the Railway Board for their approval, and a sketch of the recommended sign is being made by City Engineer Parsons.

"We seem to be just shadow boxing," Alderman Dutton remarked. "Why is it necessary to get sketches of signs which we know the Department has already approved. We have been talking about this since last winter, and don't seem to be getting anywhere."

Elsewhere it has been pointed out that every person who has driven a car against a train at the Romaine street crossing on George street was a resident of the city, and aware of the danger.

One citizen questioned the effectiveness of signs, and suggested that nothing less than gates would stop some of the people who take numerous chances in driving over that crossing.

Sewage Plant Amendment Is Defeated When City Council Divides Evenly On Question

Dominion Railway Board Refused Crossing at Rubidge Street.

AUGUST MEETING.

The city council disposed of a light sheaf of business at its August meeting Tuesday night in a comparatively brief session of an hour and five minutes.

Only one minor incident varied the routine, an amendment by Alderman McIntyre on which the vote was recorded at his request, the council dividing evenly, as a result of the temporary roster of ten members since the resignation of the former Alderman M. R. Sloan.

Alderman McIntyre objected to a clause in the Board of Works report, presented by Alderman Juby, recommending that information be obtained regarding the latest approved methods of sewage disposal.

"I don't think it is good judgment for us to take the initiative in prying into that question," Alderman McIntyre said. "That is the same as admitting that we are not right. Let the suggestion come from the Department of Health. I think that would be time enough for us to start something because it means that a lot of money will have to be spent by the ratepayers. We have already spent a lot on the sewage disposal system and the chances are we will have to spend a lot more. With the flow of water in the Otonabee I think we are getting along all right, and I think it is a mistake to let that recommendation go through.'

"That is what I have been contending all along," Mayor Macdonald remarked as he called for the ayes and nays in compliance with Ald. McIntyre's request for a record of the vote.

The division was as follows on the McIntyre amendment—Ayes: Aldermen Stocker, Cotton, Juby, McIntyre and Mayor Macdonald.

Nays: Aldermen Wilson Hamilton, Glover, Dutton and Gordon.

The amendment was declared lost, and the Board's report was adopted.

Fire Loss $137

Chief Gimblett reported thirty seven fire alarms last month for a total damage loss of $137.

Relief expenditure for July was $4,745.40, City Clerk Armstrong reported.

City Enginer Parsons informed the council that 39 building permits were let in July for a total investment of $26,610, including six dwelling valued at $15,300.

Shell Right of Way

The Shell Oil Company's agreement with the city for a right of way through the municipal yard on Townsend street was passed in 1929 for a ten-year period. Construction of the new wire fence around the city's property south of the C.P.R. involved the continuance of this right, and the company agreed to pay for the cost of a gate.

"We'll expect them to see that the gate is kept closed," Alderman Stocker said, "otherwise there was no use building the fence."

Alderman Dutton remarked that the company would no doubt show courtesy to the city in undertaking to keep the gate locked after working hours at the municipal yard; and the provision of a gate for the Shell trucks was authorized by Alderman Glover's motion, seconded by Alderman Cotton, the company to pay that item of expense.

Crossing Refused

City Clerk Armstrong read a letter from the Dominion Railway Board announcing its refusal of the application for a crossing over the C.N.R. tracks at Rubidge street north to afford a rear entrance into a section of the old Wm. Hamilton Company's buildings which are now used by Beatty Brothers' transport trucks. The front entrance is off Reid street. City Solicitor Corkery said that the Railway Commission was opposed to opening level crossings over railways, and that was probably the reason for the rejection of this application.

The Rambling REPORTERS

SOMEWHAT OF A CROONER

Being a Labor organizer requires something more than an ability at simple demagogry. For instance, an ability to croon comes in handy at times.

Again last evening while Auburn and Bonner-Worth strikers were enjoying a sing-song before the opening of their rally in the East City Community Hall, Organizer Alex Welch entertained with vocal solo offerings of popular numbers.

"If we have to put up with this I'd rather go back to work," one member of the audience was heard to wise-crack.

"As a crooner, he's a good organizer," another declared.

However, the heavy applause indicated the great majority of the gathering enjoyed the effort of the hard-bitten but popular strike leader.—C.P.K.

HARD ON DOBBIN

Although we did not see this, it is vouched for by several outstanding citizens whose reputations as men of truth have never been questioned.

On Tuesday, afternoon a Smith township farmer pulled his horse up on Charlotte street behind a gas wagon of ancient vintage. He thought he recognized the car as that which belonged to his neighbor, so not seeing a tying post handy he tied Dobbin to the rear bumper. A few minutes later the the owner of the car came along, his parking limit expired, and with one eye on lookout for the "cops." Not seeing Dobbin tied to the bumper, he got in and started the car. There came a sudden yank and the halter pulled off Dobbin's head and was last seen being dragged along Charlotte street. To end the story, Dobbin being a wise, old horse, did not move and when his owner came along he had to go and purchase a new halter before he could get home.—C.

TOURIST CAMP IS BEAUTIFUL PARK

Camp Registered Its Peak Crowd Over Week-end Alderman Stocker Reports.

Peterborough's new tourist camp on the river below Hunter street registered its peak crowd on the holiday, and Alderman Stocker says the visitors were delighted with the site and the complete and convenient accommodation that has been provided. Some of them have been catching bass and pickerel off the camp site, and they all say that it won't be long until the park is crowded, as soon as its attractiveness becomes generally known.

"Several local women told me a few days ago that they had no idea we had such a beautiful riverside park at Hunter street," Mayor Macdonald said. They went there for a picnic and were greatly pleased with it. They told me that few of the citizens know what the council has accomplished there in the last few years."

Alderman Glover commented that the council would eventually realize that the Stuart Drive property should be acquired by the community.

3 REGATTAS LEFT RICE LAKE AREA

Demonstration of Canoemanship is Planned for Wallace Point Regatta.

There were no regattas scheduled for to-day in the district, the aquatin events for this week having been run off on the Civic Holiday.

The next scheduled event is the annual regatta at Wallace Point on Wednesday afternoon of next week, which is to be staged under auspices of Wallace Point Canoe Club, of which Jack Devell is president.

A large list of entries is expected for this regatta, and contestants are reminded that all boats used are supplied by the club, thus obviating the necessity of anyone bringing their own craft.

As a special feature of this year's regatta at Wallace Point, it is announced a demonstration of canoemanship is to be presented, showing what to do and what not to do in the handling of a canoe.

Other scheduled regattas are as follows: August 18, Alderville; August 25, Bewdley.

AMATEUR SUMMARY.

Stratford and London Providing Fireworks For Inter-county Lead.

TORONTO, August 4 — (C.P.). — With playoffs near in Ontario's three Senior baseball groups only one team has been definitely eliminated. Thorold Mountaineers dropped out of the Niagara District contention after opening their schedule like champions.

Five of the six Niagara District teams have playoff hopes and tonight's two final games, postponed from earlier in the schedule, will decide which teams will line up against St. Catharines, Merriton and Niagara Falls.

Port Colborne Sailors and Welland will know their fate after Welland meets Merriton. The Sailors' hopes are veiled with the Alliance team, as their schedule is already complete. A win for Welland and a defeat of Niagara Falls by St. Catharines will create a three-way tie for third place. A sudden-death play is likely in such event.

The Niagara playoffs are slated to start Saturday, with the first-place team meeting the third and the second the fourth in parallel three-game series. St. Catharines leads Merriton by one game and a sudden-death game may be necessary to decide the top-place team.

The Surprise Team

Merriton Alliance have been the surprise team of the province this season. Low in the cellar of the league after the first six games Alliance's long losing streak was suddenly napped. Merriton went on to score eight straight wins—best record in Ontario ball this year—and may yet top the Niagara League.

The Central Ontario Baseball League schedule ends Saturday, August 14, and the playoffs will start the following week. All season, Kingston Ponies have been alternating in the loop lead with Oshawa Motors, last year's Ontario Baseball Amateur Association champions. Right now Kingston is a full game ahead of Oshawa, with Peterborough and Napanee far, far behind.

May Replace Petes

Second and third teams of the C.O.B.L. will play a best-two-in-three series for the right to meet the leaders in a five-game finale. Napanee, after losing studiously most of the season, has developed a stubborn streak in the last two weeks, and the Gibbards may yet win a playoff spot at the expense of the Petes.

The re-vamped senior intercounty circuit is embroiled in a four-team playoff battle with the season to end a week from to-day. Brantford has only a mathematical chance of overtaking Strathroy, last year's provincial intermediate champs, while Stratford and London are fighting for first place. The Nationals have a half-game edge on London, but the latter team has a chance to even things in to-day's game with Strathroy.

Following are the standings in the three senior groups to-day:

Probe Is Ordered In Fighter's Death

PITTSBURG, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Deputy Coroner J. L. Davidson ordered a "thorough investigation" today into the death last night of Johnny Page, Chicago lightweight, 24 hours after he was knocked out by Eddie Zivic.

Davidson said a post mortem would be held and he would question Zivic, Page's handlers, the examining physicians and ring officials.

A brain concussion caused the death of the 22-year-old fighter who crumpled under a smashing right to the head in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round semi-final match Monday night.

WILLOW WIELDING FEATURES GAME

Orioles Triumph Over Royals 10-2—Red Wings Blank Giants 1 to 0.

TORONTO, Aug. 4 (C.P.). — It's now or never for Baltimore Orioles, and the Birds believe their big guns are equal to the task.

In seventh place, 6½ games out of the first division with little more than a month of the season to go, the Marylanders are faced with a situation that International League observers would have labelled ridiculous at the start of the season. Pre-season favorites to cop the pennant, they'll have to hustle every minute of the way to make fourth place and a playoff berth.

It was several of last year's standbys who brought Orioles a 10-2 triumph over Montreal Royals last night. Big "Pooch" Puccinelli, Woody Abernathy, and Smokey Joe Martin wielded the heavy clubs. They belted out seven of 13 hits made off Lauri Myllykangas, drove home six of 10 runs, and smashed out a home run apiece.

Another second division club with playoff visions, Rochester Red Wings blanked Jersey City Giants 1-0 behind the three-hit pitching of Nube Kleinke. Rollie Stiles pitched seven-hit ball for the Jerseys, but a single by Estil Crabtree in the sixth scored the winning marker.

Newark Bears, off on another of their victory sprees, chalked up their fifth in a row by walloping Buffalo 6-4.

TOP + OSSERS In the Majors

JOE BOWMAN.

Joseph Emil Bowman, six-foot two-inch right-hander, now with the Pittsburg Pirates, but lately of the Phillies and the Giants, began his career as an outfielder on the Pacific Coast. His throwing arm, however, was remarkable and he turned to pitching.

For the first time in his big league career, Joe apparently is headed for a good season. Always a promising pitcher in the minors, Joe continually fell down upon reaching the majors.

Noted for his overhand delivery, Joe is currently pitching great ball for the Pirates and is one of their mound mainstays. Perhaps the fact he has become a regular pitcher has something to do with his showing this season. He likes work.

Joe's first baseball was with Pueblo in 1929. He was transferred to Portland and then farmed to Omaha and recalled. The Philadelphia Athletics purchased him in 1931. He was again released to Portland, where he won 23 games in 1933.

That record was good enough for the Giants and Bill Terry bought him. He pitched in 30 games, winning five and losing four. In 1934 he was traded with several other players to the Phillies for Dick Bartell.

With the Phils Joe won seven and lost 10 in 1935 and won nine and lost 20 last year.

Joe is 27 years old, bats left-handed, and was born in Kansas City, Mo.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR FOOTBALL CLUB

Chalk Talks For Prospective Players Expected to Begin This Week.

Orfuns' Rugby Club was re-organized for the 1937 season here last evening at a large and enthusiastic general meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Officers were re-elected, reports presented, a raffle to raise funds decided upon, general plans made, and an early training schedule agreed upon. Dr. F. C. Neal was chairman and some 35 enthusiasts were on hand.

Officers re-elected for this season were: President, L. M. Brooks; first vice-president, H. A. Cranfield; second vice-president, Vic Hamilton; secretary-manager, James Morley; treasurer, Walter Jackson. The officers will name an executive shortly, and a list of the honorary officers will be made out. The coach will be appointed at an executive meeting, to be held this Thursday night.

It was decided to begin chalk talks for prospective players later this week, and to begin outdoor training within two weeks in order to have the squad in good condition for the start of the grid season about six weeks away. A probable four-team grouping of Orfuns, Oshawa, Cobourg and a Belleville-Trenton combine, was mooted. A check-up on local grounds will be made at once.

The financial report was presented to the gathering. It showed the 1936 gate receipts to total $402.96 and a raffle to bring in $271.59, which with donations of $26.00 and cash on hand of $25.68, made a complete total of $725.22. Disbursements included $86.50 for outstanding 1936 accounts, equipment of $138.54, raffle coats $33.00, windbreakers and crests for players $240.60, referees' fees, $27.00, O.R.F.U. expenses $29.50, transportation $57.77, meals $83.60 and other expenditures of $112.96—a total of $722.97. A balance on hand of $2.25 was shown.

It was decided to run a raffle right away to gain sufficient funds to start the 1937 season properly. Possibly an outboard motor or a boat will be put up for a major prize. Some of the prizes donated already include: Mix-Master from the C.G.E., golf clubs and bag from the Pla-Mor sports store, Shirley Temple doll from the C.D.S., cord of wood from H. B. Taylor and Son, and $10 in flowers from Turnbull's Flower Shop. Further plans will be made at the executive meeting tomorrow evening.

SPORTS DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

IT COMES about that here tonight—unless the weather welshes—a ball game will be played by twilight in Riverside Park, commencing at 6.15 or so o'clock. This tussle is between Oshawa GM-men and the Peterborough Petes, but the home team will not be the home team. That is to say the visiting club will be the home team and the home club wil be the visiting team. All of which might be confusing if it were not for the fact that the game has been transferred here from Oshawa—owing to trouble getting grounds there tonight—and hence Oshawa will be the home team this p.m. These teams have put up some excellent jousts through the summer and will be in there playing for keeps this time, too. So it should draw a big midweek crowd.

* * * * * *

"WHAT do we have to do to win ball games?" Manager Fred Collins is figuring these days. Aside from a couple of bad pastings, just about all the Petes' losses this year have been tough ones to take. Either by narrow scores or ninth-inning rallies for the other club. Look at those two heart-breakers over the last weekend, the loss to Oshawa in Cobourg Saturday and the defeat in Kingston on Monday. The latter saw Jakafby twirl three-hit ball but lose a 2-0 decision. Sure, local errors have been costly, and yet the Petes have been getting the best infielding in the loop most of the summer. Fewer errors but much more offensive ones, it seems.

* * * *

AND when we get the pitching we fall down like an airplane in a spin with the bats. But when the club is getting a dozen or so safe blows in a game the local hurling is donating the other club with 16 or 18 hits! We haven't a great ball club, but on paper we have a pretty fair outfit. Yet the squad is well down in third place and battling bitterly to keep a nose in front of Napanee in the cellar. If the Naps ever pass 'em, the Petes are again out of the loop playoffs. And the schedule is nearly over. Playoffs will be starting within two weeks. Dunno if we'll see them or not, though.

* * * * * *

AS FOR tonight, both C.O.B.L. games are plenty important. The Naps play Kingston and they want a win badly as the Petes do 'gainst Oshawa here. Also the Ponies and GM-men are scrapping for the top slot and they want a win in a big way tonight. So we doubt if the Ponies will slough off to let the Gibbards romp through to a win—the Daleyites preferring maybe to have Napanee in the playoffs, owing to shorter distance—just yet awhile. We wouldn't be surprised to see some jockeying shortly, but hardly this eve.

* * * * * *

KEENE GALS couldn't field a full team at the Bowl last p.m. so they had to default to Westclox, though an exhibition game was run off and Keene capped a 6-3 win. Down in Cobourg last Friday, managers and umps disagreed over ground rules and peeved fans crowded the diamond—where Westclox were winning a 14-12 tilt—with police finally having to remove some of the nickel customers. It was a stormy struggle. The way things are now, just one game remains in this second half, a replay tie tilt between Omemee and Keene and it will be run off here this Thursday. Westclox are safe on top with Cobourg next and then Keene. If Keene beats Omemee then a Keene-Cobourg playoff will be necessary to break a deadlock, the winner then meeting Westclox for second-half honors. If Omemee wins, then it's Cobourg and ye Clockmakers in the sectional playoffs. Cobourg took the first half.

* * * * * *

UP AT Central last night, Westclox men softballers defeated the Motorists 8 to 1, in the first of the four-in-seven serial to declare an O.A.S.A. playdown team. No more in this series till next week, but these round-robin series games—for the Taylor Trophy—are listed for this week: Omemee vs. Young Petes here tonight, Young Petes vs. Westclox on Thursday, Westclox vs. Motorists on Friday, and Motorists vs. Omemee here Saturday. All games at seven o'clock, and Omemee has agreed to be here on time for these playoff tussles. Last night saw Westclox have one big frame to bat Shine out for the win. Naish and Strickland twirled nifty ball and both teams made it a swell scrap, aside from that one bulky inning.

* * * * * *

A FINE grid meeting here last e'en with some 35 gees on deck. They discussed things thoroughly and made a definite start in the work of re-organizing. Elected officers, made plans for a raffle, presented reports, discussed grouping an ddecided on early training. Chalk talks may start this week with outdoor drills scheduled for about two weeks from now. Looks like a four-team group, Orfuns, Oshawa, Cobourg and a Belleville-Trenton combine. Executive meeting will be held tomorrow eve when other matters will be cleaned up. These acting officers will run the club again: Prexy, Lou Brooks; first vice, H. A. Cranfield; second vice, Vic Hamilton; secretary-manager, Jim Morley; treasurer, Walter Jackson; with an executive to be named. Also a list of honorary officers. Dr. F. C. Neal presided last night. Probably Bill Turnbull will be re-appointed coach. Complete dope on the meeting is in tonight.

* * * * * *

AUBURNS' remaining home lacrosse games are: Friday (next) Norwood here, and Aug. 13th Belleville here. The locals play at Oshawa next Monday and with Belleville in Wellington at 8.15 (standard time) Aug. 11th. Also in Norwood on Aug. 17th. Then the playoffs. New Toronto would have played an exhibition tilt here Aug. 20th but the local officials decided not to run a counter attraction to the Peterborough Exhibition at that time. Bud Fisher is referee Friday. Emmett Creighton is out with a cracked rib and will be missed a lot as he is going good. A practise is called for tonight at seven with all players urged to be on deck. Following last week's games, the Auburns are out of the red financially and can now put by a bit of dough for playoff expenses.

RANGER FAVORED TO RETAIN TROPHY

Coveted America's Cup Held in United States Since 1851.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 4.—(CP)—Two races down to the fleet defender Ranger, Endeavour II, British challenger for the America's Cup, faced her third sailing engagement today with Harold S. Vanderbilt's craft which, in the opinion of yachtsmen here, remained an overwhelming favorite to retain the trophy. This opinion prevailed in spite of changes made in T. O. M. Sopwith's boat. Her trim has been changed. She was lightened of more than 5,000 pound of lead ballast yesterday in the hope the big blue invader would become a more formidable contender in the light weather prevailing off this port at this season of the year.

Ranger needs two more triumphs in the best-of-seven series to turn back the 16th attempt of the British Empire to recover the cup held in the United States since 1851.

The two previous races of the current series, Saturday and Monday, were won decisively by the defender with Endeavour II so far behind she was almost out of sight in the fog.

This yachting capital, meantime, took on a gala complexion in tribute to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth on her birthday. Custodian of the America's Cup, the New York Yacht Club ordered its members to dress ship on the fleet assembled here for the races.

H.M.S. York, flagship of the West Indies and North Atlantic squadron, dressed ship at sunrise and at noon will fire a royal salute.

The course for today's race will be 15 miles to windward and return, the same as last Saturday.

SMYTHE'S LEAFS TURN SOFTBALLERS

Hockey Gang Takes Part in Hastings Sports Day on August 11.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Aug. 4. — Connie Smythe's Maple Leaf hockey team of Toronto, will participate in the sports day to be held here in Hastings on August 11, according to latest information received from "Dit" Clapper of the Boston Bruins hockey team, who is acting as chairman of the Sports Committee here, it was learned last night at a meeting of the various committees held in the Clarendon Hotel.

The feature event of the afternoon performances will be a softball tournament in which teams from Keene, Havelock, Norwood and Hastings will take part. It was undecided at the meeting last night whether to match the winner of the four teams or to pick the outstanding players of each team in a final game with the Maple Leafs.

For the street dance in the evening, amplifiers have been obtained from Brighton. The dance will be held on the main street on the evening of August 11, commencing at 8.30, and will continue until 2 a.m. There will be one single fence enclosing the dance area, thereby eliminating two separate gate charges. Extra lighting will be added along with the colored lights which are a permanent fixture. For the entertainment of those who are not dancing, there will be games and refreshment booths. All proceeds are to be spent for the improvement of the park.

Westclox Defeated In Exhibition Game

Keene defeated Westclox girls, 6-3, last night at the Bowl in an exhibition softball game. It was listed as a scheduled game but Keene had to default when unable to field a full team, and the squads played an exhibition number instead. B. McDowell twirled four-hit ball for Keene as she fanned five and walked four, while getting good support. M. Snowden was nicked for 12 safe hits while striking out three and walking three. Her support was fair.

Hard and timely hitting gave Keene the verdict, especially in the fourth and fifth frames of the abbreviated contest. T. Mills of Keene hit a homer and single while Irene Short and M. Allison had doubles. Fielding features were supplied by A. Sturgeon of Westclox and T. Mills of the winners. The teams:

Keene: H. Nelson, ss; M. Selkirk, cf; M. Joyce, 2b; B. McDowell, p; Irene Short, c; T. Mills, 1b; M. Miller, lf; Isebel Short, 3b; D. Edmunds, rf.

Westclox Cops Playoff Tilt From Motorists By 8-1 Count

Bunch Bingles Off Shine in Third to Score Six Runs in Play-off Opener.

NAISH GETS WIN.

Westclox took and 8-1 victory over Motorists last night at Central in the first of the four-out-of-seven playoff series to declare an O.A.B.A. playdown team. A fair-sized crowd of fans saw the Clockmakers get six runs in a big third heat to cop the nod, the game otherwise being quite even and snappy. Aside from that six-run splurge the pitching was good on both sides, the hitting about even, but the fielding of the losers being wobbly in the first half. Westclox bunched their hits in the third.

Ted Naish hurled for the victors and scattered eight hits in a good mound performance as he walked four but had no strikeouts. His support was excellent, two double-plays helping him. Frank Shine started for Shortly Barrett's bunch but was nicked for two runs in the first and six in the third, giving way then to Bob Strickland. The latter hurled hitless ball the rest of the way in a fine showing while fanning one and walking one. His support was better than that shown Shine. The latter struck out one, gave 10 hits and one walk.

Lead At Bat

Bill Calladine and Starr led the Baptie boys at bat with two hits each. Playford, O'Leary and Dormer banged out triples. For Motorists, Weir, Strickland and McQuade led with two safeties each; there were no extra-base blows. Double plays, W. Calladine to Ellis, and Dormer to Ellis, with a nice catch by Starr to end the game were defensive features. Next game of this series may be played Thursday, but no official announcement was made at the conclusion of the first playoff tilt. The teams:

TORONTO SNAPS LOSING STREAK

Leafs Need Seventeen Hits to Nose Out Syracuse For 7-6 Victory.

CLEVER FIELDING.

MOUNT FOREST, Aug. 4.—Toronto Maple Leafs shaped their losing streak at six games here yesterday, but it took a total of seventeen base hits of various dimensions to edge out a close 7-6 decision in ten innings over Syracuse Chiefs in a scheduled international league game.

The teams put on a brilliant display of fielding despite the rough conditions existing in the outfield, while the better than 5,000 attendance, saw enough hits to last them for a week.

Three successive singles in the tenth after the first two men had been retired produced the winning run, although the Leafs had more than doubled the output of safeties gathered by their opponents during the regulation route.

Caldwell Holds Edge.

Earl Caldwell and Lefty George Hockette lasted the full game, with the veteran Leaf right hander having a distinct edge, outside of a rather disastrous fifth inning, which nested the Chief all their runs on five hits, a walk and an error.

BROKE TRAINING RULES

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—Speaking at the annual meeting of Aston Villa Football Club, F. W. Rinder, a director, declared breaches of training rules were a big factor in the team's descent to second league soccer.

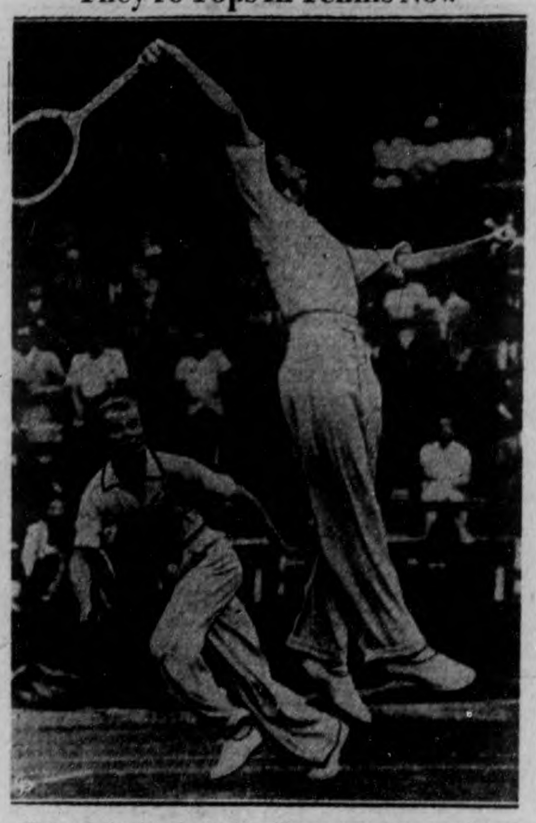
They're Tops In Tennis Now



King of the tennis world with a vengeance now, is red-headed Don Budge, who after winning the world's singles championship at Wimbledon was spearhead of the United States attack that took the Davis Cup away from Britain. Here is the lanky Californian on the Wimbledone courts playing in a doubles match during the Davis Cup zone finals, with his partner Gene Mako. Mako is rushing in to back up brother Budge if he misses that drive, but Don doesn't miss. That's why he's world champion.

Promoter Jacobs Forces Tommy Farr To Wear Headgear While In Training

LONG BRANCH, N.J., Aug. 4—(CP)—Tommy Farr, Welsh challenger for Joe Louis' world heavyweight boxing crown, went ahead with his training today pledged to wear headgear and a mouthpiece in the ring from now until he keeps his August 26 date with the dusky champion.

Promoter Michael Strauss (Uncle Mike) Jacobs, with an eye to the $60,000 he posted for Farr to come here for the bout and an equal amount he is said to have spent promoting the show, was responsible for this decision.

Farr has disdained headgear except on two or three occasions when he tangled with his spar mates. After these brushes he told newspapermen the gear "worried me so much I could not look after my boxing."

But uncle Mike wants all of Farr in the ring when the Welshman meets Louis at Yankee Stadium and yesterday he handed down his head-gear edict.

Rounding Into Form.

POMPTON LAKES, N.J., Aug. 3—(CP)—Joe Louis weighed 202 pounds on the scales of his Pompton Lakes training camp today and appeared to be rapidly rounding into trim for his title go against Tommy Farr, British challenger, August 26.

Oshawa Motors Here Last Time To-night

Oshawa GM-men and the Petes clash tonight (Wednesday) at 6.15 o'clock here in Riverside Park. It is a C.O.B.I. fixture but is Oshawa's home game, transferred here due to the Motor City grounds being unavailable this evening. It will be the last scheduled appearance of the GM-men in Peterborough, though they may be seen here in loop playoffs. The Petes are but one fast game up on Napanee and they need the win badly to keep ahead of the Naps in the race for a third-place playoff berth as the schedule nears its finish. Oshawa is only one game behind Kingston and is trying hard to take the top slot. A Kingston-Napanee game tonight will also have a decided bearing on the standing.

Over the holiday weekend, the luckless locals dropped two tough ones away from home, though they deserved a win in both cases. It is doubtful if Fresh Ash will be back in uniform tonight, so some more juggling of players may be necessary. Russ Kitchen is the logical starting pitcher for the Petes, while Jack Turner is likely to do the Oshawa flinging, since Biddle is away on a honeymoon. It ought to be a fine battle between these clubs—both hot after a victory—and should pack in a huge midweek crowd of fans.

DELORO BEATS C. G. E. TO LEAD SOCCER LEAGUE

First Four Goals Are All Smart Headers—Visitors Outplay Locals.

FINAL SCORE 5-2.

Deloro took the lead in the Peterborough and District Football eLague last night when they defeated the Canadian General by the score of five goals to two in a fast game that had many exciting moments throughout the 90-minute period. The first four goals were scored by clever headers before a foot had registered a counter. Deloro has only two more games to play—one with C.G.E. on the Smelter grounds and the final game with the Canada Packers.

Goals All Headers.

The opening exchanges proved interesting by the aggressive movements of the forwards that found the half-backs intercepting their attack at the logical moment, although Keith repeatedly broke through the visitors' defence to place beautiful centres in front of goal. O'Neill, Deloro custodian, picking the high shots with ease. Play ran from end to end at a rapid pace until a corner kick in favor of the Deloro team rewarded them with a smart goal when J. Hart headed the ball into the rigging below the crossbar to open the scoring. Sproule arrived at this point to complete the Deloro eleven and his presence was noticeable by his effectiveness in holding down a dangerous right wing, also making his left wing man travel into the C.G.E. area to test Chamberlain with all kinds of shots. O'Neill in the Deloro goal put up a brilliant display in goal as he handled shots from the foot of Ross and Mitchell at close range. A free kick against the Electris resulted in Chamberlain making a wonderful save. Brown headed back into goal, Burgess popped up to head the ball out of danger, but Brooks ran forward to head the sphere into the net. Toward the interval, the local boys opened up a steady bombardment to find the visitors relying upon three full-backs to hold them outside the scoring zone. After Keith had dribbled his way down the wing he shot the ball over to the other wing where Goodhue connected with a header. Deloro 2, Canadian General 1.

Adds Three More Goals.

On resuming, few minor changes in the C.G.E. line-up added vigor to the game, thereby giving Deloro half-back line every opportunity to nullify their attack whenever they move winthin sight of the goalkeeper. A break-away by Jack Hart on the left wing from a pass by Sproule along the line gave him an excellent opening to gain a successful cornerkick. He landed the ball into the top corner of the upright. Chamberlain grasped the ball out of danger, but not sufficient to prevent a Deloro player registering in below the cross-bar—another header. A few minutes later, Brown manoeuvered his position until he saw the opening and let drive with a left-footer that found the inside of the rigging. The C.G.E. went right back to reduce the lead through the efforts of Mitchell and Ross who slipped the ball back to his team-male who lifted the ball into the vacant goal after O'Neill had run out to clear his charge. The rivalry was keen thereafter, with both elevens being very aggressive which terminated in Townson, Cousins, and Smith putting on the moving barrier tactics. Brown dropped back in time to clear his goal with a long kick upfield. Brooks trapped the ball quickly to register the fifth counter. Time and again the C.G.E. forwards dominated the play; in fact, Burgess being the mainstay in attack along with Ross at centre, with Jimmie Mitchell battling hard to reduce the lead, wile Ben McMaster fell back to fill the full-back position and play te offside game. Deloro 5, Canadian General 2.

Yankees Add To Leadership With Double Win Over Sox

Gehrig, Dimaggio, Lazzeri and Dickey Click For Circuit Blows.

CUBS SETBACK PHILLIES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 — (CP). — They're there in the "clutch."—The Yankees.

A series for the American Baseball League lead, an all star game, or a world series gives many a team the blind staggers—but not Colonel Ruppert's boys in white. The Yanks just swing their bludgeons and bring home the bacon. They reserve their most momentous feats for days when the competition is tight and the stands full.

Employing their home run technique the Yanks blew down Chicago White Sox in both games of a double header, yesterday, 7-2 and 5-3, and pushed their league lead to seven games before 63,767 fans, the season's largest weekday crowd.

Home runs, trade mark of the Yankees since 1921, won both games. Bill Dickey hit his 19th with three on in the eighth inning of the second game to climax a bombardment that had begun when Lou Gehrig, starting his 1,903th consecutive game, shot No. 23 into the stands with two mates aboard in the first inning of the opener.

In between these two wallops the Yanks batting banditti, Joe Dimaggio and Tony Lazzeri took care of the scoring. Joe hit homer No. 32 with two mates aboard in the seventh inning of the first contest and Tony got one in each game.

Cubs Down Phillies

Chicago Cubs, with Bill Lee, Gabby Hartnett, and Frank Emarde hitting homers, downed the Phillies 4-1, as Lee hurled his 12 victory. The win gave the Cubs a seven-game lead over the Giants, who dropped a right one in the 10th to the Reds, 3-2. The Pirates picked up a game and a half on the Giants by beating the Dodgers 5-4, 10-4.

Bob Grove pitched the Red Sox to a 13-2 triumph over the Indians and Earl Brucker's homer beat the tigers for the A's, 2-1. The Senators shaded the Browns, 3-2, in the 12th on Johnny Stone's single.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. French, Toronto, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter Ethel Ruth, to Mr. Arthur Goheen of Owen Sound, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Goheen, Peterborough. Wedding to take place August 16th in St. Chad's Anglican Church, Toronto.

DIED

WILDING. Mrs. Margaret. — At Nicholls Hospital, August 4, suddenly, Mrs. Margaret Alice Wilding, widow of the late John Wilding, 596 Waterford street, 64 years of age. Funeral Friday, August 6, at 1 p.m., from D. Belleghem and Sons Funeral Home to Prospect Cemetery, Toronto.

IN MEMORIAM

FAULKNER.—In loving memory of Mrs. S. H. Faulkner, who died August 3, 1925.

What would we give her hand to clasp
Her patient face to see
To hear her voice, to see her smile
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife.
And clasp each other's hand once more
In Heaven, that happy life.
—Ever remembered by her Husband and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Percy Bell and family of Dummer wish to extend their heartfelt thanks to their neighbors and friends from the surrounding localities who so nobly helped at the time of their recent loss by fire, and to those who, later by their generous gifts, helped to partially replace that loss.

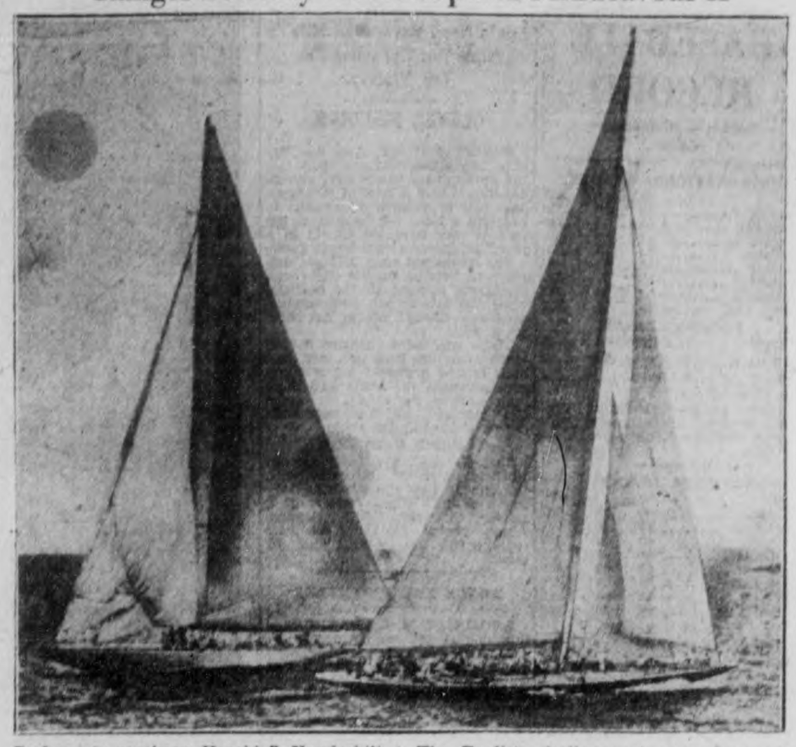
Ranger Soundly Trims Sopwith's Endeavour II



Perhaps in mockery, Harold S. Vanderbilt guides his Ranger, LEFT, within fifty feet of T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II, after the American boat took the first buoy in the first of the best four out of seven races for the coveted America's Cup, emblematic of the world's class J yachting supremacy. The English challenger is seen here approaching the buoy for the turn. She was a badly beaten boat in the first two races, being outdistanced by over 15 minutes on both runs. Light winds prevailed and the Endeavour is reportedly a slower craft in that kind of weather.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 49

It was three days before Garrett Warren was pronounced safely on the road to recovery. During those days Sandy fretted in jail, cursing anew his uncontrollable temper which caused him so much grief. Not only had it complicated his courtship of Marcia, but it had finally plunged him into a fix from which there might be no escape. He spent three days of terror such as he had never known, wondering if he was to be held responsible for the death of another human being. He could think no further ahead than that; to know whether or not Garrett would live, whether or not Garrett would live.

When he finally received the welcome news that the man was recovering and, furthermore, that he had refused to prosecute his tempestuous assailant, Sandy knew merciful peace.

Marcia waited only long enough to be sure Gary would recover and that Sandy was to be released, and then packed her bags for a much needed vacation. She was physically and spiritually exhausted, drained of all energy after the dramatic events of the last week.

Suddenly she felt a yearning for her grandmother, upon whom she could always depend for love and understanding. Sending a wire advising her of her proposed visit, Marcia prepared to close her apartment indefinitely. Listlessly she packed her drawing board and papers into the window seat, taking with her only a small portfolio containing proofs of the drawings for the book. With sudden thoughtfulness, she realized the little old lady at La Cresta would be proud to see this new evidence of her granddaughter's success.

Marcia phoned Gary's apartment at the University club to bid him farewell, and was touched when he urged her to "Come back as soon as you feel you can. We have so much to do; strictly business, you understand."

From the carefree tones of his voice she could never have guessed the heartbreak it hid, but she knew. She turned from the phone, hesitating only a second before she decided against calling Sandy. In spite of all Marie had said, she didn't feel there was anything more she could do to salvage their wrecked romance.

On the spur of the moment, she decided to invest some of her recent earnings in a little car, and hastily called a friend who sold used automobiles. Late that afternoon she "owned" a rather battered looking yellow coupe. Later the same day she pointed the little car toward La Cresta, racing its noisy engine in her impatience to reach her destination.

She wanted no time to think, no time to remember the unhappiness that had flooded upon her in the past weeks. Deep in her heart was a feeling that if she could have time to reorganize her life in the peaceful setting by the sea, she might find courage to go on.

But tearing along the familiar coast road, she thought again of the people whose lives had been entwined with hers during the past year. The men she found it easy to classify: they were either good or bad, with few contradictory features. Sandy and Gary were two of a kind: idealistic, honest, fine. But Abe Zimmerman—she turned her thoughts to him. Greedy for money, he was easily influenced by the tricky Hartley. She wondered where Abe had turned after having to forfeit his business.

If she could have seen Abe buying scrap paper and coining money through a paper-converting patent, she would have smiled. Abe always could make money out of things other people overlooked. Hartley she eliminated from her consideration. It was obvious the kind of no-good he was.

As a rule, the men kept their personal lives entirely separate from their business. But what of women? She saw them as a complicated group, no two alike, and swayed by a hundred different emotions. Usually they found it necessary to decide whether love or a career was more vital to their happiness; it was seldom they could do justice to both. There were only a few like Lona, who could make such a phenomenal success of both business and pleasure. Landers found her real life in the impersonal world of literature, while Mazie's workday never made any impression on those giddy hours after the office was closed.

She thought then of the intense, grasping Paula who was trying to wrest personal happiness out of her business world. Ellen was the strangest paradox of all, wanting one thing and then experiencing it, only to find it did not bring the much wanted happiness. Marcia herself was full of conflicting emotions, realizing too late that real love such as Sandy's was too necessary to be put off vaguely until some "tomorrow" which now would never come.

"Too bad there are no rules that can be depended upon to lead us down a straight and narrow path to happiness," she thought futilely, recognizing that so many different personalities could never be guided by any one rule. "we have to work our problems out by the old trail-and error method—and woe unto us if our errors are too costly." She realized then how steep a price she had paid when she'd insisted on putting her love off until she experimented with a career, and lost Sandy before she knew what she was doing.

She stopped once for lunch, and a little more than an hour later she recognized the familiar landmarks of La Cresta to the south. The tiny houses and the picturesque palms held a personal welcome for her, and she quickened her speed. Driving down the quaint little streets of the town she saw an occasional friendly face, and smiled in greeting.

Mrs. Madden stood by the gate as she drove up the incline toward the Great Palm Point, excitedly waving a wisp of a handkerchief in greeting. The girl tumbled from the car, and literally fell into her grandmother's arms.

"My, you've never been this glad to see me in all your life," the little old lady said in a puzzled tone. "It's a wonder you wouldn't come here more than once a year if you're so pleased to get here!"

Affectionately she gazed at the girl, now dusty and tired, but so obviously glad to be with her. From Marcia, her eyes traveled to the car she had driven.

"What in the world is that?" she said. "Reminds me of the old horseless carriage days, I declare."

"I'm just the bird from that gilded cage," Marcia said jokingly. Then more seriously she explained, "I was in such a hurry to get here, that I just bought the first thing I could see."

"It might have paid you to keep your eyes open a moment longer," the old lady said with a wry smile. "However, you got here, and that's one thing, in its favor. Come on in and let's talk."

Reclining on the comfortable old couch on the sun porch, Marcia took a deep breath. "I told you I'd come to you if ever I needed help, dearest. I think maybe I'm a little late because it looks as if I have made a terrific mess out of this whole year."

Mrs. Madden assured the girl of her understanding, "no matter what." Then wisely she urged Marcia to unburden herself for she realized that until her conscience was clear there would be no rest for her.

She was in turn indignant, furious and sympathetic as Marcia told her in disjointed sentences of her trouble at Acme, the blackmail that had made life almost unbearable, and the continual misunderstandings with Sandy that had contributed to her unhappiness. Finally, she revealed Paula's part in their romantic mixup and then she confessed the events of one last week in a rush of jumbled words.

"My!" said her grandmother. "My, my." She had no words to offer, but already her mind was sifting through the "evidence" to find some way to bring the errant Sandy back to her child. That Marcia's feelings had grown beyond the selfish love of almost a year ago, she felt sure. Anxiously, she groped for some clue that would help her bring these two stubborn hearts together.

It wasn't till later that evening when she was proudly exclaiming over Marcia's newest drawings, that a gleam of satisfaction showed in her bright blue eyes. Urging Marcia to retire early, she closed her door softly and stood looking at the pictures she held in her hand. Then with a happy smile on her face, she sat down at her spinnet desk and in her cramped penmanship she addressed a long letter to Andrew Knight, Esq.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S FUNNY NUT

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Ahem! E...use me, if you please!" Uncle Wiggily, who was again asleep in his hammock, but with stronger vine ropes on it than those gnawed by the Fox and Bob Cat, suddenly awakened as he hears those words.

"What—er—who did you—I mean hello!" said Mr. Longears.

The rabbit gentleman twinkled his pink nose, which always made him quite wide awake, and then he laughed as he saw standing near his hammock a cute little squirrel boy.

"Could you please tell me where Uncle Wiggily's camp is?" asked the little squirrel boy.

"It's right here. This is it," said the rabbit uncle. "But who are you? I don't believe I ever saw you before."

Left Alone

"I am Earlie, the new squirrel brother of Johnnie and Billie Bushytail," said the little fellow. "Buster and Custer invited us up for a few days. But I lost Johnnie and Billie in the woods. They ran off with Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, so I was left alone and I ran until I saw you in the hammock."

"Well, you ran to the right place," said Uncle Wiggily. "But it wasn't very polite of your brothers and those puppy dogs to run away and leave you."

"Oh, they didn't mean it," said Earlie. "I guess they would have come back to get me as I wouldn't be lost. But I didn't wait. Are my brothers and the puppies here yet?"

"I haven't seen them," said Uncle Wiggily sitting up in his hammock and making sure no Bad Chaps were sneaking up through the woods. "I didn't know Jackie and Peetie were also coming to my camp here at Blue Lake," said the rabbit gentleman.

"Oh, yes, they are," chattered Earlie. "Your rabbit boys, Buster and Custer, invited the puppies the same as they did Johnnie, Billie and me."

"Well, I'm glad they did," laughed Mr. Longears. "The more the merrier. Now do you want to swing in the hammock with me or play about until your brothers and Jackie and Peetie get here?"

"I think I'll play about," said the little fellow.

"All right, Earlie—I might call you Squirrie Earlie," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "It's a fine name. Well, have fun."

Surprise

So Earlie started to have fun and Uncle Wiggily went back to sleep in his hammock. He didn't have very far to go to sleep as he was hardly awakened by Earlie's visit. The little squirrel boy was wondering how he could have fun when, all of a sudden, something round and brown came swishing through the leaves of a tree overhead and fell near him.

"Or, what a lovely big nut!" chattered Earlie, running to it and picking it up in his mouth. "It's early for nuts. I'll go up in this tree, sit on a branch and gnaw off the nut shell. Then I'll eat the inside kernel."

Earlie with the thing he had picked up scampered up a tree over Uncle Wiggily's head. The noise he made awakened the rabbit uncle again.

"What have you there, Earlie?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, it's a funny nut I found," said the squirrel. Now as soon as he opened his mouth to speak down fell what he had in it.

"Ouch! Wow! Wouch!" cried Uncle Wiggily as it hit him on the nose. "That surely is a funny nut, Earlie! That's a baseball some of the rabbit boys were playing with. Oh! Oh! Oh!"

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" chattered Earlie. Uncle Wiggily forgave him for his nose really wasn't much hurt. And all was well.

And if the water pistol doesn't get its feet wet playing tennis with the golf club, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Jackie's collar.

HALL'S BRIDGE LADIES HONORED MRS. MARIA SHAW

Shower of Handkerchiefs is Given Most Faithful Member.

HALL'S BRIDGE, Aug. 4. — The Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. Tom Elliott recently to honor one of their oldest and most faithful members, Mrs. Maria Shaw, on the occasion of her birthday.

The president read the address and little Jean Hall and Bobby Gillespie presented a shower of handkerchiefs. Mrs. Shaw, though taken completely by surprise, very feelingly thanked her many friends.

The following address was read:

"Dear Mrs. Shaw:

"We, the members of the Ladies' Aid and friends, have gathered together this afternoon to wish you many happy returns of the day. As one of our oldest and best loved citizens, we could not let this happy occasion pass without showing our love and esteem for you.

"In our small community we have the advantage of better acquaintance and closer friendships, and we have found in you a deep Christian character, a strong and humble faith in Christ, which, with your cheery smile, has often inspired many of us as we conversed with you. In our gratitude and love we wish you to accept these small tokens of our esteem, and hope that they will often remind you of your many friends.

"Signed on behalf of your friends of the Ladies' Aid."

Following the address, Miss Elliott sang a delightful solo, after which a duet, especially dedicated to Mrs. Shaw, was rendered by Miss Rhea Snider and Miss Elliott, with Miss K. Snider at the piano.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Gillespie and Mrs. D. Montgomery, pouring the tea and using the tea service presented to Mrs. Elliott by Mrs. Shaw at the time of the former's wedding.

Trip With Girl 13 Held Kidnapping

ECTRA, Tex., Aug. 4 (AP)—A girl who said she was Olive Carr, 13, missing daughter of Earl Carr, a Tonopah, Nev. merchant, was picked up here today by Police Chief Walter Suttle.

Earl Wilson, 24, charged with her kidnapping in a warrant filed at Tonopah by the father, was held in jail at Archer City, Tex., after his arrest last night near Olney, Tex.

The girl said Wilson did not marry her after they left Tonopah together July 26. Wilson told Police Chief A. D. Grave of Olney they were married in Los Angeles.

The girl told officers she left home voluntarily but she seperated from Wilson after a quarrel yesterday. "I don't want to marry him now," she said, "and I am ready to go home."

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month.

You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

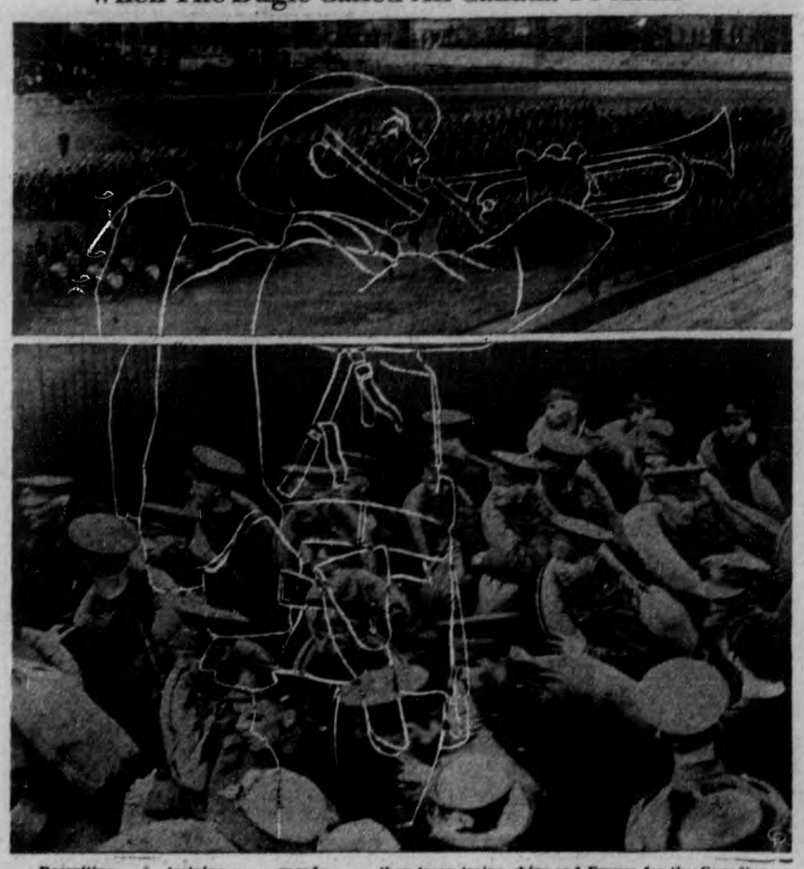
When The Bugle Called All Canada To Arms



Recruiting .. .. training .. .. parade .. .. then troop trains, ships and France for the Canadian warriors of 1914.

Twenty-three years ago to-day, Canada entered the Great War along with Great Britain and the Empire, and the bugle call to arms rang across the Dominion to summon hundreds of thousands of Canadians to the four years of struggle in France and Flanders. Though the fact of the declaration of war has dimmed in the minds of many Canadians and is but a vague shadow gleaned from school books to the younger generation, conditions in Europe, vortex of that struggle, are just as tense, as chaotic and as critical as they were on August 4, 1914. In many Canadian cities the only celebration of the 23-year-old anniversary will be peace meetings called to assert that the Dominion will never again involve herself in a European struggle.

Community Pasture Scheme Started In Western Dry Areas

Minister Proposes Farmers Finish Stock on Feed Grown on Other Land.

WATER TO BE PROVIDED.

By Sam G. Ross
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

REGINA, Aug. 4 (CP).—Development of community pastures to remove the farming population from sub-marginal lands as a start in re-establishment of drought area farmers was projected today by Agriculture Minister Gardiner as part of a three-fold program being carried out by the federal government to meet drought conditions.

This phase of the war with drought was taking form although the organization to handle it has not been finally completed, said Mr. Gardiner in reviewing the 1,500 mile trip through the drough area of Saskatchewan and Alberta concluded last night.

Experimental works to determine types of agriculture and development of small water conservation projects on individual farms are other parts of the program.

The rehabilitation plans built around community pastures had the objective of getting the population off sub-marginal lands under some form of organization to take care of maintenance, Mr. Gardiner said.

The government intends to reduce the farmers' overhead so he can obtain reasonable returns over a period of years through grain growing and livestock. It was hoped, said Mr. Gardiner, a formula could be worked out so a farmer could have livestock on the common pasture in summer and finish them with feed grown on other land.

The Present Snag.

At present the farmer growing wheat and raising live stock must add a large acreage for cattle in summer, said Mr. Gardiner. It was this large acreage for cattle that so often made capital cost so high the farmer was unable to carry on. Associations probably would be formed to direct the use to be made of pastures to give greater service to those concerned.

Variation of this plan which has been adopted, said Mr. Gardiner, provides for fencing in of land in suitable locations throughout the whole drought area as reserve pastures. "Much of the marginal lands are over-pastured and over-cropped and some cropped should never have been broken up," he remarked.

The reserve pastures will be fenced, re-grassed, and water stored on them. They will be kept out of use until they are needed to maintain work horses and breeding stock through periods such as experienced in the last six or seven years. A combination of the community pasture and small irrigation districts is being worked out in some places.

The idea, said Mr. Gardiner, was to encourage people to take up residence on land which could be irrigated and throw the dry lands into pasture. Activities in respect to this plan were taking large proportions, he said, and the demand probably would necessitate working out a central organization as well as a definite plan of control for each unit.

EMILIE SUFFERS MILD INFECTION

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 4—(CP).—A respiratory infection from some source outside the Dafoe hospital has affected Emilie Dionne, one of the quintuplets, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the quints, and Dr. Alan Brown, chief physician at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, announced after a consultation Tuesday.

Dr. Brown was summoned to Callander for a conference with Dr. Dafoe Tuesday. Dr. Dafoe announced last night that Emilie was not well.

"I called Dr. Brown, who has been medical consultant to the children ever since they were born," Dr. Dafoe said. "Although the infection did not seem particularly serious, I thought it best that we should investigate carefully and, if possible, trace it to its source."

After the conference Dr. Brown issued the following statement:

"I have examined Emalie and was able to confirm Dr. Dafoe's diagnosis of a mild upper respiratory infection from which she should recover in a few days.

Staff Pass Test.

"The staff of the hospital was examined and there was no clinical evidence of any of them harboring an infection. It is thus evidence that the infection must have been obtained from outside sources."

For the protection of her four sisters, Emilie has been isolated in a separate part of the hospital and has a nurse who attends her alone. The other sisters were not in the play yard as usual Tuesday because of rain.

Dr. Dafoe and Dr. Brown said they made a careful examination of all household members and the other children to determine source of the infection. In every case tests were negative and they believed the germs must have been taken to the hospital by someone visiting the quintuplets.

Cliff Chaplin thrilled the crowd by high-diving from the top of the swing bridge during the afternoon. Gate receipts amounted to $53 together with receipts from the midnight frolic the night previous of $22.50, making a total of $75.50. In the evening a softball tournament took place at the Athletic Park with teams from Hastings, Norwood, Havelock and Trent River competing. Hastings defeated Havelock 14-8, Trent River won over Norwood 8-7. In the play-offs Hastings and Trent River, the latter came off victorious with a score 9-13, carrying off the five dollar prize.

Painted Jungle Horse Okapi Reaches Zoo

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP).—Still a bit seasick—or perhaps it was the diet of milk, bananas and cabbage—an African Okapi, one of three of its kind in captivity got its first peek at New York today from a private pen in the Bronx Zoo.

The distinguished animal visitor arrived last night in the company of zoo director W. Reid Blair after a trying voyage.

The okapi—you couldn't have met one this side of a nightmare—looks like something from Alice in Wonderland. It has a purplish brown body splashed with purple-black stripes. Honest.

Natives call it "the painted horse of the jungle." And even scientists, those agile classifiers, can tell you only that it looks like a cross between a zebra and a giraffe.

The Bronx Zoo's okapi, a two-year old youngster, will weigh 400 pounds and stand about five feet when he reaches maturity, three years from now.

A swarm of bees attacked mourners at the grave during a funeral near Hebron, South Africa, but youths lit cigarettes and everyone stood still, and no one was stung.

Man 67, Weds Girl 11 Now Faces Perjury

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Aug. 4.—(AP).—Prosecuting Attorney Randolf Weber filed perjury charges today against William H. Grimes, 67, cotton picker as an aftermath of Grime's marriage last week to Mary Frances Alexander, who Weber asserted is 11 years old.

The girl, who weighs 52 pounds and is slightly more than four feet tall, was placed in the custody of juvenile authorities. Grimes was in jail here.

Weber charged Grimes gave the girl's age was 18 when he applied for a marriage license. The prosecutor said the marriage was performed last Tuesday in the woods by a preacher who refused to leave his task of hewing railroad ties.

ABERHART PLANS TO LICENSE BANK EMPLOYEES

17 MINERS HURT AS CAGE HOIST FALLS 400 FEET

One of Victims is Not Expected to Live—Two Others Break Backs.

12 MILES TO HOSPITAL.

Broken Bolt in Clutch of Lifting Machinery Believed to Blame.

PRINCETON, B.C., Aug. 5 (C.P.).—Princeton Hospital to-day treated 17 miners injured when a hoist cage in the Copper Mountain Mine, 15 miles south of here, plunged 400 feet to the bottom of its shaft yesterday. One man was not expected to live.

The accident was described by one of the injured as "an awful mess." Two men suffered broken backs when the cage, taking the men out of the mine at the end of the shift, crashed down the shaft. Princeton is 125 miles east of Vancouver.

Mike Cvetkovich of Princeton was believed to be fatally injured. Harold Hart of Anyox, B.C., was expected to recover although his condition was serious.

It was ten minutes after the cage fell before the rescue squad, headed by Tom Waterland, mine safety engineer, extricated the men, Archie McLean of Anyox, who suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, said.

The rescue crew, equipped with metal helmets, entered the shaft bottom from the lowest level. The men were carried out on hastily-constructed plank stretchers. The stretchers were lifted into a box-car and caboose of a work train which carried the injured men 12 miles to Princeton.

Trucks Pressed Into Service

All available trucks in Princeton were called to take the less seriously injured to the 50-bed hospital here. Two ambulances—one brought from nearby Blakeburn where 45 men were killed in a coal-mine blast seven years ago—took the serious cases.

For John Persin, who suffered leg injuries, it was the second mine in which he has escaped death in the last month.

Last month he was injured in a chute accident which brought death to his father.

William Jonson, and his son, Ray, working together in the No. 1 shaft, both were in the falling cage. Both suffered leg injuries.

"We started to go up all right," McLean said before he was lifted

RESCUE PARTIES TRY TO GET YOUTH

Trapped on Rocky Ledge Since Tuesday Evening Young Man is Injured.

MORLEY, Alta., Aug. 5 (CP)—Trapped on a mountain ledge, Humphrey Cooper, 21, of Calgary, watched rescuers toil up the hazardous rocky trail today seeking to bring him from his precarious perch.

Injured in a 700-foot tumble down the rocky face of End Mountain, the young mountaineer had been on the ledge since Tuesday night. He suffered severe scalp wounds and was unconscious for a time after his fall.

Scene of the mishap was near Camp Chief Hector, a Y.M.C.A. camp where Cooper had been spending his vacation.

Headed by a Swiss guide, three rescue parties were at the scene today, planning to throw a sling-stretcher on a rope over the cliff edge to bring the youth to safety.

John Kansen, of Regina, an experienced climber, spent Tuesday night with the youth, administering first aid, binding his head wounds, and left him a scanty emergency ration of food and water. Tired and nervous, Kansen returned to base camp, five miles away.

Before dark last night, Cooper shouted to members of the rescue party: "I am pretty good now, thanks to John."

An emergency camp has been set up. A doctor is there and a motor ambulance has been dispatched to Lodger's Cabin, five miles from the mountain base, the end of the roadway into the rocky district.

Mrs. Fred R. Cooper, the youth's mother, arrived at Camp Hector from her Calgary home last night.

Police Positive Renfrew Girl Murder Victim

Blows Upon Head Not Done By Cattle Coroner Believes

Reddish Stains on Nearby Stone Lead to Theory It May Be Death Weapon.

OUT PICKING CHERRIES.

Ontario Medico-Legal Expert, Dr. E. R. Frankish, Is Called In.

RENFREW, Ont., Aug. 5—(CP).—Ethel Hedderwick, pretty 13-year-old Renfrew girl, was criminally assaulted and beaten to death with a blunt instrument, an autopsy performed to-day on her body by Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert from the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, showed.

"Her skull was fractured and there were numerous abrasions on her body and she was criminally assaulted," Dr. Frankish said. He declined to give further details of his findings.

The girl was found dead Tuesday in a field where she had gone to pick choke cherries by a search party organized when she failed to return to her home. Rumors flew about the town an arrest had been made, but police denied anyone was in custody. It was learned one person had been questioned.

Dr. Frankish will also examine a stone discovered a few feet from where the Renfrew child was found Tuesday in a field near Carswell's Hill where she had gone to pick choke cherries. The left side of her head was bashed in, her jaw was broken and there was an abrasion on her left arm.

Whether the stone was the death weapon has not been established but, it was stated, there were reddish stains on it which police thought might be human blood. Coroner J. J. McCann said last night from his examination he believed there were traces of human hair on it.

Was Out Alone

Setting out alone to pick cherries against her mother's wishes the Hedderwick child was found hours later in the field by John Comba of Renfrew, who described the experience as "terrible; I will never forget it."

The girl was lying on her back when she was found and her left arm was drawn up over her head as though she was attempting to shield herself from an attack. Her clothing was drawn up and her undergarments were missing, it was stated.

Close by cattle and three or four young bulls were pasteuring but Coroner McCann discounted the theory she had been attacked by the animals. "No animal could have inflicted those injuries and directed all the blows to the head," he said.

"We are quite satisfied it was murder," said Chief Greer.

"Is there any suggestion of motive?" he was asked.

"None whatever," he replied.

"Have you anything regarding the identity of her slayer?"

"Nothing."

"Had she been assaulted?"

"No, I do not believe so."

Similar questions were put to Crown Attorney Johnson, and almost identical answers were given.

HUSBAND LOCATES HIS WIFE HANGED AND SON DROWNED

Unable to Explain Dual Tragedy—Left Them Happy in Morning.

NO INQUEST LIKELY.

TORONTO, August 5—(C.P.).—Unless police unearth further information in what they called the murder and suicide of a Toronto mother and her child, no inquest will be held, Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner, said to-day.

The body of Mary Trant, 24, was found hanging from a doorway of her home by her husband Patrick Trant as he returned from work late yesterday. In a bathtub was the body of their 16-months-old son, Torrance. He had been drowned.

According to police, Mrs. Trant had for some unknown reason drowned the child and hanged herself with two knotted baby's napkins. Trant himself could give no explanation for her supposed act. He said he left her in the morning smiling and cheerful; the baby playing on the floor.

Neighbors, called by the husband when he discovered the dual tragedy, said they talked with Mrs. Trant before noon and found her apparently quite rational. So quietly were the two deaths arranged, police said, that another family who live in the same house, knew nothing of what had occurred.

SOLDIERS FIGHT FIRE

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 5 (C.P.-Havas)—Two battalions of infantry were rushed here from Kiel today to combat a $2,000,000 dollar fire which broke out during the night in a leather factory. The soldiers worked throughout the morning transporting tons of material from the blazing building.

Sneeze-free Gaspe Is Safe From Hay Fever

QUEBEC, Aug. 5.(CP).— A 100-per cent "sneeze-free" refuge is in the offing in Quebec's picturesque Gaspe Peninsula for sufferers of hay fever and its equally irritable mate, asthma.

The Department of Agriculture has undertaken, with twin objectives, the task of driving out the main offender—a simple plant called ragweed, anathema to "sneezers" and scientifically recognized under the names of ambrosia artemisiifolio and ambrosia trifida.

Trifida is the smaller of the two varieties of the weed held responsible for 80 per cent of hay fever cases. It is the dust-like pollen from the plant, that causes the sizzling wheezes of hay fever sufferers.

Second aim of the drive, seemingly remote from hay fever and its cause, is the creation of wider markets for Gaspesian farm produce. Hence the reason agriculturists and not the Provincial Health Bureau are shouldering the burden of smothering few remaining colonies of the noxious weed on the peninsula. If the Department succeeds in eradicating the sneeze-producing weed, the hope is that at least 2,000 hay fever sufferers annually will visit the area seeking relief from their sneezing spells, thus creating better markets for the Gaspe farmer, whose lot in recent years has not always been the best.

Campaign to remove the weed from Gaspe Peninsula was inaugurated three years ago and has cost the government thousands of dollars. Activities have been centered in certain sections of the Peninsula, although the Province boasts of several other areas almost free from the weed.

Boiling water is to be conveyed from the hot springs of Iceland in pipes to Reykjavik, the capital, and open fires and chimneys will be abolished to decrease the fire danger.

Rockefeller's Brother Leaves $116,646,344

New York, Aug. 5 (CP).

AN accounting filed in Surrogate's Court yesterday showed that William Rockefeller, brother of the late John D. Rockefeller, Sr., left a gross estate of $116,646,344 when he died in 1922.

On Jan. 2, 1931, the date of the final closing out of the estate by the executors, the amount had grown to $128,168,735. On that date the assets were turned over to trustees of Residuary Trusts created under the provisions of Rockefellers will.

Painter's Wedding Stops Building Of Whole City

Vast Crew on $30,000,000 Job Drop Tools For Centre's First Ceremony.

FOUNDRY MAKES RING.

BAIE COMEAU, Que., Aug. 5—(CP).—Love is all powerful. Powerful enough, anyway, to hold up the $30,000,000 industrial project of building Baie Comeau, a modern city being hacked out of the wilderness on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River below Quebec, where newsprint will be manufactured.

For a time Saturday, work came to a dead stop as the community turned out en masse to celebrate its first wedding—of Miss Sophia Maynan of Montreal to Kurt George Hayden, boss painter on the vast construction project.

And for a time, all was confusion as the groom remembered he hadn't been able to get a ring. But the best man solved the problem by having the foundry make one of burnished brass shortly before the ceremony.

The married couple passed under an archway of hundreds of paint brushes and varied tools, before starting a brief, week-end honeymoon. Then the painters, construction men, engineers, drillers, woodsmen, cooks and the wireless operator went back to work.

YOUTH SURVIVES 700 FOOT TUMBLE

Swiss Guide Leads Rescue Party to Scene High on Alberta Ledge.

MORLEY, Alta., Aug. 5—(CP).—Headed by a Swiss guide, a rescue party set out from here last night for a ledge of an isolated cliff near Camp Chief Hector, Y.M.C.A. camp near here, where Humphrey Cooper, 20, of Calgary, has lain for more than 36 hours. Morley is 45 miles west of Calgary.

Cooper tumbled more than 700 feet down the rocky face of End Mountain over an outcropping of rock and on to the ledge while he was hiking 10 miles from camp.

For several hours his companions thought him dead. Then they heard his shouts, informing them he had laid unconscious for some time, he had suffered scalp wounds and he was hungry.

Rope available was not quite long enough to reach the youth. Word of his plight was taken to Constable W. P. O. Solloway of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Morley, and he called in Victor Kitcheres, a Swiss guide of Banff.

Taking with them a 200-foot coil of rope, the two set out for the ledge, a trip about 2½ hours by pony and foot from Morley. They also took some climbing equipment.

Still Speculating Over Election Date

Toronto, Aug. 5 (CP).

DATE of Ontario's next general election was the subject of as much speculation as ever today.

Back in Toronto after having conferred with his own Elgin constituency Liberal followers Tuesday, Premier Hepburn was expected to announce the date yesterday after cabinet meeting. But the Premier said nothing.

As reporters met him when he came from the cabinet session, attended by every minister, Mr. Hepburn hurried along refusing to say whether an election date had been discussed.

Both Liberal and Conservative political circles had expected an announcement and the majority of guessers named Tuesday, Oct. 5 as, the day. The Hepburn government was elected to power in a general election June 19, 1934.

Private Patients Thing Of Past In Prairie Dry Area Hospitals

Shaunavon, Sask., Aug. 5.

HOSPITALS would have to close up, doctors quit the drought area, if it were not for relief payments.

There are no private patients any longer. Municipalities are unable to pay for hospitalization of indigent patients.

As a result the Provincial Government, in addition to the regular grant of 50 cents per day per patient to all hospitals in the Province, is now paying 40 cents per patient per day to all hospitals in the drought area. Many hospitals are existing on such payments.

A number of doctors have already moved out, those that are left are living largely on Government payments which range as high as $75 a month, where their cash receipts are low and they have not sufficient on which to live.

RANGER LEADS SOPWITH YACHT BY WIDE MARGIN

Vanderbilt Almost Certain of Retaining America Cup Against Sopwith Challenge.

ENDEAVOUR HANDICAPPED.

British Yacht Gives Defender Early Advantage in Making Poor Start.

By Tom Horgan
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Argo, off Newport, R.I., Aug. 5 (AP)—Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger, heading for her fourth straight victory over T. O. M. Sopwith's America's Cup challenger, Endeavour II, that will end the current series for the yachting trophy, rounded the second mark in today's race over a 30-mile triangular course leading the blue-hulled British sloop by three-quarters of a mile.

Ranger jibed around the mark at approximately 2:54.56 p.m. EDT and set off on the concluding 10-mile broad reach for home.

Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Argo, Off Newport, R.I., Aug. 5 (AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, seeking to prevent Harold S. Vanderbilt from scoring his fourth straight victory with Ranger in defence of the America's Cup, got off to a bad start today when he sent his blue-hulled Endeavor II over the starting line ahead of the signal and was recalled and forced to start again.

This gave Vanderbilt, who needs only today's race to complete his successful trophy defence, an extensive initial advantage. His Ranger was well on her way before Endeavour could start again.

The challenger lost about eight lengths. It was the first time in cup history a contender was recalled for "beating the gun."

Today's start was in contrast with yesterda's, when Vanderbilt timed his getaway to the split second and crossed the line several boat lengths in front of the British sloop.

Sopwith came about and recrossed the line one minute 15 seconds after the defender. He then went over on the port tack to begin the 10-mile beat against a south-westerly wind that inaugurated the 30-mile race over a triangular course, and Vanderbilt, who had started on a starboard tack, immediately came about and covered him.

Half an hour after her disastrous start, Endeavor appeared to be footing faster while Sopwith gave the challenger her head in a spanking breeze estimated to be blowing at aproximately 14 miles an hour.

The Cutter Argo, keeping pace with the contenders, was doing 11.5 knots as an indication of the fast windward pace. There was a possibility that Ranger would shatter her second winward record, made by Endeavour I, Sopwith's first challenger, in 1934.

At 1.16 p.m. Endeavour began a short-tacking duel, coming about three times in five minutes. Ranger continued to cover her rival, holding safe a lead of approximately 400 yards.

Endeavour tacked nine times, averaging about two minutes between each such manoeuvre. Ranger covered the challenger every time, while establishing a lead of about a quarter of a mile.

Half Mile Lead

At 1.45 p.m. with the windward mark sighted, Ranger's lead had lengthened to at least half a mile and was increasing steadily.

Ranger set her big double-clewed Genoa jib and retained her staysail as she began the second leg, a 10-mile broad reach east by south. Endeavour also displaced her quadrilateral with a big genoa.

Wait Mother To Die To Save Unborn Child

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—(AP).—Physicians at the General Hospital here stood by to-day waiting for Mrs. Mary Boccassini, an expectant mother, to die so they may deliver her baby.

Mrs. Boccassini, 27, is suffering from tuberculous meningitis for which they said there is no cure.

The doctors told the husband, Dominick, of the situation and they would perform an operation as soon as death came to the mother, to save the child. They hoped the baby would arrive before the mother passed away.

The husband objected, telling the doctors that if the wife must die to let the baby go with her.

The physicians sought legal advice and the matter was taken before Judge Harry E. Kalodner. He decided when the time comes the operation can be performed. "Even an unborn babe has its rights," he said.

Cost Bank Managers $100 Year, Clerks 5 Drastic Regulations

All Bankers Would Be Regulated By a Provincial Credit Commission.

HEAVY PENALTIES.

Must Undertake Not to Disturb Property and Civil Rights of Citizens of Province.

EDMONTON, Aug. 5.— (CP).—Here are the main features of the Aberhart Government's bank bill:

Every bank manager and bank employee would be required to take out licenses.

Cost of a license: Branch manager, $100 a year; bank employee, $5.

Bankers would be regulated by the Provincial Credit Commission which will be set up within a week or 10 days.

When applying for a license, every banker would undertake not to disturb the "property and civil rights" of any resident of the province.

Licenses would be revoked or cancelled by the Credit Commission.

Cancelled licenses might be renewed through payment of a fee not exceeding 1,000 times the origianl ($100,000 in the case of a banker).

A board of five men, three representing the Social Credit Board and two nominees of the banker, would be set up when application is made for a license. It would supervise and control the bank until the license is garnted.

Penalties for not taking out a license: For a banker, $5,000 to $10,000; for a bank employee, $100 to $1,000.

Definition of banking was wide enough to take in trust companies, loan companies, finance corporations and possibly insurance companies.

An unlicensed banker would be denied access to Alberta courts "in repect to any claim, in law or in equity."

The Provincial Credit Commission would be empowered to pass regulations which must be observed by licensed bankers.

MINIMUM WAGE STRIKE SOLUTION GORDON CLAIMS

Telegraphs Hepburn Asking For Government Action in Textile Dispute.

WELCH DECLINES COMMENT

Declaring that action by the Ontario Government at the present time putting into effect the provisions of the new act providing minimum wages for male workers would solve the Peterborough strike deadlock, G. N. Gordon, K.C., telegraphed Premier Hepburn yesterday urging action in the matter. The terms of the act have been law since the last session of the legislature but machinery for administration is not yet functioning.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the setting of a minimum wage for the textile workers here would bring a prompt end to the strike," Mr. Gordon said. He commented that the act does not specify the minimum but provides for bargaining between organizations of more than 50 per cent of the workers in a company and the company, under supervision of the Industry and Labor Board, for setting of the minimum wage. It is quite likely the minimum set for a center the size of Peterborough would not be lower than $17 or $18 a week, he opined.

"At any rate, the minimum would be far in advance of what the Auburn and Bonner-Worth men have been earning in the past for most of them have been earning little more than $18 in two weeks," Mr. Gordon stated. "When the Board sets a minimum, the company will have to pay it or close up."

Declines to Comment.

Asked if Mr. Gordon's move in seeking institution of the new minimum wage provisions had the endorsement of the strike body as an attempt at a strike solution, Organizer Alex. Welch said yesterday he had no knowledge of the move and that he was not in a position to comment.

"Mr. Gordon has been working hard in the interests of the strikers and we are very grateful for his aid," Welch said.

The telegram which Mr. Gordon despatched to the Premier was as follows:

"If the minimum wage for men workers can be put into effect it would end the textile strike at Peterborough and return 750 employees."

No reply had been received at noon today.

Strikers continued this morning their policy of concentrating picket operations on the Bonner-Worth plant and had again a large turnout on duty at the early hours of the morning. No non-strikers of the plant staff presented themselves for admission. Members of the group of about twenty men who continued work at the Bonner-Worth through

STRIKE PICKETS BEAT MANAGER

Drummondville Head Attempts to Run His Car Through Lines.

WINDOWS SMASHED.

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que., Aug. 5—(CP).—Strike pickets stoned and manhandled Dominion Textile Company's Drummondville mill manager yesterday as he drove his automobile out of the big plant tied up by a walkout since Monday.

H. F. Nicholson, the plant manager, was cut about the face as glass fragments from the smashed windows of his car struck him. He was not seriously hurt.

Captain P. Dionne of the Drummondville City Police said Nicholson was driving out of the mill yard when his car's path was blocked by a group of strikers, members of the National Catholic Federation of Textile Workers. The officer said he drove straight at them, scattering the pickets.

As the car went by, they flung stones that crashed through the auto's windshield and a window. Then one striker, according to Dionne, leaped on the running board and seized the manager by the throat.

Bleeding from the cuts, Nicholson was dragged out of the car and searched. The strikers said they were looking for weapons, and when they found none, they let him drive away without further molestation.

It was the second outbreak of violence in Drummondville since the strike opened in six Quebec Province communities. Tuesday pickets clashed outside the mill with non-strikers, and one man went to hospital.

At the textile company's other strikebound mills in the Eastern Townships—in Sherbrooke and Magog—there were no disturbances yesterday. Both plants were closed down tight and ringed by patrolling strikers.

GERMAN BREWERS TAXED.

BERLIN, Aug. 5 (A.P.).—General Herman Goering ordered tax levies to-day against brewers, grain dealers, and the sugar industry to finance an increase in prices paid to growers of rye. Together they were assessed 75,000,000 reichsmarks (about $30,150,000) so rye production could be stimulated without an increase in the price of bread.

Windows In Office of Brockville Firm Broken By Strikers

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 5.—(CP)—A plate glass window in the door of the office section of the John B. Stetson Company (Canada) Limited where a strike has been in progress for nearly six weeks was shattered last night, together with seven panes of glass in other parts of the building. The watchman on duty in the plant reported stones had been used to break the windows shortly after midnight.

Britain Liable For Care Of Ex-Imperial Veterans

Power Claims They Are Extended Relief Same as Other Canadian Citizens.

PENSIONS DIFFERENT.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 (CP)—Contesting the attitude of a group of ex-Imperial soldiers that they should be the "financial responsibility" of the Canadian government, Pensions Minister C. G. Power has re-asserted the negative position he took some months ago in the House of Commons. In a statement issued last night, wherein the minister took issue with the resolutions of the body of ex-Imperials who convened at Brantford last week-end, Mr. Power enumerated many benefits which the ex-Imperial soldiers enjoy in Canada.

To all intents and purposes, men who lived in Canada prior to the war and who served in the Imperial forces receive the same treatment as former members of the Canadian army.

The principal grievance came from former Imperials who had come to Canada since 1924, Mr. Power indicated. Their position was that they should receive from the Canadian government the same benefits as Canadian ex-service men. The minister declared that the responsibility for these men, apart from the various forms of assistance extended common to other citizens, lies with the home government.

Not Up To Canada

"I have said, and I have no hesitation in repeating," declared the minister, "that so long as I remain minister of this department these last named should look to their own government and not to the government of Canada for any assistance in addition to that which they receive at the present time. They now receive municipal and provincial relief in the same way as any citizen of this country."

Mr. Power continued that, at the request of many Imperial ex-soldiers, he had presented their plight last year to the British ministry of pensions. These authorities had not given effect to his promptings. This was the body to which the ex-Imperials should present their case—a procedure that had been urged upon them also by Canadian ex-service men's organizations. The British pensions ministry operated its own department here in Ottawa, entirely independent of the Canadian pensioning authority.

Mr. Power's statement read:

In connection with the meeting of a new ex-Imperial soldiers organization held at Brantford and with a certain resolution passed at this gathering calling for a boycott of the minister of pensions because the minister during a debate in the

PRAIRIE FARMERS BEGINNING EARLY TO HARVEST CROP

RUST NOT SERIOUS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 5 (C.P.). — Crops are maturing rapidly over the Prairies, and with harvesting already started the 1937 season will probably equal the record for earliness established a year ago, said a crop report issues yesterday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

No material change is apparent in the general situation from last week, the report stated.

Heavy rains have caused considerable lodging of grain in Southern Manitoba. Except for late fields, rust will not seriously affect the wheat crop in that Province since the infection developed too late to cause much damage.

Output Above Average.

"The outturn for the Province is expected to be above average," the report said.

Some further deterioration has occurred in crops in North-eastern Saskatchewan as a result of continued dry weather, while in the North-western corner, recent rains have stimulated late crops and improved feed prospects. At best, wheat yields in the Province will be low, with a great part of the acreage yielding nothing but feed.

Crops are maturing rapidly in Alberta, where July rains replenished failing moisture reserves and gave new life to crops which showed little promise beforehand. While yields will be below average, fairly good commercial crops are in prospect over much of the Province.

Hail has caused losses at a number of points in the three Provinces, and while serious in localized areas, the damage on the whole has not been unduly heavy. Grasshoppers, army worms, and wheat stem sawflies have all taken toll of the crops with a possibility of the latter doing considerable damage in Southern and East-Central Alberta.

Rains Cause Lodging

Following are detailed reports by Provinces:

Manitoba: With harvesting now fairly general throughout the Province, Manitoba crops will soon be beyond danger of further menace from rust, insect pests or inclement weather conditions.

Heavy rains last Saturday caused considerable lodging of crops in the southern areas, and harvesting of these fields will be difficult. While rust infection is widely distributed it was late in developing, and early

SLEEK AYRSHIRE COW ESTABLISHES 4 WORLD RECORDS

Produces 31,158 Pounds Milk, 1,356 Pounds Fat With Average Test of 4.35 P.C.

OWNED NEAR DUNDAS.

(By Ken. W. MacTaggart.)

DUNDAS, Aug. 5. — While Hon. Duncan Marshall, officials of the Federal Live Stock Branch and executives of cattle breeders' associations watched, a sleek Ayrshire cow on the farm of F. C. Biggs & Sons last night placidly chewed her cud while a deft-handed herdsman squirted streams of her milk into a foaming pail and established four new world's records for milk and butter-fat production.

Records previously held in Scotland, England, and Canada fell when Jim Hardie, herdsman on the Biggs Glen Campbell Farms finished the third milking of the 365th day of the test in which Ardgowan Valda Imp not only set records for her breed, but established a new world's record for fat, ousting another Canadian cow from that pinnacle. The record was established on three-times-a-day milkings.

Over a Ton a Month.

For the past twelve months the placid little cow, who is almost a pet among the big herd of pure-bred cattle on the farm, has produced more than a ton of milk every month. In one month she produced 313 gallons of milk and for every day of the first six months of her test she averaged more than ninety-six pounds of milk, or approximately twenty-four quarts.

The new world's records which Ardgowan Valda has set are the Ayrshire record for milk, the Ayrshire record for butterfat, the Ayrshire record for milk and butterfat on three milkings daily, and world's butterfat record, all breeds.

Last night her record was officially approved by the Dominion Live Stock Branch as follows: 31,158 pounds of milk and 1,356 pounds of fat, with average test of 4.35 per cent. butter fat.

To the average milk consumer these figures may seem vague, but it means that this new pride of Canada's dairy world produced enough milk during the past year to give sixty-eight children a pint of milk every day. The value of her production, estimated only on the basis of the wholesale price to the producer, was about $650.

Garlanded With Flowers.

Yesterday Dr. Herbert Bruce, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, came to the farm to visit the famous little cow whose achievement had become known throughout dairying Canada during the past few weeks as it became evident that she would easily surpass previous records. And the crowd of officials that surrounded the white stall during the milking made the occasion seem like the coronation of a queen.

And there actually was a coronation. As Jim Hardie extracted the last little squirt of milk, and as W. G. Owen, R.O.P. tester for the Live Stock Branch, weighed the pail of milk and announced that Valda had delivered sixteen pounds of milk, bringing her total for the day to eighteen quarts, President W. C. Thomson of the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association stepped forward and hung a huge garland of flowers around her neck.

MINDEN FARMER LOSES HIS BARN

Crops and Some Machinery Are Destroyed in Fire at Andrew Stevens'.

LINDSAY, August 5.—Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the barn and two outbuildings on the farm of Andrew Stevens, north of Minden, on Tuesday. The fire had gained considerable headway before it was noticed. Besides the buildings, the season's crop and some machinery was also burned. The loss is a heavy one as it is understood very little insurance was carried.

The dump truck which was stolen from a local yard late on Saturday night, was found in a garage at Dunbarton. Charles Hopkins, of Toronto, who was charged with the theft of the truck, appeared before Magistrate Langley of Peterborough, on Tuesday, was remanded in custory until Friday.

Allan Byers, aged ten, who resides near Beaverton, stepped in front of a heavily laden truck on the highway on Tuesday, and was knocked down and badly crushed. He was rushed to the hospital.

A Peterborough solicitor has written Lindsay council on behalf of James Healy, town, threatening the municipality with legal action if steps are not taken to construct a sewage disposal plant.

Richard Kirkwood, of Minden, was brought to Lindsay hospital this week, suffering severely form the sting of a bee. Mr. Kirkwood was working in the field when the bee stung him on the inside of the ear.

MAKE FIRST STEP GROWING NEW EYE

Amherst College Expert Changes Bit of Newt's Tail Into Acrystalline Lens.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Aug. 5.—(AP).—The first step in growing a new eye in an adult animal is reported here by Dr. E. O. Schotte, of Amherst College, in the Collecting Net. He changed a bit of Newt's tail into a crystalline lens. Newts are a species of salamander. These newts were adult, a fact which adds to the impressivenes sof the achievement.

Newts have the ability to grow tails when the old ones are cut off. But they never grow new eyes. Dr. Schotte removed the crystalline lens of a newt eye and planted in its place a bit of tissue from a newly growing tail.

In the eye this tissue continued to grow, but it was not longer newt tail. It developed into a "well formed crystalline lens."

Two of the changes which took place are known. The eyes of these animals contain an unidentified chemical which has the power to form eyes from sufficiently young embryonic tissue. New tails furnish that kind of tissue.

Newts are not the only animals capable of this. Dr. Schotte did the same thing with eyes of adult salpoles. The chemical which can fashion an eye is known to exist in many animals.

It appears from Dr. Sachotte's report that at least a wide variety of embryonic tissue has the ability to be changed into an eye if put in the right place. This same tissue may develop into a different organ if placed where the chemical that directs the fashioning of the other organ, such as a leg or ear, can work on it.

Human beings, it is assumed, develop with aid of these same chemicals before birth.

No Softies Say Refugee Basque Girls; Drag English Sisters Around By Hair

London, August 5 (AP).

BRITAIN'S Basque refugee guests from the Spanish civil war brought new trouble today—this time it was the little senoritas.

Two of the English girls were dragged around the room by the hair.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM GEORGE PENDRIE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Aug. 5.—The death of W. G. Pendrie, which occurred with startling suddenness of Saturday evening, July 31, removed another life-long resident of the community, and one who had won for himself a high place in public esteem.

Deceased was born in Millbrook eighty-one years ago last March, and was a son of the late William Pendrie, and his wife, Sarah Timms, early Irish settlers in the village.

The late Mr. Pendrie followed his father's calling as a contractor, but for several years past home duties and gradually failing health, had compelled retirement from active business. He had a life-long connection with the former Methodist, and the United Churches, and was widely known for his sterling Christian character. His wife, whose maiden name was Elizabeth Krieger of Cobourg, predeceased him, her death occurring last October; they had no family. One brother, Fred W. Pendrie of the well-known firm of Fowler and Pendrie, Millbrook, is the only immediate surviving relative; previously deceased were one brother, John S. of Rochester, N.Y.; and six sisters, Mrs. (Rev.) William Buchanan (Mary), of Lethbridge, Alberta; Mrs. Albert Payne (Eva) of Millbrook; Misses Annie and Lillie Pendrie of Millbrook, and Mrs. T. W. McIndoo (Emma) of Fairmount. There are a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral, which took place from his late residence, King street east, on Wednesday at 2.30 p.m., was largely attended, his pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, conducting the service. The pall-bearers were: Jas. Hutchison, J. A. Brown, H. E. Allen, R. E. Stanton, W. F. Fallis and W. H. Coombe.

Interment was in the family burial-plot at Gardiner's cemetery.

MARGARET LUELLA BROWN.

NORWOOD, Aug. 5.—The death occurred suddenly on Friday evening, July 30th, of Margaret Luella Brown, aged 9 years, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Brown.

About two weks ago Margaret had the misfortune to injure her knee, but she appeared to be recovering nicely when she was suddenly taken ill and despite all medical aid passed away in Nicholls Hospital.

She had a kindly, cheerful disposition and was loved by all whom she met, so much so that her demise has cast a gloom over the whole community. Her happy smile which she always had for all her friends will be an everlasting memory to her friends.

There are left to mourn her passing, her sorrowing parents and two sisters, Betty and Jean, also her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Patterson.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon from her late residence and was attended by a large cortege of relatives and friends and neighbors. The service was conducted by Rev. A. S. Cleland of Norwood United church. Mrs. Rork Ferguson sang 'Listen to the Voice of Jesus,' which was a favorite of the deceased.

Father McFadden, who also said the prayers at the grave. After the Mass the remains were laid to rest in St. Luke's Cemetery, Downeyville.

The late Joseph Milaney was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Milaney, formerly of Downeyville but now residing in Alberta, was born and educated here and lived here until some years ago he moved with his parents to Peterborough where he resided some time, later going to Toronto. THIS MUST STOP!

The appalling loss of life and frightful injuries caused by reckless driving in Ontario must stop! Motorists have been requested to be courteous on the road, but the death toll still mounts at an alarming rate. Reckless drivers must be dealt with according to their deserts, and to the laws of this Province.

A reckless driver who causes death or injury is a criminal—just as much of a criminal as a thief; for reckless driving is illegal. Cutting in, passing on hills, excessive speed, driving slowly in the centre of the road, and all the other breaches of safe driving are to cease.

RECKLESS DRIVERS BEWARE!

Ontario has an internationally famous highway police force but they cannot be everywhere. Most accidents occur out of sight of the police. We therefore ask with all sincerity for the co-operation of public-spirited motorists to report to this Department instances of reckless driving. It is your duty to help check this wicked slaughter —deaths that could be avoided, and the maiming and crippling of healthy men, women and children.

Here is what to do!

When you see a motorist driving in a manner dangerous to the public, take his number, make a careful note of the actual time and place and when you reach your destination write to the Motor Vehicles Branch, Department of Highways, Toronto, giving full details. We do not invite reports of minor infringements of the traffic laws; you are requested to use sound judgment. We will deal adequately with offenders.

Digging Themselves In

The fact that the local textile strike seems to have settled down into a state of trench warfare so to speak, with both sides digging themselves in and apparently preparing for a long siege is not to be accepted lightly by the citizen who realizes just what is involved. The trouble with this kind of a struggle is that everybody loses and by everybody we mean just that and not merely the company on the one hand and the strikers and their families on the other. The situation is that when six or seven hundred workers lose their incomes, they also lose their purchasing power and consequently the butcher, the grocer, the baker, the milkman, the landlord, the merchant find their books registering losses. The whole community in short suffers.

Raising relief funds for those who are on strike does not solve the problem, although it is a necessary thing and will help to ameliorate the worst feature of the trouble. What should be sought and sought in every way possible is the settlement of the strike at the soonest possible moment for the vital thing is to get people back to work and the plants back into production with the minimum amount of delay and loss. Every day lost means a dead waste. That is why the present spectacle of the trouble apparently developing into a drawn out struggle in which in the long run there will be no real winner is disquieting.

A Heavy Burden

A report issued by Finance Commissioner George Wilson giving the cost of direct relief in Toronto during the period 1930 to 1937 shows how great has been the burden of taking care of the thousands of folk who were caught in the downward surge of the great depression and bewildered and helpless, found themselves without jobs and without incomes. Mr. Wilson states that the total cost in that period was $46,274,169, which not so long ago would have made a very respectable budget total for Ontario and had the whole load been piled upon the shoulders of the Toronto tax payers, it is not difficult to imagine that the relief list would have been speedily increased by the addition of those who found the strain too great. Federal and provincial governments have of course taken up a large part of the load but nevertheless it has been necessary for the Queen City treasury to come through with the sizable sum of $17,087,392 to provide food and fuel and shelter and other necessities of life for thousands of citizens who were unable to furnish those things for themselves.

That is a big jump from the days before 1929 when anyone who ventured to predict that within the next ten years Toronto would have to provide well over seventeen million dollars to keep thousands of folk from starving to death in a land of plenty would have been regarded as insane. The burden, fortunately, is growing lighter and Toronto's taxpayers in looking back over the depression years have at least the satisfaction of knowing that the job was well done and that the horrors of such a period were mitigated by the public money that was spent.

Keep Him Off The Highway

Toronto papers have been giving the record of a motorist in that city who seems to have given all other reckless drivers a mark at which to shoot. In three years this individual has managed to get himself convicted ten times for offenses under the traffic act. His insurance has been cancelled twice, his license was automatically suspended and then both insurance and driving rights were twice restored. He was mixed up in two accidents and on his tenth appearance in court was found guilty of driving 70 miles an hour on the highway and the evidence was that for most of the time he was driving on the wrong side of the road at that. And he escaped with a $10 fine.

This man has been referred to by one newspaper as a problem. There should be no problem about such a case. Surely he has demonstrated by his repeated and reckless disregard of regulations that he is not a driver of the type that should be allowed the privilege of operating a motor vehicle on the highways of this province. The only safe and sane way to do is to regard him as temperamentally unfit for the responsibility of handling an automobile and to suspend his license permanently. On foot he may be an exemplary citizen but at the wheel of a car he is obviously a menace to the safety of the public and he should be treated as such. A ten dollar fine after nine previous traffic convictions is merely trifling with the matter. People who are dangerous when they drive must be handled as any other danger would be; that is they must be taken away from the machinery that makes them dangerous. Any other plan is merely providing them with an opportunity to go out on the highway and kill somebody.

These Are Nice Figures

Figures are usually dry reading but there were some returns released at Ottawa the other day that Canadians should find interesting and encouraging. They were contained in a report issued by the Bureau of Statistics and they showed that in the twelve months ended June 30 Canada's external trade had shot upward to $1,851,365,000 which was a gain of 23.8 per cent. over the total for the preceding twelve months.

That is a worthwhile increase and it explains why relief lists have been shrinking and employment totals increasing.

The world is buying many million dollars more of the things we make and grow than it did in the slump years and that means of course more work for Canadians everywhere.

With our exports rapidly climbing to the two billion dollar mark, the outlook in this particular direction, must be regarded as particularly rosy.

If at the same time we were assured of a bountiful crop in the prairie provinces with a chance for the hard-hit folk out there to get on their feet once more, the picture would be the brightest that has been presented to Canadians in many a year.

Unfortunately that is impossible for it is certain that relief on a large scale will have to be provided for thousands of our fellow Canadians in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

There is however the satisfaction of knowing that our sharply increasing export trade is going to make it that much easier to provide the assistance the people in the West will require.

Man And His Collar

Is it too much to hope that something is to be done to put man on an even footing with the fair sex in the matter of sensible clothing for heat wave periods? The thought is suggested by the announcement that health authorities at Washington who should be well acquainted with the discomforts of hot weather blame masculine costumes for some of their discomfort. Uncle Sam's public health service would change the summer styles in men's clothes to eliminate collars. The collar, it is said, stifles the body's thermostatic machinery. Without a collar, the health experts say, a man might be able to perspire pleasantly and keep reasonably cool.

It is solemnly alleged that women are wiser in dressing lightly for warm weather. Nothing of course is said for safety's sake about what a woman wears, or doesn't wear when the temperature drops down near the zero mark. Then a man's shirt and coat collar become defenses against the bitter breezes that sweep down from the vicinity of the North Pole. But he wouldn't get so hot under the collar in the summer if he didn't wear one.

Rather grudgingly the health service admits that men are learning sense, though slowly. Modern garments and fabrics for masculine wear are an admission that it is much warmer in summer than in winter and that the shedding of an overcoat or even heavy underwear is not enough. But man still submits his neck meekly to the collar and tie. So for that matter would woman if Dame Fashion said she should.

The New Tourist Camp

Citizens will be glad to learn from the statement of Ald. Walter Stocker that the newly opened section of Riverside Park, in use as a tourist camp, is also available to local citizens. The impression seems to have been created that the place was only open to tourists and there has been some criticism at the apparent fact that in order to provide accommodation for summer visitors the only section of waterfront, except Inverlea Park, remaining in public possession, was being shut off so far as local citizens were concerned.

Peterborough folk, asked to remain off that section of Riverside Park while construction work was being done and a grassy sward was being cultivated, did so cheerfully because they could visualize the day when this pretty spot would be thrown open to the public as a delightful resting place during the summer months. This year, when the work was completed the park was thrown open but apparently only for the benefit of motor tourists looking for a place to camp and while local citizens did not want to appear inhospitable they felt that some arrangement could have been made to provide tourist accommodation without having to deprive Peterborough people of the free use of a beauty spot that should be available to the public.

It is gratifying to learn that there has been no reason for this criticism and that the park alongside the river is at the disposal of local citizens who may desire to picnic or rest there. There is no desire on the part of the council to shut the public out and the mere fact that tourists are welcome does not interfere with the right of our own folk to use the park when they want to do so. And that is as it should be.

August Harmonies

Swallows on the rural telephone lines twittering to their young brood, and lustrous hedges of goldenrod along the split rail fences!

Fledgling nighthawks uncertain yet of wing, and young waterfowl splashing around in the weedy arms of the river!

Stubble in the wheat fields, and the sound of reapers in the oats and barley! August is bringing fruition to the summer. The wild choke cherries are ripe, and the grapes are filling. Beech trees are studded with a heavy crop of nuts, and the squirrels and chipmunks must know that their October labor of storage for the winter will be a light and agreeable task.

Barns are filling with fodder and grain, and field mice fatten on the seeds that fall from the harvest. Here and there in the woods acorns drop, counting in their immemorial way the hours that pass with the shortening days. The pulse of outdoor life is gradually losing the strong beat of the Springtime, and the static season of autumn is approaching. But, morning glories, dewy and fragile, open brightly to the sun, weaving their spell of summer's illusion and desire of permanence.

The year is bringing its fullness in these indecisive days that imperceptibly but surely mark its decline while still the robins sing and the goldfinch bends slender flower stems gathering seed for its young. August days are illusory for after the harvest comes the turning of the soil for another planting, and the hauling home of wood for winter's fires.

NOTE AND COMMENT

These are the days when newspaper men write gravely about spinnakers and luffing and jibing etc. just as if they knew exactly what all those words mean.

Hamilton barbers expect to be operating under a code soon. That of course will prevent some of the tonsorial artists from shaving prices.

If Mr. Hepburn is superstitious at all he will take some satisfaction out of the fact that Earl Rowe's race horses are getting beat occasionally.

Already Callander folk are dreading the day when it will be said of their village that it is the place where the Dionnes used to live.

Winnipeg has a plague of mosquitoes and claims the insects are foreigners. When they begin to attack however they probably act as if they were right at home.

Hon. Norman Rogers says that the need for 100 per cent. relief in the drought areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta is painfully obvious. The whole picture is painted in that one sentence.

It is said that Freddie Bartholomew will return to England so that he can grow up like a normal boy. It must be admitted that would be a difficult task in the Hollywood atmosphere.

Members of a group of Seventh Day Adventists have been fined in Germany for baptizing their children by total immersion. Liberty seems to have been effectively killed by the Nazi regime.

They are talking about lighting Ontario highways to prevent accidents. But before that is done we should do something about teaching folk to drive safely in daylight.

Anyway if Mr. Sopwith should decide to make another attempt to lift the America's cup he should have no trouble in getting experts to advise him. The newspapers are full of them these days.

They unveiled a statue to a champion cow at Woodstock but many rural critics claim the sculptor blundered because he did not include in his design a milk pail for the animal to kick over.

It seems to be a reasonable assumption that the America's cup will remain in America at least for another few years—and possibly longer than that for Lipton and Sopwiths do not turn up every year.

A Chicago visitor says that Premier Hepburn's reputation stands very high in the United States. The unfortunate part about that from the premier's standpoint is that the folk over there have no votes in Ontario.

In spite of all the efforts of the British Government to bring about safer traffic conditions, highway accidents in Britain have increased during the first half of this year with 3,018 deaths which is 160 more than for the same period a year ago.

BEREAVEMENT

He's gone!
And I won't see him run to me,
As I approach the old oak tree—
His tail a-sway with welcome warm,
As I return home to the farm.
When all my loved ones draw me near
And say they're glad to see me—Queer!
A lump within my throat will rise
When I won't find his jealous eyes.
And when I fetch the cows again—
That loved stroll up the pasture lane
Will be a lonely one, without
His glad pink tongue and cheery shout.
I know that I won't want to rest
If I can't feel his cold nose pressed
Against my own—his sleeky head,
When I lie on the sofa bed.

He's gone!
I wonder when I go away,
Will someone grieve for me this way—
If eyes will miss me and be dim,
The way mine are to-night, for him?

"THE Saga of American Society" is an unusual book recently published, brimful of information, entertainment and wit, inwhich the author Dixon Wechter, youthful English professor at the University of Colorado throws some new light upon American personages. For instances this interesting publication points out that even the Father of His Country was not without the elements of snobbery in his character. General Peter Muhlenberg reported that until he laughed Washington out of it the first president wanted to be called High Mightiness. And there is the case of Mrs. William Bingham, an early Senator's wife who introduced the European custom of having a flunkey announce guests — and thereby embarrassed the fifth President-to-be. "Senator Munroe" yelled a door lackey when James Munroe arrived at her house. "Coming" yelled the Senator. "Senator Munroe" bawled another lackey further down the hall. "Coming as soon as I can get my great coat off" retorted the harassed legislator.

They knew how to entertain in the grand style in the old days. At Delmonico's in New York in the 70's a German banker spent $10,000 on a party for 72 guests. Table embellishments included a pool 30 feet long on which four drugged swans glided gracefully until the effects of the narcotics wore off, after which they fought a hectic battle. The cigarettes smoked by guests at another dinner consisted of tobacco rolled up in $100 bills, each engraved in gold with the initials of the host.

Sir Percy Bates, White Star Line chairman says that he is more interested in having the company make money than he is in having the Queen Mary endeavor to recapture the speed championship from the Normandie. The executive who was in Canada recently on a fishing trip said that he was more concerned with making money than with wasting it. "That's what we and our competitors are in business for" he said.

Ten million persons are supersensitive to tiny particles in the air they breathe or to everyday foods. It is a run-of-the-mill occurence when a patient drops into his doctor's office and complains of red irregularly shaped blotches on his skin. Anything from duck feathers to chewing gum may speckle the skin with these rashes. Research workers have been trying for years to transfer human allergies to experimental animals but until they finally succeeded a short time ago in setting up a rash on a monkey, by feeding it peanuts after taking blood from a person sensitive to the goobers and injecting it into the skin of the abdomen of the animal, their efforts were in vain.

Mass Farm Production Methods.

According to an American commentator nearly all branches of the farm-equipment industry, enjoying their best business in years are planning to switch to low-price, mass-production methods in the hope of tapping the vast unmechanized farm market. On the horizon are said to be tractors for less than $500, a small combine for $250 or less and a combination tractor-cultivator - harvester - plow - planter for $900 to $1,000.

Conservatives in the Republic of Colombia got the jitters recently when a bitterly anti-administration paper excitedly "revealed" that President Lopez's government was secretly buying poison gas—presumably to be used against the conservatives since Colombia is at peace with all her neighbors. Investigation showed that a salesman had tried to sell officials "Roeder gas" for use against rats and mice and that the government had ordered samples.

CAMOUFLAGING

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Since the Brewing Industry has started their newspaper campaign of "Temperance"—so called—it is interesting to note that their Beer sales have materially increased, yet they fail to tell us of this.

The Beer Barons must be convinced more than ever that it pays to advertise even though they do considerable camouflaging by waving the white flag of "temperance" to attract attention.

MR. HARVEY AND THE CHURCHES

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The very fine letter of "Mr. Harvey" in Tuesday's Examiner in reply to the editoral "Jumping on the Churches" in that paper, fails to see that some of the churches and many of their ministers no longer believe in the Bible at all. They say that "God is open to criticism the same as any other author" and then proceed to show by their "higher criticism" that the Bible is so full of errors, historical scientific textual, moral etc. that it cannot be the word of God and totally lacks inspiration. They (these modernists) go even further. They say that God has not revealed Himself in any special way to man and that man must work out his own salvation and that their is nothing higher for him to look to. The idea of a future life vanishes also. Mr Harvey assumes that these churches are careless about the Bible and fail in their duty regarding it, when the point is that they no longer believe in it at all. That is what in these days we are up against.

Now just one last word of warning to "Mr. Harvey" your learned correspondent. It is not for us to build up our own ideas of what the Bible means. It is for us to hand God's message on to others and the life and message of Christ. We must not interpret it. We are merely messengers. It is argument — human argument that is killing the message. Leave that to God.

ALD. GLOVER'S SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: It is said that "fools step in where angels fear to tread" and possibly it might be applied to me on this occasion. Every citizen in the city, I am sure would like to see a settlement of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Employees' strike and having been an employee of a company for a good many years, as well as an employer of labor for just as long as I was an employee, I rather hesitatingly pass on a few of my own opinions gained from actual experience.

A long drawn out strike has about the same effect on a community as a war has on nations. No matter which side supposedly wins, both the winner and the loser are losers in the end.

Gratuitous advice by me or other citizens to either the employees or the employer to starve the other side out does not as a rule take one spoonful of breakfast food from my meal or from the other fellow who is giving the advice—the employees and their families are the only real sufferers. Do they not require to cut down on the amount they have to live on, or depend on the goodness of others to help them out, which is not at all satisfactory to hitherto independent citizens?

Where 730 employees are affected and a weekly payroll of $13,500.00 involved, how far will $3,000.00 or $5,000.00 a week go to alleviating the anxiety of the families of the men on strike. If they are badly off with their pay cheques, how much worse off will they be with the $3,-500.00 per week or so.

I am not stating the employees are well paid. I do not think they are as compared with other trades, but a little inquiry gives the information that the world over, the textile trade employee is about the poorest paid of any of the trades.

Then again the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds has not at any time so far as I can learn, paid any return on the money invested or even over a period of years operated without a deficit.

The situation is an altogether different one where employees are fighting a company with huge reserves and paying large dividends to stock holders. Stock and bond holders in the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds have a real grievance.

Would there be anything in the suggestion that the employees return to work conditionally, for say, 30 or 60 days, and get their wage cheques while negotiations were going on, with the understanding that the company would put into effect immediately all the concessions agreed to between the company and the committee.

This action should not prejudice the case of the employees. They could negotiate and eat, and work under better conditions than before while now they are negotiating and suffering a great deal.

It is, of course, easy to give advice and tell a number of men and women to fight, but what are they to fight on? I never saw a question yet that did not have two sides, that with some spirit of give and take and the exercising of just good sense, could not be settled before creating a lot of bitterness, suffering and loss of money to everyone concerned.

This is not a suggestion to the employees to go back to work and drop everything but it takes Labor Bureaus and other organizations so long, with so many other situations to deal with, to get on any particular job, that irreparable loss of wages will be the lot of the wage earner and drastic loss of business befall the employer, before a decision can be made and employees go back to work.

Why not negotiate with pay while settlement is pending, rather than negotiate and suffer and let the milk of human kindness have a place in the negotiations rather than both sides thinking the worst of any action the other side may take or suggest.

This is a personal opinion and suggestion without conference with any one, and if it has no merit can be discarded without hurting any one's feelings.

DRIVING PERMITS.

(Toronto Telegram)

IT is a fact that the securing of a driver's permit in Ontario at the present time is pretty much of a formality. It is almost as easy to get a driving permit as it is to get a liquor permit. There is no close checkup of the applicant. The hazards of the highway are increased by this loose system.

There are persons whose temperamental make-up is such that they will take chances which should not be taken. And there are others whose physical incompetence can only be disclosed by medical examination.

Not so long ago a motorist suffered a heart attack while driving along the Welland canal highway and as a consequence his wife and children, in the car at the time were drowned. The man's heart weakness was not unknown to himself and would have become known to the permit authorities had a physical examination been compulsory.

DEATH IN A WHITE TIE.

(Kitchener Record)

THE Nazi regime in Germany has gone back to the French revolution in adopting the guillotine as its official quietus-agent.

Modernized, and for all we know, streamlined, this new refinement of M. Guillotin's happy thought of the era of liberty, equality, and fraternity now replaces the cruder headsman's sword in Germany.

This comes as a bit of a shock to those favoring the electric chair as a more humane instrument for executions, though it is hard to see how being fried to death on an electric griddle is any more desirable.

The interesting innovation in the new Germanic final leave-taking is that the executioner and his two assistants wear evening dress, with top hat and white gloves. You can almost read the engraved invitations.

"Herr Hitler cordially invites you to a farewell party for Herr Ungehorsam at Moabit prison at 7.30 Tuesday next. White tie."

SAFEGUARDING MILK.

(Galt Reporter)

OUTBREAKS of para-typhoid fever in recent years at a number of towns where the milk supply is not pasteurized, shows the need for greater care in the handling of milk.

Owners of dairy herds ought to realise that the future of their business is dependent on a safe product. If they permit uncleanliness in any process associated with the handling of milk, the penalty will be disappearance of customers. The indifference of farmers and dairymen to the customers' demands for strict cleanliness and sanitation has already resulted in widespread campaigns in the interests of pasteurization and it is likely that the provincial health department will insist on that process with regard to all marketed milk.

PRAISE

How wonderful, are Thy works Oh Lord,
From east, to west, God's hand has stretched
A canopy of blue,
The sun in golden splendor, rise,
And there his course pursue.

The shades of night proclaim His might,
He decks the sky with stars.
He sends the moon he gives us light,
And nought His glory mars.

He sprays this lower world with flowers,
And carpets it with green.
And everywhere, on every hand
His power and love are seen.

Oh let us then, our homage pay,
To Him our God and King.
And do His will from day to day,
His praise and glory sing.

GEO. LEADER.

ALBERTA TO DROP SALES TAX GIVING $80,000 MONTHLY

Struggle Looms Over Bill to License Banks, Aberhart's Most Drastic.

OTTAWA MAY BE FACTOR.

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, Aug. 5 (C.P.).—A constitutional struggle of far-reaching proportions loomed to-day over the Aberhart Government's Bill to license banks operating in Alberta and control some of their activities.

The Bill, most drastic in the two-year history of the Social Credit administration, was introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Provincial Treasurer Low. At the same time he announced the provincial sales tax of two per cent., which has netted $80,000 monthly since it was introduced in May, 1936, would be discontinued on September 1.

The primary object of the Banking Bill was to bring bankers under provincial license and subject them to the control and regulation of the Provincial Credit Commission, a board envisioned under the Alberta Social Credit Act, but never appointed. The Commission will be named within a week.

It was considered possible the Federal Government might be a factor in the fight because of its control of the Bank of Canada which has a branch in Calgary and therefore would be subject to license.

What May Happen.

The following were considered possibilities:

1—A direct reference to the Supreme Court of Canada, either by an interested party like a banker or by the Federal authorities on the constitutional powers of Alberta to pass the Bill.

2—Disallowance by the Federal Cabinet, a power conferred by the British North America Act.

The basis of the constitutional fight would be that control of banks and banking was reserved to the Federal Government by the British North America Act. Banks operate under Federal charters which recognize no provincial boundaries, and in the past provinces have attempted no license system or measure of control.

Two other proposals were introduced yesterday which struck new notes in Canadian legislature history. The first, proposed by Attorney-General John Hugill, would close the courts of Alberta to any action involving a constitutional test of Alberta statutes. Only by a license granted by the Aberhart government could the courts of the province pass on the constitutionality of a provincial law.

Close Courts To Bankers

The other bill, sponsored by the provincial treasurer, would close the courts of Alberta to bankers who refused to take out licenses from the provincial credit commission. It stipulated that any unlicensed banker should not be "capable of bringing, maintaining or defending any action in any court of civil jurisdiction in the province which has for its object the enforcement of any claim either in law or equity."

A constitutional fight over the banking bill was a foregone conclusion as lawyers, bankers and financial men studied its terms.

There was the possibility the banks, including the Bank of Canada, would submit to Alberta licenses and the dictation of the provincial credit commission but this possibility was discounted heavily.

One of the pertinent clauses of the bill read: "Every applicant for a license by any banker carrying on the business of banking or any function or functions thereof within the province, and every application for a license by any employee of a banker shall be accompanied by a signed undertaking signed by the applicant whereby the applicant undertakes to refrain from acting or assisting or encouraging any person or persons to act in a manner which restricts or interferes with the property and civil rights of any persons or persons within the province..."

No Foreclosures.

This was taken to mean bankers were being asked to bind themselves not to foreclose on mortgages or otherwise disturb the property and civil rights of any citizen or Alberta on penalty of having their licenses revoked. This clause alone led to the suggestion the banks would not accept the legislation without a concerted legal fight.

Premier Aberhart, who led the Social Credit forces to victory in Alberta almost two years ago, made the following statement to the House on the Bank Bill:

"The Government's legislation will in no way rob the banks of anything whatever, nor can it possibly interfere with the way in which they order their business. So there is not, and will not be, any excuse whatever for any anxiety on the part of anyone in this respect.

"Our whole purpose is to arrange that, if the people desire things which they can produce, or obtain by exchange, then they shall be able to secure and enjoy them.

"Our legislation has been most carefully devised. We have had ever in mind that it is an absolute necessity that both our own industrial and commercial undertakings, and those of our sister provinces should be able to conduct their own business in an orderly and profitable manner.

"Anything said or done which implies otherwise can safely be attributed to hostility or vested interests to the people's welfare."

In making his announcement of the remission of the sales tax on September 1, Treasurer Low said it would be foolish to pay Social Credit dividends "only to pull it in by a graduated and universally applied

Provide For Losses.

The treasurer then continued: "Amicable arrangement with the banks will, it is hoped, provide replacement of the revenue which will be lost by this remission. Otherwise it will be necessary to monetize the credit of the province through their taxation. This coincidentally with the remission of the sales and other taxs will introduced another essential to the Douglas technique of social dynamics—namely, the just price."

The Act stipulated that every banker—the word banker was used thorughout because of the constitutional impossibility of legislation against banks which operate under Dominion charters—that bankers take out licenses from the Provincial Credit Commission within two weeks of the day on which the Act was assented. A license for a branch manager would be $100 a year and for every bank employee $5.

As soon as a banker applied for a license that Act stipulated a local directorate should be appointed by the Social Credit Board of the Province. The directorates—as many may be established as the Board considers necessary—should consist of three appointees of the Board and two representatives of the banker applying for the license.

The directorates would be permanet and would be more or less in control of the banker. For instance, between the time the application for a license was made and granted, the directorate would "supervise, direct and control the policy of the banker in respect of which the local directorate has been appointed for the purpose of preventing any Act by such banker or any employee or employees thereof constituting a restriction or interference, either director indirect, with the full enjoyment of property and civil rights by any persons within the province."

President Roosevelt

"Is President Roosevelt back sliding?"

This is a question asked by many United States workers who talk of turning to a "radical" leader if one can be found. The president is in a "queer" position for one group looks to him as a bulwark while another sees in him a "hope."

"Is the C.I.O. gaining?"

This question being asked by many persons can be answered in the affirmative for the membership of the committee for industrial organization will likely reach a total of 4,000,000 before the end of summer. It is true that it has received a setback with steel.

Believes in Work For Good Health

WINGHAM, Ont., Aug. 5—(CP)—If modern women would spend the time working that they take trying to think up new kinds of sickness they "would be much happier and live longer as well". This piece of advice comes from Mrs. John Campbell, who recently celebrated her 91st birthday.

Born in County Permanagh, Ireland, Mrs. Campbell went to New York when 13 years old on a sailing vessel that took nine weeks. At 16 she came to Wingham on a visit, met her future husband and they hailed an itinerant preacher who married them. Her husband died in 1911.

The other day she hauled a basket of butter and eggs through the bush a distance of 18 miles.

"I do believe that some of these friends of mine just keep on coming back each year to see if I'm still living," was her parting shot.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"In friendship, as in most matters, it is the little things that count. Not promises of eternal fidelity, but thoughtfulness about trifles assure us that our friend really cares for us. The one who knows instinctively what we would like for a gift, what subjects of conversation may be unpleasant to us, what subjects we do not like jested about—who, knowing too, when we wish to be silent, humours us in our wish—that is the one whom we love to associate with. We can never retain a friend long, if we are not willing to take pains to find out his peculiarities and respect them.—O. S. Marsden.

Dear Friends:

This quotation was too true, and too good, to omit any part of it, and I am in entire agreement with every word. How many times friends will presume on this feeling they have between them to try to be with their friends in season and out of season.

And as in life, so it is in friendship, the little things count the most. How many times a person will look at something given them by a friend and wonder why in the world did they give them that. They could have taken no notice of their friend's likes and dislikes else such a gift would never have been made.

And sometimes they will persist in talking about things which rasp us the wrong way, or make fun of things which to us are sacred. Sometimes we may have told them something, which in the stress of emotion we felt we must talk about, then days or weeks later, they bring the subject up when we had hoped they had forgotten all about it.

Friendship is not a careless or haphazard thing, to be taken up today and dropped tomorrow. It is a congeniality between two people, a something to be cherished, a mutual sharing of experiences, pleasant and unpleasant.

It is an understanding of our nature's by each other (for one-sided friendships never last) a putting up with our friends' peculiarities as they must put up with ours, a memory of what they like or dislike, and above all, a determination to never try living in our friends' pocket.

Not feeling slighted when they want to keep something to themselves, for we all must have some privacy in our lives, and we too must keep something to ourselves, else we burden our friends too much.

To be there when wanted, and to know enough not to be there when not wanted, that is friendship indeed, and to hold their confidences inviolate even although the temptation is strong to tell what they have told you, then one is a friend beyond price. But remember what Edwin Markham says:

"You told it to your friend; his oath was deep;
Well: here's a question for your wisdom shelf:
Why do you hope some other one will keep
The secret that you cannot keep yourself?"

Just realize that friendship is not a hit or miss thing, but something that goes deeper than that if we are to enjoy it at it's fullest. We cannot take all the good our friend offers without contributing our part too.

Neither can they take all from us and leave us empty, else this will not live long between us. But bartering such as "I did this for you, now you must do that for me" that isn't real friendship but simply trading between persons. And now time's up, I must away, hoping you believe I really am, Your Friend

ROBERTA.

Words of Reproof For Modern Girls

GUELPH, Ont., Aug. 5.—(CP)—The young peopleof today are "nae so biddable," declared Mrs. P. Drummond, Mrs. W. A. Buntin and Mrs. Jane Mitchell, three Guelph residents who came from Scotland some 30 years ago and whose total age today is 250 years.

And thumbs down on smoking for girls, they all agreed. In fact, they were unanimous in their viewpoint on the younger generation. There were good and bad, of course, "but they are rude, some of them".

Mrs. Mitchell thinks they haven't the same modesty and Mrs. Buntin declared "ye had to be up in years in Scotland before ye dared tae talk back tae yer faither and yer mauther the way the young folks dae here."

All three think Canada is a grand country but one should be young to make the adjustments necessary to taking up life in a new country. None wishes to return to Scotland, as their families and homes are settled here. But bringing up of children in Scotland, they were emphatic, is stricter than it is here and the children are all the better for it.

Mrs. Buntin, 88, Mrs. Drummond, 82 and Mrs. Mitchell, 80, were born in Scotland and became friends in this country.

Chicken Takes Place Of Beef In Meat Course For August

Fried Chicken Sure Way of Pleasing Men Folk During Trying Month.

COSTS VERY LITTLE.

(By Mary Moore)

Unless you belong to a family of perennial Roast Beefeaters—where roast beef is as much a Sunday Institution as Church, this will help.

All you have to do to get a three-pound chicken which will broil or fry for 55 or 60 cents is to buy some woodland neighbouring on a farm, and then in the cool of the evening wander to the farmer's house and enquire if he has any chickens to sell. At least that is how I acquired mine. We had the fried chicken last Sunday evening and whether the wood stove or the close attention or the quality of the chicken was the cause of its success I do not know nor care, for our adored highness said "A swell meal, Em." And I ask for nothing more.

My citified efforts to describe the wonders and ways of fried chicken will bring a merry chuckle to the farm housewives who read this, but look here you ladies, we all do not have young chickens scratching in our garden as you do, and can't afford to buy them very often. When we do have them they have to be tended properly.

Fried Chicken (a la Emem)

Select a broiling chicken weighing from 2½ to 3½ lbs. (A chicken is young enough to fry or boil if the tip of the breast bone is easily movable—the cartilage similar to that in the human nose—has not yet hardened into bone.) Cut it up into pieces for serving: two drumsticks, two thighs, two wings, the wish bone portion, inserting your knife above the peak of the breast bone and cutting through at the joint of the wishbone and collarbone; split the breast lengthwise into halves, break the back into two pieces. These will be large but there is not much meat on either piece, you also have the neck, gizzard, liver and heart. Wash and dry the chicken and dip in flour. Have ready melted butter, about 1-3 cup in large iron frying pan (or Dutch oven), the butter must not be browned, and put the dark meat pieces in to sear first, turning them over in about 3 minutes (heat medium) and lightly browning other side. Add white meat pieces as you make room by piling seared pieces to one side, when all are seared sprinkle with salt and pepper, add 1-3 to ½ cup boiling water, so that bottom of pan is covered with ¼ inch of liquid. Cover tightly and reduce heat so that it just simmers for from 20 minutes to half an hour, rearraging pieces once so that all piece are browned. Serve on hot platter. To the liquid in pan add flour made into paste and stir until thick. Strain into gravy bowl but do not pour over chicken—some fried chicken enthusiasts think gravy spoils it. We served outs with small whole potatoes in parsley cream sauce, sliced red ripe tomatoes and lettuce, wild red and black raspberries (which we had taken all afternoon to pick) and thick cream from the farm next door which had provided the chicken. That was the "swell" meal, with coffee to top it off of course.

We decided to make capital of the recent cool spell and serve a beefsteak and kidney potpie, usually pigeon-holed for winter meals. With it we served the salad vegetables to our hearts' content—cucumbers, watercress, lettuce and tomatoes, and of course the inevitable raspberries and cream.

Emem's Beefsteak and Kidney Potpie

Purchase one pound of beef or pork kidney, 1 to 1½ lbs. flank steak (the amount depends on the size of your family). Trim the kidneys removing the veiny portions and cut into 1-inch pieces and drop into cold water. Cut the flank steak into 1-inch cubes and drop into the cold water with the kidneys. Without draining lift them out and roll in flour allowing them to pick up as much flour as they will, then drop into iron frying pan containing a mixture of melted butter and dripping or choice shortening and saute on all sides, stirring them very frequently until lightly browned. Cover with boiling water, cover tightly and simmer gently for 2½ hours, adding more water if necessary. In the meantime make a

Biscuit Dough (For Potpie)

2 cups cake flour sifted with 4 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt; into this work 2 tablespoons butter and 1 tablespoon lard, then add about ⅔ cup cold milk, just enough to moisten dough and make it hold together. Pat out on floured board and cut into 2-inch biscuits with floured cutter. Sprinkle cooked meat mixture with 1½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper, pour into deep baking dish and put biscuits on top. Bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. until biscuits are baked, about 12 minutes.

NOTE: If there appears to be too much gravy when you are putting it into baking dish, reserve it and reheat and pass at table, there cannot be too much gravy to suit potpie lovers.

Marinated Breaded Shoulder Lamb Chops

The method of preparing these extends them a little so that one chop is sufficient for each serving, and also flavors the fatty portion of the chop so that it is appetizing.

Order one ¾-inch chop for each serving. For four chops you will need ¼-cup each of cooking oil and vinegar and juice of half a lemon, ¼-teaspoon white pepper, a crumpled bay leaf, 3 sprigs of parsley chopped, 1 grated onion. Allow the wiped chops to lay in this marinade for 3 hours before time to cook, turning them 3 times during the marinating process. Then partially drain and dip in mixture of 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons water, and then in rolled sifted cracker crumbs. Place on butter baking pan, sprinkle with salt and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, and at 325 for 10 more minutes. Serve with mint or black currant jelly or mint sauce. A casserole of chopped green beans baked in thin cheese sauce makes a nice accompaniment.

Litta's Ham En Casserole

Wipe a one-inch slice of ham weighing about 1½ lbs. and remove rind, and rub into ham 1 tablespoon brown sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon mustard and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Place in bottom of buttered casserole and over it spread 2 cups peeled and cubed potatoes (¼ to ½-inch cubes) and over this pour 2 cups milk, cover and cook in slow oven of 300 deg. Fahr. for 1½ to 2 hours. A nice one-pie hot dish that can be prepared in the morning and allowed to stand in refrigerator covered, until time to put in oven. Even then it needs no watching.

Bunches of bananas were blown from trees and damaged during recent storms in Panama.

Green and yellow beans are at their best when carefully prepared by shredding, and served with plenty of butter. However you might like to be reminded of the casserole method we discovered last summer.

Green or Yellow Bean Au Gratin (A la Stevens)

Use either 1 quart green or yellow beans of half of each, tip them and cut into half-inch pieces, and parboil for 15 minutes. In the meantime prepare a cheese sauce, by melting 4 tablespoons butter, adding 2 tablespoon flour, and stirring in 1½ cups milk and 2-3 cup grated cheese and 1 teaspoon salt. When beans are done, spread half of them in buttered casserole, cover with sauce, repeat using all of each. Cover with layer of buttered crumbs or buttared grape nuts which have been crumbled with a rolling pin. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes.

SALT BATHS EXCELLENT TONICS

Dixie Dunbar
Enjoys frequent ocean dips.

By GLADYS GLAD
"America's Most Famous Beauty"

As a rule, in the summer most girls spend all the time they can at their local beaches. They know that there is nothing quite like a good dip into the briny for cooling and refreshing themselves in hot weather. You who have been in the ocean will agree with them there, I'm sure, for you know what a gloriously invigorated feeling sea bathing always gives.

Unfortunately, however, there are plenty of women who do not have the chance to indulge in ocean bathing whenever they feel hot, tired and in need of refreshment. And that's too bad. But any woman who cannot take ocean plunges as frequently as their beneficial effects warrant can reap the revitalizing effects of salt right at home. And that is by using a "peck of salt" for giving herself salt rubs or baths.

You can take salt rubs when you haven't the time to go swimming, and they will not only prove most refreshing, but also help to keep the skin soft and satiny-smooth.

Salt rubs really are excellent for people who work or play at the expense of nervous energy. They are immeasurably invigorating and refreshing. They tone up the circulation of the whole body, and counteract the ill effects of fatigue, thus assisting greatly in recovering from the weariness and tension of hot summer days.

Salt Rub Simple to Take

It really is very simple to take these salt rubs. The first thing to do is to step under your shower and dampen your whole body. Then take handfuls of salt and rub it in thoroughly until your skin literally glows. After this, while you are still rosy from the friction, step under the shower again and rinse every particle of the salt from your skin. Do not allow any salty residue to remain on your body, as salt has a drying effect on the skin. After the rinsing, dry yourself well, dust with a fragrant bath powder, and slip into clean garments. You'll feel marvelously refreshed!

If you haven't a shower in your home, of course, you'll find it a bit more difficult to take a salt rub. But in that case, you may substitute a salt bath, and you'll find it just as beneficial. The salt bath is a tonic bath, and gives the body a gloriously invigorated and refreshed feeling. You can obtain practically the same effect as sea bathing merely by making a miniature ocean of your own bathtub.

To take a proper salt bath, fill your tub with water that is is of summer ocean temperature—from 68 to 72 degrees. Then dissolve at least a pound of salt in this water, reserving just enough to massage your muscles and your feet. You may use pure sea salt crystals obtainable in most drug an department stores, or common table salt for the purpose. Both are effective.

Rest and relax in the invigorating salt water until you feel thoroughly refreshed. After the bath, rinse your body well in clear water. And as the final step, administer a brisk rub-down with a Turkish towel and dust your body with a fragrant dusting powder. You can take it from me, you'll feel like a new woman by that time!

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have just purchased a new electric range. I can do my own canning in the oven, the directions are so simple.

I did my strawberries in the oven and now I am not sure they will keep—it does not say to sterilize the jars. I like this method because it is such a saving of time and energy.

Do you think they will keep? I am enclosing the page of instructions. Thanking you. Mrs. P. D. R.

ANSWER: Yes, your strawberries will keep if you followed the directions exactly. The high temperature to which you are directed to heat your oven would kill all the bacteria in the jars that were not sterilized. You cannot go wrong if the full length of time and the correct temperature are observed.

Oven canning is an efficient method—you must be careful though when the product is finished not to subject it to draughts or sudden chilling or glass jars will crack.

Hoping this allays your fears and that you like your stove. We hope we can be of further service to you in the future.

QUESTION: I have been an interested reader of your page for many years and during that time I have gained many tips in cookery and learned many delicious recipes.

We are very fond of pickles and I have been unable to locate two of the recipes I want to preserve. One is a sweet gherkin pickle with no other vegetable; the other is a sweet mixed pickle containing only pieces of cucumber or gherkins, small white onions and pieces of cauliflower. Thanking you. (Mrs.) H. G.

ANSWER:

Sweet Gherkins

Wipe 4 quarts small unripe cucumbers (from 2½ to 3 inches in length). Put in a stone jar and add 1 cup salt dissolved in 2 quarts boiling water, and let stand 3 days. Drain cucumbers from brine, bring brine to boiling point, pour over cucumbers, and again let stand 3 days; repeat. Drain, wipe cucumbers dry, and pour over 1 gallon boiling water in which 1 tablespoon alum has been dissolved (to keep them crisp). Let stand 6 hours, then drain from alum water. Cook cucumbers 10 minutes, a few at a time, in one-fourth the following mixture heated to boiling point and boiled 10 minutes: 1 gallon good vinegar, 3 cups granulated sugar, 4 red peppers, 2 sticks cinnamon, 2 tablespoons allspice berries, 2 tablespoons cloves. Strain the remainder of this liquor over pickles which have been put in a stone jar. Keep pickles submerged in vinegar by placing plate over them and weighting it down with clean rock.

Sweet Mixed Pickles (Cauliflower, Onions, Gherkins)

Two quarts 2½-inch gherkins, 2 quarts cauliflower flowerets, 2 quarts small white onions, ½ cup salt, 3 quarts water, 3 quarts good cider vinegar, 3 lbs. sugar, 1½ oz. mixed cinnamon sticks, allspice berries and whole cloves, 1 oz. each mustard and celery seeds.

Prepare the vegetables by washing well; separating the cauliflower into flowerets, skinning the onions. Dissolve the salt in the water and put the vegetables in this brine to stand overnight. In morning drain. Rinse off with clear cold water.

Cook the cucumber and cauliflower and onions in boiling water to cover for 3 minutes, then rinse well with cold water. Tie the spices in a bag and boil them with the vinegar and sugar for 10 minutes, remove spice bag, pour vinegar syrup over the vegetables and let stand until cold. Pour off the liquid, let it come to boiling point and again pour over the vegetables, after packing them in sterile jars, to overflowing. Seal.

QUESTION: Would you please recommend the best moth killer on the market apart from moth flakes or balls; something to spray in a room used to store things, including woollen materials and something that will kill them in all stages, and keep the room free from same. Also the best "spray" to keep a home fresh. This is an old house, and when close up for a few hours there seems to be a disagreeable odor on entering. Your column in The Examiner is always very helpful. Thanking you, M.K.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter and your kind opinion of the Cookery Page.

No mere spray will kill moth larvae. The following formula for a spray will repel moths, almost anything very aromatic will also.

Moth Repellent Spray

Twenty oz. alcohol, 2½ oz. tincture of capsicum, ½ oz. naphthalene, ½ oz. absolute phenol, ¼ oz. menthol, ¼ oz. lemon grass oil. (All these ingredients procurable at your druggists who will mix them for you.) Mix this and filter it and use in form of a spray in an atomizer, where the moths frequent.

The only things that will kill the moth larvae are washing, or cleaning in cleaning fluids, or the heavy fumes from such moth preventives as paradichlorbenzene when confined in tightly closed or sealed trunks, or containers.

The spray would have to be used frequently and the doors and windows kept tightly closed. The clothes should be sunned and brushed Spring and Fall.

There are several methods you might use to deodorize or perfume your home. A potpourri is very agreeable; incense is not such a general favorite but liked by many; perfumed fumigants which are sprayed in the air.

Potpourri

This can consist of many flowers, the chief of which is usually rose petals; others are pinks, violets, verbena, heliotrope, acacia, balm, lavender, mignonette, etc. Gather these over a period of ten days, saving each days picking by sprinkling it with a fine layer of salt in a two-quart jar—stirring the whole every morning. (If the flowers are covered with dew when gathered spread them out on a table to dry before packing.) Have ready ¼ oz. mace and ½ oz. each of allspices and cloves coarsely ground, half a grated nutmeg, ½ oz. cinnamon broken in bits, 1 oz. powdered orris root, and ¼ lb. dried lavender flowers. Mix these together. Arrange in alternate layers with the flower and salt mixture in rose jar. Four drops each of such essential oils as geranium, rose, bitter almond, and orange flower should be dropped on the alternate layers as you proceed, and over the whole pour 1 oz. of eau de cologne or your favorite toilet water. Various fresh flowers may be added as they come in season if they are pleasantly perfumed. Open this for half an hour each day.

NOTE: The disagreeable odor in an old house is usually held in the wallpaper and drapes—the drapes should be sunned and aired and cleaned. As soon as the rooms are all repapered the offensive odor will be gone.

Hoping these suggestions help. I might say you can buy oil of pine and cedar that would make an effective spray for your rooms, you could perfume these with other essential oils if you wish to subdue the evergreen volatility. Your druggist would suggest some.

Two Girls Saved From Rising Tide

CARLISLE, England, Aug. 5—(CP)—Two 15-year-old Carlisle girls have positive faith in guardian angels after their harrowing experience on a sandbank near Port Carlisle. The girls, Margaret Stewart and Vera Dunkeld were spending the evening at the seaside and ventured too far across the sands. Before they realized their predicament they were trapped by the incoming tide.

For three hours they shouted frantically for aid as the water crept higher and higher. Weak from their efforts and with the water over their shoulders, they had resigned themselves to certain death. "We just prayed and cried," Margaret said after the exhausted girls were finally rescued.

Their plight was noticed by a motorist on the Scottish shore at Eastriggs, who was scanning the firth through binoculars. He rushed to a fisherman's cottage and a boat was quickly launched. The girls were taken to hospital, where they were treated for shock.

BRITAIN LIABLE FOR EX-IMPERIALS

House of Commons on April 7 spoke as follows:—

"The United Kingdom is the country these Imperials fought for; they did not fight for this country. If they have a complaint let them make it to the Imperial government."

Preferred Treatment?

"Will the honorable member say that these men who came to Canada in 1924, 10 years after the outbreak of the war, should have preferred treatment over Canadian citizens who have been here all their lives?"

The facts are: Men who were residents in Canada prior to the war and served in the Imperial forces, as distinguished from the Canadian Expeditionary forces, to all intents and purposes receive the same treatment as persons who served in the Canadian forces.

A second category, those who were not residents of Canada prior to the war, but who came to Canada at any time up to 1924, enjoy practically all the benefits conferred by legislation on pre-war residents and Canadian soldiers.

The grievance which forms the basis of the boycott resolution is that of still another class Imperial ex-soldiers who did not serve in the Canadian army, who were not residents of Canada prior to the war, who were not domiciled here, who had no connection with this country until they arrived here sometime after Jan. 1, 1924—that is 10 years subsequent to the outbreak of the war. A great many of them had been in receipt of pension from the Imperial authorities, but sold or commuted it for a cash payment. They now request a new pension be granted from the Canadian Exchequer.

Want Canada to Act.

The general claim is that these men should be taken on as the financial responsibility of the Canadian Government and receive all the benefits which soldiers who served in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces enjoy. To that I have said, and have no hesitation in repeating, that so long as I remain Minister of this Department these last-named should look to their own Government and not to the Government of Canada for any assistance in addition to that which they receive at the present time. They now receive municipal and provincial relief in the same way as any citizen of this country.

At the request of many Imperial ex-soldiers, I made representations both to the representative of the British Ministry of Pensions in Canada, and, when I was in England last year in conection with the Vimy celebration, to the Ministry itself. The United Kingdom pension authorities, whose legislation and regulations respecting pensions and hospitalization are restricted as compared with those of this Dominion, have not so far seen fit to give effect to my personal representations.

The government of the United Kingdom recognize their responsibility with respect to those who served in the imperial forces and to this end maintain a branch of the British ministry of pensions in Ottawa, operated quite independently of the Canadian pension department. It seems to me the gentlemen who passed the resolution which obtained so much publicity should address themselves to the competent authority, namely to the government of the United Kingdom. The procedure outlined is that indicated by organized Canadian ex-service men to their imperial comrades as a correct one to follow.

Benefits Granted.

The following benefits have been granted to all those with pre-war residence at the expense of the Canadian exchequer.

(1) The war service gratuity paid by the British government was augmented to the Canadian scale.

(2) The returned soldiers' insurance act placed imperial veterans on the same footing as those who served in the Canadian forces.

(3) The war veteran's allowance act makes no distinction between Canadian and imperial veterans who are either disability pensioners or who have seen service in a theatre of actual war.

(4) Minors who enlisted under the age of 18 years were granted vocational training with allowances.

(5) Ex-officers of commissioned rank have their pensions augmented to the Canadian scale at the expense of the Canadian government.

(6) The benefits of veterans' care were extended to ex-members of the imperial forces who are in receipt of payment of pension, under order-in-council P.C. 91, dated January 16, 1936.

(7) Class 2 treatment was extended to ex-members of the imperial forces who are in receipt of payment of pension, under order-in-council P.C. 948, dated April 23, 1937.

What Canada Did

The following benefits have been granted to pre-war residents and to non-pre-war residents at the expense of the Canadian exchequer.

(1) Loans for land settlement under the soldier settlement legislation were made available for those who served in a theatre of actual war.

(2) Unemployment assistance is issued by the department of pensions and national health in the same manner as to Canadian veterans provided that the ex-imperial veteran came to Canada prior to Dec. 1, 1924, with the exception that former members of the imperial forces, resident in Canada previous to Dec. 1924, whose pensions have terminated, are placed in a more favorable position in regard to unemployment assistance than former members of the Canadian forces in the same category as regards termination of pension.

Ex-members of the Canadian forces, whose pensions have been terminated are not entitled to unemployment assistance, whereas ex-imperial members, whose pensions have been terminated, are entitled whether or not they have seen service in a theatre of actual war, if they have a disability at the time of application, of five per cent or over.

Accident Provisions

(3) No distinction is made between Canadian and imperial veterans who meet with industrial accidents if they are pensioners of 25 per cent or upwards. Any such imperial pensioner is eligible irrespective of his date of arrival in Canada.

(4) The handicap section of the employment service of Canada is equally available to imperial veterans as the Canadian veterans irrespective of the date of arrival of the former in Canada.

(5) The preference under the civil service act applies to imperial veterans who have resided in Canada for not less than three years, if natural born or naturalized British subjects.

In connection with this preference under the civil service act, I think I should call attention to the fact that this legislation provides that an imperial ex-soldier who came to Canada as late as 1933 enjoys a preference in obtaining employment in the civil service of Canada over the sons of soldiers who fought in the Canadian expeditionary forces. I doubt if any other country in the world has shown a like generosity.

PRAIRIE FARMERS BEGINNING EARLY

fields escaped damage entirely.

Late crops will likely suffer rather heavily, but for the Province as a whole, the actual damage should be comparatively slight. Army worms have been very active over much of the Province, and have caused damage from 10 to 50 per cent.

All crops have suffered, but oats were most severly attacked. Except for the dry areas along the Saskatchewan border, general prospects are good, with the out-turn of the crop expected to be above average.

Feed supplies are adequate, and such crops as potatoes and fodder corn are particularly good. Fall pasture is now assured as a result of the recent generous rainfall.

Saskatchewan: Little change of importance has occurred in the general crop situation in Saskatchewan during the past week. The persistent need for more moisture in the north-east has resulted in some further reduction in crop prospects there, while in the extreme northwest, coarse grains have registered worthwhile improvement.

Hail damage has occurred at a number of widely scattered points, but the total loss is not great. Harvest operations are now fairly well advanced, and as has been freely predicted, yields at best will be much below average, while over a large area only feed can be realized.

Rains from mid-July onward have done much to alleviate the critical feed shortage which threatened the Province. Russian thistle and other weeds are now growing rapidly, providing some green feed, but in wheat fields making harvesting extremely difficult. Many grain fields have been cut for feed or pastured off.

In southern districts there is no surplus feed for winter, and much livestock is being moved out. Dwindling feed resources have been further reduced by the activities of grasshoppers and beet webworms.

Alberta: Harvesting is now under way in the southern part of Alberta and, with the exception of the extreme southwest, wheat is ripening rapidly. In central and northern sections growth has been rapid and crops are approaching maturity, with plenty of moisture to assure satisfactory filling of heads.

While the extreme drought some weeks ago undoubtedly gave crops a setback which they cannot now overcome, subsequent rainfall has resulted in considerable recovery and reasonably good yields are now looked for in the eastern and north-eastern sections.

Coarse grains have shared in the general improvement, while pastures and second-growth alfalfa are making good growth.

In the Peace River District dry weather continues and the crop is beginning to turn, with a little cutting of early fields already done. Temperatures have been dangerously low, but no noticeable damage has occurred, except to tender garden crops and potatoes. Grains appear to be filled well, despite the dry season.

MADE PRISONER EARLY IN WAR MONS' RETREAT

Bayoneted Through Mouth and Wounded in 17 Places Tourist Relates

PRAISES TOURIST CAMP.

His week of war in the retreat from Mons returned as a brief memory to J. F. Clarke of Winnipeg, once of the Connaught Rangers with General French in France and Flanders, and for the last two weeks a visitor to Peterborough at the city's new tourist camp on the river south of the Hunter street bridge.

"We went into action on August 21 and on the 26th I was injured seventeen times and taken prisoner and was in Germany fourteen months," Mr. Clarke recalled in a little conversation with Alderman Blocker and an Examiner reporter.

Not Voluble About War

A soft voiced Irishman, Mr. Clarke is not voluble about his war experience. The subject was mentioned incidentally after a casual reference to a recent visit to Christie Street Hospital, and a series of operations in plastic surgery, restoring something of the normal appearance of Mr. Clarke's face, disfigured permanently by a German bayonet.

"They were only sixty or seventy yards out ahead of us," Mr. Clarke said. "It was a rather narrow position we were in, something like this park, a hedge or fence on our right like the fence of the ball park and on our left another hedge not much farther away than the bridge there.

We didn't have time to dig trenches; just threw up a little shelter of earth in front of us. I remember seeing Uhlans among the Germans. Some of our men were Enniskillens. I was lying flat behind the mound of earth, holding my rifle with my left hand. I turned over slightly on the left side to reach back for a clip of shells, and in doing that I looked slightly to the right. A German was rushing at me with his bayonet, and was only a few feet away. He thrust it at my face, and it went through my mouth slashing the left cheek. And in the same instant he fired his rifle."

And later Mr. Clarke added, "If I do say so I think the score for that week was considerably in my favor."

He lay on the ground all day, and stray bullets or others aimed at him to make sure he was dead hit him occasionally. His total of wounds was seventeen.

Wednesday was the anniversary of Britain's declaration of war twenty-three years ago, when the "Old Contemptibles" under General French were mustered as the British Expeditionary Force. But, even that event did not stir up the personal reference. It grew out of an enquiry by Alderman Blocker as to how Mr. Clarke had liked the new tourist camp.

Likes Tourist Camp

"I am a carpenter by trade, and would be working at it, but I had a little matter to attend to at Christie Street, and besides that my wife is asthmatic, and we have been on the move looking for agreeable weather conditions. We couldn't stay a day in Ottawa, but we have liked this place very much. We think you have one of the finest camps we have seen, but we would suggest that you charge twenty-five cents a day or something like that, and restrict it entirely to tourists."

Mr. Clarke seems to be the man who discovered the fishing resource of the new camp. During his two weeks he caught from 50 to 55 fish, pickerel, black bass and rock bass, under the bridge, enough to keep the campers supplied with change of diet.

"I thought they were catfish at first," Mr. Clarke said. "I haven't had much experience fishing around here. They were certainly biting for me, sir."

In some aspects of hospitality Mr. Clarke and his wife have been guests of the city for the last two weeks, and had you met him as one of the old "Originals," as a citizen and ratepayer you would have been gratified to afford such a pleasant holiday spot as the new park for tourists between the bridge and the Riverside ball grounds.

Commodious and complete rest rooms for men and women occupy the space under the first arch at the east end of the bridge, and nearer the river another arch houses a community kitchen, equipped with two ranges, one of which is in daily use, hot water tank, with sink and hot and cold running water. Meals can be cooked there with all the convenience of a kitchen at home. Even fuel is supplied by the city, odds and ends of wood.

The grounds are cleared of paper and other litter every morning; the grass is kept cropped; the trees along the east bank have been underbrushed and trimmed; tables are provided for dining, and altogether Peterboro's tourist camp seems ideal.

Mrs. Clarke said "It is delightfully quiet here, although you might not expect it, being so close to the Quaker Oats mill and the bridge. We have enjoyed our stay very much."

FAMILIES of the employees of the Bonner-Worth and Auburn Mills, in many cases need assistance. Contributions of money may be made anonymously. Miss Rita Sullivan and Miss Ann Schiarizza have an office in the suite of G. N. Gordon's law offices over Bond's Drug Store, George and Hunter streets, and they will receive contributions and give receipts on behalf of the Relief Committee.

The Committee desires to provide for all needy cases and any person who can obtain employment on farms or other occupations will not be assisted.

Courageous Otonabee Farmer Is Presented With Radio Set By Institute For The Blind

Will Provide Peter Robertson With Entertainment and Instruction.

A COMPLETE BATTERY SET.

Peter Robertson, courageous blind Otonabee farmer, has been given a radio set by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to entertain and instruct him in his leisure hours.

It was installed at his farm home this side of Keene village last night by a member of The Examiner mechanical staff, who worked by the feeble light of a coal-oil lamp as the sun dipped behind the western hills.

Mr. Robertson who lives alone and does most of the work himself on his 100-acre farm, has no use for lamps. He cannot distinguish between light and dark. It meant nothing to him that the lamp had been lighted, nor did its going out have any significance for him.

But to his visitor and those who accompanied him, the blowing out of the lamp after the work of installing the radio was completed, provided them with a feeble conception of what blindness really means.

Listens to News

With a cheery "good night" and the promise "I'll always think of the Institute and The Examiner when I listen-in to my radio," Peter Robertson ushered his visitors out into the gathering gloom. Then with assurance that was amazing he walked back into the darkness of his kitchen to tune-in to the newscast.

When The Examiner representative arrived at the farmhouse earlier in the evening with the radio set donated by the Institute, they found Mr. Robertson in the kitchen happily engaged in fiddling some Irish jigs at the close of a busy day outside tending his cattle and other farm duties. He lay the violin aside to chat for a while, but readily picked it up again when requested to play a few numbers while the radio was being installed.

He agreed that the radio would do much to entertain him, particularly in the long winter months that lie ahead, but he exclaimed, "The man who is really busy never gets lonely". He said he could always find something to do.

"This morning," he laughed, "I lay awake for quite a long time and waited to hear the clock strike four. Finally I got out of bed and felt the hands, but it was only quarter to four. I got out of bed though and boiled up some potatoes for my breakfast".

Never Complains

Yes. That is typical of Peter Robertson's cheery and courageous outlook on life. Never once is he ever heard to complain. He is grateful for the help he receives and acknowledges, "I have the best bunch of neighbors a man ever had".

In a recent letter to The Examiner, Alfred W. Sparks an official of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind intimated that while the Institute was departing from usual custom in providing a radio for Mr. Robertson they were particularly interested in the case and wished "an opportunity of showing our appreciation for what the late Perry J. Giffen has done for us."

It will be recalled that following publication of Mr. Robertson's life story in The Examiner last February that the blind farmer underwent an operation at Nicholls Hospital in the hope that his eyesight might be restored, and that the late Mr. Giffen as managing director of The Examiner took a keen personal interest in the matter.

While hopes for the success of the operation were not realized, Mr. Robertson does not regret the decision he made, and still believes there might yet be a chance of regaining some measure of his vision.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, August 6
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Sudden, surprising and probably startling events support the presage of a memorable day. Radical and far-reaching occurrences may be looked for, these precipitated with rather whirlwind force and causing an entire reorientation of the life, its interests and environs.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of surprising and sudden experiences, with probably an abrupt reorganization of the entire life, its fortunes, contacts and interests. Change, travel, adventure and romance are shown, either in connection with employment or in association with powerful corporations, diplomatic or political circles, secret societies, or contacts where strategem, shrewdness and originality are called for.

A child born on this day may be original and talented to the point of genius as well as independent and adventurous, unorthodox and revolutionary. It should have a progressive, conspicuous and romantic career, probably far from its birthplace.

RESTRICTED AREAS BEING WATCHED

Two Men Are Fined and Third Case Adjourned in Illegal Fishing Charge.

When they entered pleas of guilty to charges of fishing in restricted waters, E. V. Wass of Toronto and Julian Morin of Lakefield were this morning each fined $10 and costs in Magistrate Langley's court. A similar charge against Ernest Gunyore of Toronto was adjourned to August 12, subject to proof of service. Gerald Gould of Orono paid a penalty of $10 and costs for catching undersized bass at Buckhorn. Each of the four informations was laid by Game and Fisheries Inspector I. J. Lyons.

HOT TAR ATTACK LOOMS FOR DUMP

Mayor Starts Action After Crickets and Cockroaches Invade St. Thomas.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Aug. 5. — (CP).—A state of seige exists in the vicinity of the Omemee street dump with crawling cockroaches and chirping crickets the attacking forces and residents of houses in the vicinity the defenders. Mayor Ernest Duckworth, chief generalissimo of the defenders, has been authorized to use all necessary means and expend whatever money is required to combat the vermin.

The pests begin their onslaught only after the street and house lights are turned on. Householders, armed with fly swatters and similar weapons, stand guard at doors and windows. Last night the fire department was called out and the "water cure" was attempted. To-day hot tar will be spread over the dump.

Young Petes Tie Omemee Outfit 5-5

Battling through nine innings, Young Petes and Omemee, failed to break a 5-5 deadlock at the end of game in the second tussle of the play-offs for men's softball honors. A four-run splurge in the ninth frame helped the Villagers considerably, the out-of-town gang being four runs down at that time, they got their remaining tally in the fifth canto.

The Young Petes went scoreless until the sixth, when they clicked for a trio of runs and again in the 8th they tallied two more, to end their scoring for the day. The Junior gang were outhit by their opponents, Omemee getting 9 against six for the local crew.

Score by innings:

Young Petes	...000	003	020	—	5	6	2

the early weeks of the strike were directed early this week by the management not to report again for work until requested.

Back at Desks

Picket stewards yesterday instituted a system by which service of pickets on the lines is to be checked and recorded on cards. Each period of duty is marked on the individual striker's card by the picket team captain.

Commenting on the institution of the picket cards, a notice on the strike bulletin today read:

"The picket cards which have been issued to strikers recently are to be recognized merely as a form of value for purposes of checking up to see who is eligible for picket duty. No coercion is to be used in recruiting pickets and anyone having a valid excuse will be willingly exempted from such duty.

"No discrimination will be shown at Relief Headquarters because a person has or has not done picket duty as relief is for everyone, irrespective of persons. Non-strikers have as much right to it as those who are active in the strike but we would like to see as many as possible show their willingness to accept picket duty as part of their obligation to their fellow employees in the mills."

Contribution Asked

G. N. Gordon announced at noon today that the plan of the Textile Workers' Relief Committee to hold a tag day this Saturday has been altered. Booths will be set up about the city at strategic points in the vicinities of factories and residential sections and contributions invited, he said. Permission for the holding of a regular tag day was sought but the committee was informed by members of the Police Commission that the Commission would not be meeting until next week.

The committee is now spending from $125 to $140 each day on relief for Auburn and Bonner-Worth families and a need for as much as $200 a day in the near future is foreseen, Mr. Gordon said.

Strikers announced another parade and strike rally would be held in the city this evening. The parade is scheduled to commence at the Bonner-Worth plant at 6.30 o'clock and proceed south on Parz street to Westcott, east on Westcott to George and north on George to Charlotte street and the Market Square. Speeches by strike leaders will be heard at the Market Square.

An invitation has been extended the strikers to enjoy free dancing at Rye's Pavilion this evening. Admission to the dance floor is to be granted strikers on display of their union cards, it is understood.

Strikers reported today frequent shipments of raw material have been going into the Auburn plant, apparently shipments ordered before the strike broke.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GIVEN TEN DAYS

License Suspended Two Months in Case of Reckless Driver in Police Court.

On pleading guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under influence of liquor, Max Vincent, 399 Park Hill Road was this morning sentenced to 10-days imprisonment by Magistrate C. A. Langley. A Lakefield man was fined $10 and costs on pleading guilty to an intoxication charge, and was remanded without election or plea on a charge of uttering a forged document. On a reckless driving count Gerald Moffatt, 169 Princess street paid a penalty of $10 and $4.50 costs. His license was suspended for 2-months.

CONSCIENCE BOTHERED HIM

FORT ERIE, Ont., Aug 5. (CP).—A young man walked into police headquarters here yesterday and claimed to have robbed a Sudbury grocery store Friday, July 30. He told police the theft bothered his conscience and continued to insist on his guilt when closely questioned. Chief Griffin locked up the young man and communicated with Sudbury police regarding the youth who gave the name of William Smith, 16, Sudbury.

Vatican Concordat Causes Crisis

DR. MACEK

PREMIER STOYADINOVICH

A serious crisis has developed in Jugoslavia, land of Serbs, Croats, Slovenes and Moslems, as Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox and Mohammedan factions clash over the renewal of a concordat with the Vatican. Backing the plan for a renewal of the concordat is Premier Stoyadinovich who has reputedly offered his resignation to Prince Paul, regent because of opposition. Dr. Macek, leader of the anti-government Croatian group and himself a Roman Catholic, has opposed the plan.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL
"CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS"

What a picture this is. And it brings back to his native town Oscar O'Shea, who started out on a long stage career with the old Marks Brothers, and who now is getting his second wind, so to speak (for he is long past the half-century mark), as an actor in the talking drama. Oscar O'Shea's parents kept hotel on the corner of Brock and George streets, and he trod the boards of the Grand Opera House in the major role of "The Rosary." Now, he is holding his own with honors as the Irish-tongued sea captain of Kipling's drama, in company that includes such illustrious names as those of Lionel Barrymore, member of Broadway's royal family, and Spencer Tracey, whose shadow never grows less.

What a picture! It will make you want to sob and to laugh, and your heart will go out to that great lad, Freddie Bartholomew, who is the detestable little snob of the beginning, and the pathetic figure of the end, mourning for Manuel, his friend.

Spencer Tracy, who seems to this reviewer to be a member of the great company of the screen giants, gives his role everything he has, as usual. He is the Portugese sailor aboard the fishing fleet, making up his queer little songs in quiet moments, regarding the lad with sleepy eyes, and going out in a storm-tossed moment.

"Captains Courageous" is one of those enthralling pictures that grip you from the start and never let you go until you realize that the finale had been reached, and wish that it hadn't arrived so soon. It gives you two memorable types of acting. Here is Barrymore, who like George Arlias and William Powell, puts his own individual stamp on every role, so that you think of him first. And here is Spencer Tracy, living the part, like Marie Dressler did, so that you can't think of Tracy at all, only of Manuel, the innocent-hearted. And here are Freddie Bartholomew and Melvyn Douglas and Oscar O'Shea, as good as any of them. There are no women to clutter up this seasaga with artificial emotions. It is a vitally and unforgettable production. —C.L.M.

GREAT FOR SLIMMING.

Zoo Official Prefers Lion Taming to Golf

BELFAST, Aug. 4—(CP). — Lion taming may become the popular rage to promote slimming.

Dr. R. H. Hunter, curator of the Belfast Municipal Zoo, believes this pastime is far superior to golf in effecting the slender graceful lines.

"Half an hour in a cage with a couple of young lions will do you more good than any amount of golf," he said. "It is quite safe as well."

Newly-Wed Woman Writes Clerk to Find Out If First Hubby Ditched.

RALEIGH, N.C., Aug. 5.—(AP). — County Clerk W. H. Sawyer got this letter from a woman whose name he withheld:

"Will you please let me know whether or not I am divorced, for if I am not I am in a hell of a fix. I have just got married again."

Sawyer, after checking the records, eased the lady's mind.

SOCIAL PARADE GEORGE STREET IS RECALLED

Feorfe W. Heap Served His Apprenticeship With the Old Peterborough Review.

PLAYED LACROSSE.

"Peterborough is the cleanest, neatest and most up-to-date town I have seen, and I have been all over the united States," was the tribute Feorfe W. Heap of Williamsport, Pa., paid to the city in which as a boy he began his apprenticeship with the old Review printing company, the foundation of his business experience which has equipped him for years as superintendent of the press room with the Grit Publishing Company.

He was working for the Review when Simon R. Armstrong, then editor, was appointed city clerk. Frank Dobbin was the manager and John Carnegie was the proprietor.

"I was the printer's devil when the paper was published about where Neill's store is situated. In fact it seems to me we had half the building. I used to fancy myself as a lacrosse player in those days with such fellows as Jim McCabe, Bill Galley, Fred Dobbin and a lot of others, and I suppose an outstanding recollection were the fights we used to have with Orillia.

One of the local customs on George street was the social parade up one side of the street and down the other between Simcoe and Brock streets, especially the young fellows and girls. I suppose they don't do that now in these motor days, but even if it was public it was one of the opportunities the young people had of seeing and meeting one another, yes and there was flirting and pick-ups too."

A Boxer of Note.

"We publish the greatest family newspaper in the United States with a circulation of 660,000 and 36,000 saleemen distributed throughout the States, and with that we have a big job department."

Mr. Heap said the flood of the Susquehanna River last Spring cost him $1160 to repair the damage to his residence. While the water was at its height the family had to live in the upper rooms. His only son is a graduate of the U.S. naval academy at Annapolis, and an expert aviator. He was chief pilot and navigating officer in the mass flight of twenty-nine airplanes to Honolulu last January.

Mr. and Mrs. Heap are extending their stay in Peterborough and this afternoon motored into the Buckhorn country. They had intended only a brief visit, but calling on old friends and seeing the town after an absence of thirty-two years since his last trip here has required additional time.

Bonds valued at $10,255 were stolen from Beatrice M. F. Sullivan of Toronto and bonds worth $3,000 from Phoebe Allen and Arthur Curry. McCaul allegedly used the bonds to buy stocks.

Brunswick A Thriving Village In The Early Days Of Manvers

Sawmill Gave Work to Heads of Several Families, Mrs. John Staples Recalls.

RECALLS FIRST TRAIN.

BETHANY, Aug. 5. — Mrs. John Staples, who resides on Queen Street, Bethany, has passed her 88th year and is well into her 89th. The second eldest of a family of two boys and four girls, children of George Twigg and Margaret King, she has lived the greater part of those 88 years in the vicinity of this village.

Mrs. Staples was born April 15, 1849, in a log house situated on the farm now owned by Alban Sisson, 8th Concession of Manvers. Eight years later, the Twiggs moved to a farm near Owen Sound. But on finding there was not a school or church within many miles of their new home, they returned to Manvers, and after a short stay on what is now Richard Challice's farm, they settled on the farm now tenanted by Morton Davis, a grandnephew of Mrs. Staples.

This farm is near the one-time Village of Brunswick, two miles north of Bethany. Mrs. Staples remembers when Brunswick was a village of some size. Its size was due principally to the sawmill that gave work to the heads of several families. The mill was owned by a Fred Thompson who also owned and operated the one hotel the village boasted of. Incidentally, this building still stands, but now, years later, it is the residence of County Constable Walter Thompson.

Bennett, Graham, Spence, Mitchell, and McInnes were the familiar family names around Brunswick seventy years ago. Long since, these names have been replaced. A Mark Graham who later bought a bakery in Bethany resided where Harry O'Brian now lives, while a family of Bennetts lived where the Cairns brothers live.

Sunday was spent rather quietly. With no churches in which to worship the inhabitants worshipped as best they could. Occasionally religious services were held in the various homes, but the more energetic walked two miles to St. Mary's Anglican Church, Lifford. Mrs. Staples informs that at that time Rev. Logan was the rector of St. Mary's and used as the rectory a house situated near the summit of Vance's Hill.

Saw First Train.

Even a small village isn't exempt of exciting moments and days. So it was on a bright, cheery day in the late 1850's that a little girl, Mrs. Staples, with other children and adults of the village, lined the banks of the railway that had recently been built and watched the first train puff its way through the village, to inaugurate a train service that was maintained until 1927. The first train was propelled by a wood-burning locomotive, but it was later replaced by a coal-burner. "I remember quite well the day the first train went through," Mrs. Staples said.

June 29, 1871, was possibly the happiest day of Mrs. Staples' life, for it was on that day, sixty-six years ago, that she became the bride of John Staples. The ceremony was performed in a house near Fleetwood by Rev. Holmes.

Following the marriage, Mr. Staples took his bride to his farm south of Bethany, owned now by Lloyd Kennedy, but tenanted by Charles Stevenson. In addition to this farm Mr. Staples owned and operated a butcher shop in Bethany. The store was situated on the same corner R. W. Price's is to-day. While the C.P.R. line was being constructed between Smith's Falls and Toronto, he supplied the work gangs with large quantities of meat.

"Meat was quite reasonable in price those days," Mrs. Staples told a reporter. "A choice roast could be bought for eight cents a pound and three pounds of the best steak would only cost twenty-five cents."

Following Mr. Staples' death, Mrs. Staples with her family of eight children moved to this village about 1891—twenty years after her marriage. For several years they resided in the house now the property of Mrs. Thomas Rowan. From there they moved to a house on Main Street, now occupied by Mrs. Ida Carscadden, where Mrs. Staples lived until four years ago when she moved to her new home erected on the site of the old Presbyterian Church.

Mother of Eight.

Of her eight children, four have "crossed the bar." Those remaining are: Mrs. F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope; Miss Hannah, a member of the teaching staff of Dawson Street School, Toronto; J. O., better known perhaps by his numerous friends as "Jack," who is Principal of the Central School, Lindsay, and Mrs. Walter Rowland, Bethany. Mrs. Staples is the proud grandmother of four grandchildren, but has no great-grandchildren. It is interesting to note that her two brothers and three sisters, although deceased, were well known during their lifetime. They were George and William Twigg, Mrs. John R. Sisson, Mrs. William Davis and Mrs. J. Robinson, a resident of Lindsay.

The Twigg ancestral line dates back to the era of William of Orange. The early Twiggs crossed to England from Holland with the celebrated King William, an ancestral fact Mrs. Staples a Protestant-Anglican and following her marriage a Methodist, is proud of. For their loyal support the King presented to the Twigg family a crest. This crest as seen by the reporter is a hand holding a branch. It is supposed the branch signifies the name Twigg. Mrs. Staples possesses a replica of the crest. She informs that in most instances her ancestors were either Anglican rectors or teachers. Her father studied theology intending to be also a minister but because of a weak throat, he was compelled to cease study. His father came to Canada from the county of Tyrone, Ireland, and her mother from the county of Fermanagh, Ireland. They met and were married in Canada.

Although Mrs. Staples has not enjoyed the best of health for several months, it has improved lately and it is hoped it will continue to improve so that she may enjoy good health for many years.

PREMIER HEPBURN PROMISES HELP TO MISS CAISSE

"Onus is Now on Medical Profession," Premier Tells Bracebridge Nurse.

MAY GRANT LICENSE.

BRACEBRIDGE, Aug. 5. — Miss Rene M. Caisse of Bracebridge, for whom for so long there has been an agitation for recognition of her treatment for cancer, had a very satisfactory interview with the Prime Minister, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, and the Provincial Secretary, Hon. Harry Nixon, at Queen's Park.

Miss Caisse has been expecting to be able to see the Premier for some time. Mr. Hepburn had been receiving a very large volume of letters commending Miss Caissee's fight for recognition of "Essiac" her treatment. An interview was finally arranged for last Thursday.

Mr. Hepburn said that J. Frank Kelly, M.L.A., for Muskoka-Ontario, had been urging him to personally look into the work being done by this nurse at her clinic at Bracebridge. He referred to the letters he had been receiving, principally from patients who claimed to have been helped or cured by Rene M. Caisse treatment.

"These people are sincere, clear-thinking people, and it seems to me that something must be done to make this treatment available to all people suffering from cancer," Mr. Hepburn admitted.

Hon. Mr. Nixon suggested that a license be granted to Miss Caisse, as a first step to recognition. The Legislature was a superior authority to the Medical Council, and Mr. Nixon declared he would not be afraid to undertake this. The Premier agreed that this would be done.

Onus on Medical Profession.

"The onus is now on the medical profession," Mr. Hepburn declared. "They must either prove or disprove Miss Caisse's claims, and I do not believe that they can disprove them. I am in sympathy with Miss Caisse's work, and will do all in power to help her."

In a statement Miss Caisse said she felt that such an assurance from the Prime Minister, who was not afraid to take a hand in the recent labor problems of this country, is more than competent to handle the situation that concerns her work.

The attitude now of the Premier and another important member of his Cabinet is a very hopeful sign that presently full recognition of Miss Caisse's treatment will be made possible. In the next session, the Legislature will be invited to pass a Bill that will give to Miss Caisse more authoritative permission to conduct a clinic here, and with the assistance of a staff if she desires.

An Important Discovery.

The Medical Council of Ontario have not disputed Miss Caisse's claim to have beneficial treatment of one of the world's worst diseases, but have insisted upon more evidence of absolute cure. One case in particular which cannot be disputed is that of Mr. Summerwill, Sprucedale barrister, who is living and well to-day, with no sign of recurrence of the most virulent type of cancer, from which he suffered two years.

The Provincial Pathological Department examined two sections of the growth in this case and pronounced it to be lymphia sarcoma. Since undergoing the "Essiac" treatment, Mr. Summerwill has returned to health, and doctors have been unable to find any present sign of cancer or other growth.

Hundreds of patients are able to testify along similar lines, and it may well be asked, what more can the medical world require?

Even regarding "Essiac" as only a beneficial treatment, it may be claimed that it is the most important discovery in cancer research to date. For this reason it is to be hoped that Governmental action may be taken to extend its benefits for the sake of suffering humanity.

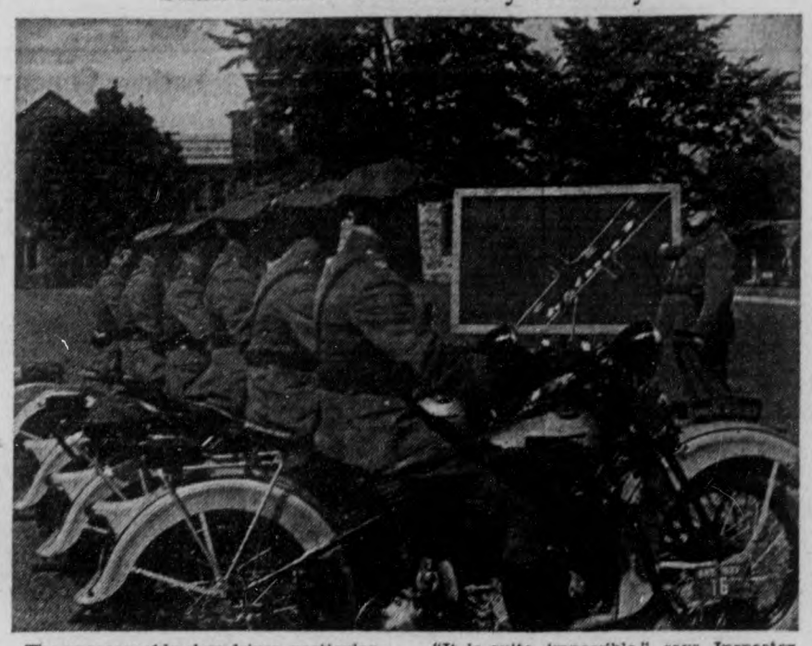
MORE ACCIDENTS

TORONTO, Aug. 5 (CP)—Industrial accidents increased during July and are greater for the first seven months of this year than for the corresponding period last year, The Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board reported today. Accidents in July totalled 6,673 compared with 5,772 a year ago. Accidents in June were 6,357. Accidents for seven months were 37,994 compared with 33,617 in 1936.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

"Snail Pacers" Should "Try Courtesy"



The unreasonably slow driver, particularly since the speed limit was raised to 50 miles per hour, is more than ever a potential cause of highway traffic accidents. Though he may not actually be involved in a crash, his lack of courtesy or consideration for drivers who are forced to parade behind him creates an "annoyance and aggravation" that often results in accidents and fatalities caused by cutting in and out of the line of traffic, and foolhardy attempts to pass the "snail pace" driver on a hill or curve, according to Staff Inspector J. A. Grant, head of the motorcycle patrol branch of the Provincial Police.

"It is quite impossible," says Inspector Grant, "to get on at even a moderate rate of speed with one of these cars in the procession when volume is heavy, as a long line soon forms and one cannot pass in safety because of opposing traffic."

Raid Off Lunenburg Uncovers Smoke Screen Apparatus on Schooner.

228 KEGS RUM SEIZED.

LUNENBURG, N.S., Aug. 5 (CP).—Modern naval science has been adapted to the art of rum running along the Nova Scotia coast.

At preliminary hearing here yesterday of four sailors charged with assisting in the harboring of liquor John A. Reader, second engineer of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police cutter Laurier, told court he had uncovered apparatus for creating a smoke screen when he searched the motor vessel Marleton off Lunenburg last month.

Equipment consisted of two pipes leading from the vessel's stern to the port engine manifold, connected in turn with an electric fan and a tank of refuse oil, he said.

The boarding party seized 228 kegs of rum aboard the Marleton, Reader said. Harold Conrad, Eugene Creaser, Hugh Corkum and Joseph Laird, members of her crew, were committed to stand trial at preliminary hearing.

A fifth member of the Marleton's crew, Louis Himmelman, died last Sunday from burns suffered in an explosion aboard the motor vessel O.K. Service II.

LAKEFIELD DANCE DOUBTFUL SUCCESS

Small Sum Realized After All Expenses Paid—Legion Sponsored Event.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 5.—The grand street dance staged at Lakefield on Civic Holiday night (Aug. 2), under the auspices of the Lakefield Branch of the Canadian Legion, brought out a good crowd of fun-seekers, despite the recent street oiling which worried officials so much for a few days last week, that they threatened to call off the proceedings entirely. However, the oil dried quickly and by Monday the street was in pretty fair condition for the merry-makers.

Rex Wilson and his orchestra, with the aid of amplifiers, provided music for both square and round dancing, and a number of local stores remained open to cater to the demand of the dancers for soft drinks, ice cream and hot dogs.

Despite the presence of a good crowd and the fact that they enjoyed a jolly evening, the committee reported that the affair was a doubtful success financially, only a few dollars over the expenses being realized.

Messrs. T. Simpson, C. Stenner and J. McGowan were in charge of arrangements.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR FISHERMEN

Canoe Tips Over in Rapids Below the Hastings Dam.

BOTH GOOD SWIMMERS.

HASTINGS, Aug. 5.—Murray McGregor and Jimmie Virtue of Toronto, who are spending their holidays at McGregor's cottage in the village had a harrowing experience yesterday afternoon when the canoe they were in tipped over in the rapids below the dam. They were paddling up against the rapids when the canoe turned sideways and a big wave swept over the canoe, capsizing it. Both boys are good swimmers and had presence of mind to cling to the canoe until the swift water carried them far enough to make their way to shore. They had tied their fishing equipment to the boat before starting out and the only discomfort they had was the wet clothing they wore when they reached shore. To-day they are none the worse for their experience.

"Distance Phobia" Ends Love

Although the enchantment conjured up by each other's poetry was potent enough to overcome the disparity in their ages, the "distance phobia" of which 61-year-old William Ellery Leonard, professor at the University of Wisconsin, is a prey, was too, too much for his 29-year-old wife, shown with him here. Mrs. Leonard has fled the "phobic prison," this time, she says, for good. In 1936 Mrs. Leonard divorced the professor, but later had the decree set aside and returned to him. The professor describes his phobia as a mental terror of being left alone, even though only a block from his home. Mrs. Leonard has now been granted her second divorce.

PUTNAM CRIMPS EXTORTION PLOT TO OBTAIN $2,000

Prisoner Uses Scarf Amelia Earhart Lost Years Ago as Proof He Found Her.

ON PACIFIC ISLAND.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(UP)—Wilbur Rothar, caretaker of a Bronx apartment, was held today on a charge of extortion after he attempted to collect $2,000 from George Palmer Putnam for "finding" his wife, Amelia Earhart, who disappeared more than a month ago on a flight across the Pacific.

Rothar used a brown and white scarf which Miss Earhart lost several years ago at Roosevelt Field here as "proof" that he and other members of the fictitious crew of a boat running guns and munitions to Spain had found Miss Earhart on a lonely island.

Rhea Whitley, agent in charge of the Department of Justice's New York office, said Rothar confessed he had kept the scarf as a souvenir and after Miss Earhart disappeared decided to use it to extort money from her husband. Whitley said Rothar had not been to sea for 16 years.

Refers Note to Police.

Whitley said Putnam informed Federal agents on July 31 he received a note which said:

"We have your wife on the ship. I will call Sunday at 2 o'clock. (Signed) Johnson."

This was the story of Rothar's alleged crime as given out by Whitley:

Rothar telephoned Putnam and made an appointment for 2 a.m. the next day. He met Putnam yesterday, and said that he was sailing on a vessel, carrying armament to Spain, which left New Guinea late in June.

The boat stopped at a small island in the South Pacific, and there, in a cove, found a wrecked plane with the body of a man on top of it. Sharks had mutilated the body. A women was on shore. She was injured and mentally deranged. The crew buried the man's body at sea and took the woman aboard.

Arrested After Collecting Money.

The fictitious ship next stopped at Panama, where the crew first discovered that their passenger was Miss Earhart. Fearing authorities would arrest them for gun-running, the crew decided to go to New York.

Rothar was selected to contact Putnam.

The flier's husband, meanwhile informed Federal agents.

Rothar called at Putnam's office yesterday to collect the money. A G-man acted as Putnam's secretary, and Putnam paid Rothar $1,000. The "secretary" said he would take Rothar to a bank in the building to get the other $1,000.

Other agents arrested Rothar as he and the "secretary" emerged from the elevator on the main floor of the building.

W.M.S. IN CHARGE CHURCH SERVICE

Mrs. A. Hunter Presides at Morning Service in Springville Church.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Aug. 5.—Morning service at Springville United Church was conducted by the ladies of the Women's Missionary Society. In the absence of the president, Mrs. A. Hunter presided. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Geo. Whitfield from Luke 10: 25-37. The customary story for the boys and girls was replaced by a reading by Miss Jean Fairbairn, "The White Rose," given to piano accompaniment ("Abide With Me"). Mrs. M. Johnston gave a paper on home missionary work.

Mrs. Hunter, in her interesting sermonette, told of the different mothers and women of the Bible who had been helped by Jesus and sent out to be His missionaries thus linking the auxiliary work of today with that of the New Testament.

A women's choir led in the service of song with Mr. C. Morgan at the piano. Miss Hazel Hall of George street church, Peterborough, was guest soloist, while a duet number was given by Mrs. J. Grandy and Miss M. Southam. Two of the C.G.I.T. girls took up the offering. The regular monthly meeting has been cancelled for August.

In playing strange courses the judgment of distance is a big factor. The new course may be only a few miles from your home layout, but the different arrangement of hazards and other landmarks will throw you off.

If you are swinging as well as usual, the judgment of distance is up to your eyes, and it is very easy to be deceived by what your eye takes in about a hole. For example, you may figure that an iron shot to the green is actually 150 yards. A flat, unbroken stretch of fairway is very hard to judge.

On the other hand, you may be in doubt about carrying a bunker or water hazard some distance away from your ball. If you are in doubt as you make the attempt, you will fail invariably so that your execution does not match your judgment. In most cases you can land your ball right on the spot your eye has picked if you make your regular swing. This takes confidence, assurance that you have judged the distance properly.

Well, here is a good way to do this—pick some object along either side of the fairway or on the line of play that is short of your goal, measure the distance to this object, and compare this length with the over-all distance of the shot. This will give you a more accurate line-up for the shot.

Big Fields Enter At Hamilton Club

HAMILTON, Aug. 5.—(CP)—Seven claiming races, each with purses of $600 face owners in to-day's card at Hamilton Jockey Club. The first two races promise big fields with 14 and 15 horses eligible.

Monsweep captured yesterday's feature after Jockey Sterling Young brought last year's King's Plate winner up from fifth position. Samoan led to the stretch but dropped back to third as Epicurus, then Monsweep rushed past.

Long shots came through in the second and third races, Thermal paying nearly 25 to one and Golden Silence 14 to one. Thermal broke in front at the barrier but gave up the lead to Maple Tine, who stayed in front until the stretch, when Thermal finished fast. Spey Crest was a close third.

TOP + OSSERS In the Majors

CHARLEY ROOT

At 38, Charles Henry Root, grand old man of the Chicago Cubs, is still pitching winning ball and is largely responsible for the Cubs' present position as head of the senior loop.

Charley's remarkable record, after all these years, is something for the young pitchers of today to aim at. His stamina is equally as remarkable.

Last year Charley won only three games. This season he has won three times as many and the season still has two months to go. Several of his victories this season were as a relief pitcher.

Charley is one of many Ohio boys to make good in the majors. Born in Middletown, O., in 1899, he began his baseball career by pitching for a town team. St. Louis Browns' scouts heard of his feats and he was signed to a 1921 contract. He was sent to Terre Haute of the Three-Eye league where he won 16 games in 1922. That warranted another Brownie trial, but he was given only relief hurling and failed to come through with a victory.

Los Angeles was the next stopping place and there Charley won 40 games in two seasons. Purchased by Chicago, he won 18 his first season with the Cubs, 1926.

The veteran Cub slabman's best season was in 1927 when he swished through for 26 victories against 15 losses. He appeared in 46 games that season, a record for the year.

Charley is five feet, 11 inches tall. He weighs 176 pounds. He has pitched in three world series. He likes to travel, lives in California, likes to hunt.

Mike Jacobs Is New Czar of Fight Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP).—The varied destinies of the cauliflower industry were passed yesterday from the grip of Madison Square Gardens, which had held them since Tex Rickard took over the Diana-crowned old garden, to Mike Jacobs, dictator of the fight game.

Jacobs, in leasing the Garden and its outdoor arena, the big bowl in Long Island City, for two seasons, won the bitter fight he has waged with the Garden for the control of the fight game and assumed Rickard's old post as the fight game's No. 1 promoter. He plans indoor boxing shows for the Garden this winter and next and outdoor fights at the bowl in 1938 and 1939.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NORWOOD lacrossers play Auburns here tomorrow (Friday) night at nine in the George St. arena, under the lights. It is the final appearance of Norwood here this season and the second last scheduled home game for the locals. Playoffs start in about two weeks. The Norwoodians are well down in the standing and Auburns are well out in front, but nevertheless this tilt tomorrow ought to be interesting to gutted-stick followers. The Bakers, Puffers, et al, put up a good brand of scrappy lacrosse—their first showing here this summer being the best loop fixture the Auburns have had—and both teams will turn on the heat all the way. Bud Fisher is slated to referee, and both E. Creighton and Chute will be absent through injuries from the local lineup.

* * * * * *

LEN SMITH, Toronto referee and lacrosse writer—who handled the Orillia game here recently—writes a lot of good dope on lacrosse as it is played in Central Ontario. It was in the Star Weekly. Smith has long been a real lacrosse booster in Ontario and the game owes him plenty. He gives a good outline on each club in the loop, remarking that the Central Ontario group is "growing into quite a healthy infant." Len says: "It's been a long, tough grind to get boxla established in Peterborough where baseball has been the king sport for many years. From now on, the lacrosse lads expect to have the sex appeal necessary to pack in the fans." Those manly forms exposed, eh?

* * * * * *

SMITH also states: "When the Petes approached the arena management they could not see that lacrosse was spreading in the east with leaps and bounds, thus forcing Pete King and his cohorts to look for some outdoor space. They espied a dump controlled by the city and the city fathers agreed upon an amicable rental. The boys on the team then put their shoulders to the wheel, ala pick and shovel, and with the aid of carpenters soon erected a boxla court that is a credit to the Liftlock City. Of course, the backers of the club had to dig deep for part of the needed funds to put up the splendid stands, etc., but they found ready response in Peterborough from bankers for a short loan. They can now breath easy with no outstanding debts hanging over their heads." He gives Norwood a boost, too, for their work.

OUR item Tuesday about the guy in the nude who hopped off at Inverlea bride a few seasons back and then yodelled up to an angry cop: "You're 'way up thar; I'm 'way down hyar, etch," has drawn a prompt response. The ex-nudist—we won't mention him since he has turned respectable—must have seen our item, as he wired us yesterday afternoon: "Truth a virtue even in columnists. There was no jump." We stand corrected but must still wonder how he got from the bridge into the water rather rapidly without jumping. This wire, coming from Quebec, no less, was sent collect. Grrrr.

PETERBOROUGH district tennis championships start next Monday at the Peterborough, Kawartha and Quaker Clubs' courts. Send entries in by Aug. 7th to Max Cotton, Don Emery or Claire Sullivan. Their addresses were in an ad in this paper Aug. 3rd and 4th. Church league players and others interested are invited to enter. All events will be played, singles and doubles, and winners declared within two weeks. Entries must be in on time. Last year, Vi Davidson won the ladies' singles championship of the district while Max Cotton cleaned up in the men's singles. Some fine court battles were dished up and another nifty titular tourney is expected this summer. Plenty of fine racquet-wielders are being developed in and around Peterborough now.

* * * * * *

AN ALLEGED ball game was staged here last gloaming before some 300 odd fans and Oshawa took the Petes for a 18-4 ride. Since Napanee didn't play last night—it apparently being postponed again—the locals are now but half a number up on the Globards in the race to remain out of the cold dank cellar. Both sides looked lousy in the field and none of the pitchers showed a great deal, but the potent war clubs of the GM-men pounded the ball hither and yon to pile up a one-sided count. Jack Turner twirled fair ball but nothing extra and had poor support defensively. But his buddies hit hard to get their runs in clusters. Kitchen was bingled about hard and headed early for the showers. Whitehill followed him on and off the mound in short order, and Calladine then took over and made a fair task of holding 'em after all was irrevocably lost. The local hurlers had terrible support all through.

* * * * * *

NOT much to be said for the fixture. Oshawa had a patchy team here but the locals were worse. There were stolen bases, throws to the wrong base, glaring errors, some cheap hits, a few bingles—including old Tip Miller's homer with one on—a few nice catches, and oh, everything. Kitch helped his own downfall with a throw to second on a double-play ball with a runner racing in from third. Clark had a bad day at short and none of the infield went worth a hoot. So it will seem to boil down to Saturday's game here 'gainst Napanee. A local loss will put 'em in the doghouse as the Petes have but three more to play now. Is 1936 history repeating itself? Are the wobbly Petes going to get eased out of a playoff berth by Napanee in the final week of the schedule? Will Tillie lose Mac? And how about Manager Collins' blood pressure? These and other questions will be answered Saturday afternoon in the park by the Otonabee River!

* * * * * *

OUR Hastings correspondent sends us an item about a gals' softball game there yesterday when Warkworth damsels took a decisive win over the home belles. He candidly admits he knows not the score, saying: "The score-keeper lost track of the runs about halfway through the game." Hastings used everyone but their second cousins and all that is known is they lost "quite heavily." We can sympathize with the correspondent as we too have often felt a sharp twinge in the region of our rapid calculation (it's located just above the headache zone) as the runs came pell-melling over the platter with the abandon of geese zooming south come autumn. We too have been around when a team was "losing heavily" and have sought in vain to keep up with the runs scored—finally tossing away the pencil and going out and having a long cool one.

Oshawa GM-Men Win Here In Lopsided Ball Game

Swamp Petes By 15-4 Score in Poor Display of Ball Before Slim Crowd.

CHASE TWO PITCHERS.

Oshawa GM-men smashed out a 15-4 C.O.B.L. victory over the Petes here last evening before a slim crowd of fans. It was a poor display of senior baseball, both sides booting six and the winners pounding three pitchers to pile up the score. The win kept Oshawa in a tight race for first place with Kingston and hurt the Petes' chances of squeezing into playoff berth.

Jack Turner on the Oshawa slab twirled a fair brand of ball most of the way, limiting the Liftlockers to seven hits and two walks, with no strikeouts. His support was wobbly in the field but the potent Motora' bats kept him in a commanding lead. Russ Kitchen started for the Petes but was hit hard from the start and left in the third frame after 11 runs had been gained off him in his short stay. Eddie Whitehill followed him but failed to finish the inning, being rapped hard. Bill Calladine took over then and pitched good ball the rest of the route to hold his rivals to five hits and two runs. None of the home flingers had much help defensively nor with the willow.

Tip Hits Homer

Tip Miller, playing first for Wallace, led the winners at bat with a homer and three singles. Rowden got three hits while Jubenville had a triple and single. Starr got three hits for the Petes and Kingdon conked out a triple. Catches by Starr, Burton, Hurst and Rowden were fielding features. Both infields turned in some poor defensive work throughout the tilt.

Oshawa got five runs in the first frame on singles by May, Hurst and Bennett, two steals, an error and Miller's homer to right with two aboard the sacks. They added two next heat on two miscues, a stolen base and a hit by Mathews. The Petes got three in their third on two walks and two bad miscues. The GM-men came back in the third to tally six more and chase Russ Kitchen. They collected them on seven solid clouts, with a walk and two errors thrown in. Whitehill failed to stop them and gave way to Calladine.

Both sides kept threatening but were held down from then on. The Petes got a run in the fifth to end their scoring. Starr singling, going up on an error and tallying on another miscue. In the ninth, Kingdon hit a triple but was run down later at the plate. Oshawa ended their scoring with two runs in the seventh on a walk, triple by Jubenville and double by Rowden.

LEAFS DIVIDE SYRACUSE TWIN

Comorosky Singles With Bases Loaded to Give Toronto 5-4 Victory.

CHIEFS GET SECOND 3-2.

TORONTO, Aug. 5.—A thrilling last inning splurge climaxed by Adam Comorosky's single with the bases loaded, gave the Maple Leafs a 5-4 victory over Syracuse in the first part of a twilight doubleheader at Maple Leaf Stadium last night.

The Chiefs had gone into the final frame protecting a 4-2 lead, but after Johnny Vandermeer had retired Hogan, Hal Stockman, batting for Berly, walked. Madura was also passed, and Stockman scored on Gantenbein's single. Oliver followed suit, scoring Madura with the tying run and, when Craft's throw went past Campbell, Gantenbein and Oliver moved up a base.

Petoskey was purposely passed to fill the bases, but Comorosky upset the Chiefs' double play plans by lining a hit to right scoring Oliver with the deciding run.

Chiefs Get Second 3-2

After coming from behind to win the first game 5-4 with three runs in the last inning, Toronto Maple Leafs valiant bid in the second game was nipped by a double play as Syracuse Chiefs scored a 3-to-2 triumph behind Whitey Moore's five-hit pitching.

The even split left Toronto only half a game out of sixth place.

Meaford Baseballers Turn 'Cricket' And 'Declare' Game After 7 Innings

MEAFORD, Ont., Aug. 5 (C.P.).—That riffling noise you hear is being made by the baseball statisticians. They're thumbing the rule books for something that just isn't there ,with visions of hardy baseballers being called out ibw arising before their perplexed eyes.

Maybe it wasn't cricket, but Meaford Knights "declared" after their seventh innings in a North Simcoe Baseball League game against Thornbury here last night. Six Thornbury batsmen were retired without the loss of a single run as Warpy Phillips set them down without leaving the mound and won the game 10-1.

So to-day the experts are shaking their heads and saying "It can't happen." But it did. The rules say, "Each team must bat alternately for nine innings—unless darkness, rain, or an earthquake intervenes. Meaford officials just say "Shucks, who's going to protest?"

Not only did the Knights set a baseball precedent, but Pitcher Phillips established a league record by fanning 18 men.

Here's how the official line score looks:

Thornbury	001 000 000— 1 7 4
Meaford	010 312 3xx—10 12 2

BOSTON EXTEND WINNING STREAK

Hub City Club Takes Pair of Victories From Cleveland Indians.

YANKS COP ANOTHER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The Boston Red Sox scored their seventh and eighth consecutive victories yesterday to climb within a game of second place in the American League.

The Sox defeated Cleveland Indians, 8 to 6 and 6 to 5, to challenge the runnerup Chicago White Sox, who lost their third straight and dropped eight games behind the leading Yankees today.

The Indians made five errors, which Boston coupled with 14 hits, including Jimmy Foxx's twenty-seventh home run, to win the opener. Each side used three pitchers, with Walberg the winner, Calehouse the loser. Manager Joe Cronin's two-bagger with two men on base in the ninth, drove in the tying and winning runs of the first game.

Yanks Take Another.

Jake Powell hit a single with the bases loaded in the ninth to give New York a 10-to-9 decision over Chicago. Home runs accounted for seven Yankee runs when Bill Dickey connected for his second four-bagger in two days with the bases loaded, and Lou Gehrig cracked out his twenty-third round-tripper of the season with a pair of mates aboard. Johnny Murphy who became the fourth New York hurler of the game when he replaced Wieker in the eighth was credited with his second victory in as many days and his tenth of the year. Singles by DiMaggio and Gehrig and an intentional pass to Dickey set the stage for Powell's hit.

Outslug A's 11-7.

The Detroit Tigers outslugged the Philadelphia Athletics, 11-to-7, for their first win in their last seven starts.

The St. Louis Browns defeated the Washington Senators, 5-to-3, when Harry Davis connected for a triple with the bags crowded in the sixth. Oral Hildebrand went the route, giving up eight hits, one less than collected by the Browns off Deahong and Cohen.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP) — So Mike Jacobs moves into the Garden? ... Well, there wasn't much else for the Garden directors to do... The big money in fighting is in the heavyweights and Mike has almost all the good ones in his pocket—Louis, Braddock, Schmeling, etc... The deal makes Jacobs absolute czar of the cauliflower ear industry... They'll all have to call him uncle from now on... Everyone is wondering what will happen to Jimmy Johnston, for years maestro at the Garden... This corner predicts an early tie up between Jimmy and Jacobs.

Is it against the rules for the Yanks to hit a single any more?... Out in Chicago all they talk about is a world's series between the Cubs and Yanks... What's this, the Dodgers have a big trade cooking?... Anybody wanting to lease a couple of ball parks should see Mike Jacobs ...He has 'em and doesn't need 'em, what with just acquiring the Garden Bowl.

In Tommy Farr's book, Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia rates as the cleverest and smartest fighter the Welshman has ever faced. We told you yesterday Mike Jacobs was walking fast again... The Garden deal is the answer... Dr. James Stotter, New York beauty specialist, rates boxing writers the best looking with the rod and gun guys second and the racing writers, third... The baseball writers (poor mugs) were a bad last.

Chute-Creighton On Injured List

Norwood and Auburns have a C.O.A.L. lacrosse fixture here to-morrow (Friday) night at nine o'clock under the lights in the George Street Arena. It is the final scheduled appearance here of the Norwoodians and the second last home tilt for Auburns before the loop playoffs commence. While the locals are well ahead of Norwood in the standing, a good game can be expected and another big crowd of followers of the gutted-stick sport is anticipated. The visitors have turned in some keen scraps all season but have been nosed out on numerous occasions by Oshawa, Belleville, and Auburns.

Coach Chute and Emmett Creighton will be out of the local lineup for this tussle, both being on the injured list. Otherwise, the Auburns will probably be at full strength and ready to shoot the works in an attempt to continue their winning streak in the Central Ontario group. They ought to chalk up another victory at the expense of Norwood, but it may be a close contest and one full of action. These are old-time Tri-County Loop rivals, the Auburns having beaten Norwood last year for the title in that independent league. Bud Fisher is slated to referee.

Soccer Notes

At the special meeting of the local association last night, Deloro conceded the Injured Players' cup game to the C.C.F. after it had been declared a no game which would compel the teams to meet again in the cup but this was obviated by Representative McKinley on behalf of the club stated that the expense was too much for the visitors therefore the reason of their action. It is stated in the general rules that all Injured Players' cup games must be played in the city. This allows the Politicians to meet the Canada Packers in the final.

Representative David Best, Canadian General, notified the executive that his club could not play any more games this week which included Saturday afternoon when they were slated for Deloro but he declared that they would travel to Deloro the following Saturday to fulfil the final game with the Smelters.

On Saturday, C.C.F. travel to Kingston to play the club in that city in the evening at 6 o'clock. All players are requested to be at the Market Square no later than 12.30 and those who are interested may get the necessary information by phoning 2620. A special practice will be held tonight on King Edward Park at 6.30 and all those signed are requested to attend.

Owing to a large number of their players being on holidays this week and a similar number the week following, the Packers representative Lawrence O'Toole requested to be relieved of games for that period which was granted by the Board. Therefore, there will be no games this week nor next Tuesday.

Next week the secretary and the president will be on their vacations and it is the desire of the officials that the clubs co-operate with the remaining members by attending the meeting next Monday night.

CHICAGO LEAD CUT TO 6 GAMES IN 2-1 SETBACK

Giants Snare First Victory in Six Starts By Defeating Reds 4-3.

DODGERS BEAT BUCS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The National League-leading Chicago Cubs lost 2 to 1, to the Philadelphia Phillies, when they were held to seven well-scattered hits by Wayne Lamaster. It reduced their margin to six games. The only run off Lamaster came when Demaree clouted for the circuit in the sixth. The Phils got off to a lead in the second inning when Camilli singled and scored on Scharein's double. Johnny Moore's homer off Larry French in the fourth proved to be the winning tally.

Giants Nose Out Reds 4-3

The second-place Giants nosed out the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3, behind Harry Gumbert's seven-hit pitching. It broke a five-game losing streak. A two-run burst in the seventh proved to be the tying and winning markers. Ripple and Leslie singled, then an intentional pass loaded the bags. Derringer replaced Schott and Ripple tallied on Ryan's infield out, and Leslie came home when Riggs fumbled Gumbert's grounder.

The Brooklyn Dodgers were outslugged, but came out on the long end of a 10-7 score, with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers were outhit, 17-15, but bunched theirs better, making three runs at a whack in the third fourth and ninth innings. Pittsburgh left 13 men stranded on the base paths. Lavagetto and Brack homered for Brooklyn; Handley for Pittsburgh. Buddy Hassett paced the Dodger attack with four hits in five trips—triple, double and two singles. The Pirates used six pitchers in an attempt to stop the avalanche, with the loss charged to Brandt. Fitzsimmons, who subsequently gave way to Henshaw and Lindsey, was the winner.

Cards Blast Fette

Trailing four runs in the last half of the ninth the St. Louis Cards blasted Lou Fette, ace of the Boston Bees' pitching staff, from the mound and scored five runs to win, 7-6. All the runs were scored with two out. Terry Moore walked, Johnny Mize single, Medwick doubled, Padgett Manager Frankie Frisch, pinch-hitting for Catcher Owen, cracked out a single, driving in the tying and winning runs. Guy Bush, who relieved Fette with two away in that torrid half-inning, was reached for three hits and a walk, to be charged with the loss.

Vanderbilt Is After Fourth Straight In Trophy Defense

Loss To-day Eliminates Sopwith From America Cup Series.

RANGER FAVORED.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 5—(CP)—T. O. M. Sopwith nosed his blue-hulled Endeavor II out past Brenton's Reef to-day in his last chance to make good the challenge of the Royal Yacht Squadron for the America's Cup. A loss to-day would eliminate the British boat.

By the same token Harold S. Vanderbilt set sail in his white-hulled Ranger, determined to make it four straight wins in the New York Yacht Club's 16th defence of the trophy.

Barring a moderate blow, which may or may not develop as the day wears on, the consensus is Ranger will complete her conquest of Endeavor.

The contest yesterday over a 30-mile windward-leeward course showed that given moderate weather conditions the wider-beamed challenger can give a good account of herself.

Endeavor II last by four minutes, 27 seconds, compared with 17-minute and 18-minute beatings administered Monday and last Saturday.

What she could do to the defender in a real breeze of wind from 15 to 20 knots remains to be seen. Ranger is canvassed for the zephyr-troubled waters of Narragansett Bay in August. Endeavor II is not.

For the first two race, the defender had weather made to order for Vanderbilt. She ran away from the British sloop. But yesterday's weather was not so much to the defender's liking, and Vanderbilt had trouble with the huge head sails, designed for ghosting in light airs.

At that, Ranger was better than Endeavor II on and off the wind. But the margin of her superiority was not nearly so apparent as in previous races and in addition the challengers crew had the better of their Swedish rivals. The skippers sail a triangular course to-day.

CAPTAINS COURAGEOUS
by Rudyard Kipling

EXTRA! EXTRA! DEANNA DURBIN —in— "EVERY SUNDAY"
CAPITOL

Oscar O'Shea, who plays an important part in Captains Courageous, was born in Peterborough. For many years he has been with stock companies playing Canada and United States and he now makes his appearance in the role of an Irish sea captain, who battles mightily for victory with another fishing fleet master, Lionel Barrymore, and he gave a splendid performance.

PUGILISTS UNDAUNTED

LOWESTOFT, England—(CP). — Rain poured, lightning flashed, but the only people who scurried from an open-air boxing bout here were the spectators. Snowy Edwards beat Bill Hardy in 12 rounds.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTON.—In fond and loving memory of a dear Mother, Mrs. Thomas Johnston, who passed away in Bailieboro three years ago to-day.

We loved her, yes we loved her.
But Jesus loved her more;
And He has sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
His gentle voice said, "Come."
And with farewells unspoken
She calmly entered Home.
—Sadly missed by Son and Daughter.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTON.—In fond and loving memory of a dear Mother, Mrs. Thomas Johnston, who passed away in Bailieboro three years ago to-day.

We loved her, yes we loved her.
But Jesus loved her more;
And He has sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
His gentle voice said, "Come."
And with farewells unspoken
She calmly entered Home.
—Sadly missed by Son and Daughter.

LOVE IS FOR TOMORROW

By
VIRGINIA SCALLON

CHAPTER 50

Sandy received Mrs. Madden's letter the following day, and grinned as he noticed both an airmail and a special delivery stamp on the lavender envelope. When he saw the postmark of "La Cresta", he ripped it open rapidly. Not troubling to look at the papers that fell from the envelope, he scanned the notepaper quickly.

Amazement and then a quick smile of triumphant happiness erased the worried lines from his face. Like magic he felt a new spirit of enthusiasm warming his heart, and he stooped to pick up the missing papers. When he had studied them in the bright light of that July day, his satisfaction became complete.

Silently he re-read the explanatory letter the cunning old lady had sent him.

"Sandy, you dear stubborn boy," it read. "Look at the enclosed pictures made by my granddaughter, and then rush right down here before you break both our hearts. Any girl who can glorify your nondescript face like this must be in love with you. I don't know this Paula, but I'll wager she can't draw...or love... like my Marcia.

"Yours very sincerely,
"ALICIA MADDEN."

Sandy went tearing about the office like a madman, and Mike Borst, who had appropriated Paula's old corner, looked on in amazement.

"What in thunder has struck you, man?"

"Love—Marcia!" he almost shouted. "The artist in her was her undoing after all," he laughed aloud. Excitedly he pushed both the letter and the tell-tale pictures under his friend's nose.

"Yeah," he said vacantly. "She must be in love—or nuts!" And he looked appraisingly at Sandy's features and then back at the proof in his hand. Decidedly there was a resemblance, but he shook his head when he considered how far-fetched it was.

Sandy grabbed his hat from the desk and rushed out with a hasty remark, "I'll be back sometime." To which Mike said laconically, "Oh, thanks."

He was in his car when another thought struck him, and he stopped short. He felt a belated spirit of sportsmanship toward the luckless Garret, and decided before he went to claim Marcia that he owed that gentleman an apology. Painfully, he forced himself to go to Gary's office, and there he expressed his appreciation for Gary's tactful handling of the whole mixup at the Trocadero. Before leaving, he turned gratefully to the man sitting behind his big desk. He seemed about to speak, when Gary interrupted him.

"Are you trying to tell me that you've won Marcia where I failed? Because if you are, I want to congratulate you," the publisher rose to his feet, and extended his hand with a sincere smile. "Make her happy."

"Sandy was embarrassed, but appreciative of the man's fine spirit.

"Oh, and Knight," he continued, "you might take her this child's story, and tell her I'd like to have her do the illustrations for it. It's an easy kind of vacation job," he smiled. Sandy accepted it awkwardly, then quickly took his leave.

The old gray roadster covered the miles between Los Angeles and La Cresta in a little more than half the time Marcia had taken. No luncheon for him when he was on his way to Marcia?

He swiftly jumped from the car before it had hardly stopped in front of the Madden bungalow. The scene looked no different than it had the year before, when he had stalked so angrily up the hill in search of vengeance. The sun glinted brightly on the towering palm tree, and flowers again blossomed gaily in the prim little garden. In a moment Mrs. Madden came out on the porch to make the illusion real. From that time on, the scene was distinctly of the present.

Mrs. Madden hurried down the walk to meet him.

"You're not angry with me?" she asked at once, but his beaming face told her more quickly than his words that he was glad for her helpful 'meddling'.

"Well, fools rush in," she smiled indulgently. Then she pretended anger as she turned and scolded him roundly, "but speaking of fools, I think you and Marcia take the blue ribbons!"

Sandy barely nodded, then asked, "Where is she?"

Garndma pointed toward the hillside where he had spent so many happy hours with Marcia. "She took her horse and went for a ride," she began, but Sandy was half way out the gate.

"You can't drive there!" she was calling a warning after him, but Sandy already was roaring away toward the hill. He forced the car as far up the steep incline as it would go, then got out and walked impatiently up toward the summit. He loosened the collar of his light sport shirt as he plunged over the brush, calling loudly or Marcia.

The girl was leading her horse across the ridge when she heard his voice faintly. Disbelieving her ears, she walked on. Unconsciously she had found the spot where Sandy had told her of his love long months before and was musing unhappily on the way she had kept pushing love into the future until she had finally lost it completely.

Suddenly there was no doubting the tones of the voice coming to her, and with a quick cry of happiness she started to run in the direction from which it came. They met with forcible violence as she plunged headlong down the steep cliff, and Sandy held her to him wildly. For a long moment there was no word of explanation or of question—simply complete happiness at the reunion that had happened so miraculously.

Finally, Marcia drew back and with wide-eyed wonder said, "How did you find me after all these lonely weeks?"

"I guess my heart unconsciously must have broadcast an S.O.S. for help," he teased her. "I received another mysterious letter from my famous radio public, and it brought me to my senses in double-quick time. From now on there's nothing big enough to keep us apart; we've wasted too many precious months in waiting."

Mistily Marcia agreed. She sensed vaguely that grandma must have had a hand in their reunion, but there was time enough for those details later. She found it hard to realize that all the loneliness and sadness of the past weeks was over, and that they were together for all time.

It was almost an hour later that Sandy generously told Marcia of Gary's fine attitude on that last interview. Rather shamefacedly he revealed that his love was no longer so demanding, when he encouraged her to do the illustrations for the new children's book.

All characters in this story are fictitious.
Central Press Association.

"Children?" Marcia said dreamily. "Ah, Sandy—that gives me a better idea."

With an embarrassed grin, Sandy smiled down at her.

"Yes," she said, "and from now on, we'll leave work for tomorrow."

ANOTHER UNION DRIVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP).—A drive to organize every person in America's "entertainment industry"—from Metropolitan opera divas to stagehands and burlesque's torso-tossers—was projected Wednesday by American Federation of Labor leaders.

They planned to adopt the rival C.I.O. principle of vertical unionism but without sacrifice of carft union autonomy.

THE TUTTS By Crawford Young

BRITISH REARMING SPEEDS UNCHECKED

23rd Anniversary of Start of Last Holocaust Sees Leaders Fighting Off Another.

LONDON, Aug. 5—(CP).—On the 23rd anniversary of that sultry August 4, 1914, when war was declared on Germany, Great Britain is pushing her efforts to build up barricades of peace. While defensive rearmament continues apace, the nation's leaders seek through diplomacy to avert another European holocaust.

Months ago, efforts by the Spanish Non-Intervention Committee to localize the conflict in Spain would have collapsed but for Britain's efforts. Friendly to France and Russia, who favor the Government side in Spain, Britain seeks to smooth their difference with Fascist Italy and Germany, who recognize the insurgents.

With Germany, freed by her own action of Versailles Treaty restrictions, becoming again a dominant militaristic power, Italy building up her forces to meet those of France and Russia, Britain is determined to re-arm and lose no time about it. Every ounce of the country's industrial capacity and patriotic spirit is being mobilized.

A recent announcement in the House of Commons showed 148 new warships will be under construction for the Royal Navy before the end of the year. A drive for recruiting is under way to add 112,000 men to the regular army and reserves and 100,000 men to the Territorial Army. This would bring them up to their 1914 strength.

Aircraft production has been so stimulated that the country will soon reach its goal of 1,750 first-line planes. Already 1,542 of them are in service. Plans are being studied for maintaining essential railway services during air raids, and plans have been drafted for defence of the civilian population.

Plans for defending the merchant navy are being perfected with courses of training for merchant marine officers.

GIRL DROPS DEAD MAN IS ARRESTED

Investigation Under Way After Doctors Blame Illegal Operation.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 5—(CP) Vernal Crooks was held to-day by police on a vagrancy charge, pending investigation into the death last night of Catharine Brown from the effects of what physicians said was an illegal operation.

Miss Brown collapsed as she stepped from a motor car after a drive with Crooks and a 15-year-old girl. Taken to the home of a physician, Miss Brown was pronounced dead.

Chief Coroner Dr. J. H. Mullin and Dr. W. J. Deadman, pathologist, conducted an examination and reported an illegal operation had been performed recently.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND JACKIE'S COLLAR

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Well, where is it?" barked Peetie.

"What did you do with it, Jackie?"

"I guess I lost it," barked the other little puppy, who, with his brother, was visiting at Uncle Wiggily's camp.

"Where did you lose it?" asked Peetie.

"Please don't be silly," whined Jackie.

"Silly! What do you mean?" inquired Peetie.

"Well, you asked me where I lost my collar. If I knew where I lost it I would go there and find it, wouldn't I? Silly I call it."

"It was silly of you to lose your collar. You look very funny without it," barked Peetie. "But I shouldn't be mean to you. Come on, I'll help you look for it."

Wants to Help

"What is lost now?" asked Uncle Wiggily hopping out of his camping tent with his pink twinkling nose, which he couldn't very well leave behind him. "What have you lost, doggie boys? Don't tell me it's the baseball that Earlie the little squirrel dropped down on my nose when I was asleep in my hammock."

"No, it isn't that, Uncle Wiggily," barked Peetie.

"It's my collar—I lost it," whined Jackie. "I was running in the woods, playing skip tag with Buster and Custer and, all of a sudden, I couldn't find my collar."

"You didn't see any of the Bad Chaps, did you?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, no," said Jackie. "All I saw, just before my collar fell off and got lost, were some hoptoad boys and girls jumping in the woods. But they didn't take my collar."

"No," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh that made his pink nose twinkle twice as fast as a star, "I don't believe the hoptoad children would have any use for your collar, Jackie. But we must find it."

"Peetie and I are going to look for it now," said Jackie.

"All right," answered Uncle Wiggily. "You little puppy dog boys go one way and I'll go another way and we'll see who first finds the lost collar."

Success

"Thank you, Uncle Wiggily!" barked Jackie and Peetie. Away they ran from the rabbit gentleman's camp near Blue Lake. Waiting to see which way the puppies ran, Uncle Wiggily hopped the other.

"I think," said the rabbit gentleman to himself, "I shall go to the place where Jackie saw the hoptoad children just before he missed his collar. They may know something about it."

In a little while Uncle Wiggily heard voices in the woods.

"Watch me!" called one. Another said: "It's my turn!" And a third shouted: "I'm going to jump through it now!"

Hopping toward the voices, Uncle Wiggily saw a number of toad boys taking turns jumping through a leather hoop hanging from a low tree branch.

"What are you doing?" asked the rabbit of the toad boys.

"We are playing circus and jumping through this hoop we found on a branch," said one hopper. "It's lots of fun."

"Why, that's Jackie's lost collar!" laughed Mr. Longears. "It must have caught on the branch when he was playing skip tag. I am glad I have found it for him. I'll make another hoop for you."

So Uncle Wiggily made a hoop from a barrel for the toads and took Jackie's collar back to him. Jackie was happy again.

But please don't let the ice cream sit on the gas stove too long. Then I can tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's dandelion music.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into your body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Price 25c.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, ranked to-day as the highest paid executive in 1936 among corporations reporting to the United States' Securities Commission. He was paid $561,311, including $411,161 bonus.

The only Hearst salary listed is $500,000 from Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., but securties officials said he may have received other pay cheques from the score of other corporations that make up his newspaper, magazine, real estate and mining empire.

Among the few large corporations which do not have to report is the Ford Motor Company, because its securities are not traded on a United States Securities Exchange.
